The corporation is capitalized at $5,000,000. There are 50,000 shares, 25,000 of which are preferred and 25,000 are common. Ten thousand shares of the common are held by the general public. They have been transferred so many times that many of the present holders under California law, do not hold voting power. Another 10,000 of the common are in the treasury, controlled by the directors, and the remaining 5,000 shares are controlled by Vanderbilt Jr., himself. Preferred shares are all held by the public.

Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr.

John J. O'Kane, Jr., & Co., a Broadway brokerage firm handles the Vanderbilt stock. He said there was no market for it at present. He was asking, he said, $20 for the preferred stock, but in the last transaction about two weeks ago $10 was bid.

Vanderbilt Jr., gave the list of present directors of the Vanderbilt Newspapers, Inc., as follows:

Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., president; D. W. Churchill, vice-president; Edwin Poe, vice-president of the Baltimore Trust Company; Miss R. L. Stahl, of Los Angeles, executive secretary; H. B. Granlee, Los Angeles, secretary treasurer; W. S. Siemon, 49 Wall street, New York, a lawyer; Robert Fiedler, New York; Ray Baker, former director of the U. S. Mint; and J. W. Brodix.

Morton Littleton, a half-brother of Martin Littleton, was a director, but resigned about three months ago.

The family angle in the situation was dismissed by Mr. Malone as "a clash of opinion as to what should be done with the tabloids."

Brig. Gen. Vanderbilt, because of his aversion to newspapers generally, and to his son's in particular, wanted them put out of business immediately.

"I want to continue them long enough at least to put them on a paying basis and to protect the stockholders," Vanderbilt Jr., said.

Mr. Malone cut in to say that negotiations had been underway between father and son for some time. It had been hoped and expected the family would give the son time enough to complete negotiations.

"They didn't give us time enough," said Mr. Malone.

"And now I am facing the situation alone," Vanderbilt Jr., completed the sentence.

He was asked if he was disgusted with newspaper work, if he expected to continue in it, whether or not the present situation was satisfactorily met.

"Certainly, after all these months of financial worry, he isn't dying to go on," ejaculated the lawyer.

Vanderbilt Jr., however, contradicted him.

"No, no, not a bit of it," he said. "Most certainly I intend to remain in newspaper work."

The New York Evening World quoted Frank Reilly, formerly advertising manager of the San Francisco Herald with saying that Vanderbilt Jr., had surrounded himself with incompetents. Reilly declared that if competent men were put in charge the tabloids could easily be made to pay.

There have been many reports regarding the stock selling methods employed in financing Vanderbilt Newspapers, Inc.

Vanderbilt Jr., and has attorney would not discuss these reports.

The stock was sold by an organization, the name of which the lawyer and his client said they were not privileged to make public, and it was not until after all the stock was sold that Vanderbilt Jr., knew the methods employed, he claimed.

Reporters were told of some amusing incidents that occurred during Thursday afternoon, when they gathered there for a conference with Vanderbilt Jr., and Mr. Malone.

The lawyer and the young millionaire were riding in a taxicab. The machine began to smoke badly.

"What's the matter," Vanderbilt Jr., leaned forward to ask the chauffer.

"Say," commented the driver. "You're the young feller whose picture was in all the papers today. You're Vanderbilt what needs $300,000 to run his tabloids.

"I've got $96 in the Corn Exchange Bank you can have if you want it."

Former Fire Captain Joseph Bonk, whose son was a dispatch bearer in France with Vanderbilt Jr., telephoned Mayfair House to offer $1,000 towards the $300,000. Vanderbilt Jr., had seen Bank's son killed in action in France.

Mr. Vanderbilt, Jr., made public the split with his family and the situation of his tabloid properties in dramatic fashion in Mayfair House, a Park avenue apartment, on Wednesday evening.

His attorney had first sent a formal announcement to the New York dailies to be published as an advertisement and then had asked that reporters come to interview his client.

A short time afterwards, nervously puffing a cigarette, Mr. Vanderbilt told his story to 30 newspaper men. Answering questions, he disclosed that his newspapers represented an investment of little more than $5,000,000. The family holding in the stock is only about $100,000. The sum of $3,500,000 is held by the public. About $1,500,000 of the stock was sold on the partial payment plan. This stock is held by the corporation pending payment of all instalments.

Mr. Vanderbilt said he wanted his 5,000 stockholders to know the "situation."

His father, he said, had advanced him $1,080,000 on demand notes in the last 16 months, but had cried "enough" on Friday last. Experts had told him that the $300,000 were needed to keep the three tabloids going. The formal statement was made without the knowledge of his family.

"I don't want to antagonize my family," young Vanderbilt said, "but I have a responsibility here and I'll go through hell to protect my stockholders."

The formal statement follows in full:

"Dudley Field Malone,
"Attorney-at-Law,
"43 Exchange Place,
"New York.

"To Whom It May Concern:

"My client, Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., three years ago became president of the Vanderbilt Newspapers, Inc., with three widely read newspapers in San Francisco, Los Angeles and Miami, Fla. At that time, when he was 25 years of age, Mr. Vanderbilt conceived the scheme of a chain of tabloid newspapers expressing through their editorials a youthful outlook on the country's problems.

"The newspapers met with great success, the one in Los Angeles having two years ago achieved a larger circulation than any newspaper west of Chicago. But Mr. Vanderbilt, himself inexperienced on the business side, placed responsibility in the hands of trusted men who mismanaged the corporation's affairs and produced the need of heavy financing to run the newspapers and protect the holdings of the stockholders.

"Over $1,000,000 belonging to Mr. Vanderbilt's family has been paid into the corporation to meet operating costs. This sum belongs to the Vanderbilt family, but also potentially to Mr. Vanderbilt himself by right of inheritance, since he is the only son.

"Mr. Vanderbilt's family, however, have recently assumed the right to cease further financial aid to his newspapers, an assumption of right with which Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., is at variance. For Mr. Vanderbilt has in addition to his right of inheritance from his parents, fixed patrimony of $1,500,000 which he stands ready to pledge, if necessary, to save the enterprises.

"The corporation has been completely reorganized in the last year and a half,

(Continued on page 50)

POUZZNER WINS GREAT DRESS SUIT BATTLE ON EVE OF POLAR LARK

By HARRY S. BRESSLER

'TWAS the week of the Publishers' Convention in New York. The big bosses of the American press were busy chewing the fat among themselves, but they took time out on the evening of the second day. A glittering party had been arranged for them at the Friars' Club, which probably packs more Broadway celebrities to the square foot than the number of names to be found on a bootlegger's yard-long customer list.

One of the 500 whose presence was cordially desired.

It was a feast and frolic that men flocked to from across the continent. They called it a "Polar Lark," but it proved a lot warmer than that. The array of food and the lavishness of the entertainment which Mr. Koenigsberg spread before his guests made a Roman saturnalia seem like an armchair lunch. From eight in the evening till the wee sma' hours, such struggling young persons as Sophie Tucker, "Bugs" Baer, David Belasco, "Texas" Guinan and her jolly janes, the orchestras of New York's most expensive night clubs, and the expensive chorus beauties of a half dozen musical shows—well, they helped make life bearable.

The blowout was strictly stag, at least this side of the footlights. Publisher Ben Pouzzner of the Lowell Sunday Telegram and also of the Lawrence (Mass.) Telegram was one of the 500 whose presence was cordially desired.

He kept wriggling and squirming in, a rib at a time.

It may be true that the card of invitation seemed rather formal; which is to say it smacked of a DRESS SUIT. Now Pouzzner hates dress suits; hates them in all their aspects, angles, quirks, corners and frippery fol-de-rols. So he just figured on forgetting about the party and slipping back to Lowell or Lawrence that afternoon. (Say, where are those places, anyway, that people go back to 'em from N'ew York?)

Pouzzner may have reckoned on getting away, but he reckoned without Bressler, his New York host. Said host was determined that he should ATTEND THAT PARTY, and in a weak moment Pouzzner let himself be persuaded, cajoled, driven, brow-beaten into going—and wearing a dress suit belonging to this chronicler!

Never were pants so cruelly mistreated

Chapter II

Right here it must be explained that no description of the dress suit was offered, or asked. The owner didn't consider it necessary to explain that this particular suit hadn't been worn in more than eight years. You can imagine why.

It was a relic of pre-war days, which somehow had not been sold to the government. In President McKinley's era it was the pride of the Bowery, but had sadly deteriorated about the time this writer's Adonis-like figure had become ambitious and begun to expand fore and aft.

Poor Ben Pouzzner didn't know this till he reached ye scribe's house in the wilds of the Bronx. Then it was too late.

Chapter III

He tried the coat on first. Put his arm into one sleeve, and it fitted like a glove. HONEST! Then he attempted to put on the rest of the coat and discovered he was forty pounds overweight. But he kept wriggling and squirming in, a rib at a time. Finally, by persuading his shoulder-blades to kiss one another and rearranging other parts of his anatomy, he found himself completely surrounded by a full dress coat—all but the front, and both hips. Fortunately he wasn't carrying anything on them.

Flushed with this brilliant victory over the recalcitrant coat, Pouzzner set out to conquer the whole suit. He paused a moment to dust off his shoes with a rag that happened to be handy, then something dawned on him:

"Say, I haven't yet put on the shirt!"

"The shirt?" repeated his host, "Why you've just been using it."

"That a shirt?"

"Yes, it WAS," reassured his friend—"and anyway, the coat and vest covers most of it."

Now, if Pouzzner took off his coat to put on the shirt, would he be able to put the coat on again? He took one more look at the shirt and that decided him. He knew that THAT shirt could never be worn on the outside.

Strangely enough, Pouzzner had only slight difficulty in discovering which of the holes was meant for the neck. He climbed in all right, and the world will never know the tragic condition of the shirt that Pouzzner held close to his bosom that night.

Chapter IV

Next came the pants.

The pants really require an obituary by themselves. Never were pants so cruelly mistreated. Never did a human being pant so in getting into them. Never did Pouzzner have to use more wile and ambidextrous ingenuity on anything. When all his toes were in, he was encouraged. He continued the struggle. He prayed that the good dinners he had enjoyed during the last thirty years might vanish into nothingness. He even tried to reason with the upper ends of his pants, to persuade them to come together across his palpitating paunch. He tried taking a deep breath. He held it. He pulled in his abdomen until it was practically indistinguishable from his back.

And still there was a vast expanse on the front end that mocked his every effort. It was no use. Buttons and buttonholes stared coldly across at one another. This time it sure looked as though the victory belong to the pants.

Pouzzner was licked,—and by his own front porch, too. His friend stood by, torn between compassion and sarcasm. Compassion got the upper hand, and he blurted out:

"WEAR MY PANTS!"

"Waiter, where's my soup?"

"Nix. What'll you wear?"

"Tha's all right," waxed the host, generously, "I kin still get into the ones you've been wrastling with, and no one'll know they don't belong to my tux."

A slight pretense at refusal—and Pouzzner climbed into 'em. Darned if they didn't almost fit, too. Everything looked rosy again—until Pouzzner started to SIT DOWN.

A cry of "murder!" rent the air, there followed more ripping and tearing, and a perfectly good pair of pants went to pieces under the strain.

Chapter V

Button by button and seam by seam the calamity was being sewed up by the host's heroic wife. When it looked as though the task could never be accomplished, the mere males had a brilliant idea: Why couldn't some of the severed seams be covered over with shoe blacking?

Chapter VI

Well, the pants were made to look like pants again. There remained only one source of trial—the white vest.

Skipping over the fact that it had gone into mourning years back, the only difficulty was in reconciling a 34 inch vest to a 42 inch girth.

Here again the ever-obliging missus came to the rescue with needle and thread and shears. A rip up the back, rayon reinforcements near the neck—and the job was done. It's true that diplomatic relations between the right and left side of the vest hung by a thread, but they hung. Buttons and buttonholes shook hands across the airtight abdomen and promised to remain in a close embrace throughout the evening.

The tout ensemble wasn't so bad, if one didn't look at it too closely. Pouzzner was ready for the Lark. He was dressed to kill, and he didn't care who was t first victim.

A half hour later he arrived at t Friars' Club, where the festivities we going full blast—and discovered he w the only man wearing a dress suit!

Chapter VII

When he came to, it dawned on hi that dress suits had gone out of sty with four-minute speakers, war brid and Fighting for Humanity. These we the Times of the Tux. He tried to see at ease, carefree, nonchalant, as it were but sure enough, some minutes lat Fred Stuart of the Middletown (N. Y Times-Press was heard yelling at hir

"Waiter, where's my soup?"

MORAL:

Be careful what anyone lends you wh you're on a lark away from Lowell.

INSTALLMENT DEBT I $2,750,000,000

Sales of Six and a Half Billions Goods On Partial Payments— What New Plan Costs Purchasers

PINEHURST, N. C., May 4.—Insta ment selling as generally practiced sound business, with $2,750,000,000 national installment debt outstanding the United States at a time on an annu turnover of six and a half billion dolla worth of diversified goods and this fo of business is proving a safe and pro able basis for bank loans as now co ducted although danger lurks in any r laxation of strict credit principles in co nection with it, according to the Econon Policy Commission of the Americ Bankers' Association meeting here.

Installment selling in the Uni States, according to the Economy Pol Commission of the American Banke Association, now amounts to a debt $2,750,000,000. This is on an annu turnover of six and a half billions of d lars' worth of diversified merchandi The Commission found it "sound bu ness."

Outstanding points in the commissio summary of conditions are as follows:

Installment selling has had great a rapid growth since 1912 due principa to the automobile and coincident with development of finance companies.

Six and a half billion dollars' worth goods are annually sold on installments this country, but the average installm debt outstanding at one time is only per cent of this or about $2,750,000,000

About 54 per cent of this outstand debt, or nearly $1,500,000,000, represe automobiles.

There are about 1,000 active finan companies, with many new ones be started and old ones going out of bu ness. They cover many classes of bu ness but carry only about a third of total installment loans, the rest be handled by dealers, manufacturers a banks.

It usually costs purchasers as mu more to buy on installments as it wo if they borrowed the money at an ann interest rate of 15 to 40 per cent, generally these "carrying charges" co also other costs and services.

Losses by banks have been almost n ligible on loans made to the finance co panies which generally limit their bo borrowings to not more than four tim their capital and surplus.

Southern Pine Manager

Albert R. Israel has been appoin advertising manager of the South Pine Association, to succeed King Pullen, who has resigned, the change ing effective immediately, according announcement by Secretary-Manager C. Berckes, of the association. Israel has been publicity manager of association for the last four and a l years and now the publicity, advertis and trade extension departments h been consolidated with Mr. Israel charge. He was at one time editor chief of the Shreveport (La.) Times.

JOHN S. BRYAN TO DIRECT A. N. P. A. EXPANSION

Richmond News-Leader Publisher Elected President At Close of Organization's New York Meeting—Board Increased by Two Directors—Traffic and Mechanical Departments Voted

TWO important service improvements are assured members of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association as a result of votes cast at the annual convention in New York last week.

The association, now headed by John Stewart Bryan, publisher of the Richmond (Va.) News Leader, with $100,000 additional revenue promised, has pledged itself to accomplish the following progressive innovations:

1. Establishment of a mechanical department, which, under the direction of an expert, will assist association members in all mechanical matters and co-operate with manufacturers to bring about needed reform in standardization of press room equipment.

2. Inauguration of a traffic department to solve for members all inter-state freight transportation problems.

Obviously neither of these service additions will become operative immediately. But a dream of more than a dozen years standing in the mind of L. B. Palmer, association manager, is at last beginning to see the light of realization.

Mr. Palmer told EDITOR & PUBLISHER he expected that concrete details on the two innovations would be available in time for report at the second fall meeting of the A.N.P.A. to be held at French Lick, Ind., in November.

E. H. Butler of the Buffalo (N. Y.) Evening News was elected vice-president. George M. Rogers of the Cleveland (O.) Plain Dealer, secretary, and Howard Davis, New York Herald Tribune, treasurer, were re-elected.

The number of directors was increased by two, making fourteen. The new directors elected were F. W. Bush of the Athens (Ohio) Messenger and J. D. Barnum of the Syracuse (N. Y.) Post-Standard. Five directors were re-elected: F. G. Bell of the Savannah (Ga.) Morning News, Harry Chandler of the Los Angeles Times, Paul Patterson of the Baltimore Sun, Charles H. Taylor of the Boston Globe and T. R. Williams of the Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph and Gazette-Times. S. E. Thomason of the Chicago Tribune the retiring President, automatically becomes a director.

E. S. Friendly of the New York Sun and H. J. Powell of the Coffeyville (Kan.) Journal were elected Inspectors of Elections for the 1927 annual meeting.

The recommendation made by the Bureau of Advertising of the A.N.P.A. that a special committee be appointed to investigate the press agent evil was not adopted by members at the convention, according to Mr. Palmer.

Formation of the mechanical bureau actually got underway last summer, when Charles F. Hart, mechanical superintendent of the New York Times, was appointed chairman of a special committee to discuss with press manufacturers the practicability of arriving at some modified standard of press accessories.

Mr. Hart reported to the convention that members of the engineering departments of press builders had agreed with the A.N.P.A. regarding the necessity and also the possibility of "arriving at some very agreeable standards that would simplify the work in the press rooms of the country."

"There are so many things beyond the general design of the printing unit that can be made uniform that it is a burning shame that it has not been done years ago," Mr. Hart continued in his report.

"On the question of the standardization bureau, I have received letters from quite a number of publishers and I have talked with quite a great many more, and the general feeling seems to be that the immediate results would be forthcoming. I doubt that very much. This bureau may be in existence three or five years before it reaches a point of real, efficient help to the organization.

"If publishers will stop to think that the fifth leading industry in the world, the printing industry, is absolutely without any central clearing house for the millions and millions of dollars worth of machinery bought each year, it is almost unbelievable. You cannot get any other large manufacturer to think that such is the case.

John Stewart Bryan

"Now the question comes up as to who should be at the head of that Bureau. It should not be an old Soldiers' Home. If such a bureau is established, there should be secured one or two bright, red-blooded young engineers of the technical training, both mechanically and electrically, and they should be put to work, and be trained just as we are trying to train mechanical superintendents today in the offices.

"It is not for me to say what their qualifications should be, but, based upon my little ramble through newspaperdom, the last few years (starting as I did when it was comparatively small and seeing it now at the magnitude it is) I should say that publishers must have at the head of that Bureau, a man who is original, who is a thinker, who will not get in a groove, who cannot and will not be bullied, who can have the confidence of the publishers and the confidence of the machinery builders and the confidence of the supply men.

"The fact remains that all those things can be done in a perfectly organized way if you have such a bureau. It is going to be a liability perhaps for two or three years. The next five or ten years after that, it will be a wonderful asset to publishers, and I strongly urge that you set about the organization of such a bureau."

Money saving for publishers is expected to follow almost immediately on establishment of the traffic department.

"There is every reason to believe that such a department will be the cause of recovery to members of the association of much money from excessive transportation charges," an A.N.P.A. official explained to EDITOR & PUBLISHER. "In other words, every newspaper that puts a traffic man to work on its transportation bills finds many inequalities and unauthorized charges to correct. Individuals are making a living at saving this money for concerns using freight, why shouldn't it be done co-operatively?"

Mr. Bryan, the new president, is in hearty sympathy with the proposed organization of the two new service bureaus. In an exclusive statement to EDITOR & PUBLISHER, he said:

"The A.N.P.A. broke into new territory last year when under the suggestions of S. E. Thomason, then president, the Association decided to undertake for its members services which had hertofore been discharged, when discharged at all, by the personal suggestions or opinions of one member to another. Mr. Thomason had perceived that one of the greatest services rendered by the Association was the information and opinion that was gathered during the meetings by personal discussion between the members. This form of information covered every activity from the purchase of presses to the width of column rules. As it was not possible for every member to be present at every discussion, there was a vast amount of extremely valuable information that was not available to everybody. It was Mr. Thomason's idea, in which idea the convention heartily concurred, that adequate bureaus should be set up for dealing with the larger aspects of newspaper publishing. American newspaper publishers have already developed an activity of the utmost value to their members in the Labor Bureau, for the organized labor and in addition the A.N.P.A. has an open shop department. Under the direction of the association this year two additional bureaus will be set up; one will cover the question of traffic, and when it is remembered that the American newspapers use 2,800,000 tons of paper a year, it is obvious that a very slight variation in the cost of transportation charges will amount to immense sums, likewise with the rapid increase of mechanical appliances it has become evident that the association should furnish to its members accurate and impartial judgment on various mechanical appliances. For the discharge of this service a mechanical bureau will also be undertaken.

"The alacrity with which the larger newspapers have assumed the increased cost of membership and the loyalty with which the smaller members are supporting the association augurs extremely well for the future development of this work."

John Stewart Bryan was born October 23, 1871, at Brook Hill, Henrico County, Virginia, the son of Joseph Bryan and Isobel Lamont Bryan, who before her marriage was Miss Isobel Lamont Stewart, the daughter of John Stewart, of Rothesay, Scotland.

Joseph Bryan, his father, was one of the leading Virginians of his day. He was a member of Col. John S. Mosby's famous band of raiders during the Civil War, and a participant in many of the most brilliant cavalry expeditions of "Mosby's Men." After the war Joseph Bryan contributed signally to the upbuilding of devastated Virginia, and took a prominent part in the affairs of Richmond and the State. His contributions to the rehabilitation of the Virginia capital were such that a statue of him was erected by Richmond citizens in Monroe Park following his death. He was a typical Virginia gentleman of the old school, greatly admired and loved by rich and poor alike. John Stewart Bryan received his early education in private schools and at the Episcopal high school, near Alexandria, Va. After being graduated from the last named institution he entered the University of Virginia, where he was prominent in student activities. He was awarded the A.B. and the A.M. degree both in 1893. He then entered Harvard University, from which institution he obtained the LL.B. degree.

In 1897 Mr. Bryan took up the practice of law, and devoted himself to that profession until 1900. He tells the story that it was a trip over the Baltimore & Ohio to Chicago in 1901, when the Associated Press was reorganized, that really decided him to abandon the law and become a publisher. It was shortly after that trip that he was inducted into membership in the A.N.P.A. having been persuaded to join by Charles H. Taylor, Jr. His active career as a member of the association began at that time, and he has attended every A.N.P.A. convention held during the succeeding 25 years.

In 1900 Mr. Bryan gave up the practice of law and became assistant publisher of the Richmond Times Dispatch, of which his father was publisher. In 1903 he took entire charge of the publication of that newspaper, and held the position for the next seven years. In 1910 he relinquished the Times Dispatch and became publisher of the News Leader, which position he has retained since that time.

Mr. Bryan has, for a number of years, taken a prominent part in the affairs of the A. N. P. A. For two years prior to his election to the presidency of the association he was its vice-president, and for eight years prior to his vice-presidency he served as secretary of the organization. He was a member of a number of important committees, the most revolutionary of which was the committee on reformation of dues. As chairman of that body he made an exhaustive study of the basis of dues, and the conclusions of his committee were adopted and ratified by the association for two successive years.

During the World War, Mr. Bryan founded and acted as editor-in-chief for Trench and Camp, the soldiers' newspaper which was published in more than thirty camps throughout the country. This work was done by Mr. Bryan in his capacity as a member of the war council of the Y. M. C. A. Mr. Bryan states that the paper owed its great power and influence solely to the co-operation of the A. N. P. A. When he began the work, he appealed to the publishers of the country to assist the government by the dissemination of facts concerning the war and conditions in the camps. Many of them responded and printed the papers for distribution in camps situated in their respective localities. The following newspapers co-operated in the work:

Washington Star, New Orleans Times-Picayune, Birmingham News, Atlanta Constitution, Augusta Herald, Boston Globe, Battle Creek Enquirer-News, Charlotte Observer, Chattanooga Times, Columbia State, El Paso Herald, Topeka State Journal, Oklahoma City Oklahoman, Fort Worth Star-Telegram, Greenville (S. C.) Daily News, New Orleans Item, Houston Post, Little Rock Democrat, Louisville Courier-Journal, Macon Telegraph, Montgomery Advertiser, San Francisco Bulletin, Richmond News Leader, Chicago Daily News, Los Angeles Times, San Antonio Light, Tacoma Tribune, Waco Morning News, Trenton Times, New York World, Florida Times-Union, Charleston (S. C.) News and Courier, Tampa Times, Buffalo Evening News, Brooklyn Daily Eagle, Lakeland (Fla.) Star, and Atlanta Journal.

Mr. Bryan has been rector of the Board of Visitors of the University of Virginia, and is at the present time a member of the board of William and Mary College, the oldest institution of higher education in the country, with the exception of Harvard. He is a member of the International Board of Education, and for six years was a member of the national governing body of the Protestant Episcopal Church. Mr. Bryan is one of the leading Episcopal laymen in the South, and takes an active and prominent part in the affairs of that denomination. He is the founder and first president of the Richmond Public Library, and the opening of that institution a few years ago was almost entirely due to his efforts. He is chairman of the Richmond Community Fund, which raised nearly $450,000 last fall for charitable purposes, and is president of the Richmond Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

These are a few of Mr. Bryan's varied activities. He is in great demand as a public speaker. He belongs to the Society of the Cincinnati, Delta Psi, Greek letter fraternity, and Phi Beta Kappa honorary scholastic society.

His principal diversions are riding and golf. He is an expert horseman.

POSTAL HEARINGS CLOSE FOLLOWING DENNING-STEWART ARGUMENTS

Enactment of 1920 Rates Would Mean Return of 100,000,000 Pounds of Second Class Matter to Mails, Publishers' Spokesman Declares

HEARINGS on the postal rates before the Joint Subcommittee of Congress were closed on Thursday, April 22, with a final statement from William I. Denning, attorney for the American Publishers Conference, which co-ordinates the postal activities of the Agricultural Publishers Association, Associated Business Papers, Inc., National Editorial Association, the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association and the National Publishers Association. Joseph Stewart, executive assistant to the Postmaster General, closed for the Post Office Department.

The statement of Mr. Denning was in the nature of a rebuttal to previous testimony of Mr. Stewart. In answer to testimony of George C. Lucas, secretary of the National Publishers Association, Mr. Stewart expressed doubt as to whether or not the Government should as a matter of policy adopt the 1920 postage rates thereby inducing a return to the mails of something like 100,000,000 pounds of second class which is now being handled by competitive transportation agencies. He stated that this volume of second class was now being handled satisfactorily by these competitive agencies and that its return to the mails would cause a large expenditure for additional space and service which would exceed the revenue received from such matter.

The Department's spokesman said that the addition of 100,000,000 pounds of second class to the mails would necessitate the purchase of additional storage cars solely for the transportation of this mail matter and that the volume of parcel post was not sufficient at the present time to justify a realigning of the loading of cars with a combination of second class and parcel post matter.

Mr. Denning on behalf of the publishers presented several charts and exhibits showing that the relative volume of second class mail in 1923 was 17 per cent of the total of all mails, whereas parcel post was 73 per cent of the total volume of all mails and that since that time, according to a statement of the Post Office Department, the volume of the parcel post had increased 45 per cent, whereas second class has increased only 3 per cent since 1920.

To indicate the relative comparison of parcel post and second class from the 10 largest parcel post centers during the fiscal year of 1923, Mr. Denning presented the following table.

EXHIBIT C. Showing comparison of relative volumes represented by cubic-foot-miles of parcel post and second class dispatched during the fiscal year 1923, from 10 largest parcel post centers

	Parcel Post Cubic-foot-miles Millions	Second-class Cubic-foot-miles Millions
Chicago	18,846	3,058
New York	16,870	9,566
Philadelphia	2,891	1,313
Boston	1,926	934
St. Louis	3,793	517
Kansas City	2,819	560
San Francisco	1,923	516
Pittsburgh	1,474	160
Cincinnati	2,532	294
Minneapolis	1,298	292

He stated the total cubic-foot-miles of parcel post dispatched from the 10 largest cities is 48.75 per cent of the total parcel post cubic-foot-miles of the entire United States and 31.62 per cent of the total cubic-foot-miles of all mails in the United States.

The total cubic-foot-miles of zone rate second class dispatched from the same cities is 51.18 per cent of the total cubic-foot-miles of all zone rate second class and 10.01 per cent of the total cubic-foot-miles of all mails in the United States.

The purpose of the table was to show that with the 45 per cent increase in volume of parcel post since 1923 and only 3 per cent increase in the volume of second class since 1920, that the disproportion between second class and parcel post was becoming so great that the average weight contained in cars in 1923 was not being maintained in 1926.

The table further shows that second class, because the density is greater than parcel post, is used as a filler in space which necessarily must be purchased for the predominant class, which is parcel post, and that the additional expense for the transportation of second class matter is an incidental and not the predominating cause in the purchase of train space.

Mr. Denning pointed out that Mr. Stewart's figure would charge to the second class the entire cost of a car loaded with say 30,000 pounds of second class, whereas less than one-half of the space in the car would be occupied by second class, the remainder of the space being filled with parcel post.

Mr. Denning then presented computations which he had made indicating the additional out-of-pocket expense that would be incurred by the Department in handling 100,000,000 pounds of second class matter. He called attention to the fact that the class of publications that have been driven from the mails were those that were profitable to the Department.

The Post Office Department computed that the additional revenue that would be received from 100,000,000 pounds of second class mail matter is $2,809,900. Mr. Denning's computation of the additional out-of-pocket expense for handling this amount of second class mail matter aggregates $776,292, the Department would thereby realize $2,033,618 more than the additional expense that would be incurred if this amount of second class were returned to the mails.

"BOLSHEVIK" SLANDER OHIO JURY HOLDS

Newspaper Picture Caption Cited by Defense to Disprove Charge But Contention Is Ignored — Plaintiff Wins $200

The caption on a press service picture in the Martins Ferry (O.) Daily Times was presented to a jury in Belmont county common pleas court at St. Clairsville, O., in what proved to be a futile attempt to convince a jury that to call a person a "Bolshevik" was not actionable per se. Judge Warren W. Cowen, veteran jurist of that court, said it was the first time in his experience that a newspaper had been cited as a legal authority.

The case in which the daily figured was based on another in which Mrs. Lenora Staznaski of Lansing was arrested on a charge of keeping her confectionery open Sundays. At the close of a hearing before a justice of the peace in Bridgeport, O., Mrs. Staznaski unloosed a tirade against Klem Lenecisz, whom she blamed for her arrest. In the course of her remarks, she called Lenecisz "a liar and a Bolshevik." Lenecisz sued for $2,000 damages, alleging the "Bolshevik" feature of her assertion constituted slander.

Counsel for Mrs. Staznaski contended that such designation is merely the same as calling a person a Republican, Democrat or Prohibitionist, being the name for a Russian political party. In proof of this statement, the attorney, W. E. Simpson, cited a copy of the Daily Times of Martins Ferry of April 13 in which was carried a picture service cut with the caption: "Woman Bolshevik Visits U. S. to Study Electricity." Beneath the cut were lines saying she was being sent to the United States by the Supreme Council of the Peoples Economic League of Moscow to make advanced research into American electrical development. Attorney W. J. Walker, for the plaintiff, disregarded the effort to present the newspaper as proof of contentions in behalf of Mrs. Staznaski, although he is one of the owners of the Belmont Chronicle, published at St. Clairsville.

The jury gave Lenecisz a verdict for $200. Frank P. McNell II, a newspaper reporter from Martins Ferry, was foreman of the jury which heard the case. Judge Cowen is a former newspaper publisher and editor.

JUDGE FINES EDITOR $15 FOR CONTEMPT

Bryson, Fort Pierce (Fla.) News-Tribune, Pays Fine, But Refuses to Alter His Opinion of Court—Was Hitting Light Penalties

T. J. Bryson, editor of the Fort Pierce (Fla.) News-Tribune, last week paid a $15 fine for contempt of court, but at the same time publicly refused to alter his opinion of the judge who made the citation.

Judge Liddon of the county court ruled Bryson was guilty for having written and published an editorial dealing with selection of a new judge for the county court. Judge Liddon himself is not a candidate. Bryson wrote in the editorial, held in contempt, that Judge Liddon had imposed very light penalties throughout his term.

After paying the fine, Bryson again editorialized:

"Neither Judge Liddon's personal nor his professional integrity has ever been a question at issue. The editor of the News-Tribune is informed that the judge's firm is one—perhaps the only one in Fort Pierce—which refuses to defend a man charged with bootlegging. No one can conceive, therefore, of the judge having any sympathy with law violators.

"Despite this fact, the editor of the News-Tribune believes that the sentences imposed during the last term of the county court were too light to terrify evil-doers. And the fact that he does not doubt Judge Liddon honestly thinks otherwise, does not alter his opinion."

At the contempt hearing, Bryson's attorney argued his client was well within his rights as a newspaper editor to print the editorial in question; and that he could not be legally held in contempt.

The prosecuting attorney maintained the editorial was a direct attack on the court; that it was contemptuous; and that the defendant, admitting his responsibility for its publication, admitted his guilt.

"If the fine had been bigger," Bryson said after the sentence, "we would have considered taking an appeal. We are confident we could win in a higher court."

WOULD RESTRICT DIVORCE NEWS

Bill Limiting Publication Passes British House of Commons

By 222 votes to 3 the bill to prohibit the publication of objectionable matter in divorce court and similar reports passed its second reading in the House of Commons on April 16. If the bill becomes law in its present state press references to such cases will be limited to:

The names and addresses of parties and witnesses; a concise statement of the grounds upon which the proceedings are brought and resisted; legal submissions and decisions; the summing up, the jury's finding, the judgment, and the judge's observations.

Shreveport Tri-Weekly Now Daily

The Daily Caucasian and Legal Register is the name of Shreveport's third daily newspaper, successor to the old thrice-a-week Caucasian. "Politics, crime, fiction and bunk will have no place in our plan," said Ward Deleny, editor.

Banquet For Carrier Boys

About 100 Charlotte (N. C.) Observer carrier boys were the guests of the circulation department of the paper at a banquet at the Chamber of Commerce Monday.

NINE LIBEL SUITS ON TRIAL IN SYRACUSE

Nine Actions Against Three Dailies Combine in Single Case—"Baby Farm" Stories Basis—Other Suits Pending

(By Telegraph to EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

SYRACUSE, N. Y., April 29.—Nine cases of libel against Syracuse newspapers went on trial in Supreme Court this week before Judge Jerome L. Cheney. The cases were combined into one action brought against the Post Standard Company, et al. Three individuals brought actions, George Lott, Violetta Lott, and Myrtle Cochrane. The three Syracuse newspapers which are said to have printed the alleged libels are the Post Standard, the Herald, and the Journal.

The alleged libel action grew out of stories printed in the above named newspapers during 1922 in which the newspapers maintained irregularities in the conduct of a so-called sanatarium and lying-in hospital. The newspaper stories were submitted in the trial which started Monday and is continuing all the week. One of the stories refers to the institution as a "baby farm" and that babies were deliberately burned to death.

The plaintiffs who bring separate actions are George Lott, and his wife Violetta Lott, Myrtle Cochrane, all concerned in the ownership and management of the institution. Each action is brought against the Post Standard Company, et al. John J. Halpin of Laughlin, Gerard, Bower & Halpin, New York City, represent the plaintiffs. Estabrook & Estabrook, Syracuse, represent the Post-Standard Company.

George Lott and Violetta Lott have brought actions against other newspapers in the state individually for printing the alleged libels. The other actions on the calendar of the April trial term are against: Rochester Times Union Company, Crowley Company, the Brockway Company, Auburn Publishing Company, Auburn Advertiser-Journal Company, The Telegram Publishing Company, The Binghamton Press Company, Inc., The Journal Company. Whether these cases are brought to trial depends upon the outcome of the case now pending.

ST. PETERSBURG NEWS SUED FOR LIBEL

Action Field Following Campaign Against Proprietor of Bathing Beach — Claimed Public Unprotected

(By Telegraph to EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., April 29.—A libel suit has been started against the St. Petersburg (Fla.) Daily News by W. D. McAdoo, real estate operator, in the sum of $150,000. The Daily News recently editorially accused McAdoo of being negligent in protecting bathers at a bathing beach he owned on Gulf Beach. The Daily News charged that McAdoo, through his employes, had a barbed wire fence constructed across the beach and that Ernest Fixter, age 16, while playing tag one evening ran into the barbed wire and death resulted. The Daily News also accused McAdoo of being responsible for two deaths of children last year and of the death by drowning of a young man by the name of Parrish this year in that no life guards or safety appliances were maintained. The father of young Parrish has sued McAdoo for $50,000 and the father of young Fixter has sued McAdoo for a like sum. The suit was not brought in Pinellas County because Mr. McAdoo claimed he would not get a fair trial. The suit was brought in Tampa, Hillsborough county.

Celebrates 90th Anniversary

The Sheboygan (Wis.) Press on April 23 issued a 90th anniversary edition containing 72 pages.

SIX CENTS LIBEL LOSS IN TWENTY-ONE YEARS

Record of W. O. Dapping, Auburn Citizen — One Potential Plaintiff Became Friend and Printing Customer—Defense by Retraction Outlined

By PHILIP SCHUYLER

Libel actions in small cities present somewhat different problems than in the larger centers.

Editor & Publisher, continuing its series, stripping the libel law of legal verbiage, now turns to a discussion of conditions in towns where everybody knows almost everybody else.

W. O. Dapping, managing editor of the Auburn Citizen, becomes the protagonist this week in this the seventh article in the series. Auburn is a city of only 37,000, but there are lawyers there who spot libellous errors in the newspaper an hour after its off the press.

"If the libel is your fault," Mr. Dapping says, "admit it immediately and make a dignified retraction. Nine times out of ten this will satisfy the plaintiff, and the tenth time in court it will convince a jury that there was no malice on your part."

ALL knowledge is valuable to a newspaper man; but, because libel hangs like the sword of Damocles threatening his job or pocketbook, a study of the law protecting individuals from the press promises, perhaps, the greatest possible material profit.

And, besides, the study of libel law nourishes three qualities immensely important to the writer and editor of news —truthfulness, carefulness, scepticism and tact. The first two aid in avoiding libel; the last two assist in defense against it.

Just how true this introduction is was told in entertaining detail the other day by W. O. Dapping, managing editor of the Auburn (N. Y.) Citizen. Mr. Dapping was graduated from Harvard College with the class of 1905 and started work immediately as a reporter for the Citizen. One of the first things he learned was how little he knew about libel. He decided, therefore, to study this important law from cover to cover. It was one subject the newspapers failed to use their freedom to disseminate; but Mr. Dapping purchased books; talked to lawyers, and was early aided in his ambition by being named an investigator for the New York World, then defendant in a libel suit brought by an Auburn man. Following developments of that particular case which will be described later in this article, was a university course in itself.

Only six cents libel loss in the last 21 years by the Auburn Citizen is the result of Mr. Dapping's "will to know." One potential plaintiff even became his friend and job printing customer.

"Be truthful and careful is the first and chief commandment of the libel law," Mr. Dapping said. "But every human institution is bound to make mistakes. When an error has been made by a newspaper, tact in making prompt retraction will often prevent a suit; and where a paper is forced to stand defendant in court, it is wise to be sceptical and investigate all claims of the plaintiff. In most cases a libel complaint is full of exaggerations and untruths that can and should be checked."

The possible enemy, who later became Mr. Dapping's friend and customer, was seriously libeled by a cub reporter for the Citizen.

"Bill," the cub, turned in a story one day to the effect that John Smith of 10 North street had been arrested for driving his automobile while intoxicated.

Twenty-four hours later an indignant citizen was in telephonic connection with Mr. Dapping.

"This is John Smith of 10 North street," he yelled along the wires. "What the devil do you mean by printing in your paper that I was arrested for driving my car while drunk. You know I don't touch a drop of the stuff. I'm a teetotaler, I am. Three lawyers have already called me up and told me I could get a fat settlement from you. What are you going to do about it?"

"I'm sure I don't know, yet," replied Mr. Dapping. "I'll look it up and let you know."

He called in his city editor and the city editor called in the cub.

"Well?" queried Mr. Dapping. "Well?" queried the city editor. And both glared at the cub.

"Oh," answered the youngster promptly. "I know I'm right. It was John Smith as plain as day on the police blotter. And you know, Mr. Dapping, how you told me always to be careful about giving correct street addresses with names. There was no record of Smith's address at the station, so I looked it up in the city directory, like you told me to. There's only one John Smith in town, and he lives at 10 North street."

"Um," murmured the editor and city editor mournfully together. "No address on the blotter, eh?"

"No sir; but I looked it up in ———."

"Yes, you told us that," said Mr. Dapping wearily. "Now," he added dryly, "you might as well go back to the station and find what town this John Smith comes from."

The reporter obeyed and reported back a little later that the drunken John Smith came from Utica, not Auburn. He had simply been passing through the town in his inebriation when captured by the local "cops."

Meanwhile, Mr. Dapping had learned that Auburn's John Smith was a sober, honest industrious fellow about to open his own bakery. The published libel might very well injure him considerably.

"You go down and explain your mistake to him," Mr. Dapping said, and slipped copy paper into his typewriter to tap out a retraction. He wrote that his reporter had jumped to a hasty conclusion, and both the reporter and the newspaper were sorry.

About a week later, John Smith came to call on the editor in his office.

"Here's where I spend an unpleasant half hour," thought Mr. Dapping. "I suppose I'll have to get down on the floor and let this fellow walk all over me."

"I've been trying to get in to see you sooner," began Mr. Smith greeting the editor with a broad grin and extended palm. "But you know I've been mighty busy opening my new store, and I just couldn't spare the time.

"I want to thank you for the way you acted after that mistake your paper made. You Citizen fellows are about the whitest people I have ever met. Since that second item appeared my friends have quit kidding me and you know I think it's going to help me in my business.

"The lawyers," he continued "advised me to sue, but I just couldn't bring myself to do it. I'd be ashamed to go to court after the decent way you've treated me."

The editor and John Smith shook hands.

"You won't fire that kid, will you?" asked Mr. Smith, referring to the cub.

"Certainly not," agreed Mr. Dapping. "He's been burned once now, and he ought to become the most careful man in the shop."

Entirely satisfied, Auburn's libeled baker thereupon moved towards the door.

"By the way," he paused, his hand on the knob, "you run a job plant with this paper, don't you?"

"Yes."

"Well, I've been figuring to get a little printing done for my new store. I wonder....."

Mr. Dapping thought the Citizen's job plant might, and a few minutes later Mr. Smith and the superintendent were talking estimates.

"You see," Mr. Dapping mused to me, after he had recalled the story, "it pays to make amends generously, manfully, and with dignity. You can slop over—be careful not to do that. A lawyer should read every editor's retraction. It is folly to make any admissions not justified by the actual facts. A correction, however, should prove to the satisfaction of any reasonable minded person that you are doing the right thing.

"And a retraction should be made immediately. Investigate thoroughly, but lose no time about it. It is really important that there should be no delay. Almost any jury, hearing the defense lawyer tell them that a retraction was made 'the very next day' will discount the plaintiff's plea of malice."

An immediate retraction was an important point in the defense of the libel action which cost the Auburn Citizen its lone six cents during the last 21 years. The very existence of the action proves the fallacy of accepting testimony from an unreliable character and publishing it as truth. Quotation marks are no libel mitigation. The newspaper in publishing another man's words takes full responsibility for them in any litigation.

A few years ago an ex-convict wandered in to the Citizen's office. He declared the work of the state parole board was a "joke." Instead of investigating each case carefully and individually, he claimed, the officers came to the prison, drank booze, played poker, and pool, and generally enjoyed themselves until time to go home. They simply, said the ex-convict, accepted the warden's say-so as to whom they should pardon and parole and let it go at that.

The Citizen's city editor was interested.

"Here, Bob, get this story," he called to a reporter.

Bob was busy on another yarn. He started interviewing the ex-convict, however, but in a few minutes had to leave. He called to another staff man to help him out. The latter, knowing Bob would write the lead, and figuring what he would want would be a detailed follow-up statement, told the ex-convict to tell all he could, and took it down almost verbatim. He assumed Bob would read the whole story; Bob counted on the city editor. In the rush of making an edition no one read it, and it was published and put on a news agency wire.

A member of the board sued, asking damages from the Citizen, and also from a New York newspaper. The New York daily settled for $2,000 out of court, and its attorneys advised the Citizen to do likewise.

"Yours is the worst story," they advised. "It's no telling what you'll get."

But the Citizen decided to fight it out. The member of the parole board who claimed he had been damaged by the libellous story lived in Buffalo and the trial came up there. Despite the fact that the plaintiff was well-known and liked in his city and the jury was therefore friendly, the twelve men were impressed by the immediate and decent retraction made by the Citizen when it found it was in the wrong. The court held no malice was shown and that the libel was technical. Then the six-cent verdict was returned.

"It is unnecessary to crawl," Mr. Dapping continued, "a little bluff will often

(Continued on page 51)

NEWSPAPER COUPLE SAILS FOR ABROAD

Russell M. Crouse, New York newspaper writer, with his wife, who is better known as Alison Smith, screen and dramatic critic, as they sailed abroad on a business and pleasure trip.

CANADIAN PRESS RE-ELECTS J. H. WOODS PRESIDENT AT ANNUAL MEETING

"Admirable Liaison" With Associated Press Stressed by President in Opening Address at Toronto Convention—Optimistic Regarding Conditions

J. H. WOODS, Calgary Herald, was re-elected president of the Canadian Press at its annual general meeting held in Toronto, Wednesday, other officers being as follows:

Honorary president, E. H. Macklin, Manitoba Free Press; first vice-president, John Scott, Montreal Gazette; second vice-president, F. B. Ellis, Saint John Globe. Other directors are:

G. Fred Pearson, Halifax Chronicle; Henri Gagnon, Quebec City Soleil; E. J. Archibald, Montreal Star; E. Norman Smith, Ottawa Journal; W. J. Wilkinson, Toronto Mail and Empire; W. B. Preston, Brantford Expositor, A. R. Ford, London Free Press; W. J. Taylor, Woodstock Sentinel-Review; M. E. Nichols, Winnipeg Tribune; Burford Hooke, Regina Leader; and Charles Swayne, Victoria Colonist. J. F. B. Livesay is general manager and secretary.

Reports of the management covering the news activities of the past year were adopted, as were also its financial proposals for the coming year.

An optimistic note was struck by President Woods in his address.

"After surveying," he said, "with such care and ability as I possess the general situation throughout Canada I believe we may look forward with good hope and sanguine minds to the future of our country and the business and profession in which we are engaged. I think that many of the troubles which have afflicted us are on the way to solution and that a brighter and better day than we have seen for quite a while is now dawning for the people and press of Canada."

Speaking of the work of the Canadian Press, Mr. Woods said: "During the past year, as president of this co-operative news gathering association of the daily newspaper publishers of Canada, I have gained a fair insight into its workings and am more than ever convinced of its great value not only to the publishers but to the Canadian public"

He went on to refer to "the admirable liaison" existing between the Canadian Press and the Associated Press, saying: "It is pleasing to note that the ideals of the Canadian Press and of the Associated Press continue along similar lines which embody the highest ethical principles of newspaper work."

In a closing reference to the work of the staff, Mr. Woods said: "I wish to express my very warm appreciation of the really splendid work that has been done during the past year by your general manager, J. B. F. Livesay, and by his district superintendents, traffic officials and staff. The period has been in many respects a trying one. There have been heavy demands upon the services of the organization; there have been disappointments in revenues and there have been troubles on account of the tense political situation existing in the country. Mr. Livesay has handled all this with good judgment, admirable tact and patience and great industry, and I think that you will agree with me that the cordial appreciation of our membership is due to him and to all those who have worked so faithfully during the past year."

"The past four or five months have been a busy news period," stated J. F. B. Livesay, general manager, in presenting the news report of the management. "A few years ago there was serious talk of abandoning the second or 'supplementary' wire between Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto, on the ground that it was not needed and in fact its output was sometimes no more than a few thousand words a trick. Now, operated by printers and with a corresponding increase in wordage capacity of not less than 30 per cent, it is crowded to the full both day and night with real worthwhile news, mainly domestic but carrying also our special British cable. This development is due to the efficiency of every Division and is based primarily on the splendid co-operation we now receive from the individual newspaper member throughout the country, though another important contributory cause is the forward policy we have adopted in the way of covering important assignments by our staff men."

Mr. Livesay explained that by training juniors in the various bureaus, it is possible to have experienced editors go out on assignments, thus providing more flexibility for limited staffs. So much of this sort of thing was being handled by the Toronto bureau that it had been decided to enlarge the staff. More and more, important sporting events were being covered by staff men or by men specially engaged. The expense of the complete coverage of sports was steadily on the increase; for instance, invasion of the United States by Canadian professional hockey had been a considerable cost item during the past winter.

J. H. Woods

"During the past year the mail service has generally improved," said Mr. Livesay, "and with a file from London, New York, Halifax, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver, is of increasing value to the member when properly used. A number of member newspapers do not make use of it because, perhaps, they fear a breach of release or because the editors have the old idea that anything coming in by mail is fit only for the waste paper basket. As for breaches of release, we endeavor whenever possible to make our domestic mail service released on receipt or at any time, but this of course cannot apply to advance copy entrusted to Canadian Press. Associated Press mailed matter is slugged with definite releases almost entirely and it is through this that most of our members' errors occur, due to faulty editorial supervision. It seems difficult to overcome the prejudice of newspaper desk men against real news reaching them by mail. Our New York superintendent, writing recently regarding what might be termed the mail-cable service of the A. P., said, 'Some of this grape-vine is much brighter than the stuff on which a word rate has been paid, but if it were slugged 'by mail,' it might have a prejudicial effect on the mind of the newspaper editor handling it.'"

Mr. Livesay paid a special tribute to the co-operation of the Associated Press, saying that it would be difficult to overestimate the value of the connection. "While we have the satisfaction of feeling that we are giving the A. P. a bang-up service, we find them eager at all times to go out of the way to take care of our special requirements."

The reports of the various divisional bureaus, which reviewed the outstanding work of the past few months, all indicated that the service was being efficiently handled. Mr. Merkel, Atlantic superintendent, Halifax, reported that considerable improvement was effected during the year in the pony service to Newfoundland and Prince Edward Island. Mr. Macdonald, Eastern superintendent, Montreal, stated that the two principal developments had been the completion of a new arrangement whereby night correspondence from Quebec City had been placed on a better basis and a number of time copy stories had been prepared for use during the quiet time around the Christmas and New Years' holiday seasons. These were introduced into the day and night services when the printer fell short of better matter and served to keep wires running to capacity through Christmas and New Year for the first time in the history of the Canadian Press. Mr. Tibbs, superintendent for Ontario, reported a year of great activity which necessitated a strengthening of the staff at the Toronto bureau.

In his report from New York, Mr. Raine, New York Superintendent, recorded the splendid way in which the C. P. and A. P. were working together, instancing the covering of the professional hockey games during the past winter. He explained that an arrangement had been worked out by which the C. P. and cable department staffs checked up with each other on important news to minimize the possibility of serious delay and this arrangement had so far worked out very well.

Due to the unsettled political situation in Canada, the work of the Parliamentary Bureau, Ottawa, had increased, but Mr. Hambleton, the superintendent, had been able to maintain an efficient service, free from all taint of partisanship. Superintendents of the Western and British Columbia divisions reported a year of increased activity, though without special feature.

Reporting on cable service, Mr. Livesay informed members that within the prescribed wordage limits, it would be hard to improve the service from London. He enumerated some of the feature news which had been cabled over. Most of the items had provoked discussion and editorial comment in Canada and not one of them would have been available to Canadian Press members save through the London cable service, which so admirably filled in the gaps of the A. P. A valuable new feature was the Australian mail service arranged by the President of the C. P. when in Australia last year. It was proposed to extend this by a similar mail service covering South Africa.

In his traffic report, Mr. Livesay devoted considerable attention to the tie-up on March 31, and explained how difficulties had been overcome. With respect to the printer service, he said: "The printer service has reached a high state of efficiency. We have now trained our printer operators to take care of most of the repair work and we have been fortunate in getting together a fine body of men, most of whom come from Newfoundland, and have had their schooling in the cable service. We are also developing a reserve of printer talent among our junior editors, and some of these are graduating permanently to the printer staff." While well satisfied with results, Mr. Livesay did not see any present need to extend printer circuits. The management had, however, worked out a printer system almost throughout the service. A night printer between Toronto and London was under consideration.

The following members were present: Senator J. S. McLennan, Sydney Evening Post; H. B. Duchemin, Sydney Morning Post; Andrew W. Robb, Halifax Herald; Frank B. Ellis, St. John Globe; T. D. Drummie, St. John Telegraph-Journal; H. P. Robinson, St. John Times-Star; Hon. Frank Carvel, Quebec City Chronicle-Telegraph; Henri Gagnon, Quebec City Soleil; J. H. Fortier, Quebec City L'Evenement; Georges Pelletier, Montreal Devoir; John Scott, Montreal Gazette; J. N. A. Perrault, Montreal Patrie; Oswald Mayrand, Montreal Presse; E. J. Archibald, Montreal Star; G. A. Disher, Ottawa Evening Citizen; J. Goulet, Ottawa Droit; W. Rupert Davies, Kingston British Whig; R. M. Glover, Peterboro Examiner; A. R. Alloway, Oshawa Reformer; H. W. Anderson, Toronto Globe; W. J. Wilkinson, Toronto Mail and Empire; Irving E. Robertson, Toronto Evening Telegram; J. E. Atkinson, and John R. Bone, Toronto Star; Howard Fleming, Owen Sound Sun-Times; W. J. McNair, Hamilton Herald; Fred Kerr and Philip Fisher, Hamilton Spectator; H. B. Burgoyne, St. Catharines Standard; F. H. Leslie, Niagara Falls Review; W. B. Preston, Brantford Expositor; J. I. McIntosh, Guelph Mercury; W. S. Motz, Kitchener News-Record; W. J. Taylor, Woodstock Sentinel-Review; M. W. Rossie, London Evening Advertiser; Frank Adams, London Morning Advertiser; Charles Thomas, London Evening Free Press; Arthur R. Ford, London Morning Free Press; L. H. Dingman, St. Thomas Times-Journal; A. R. Kennedy, Stratford Beacon-Herald; H. A. Graybiel, Windsor Border Cities Star; J. W. Curran, Sault Ste. Marie Star; E. B Mackay, Port Arthur News-Chronicle; D. Smith, Fort William Times-Journal; J. H. Woods Calgary Herald; John M. Imrie, Edmonton Journal; F. F. Payne, Nelson News, F. J. Burd, Vancouver Province; and R J. Cromie, Vancouver Sun.

Haskell Presents Essay Medals

William E. Haskell, Jr., of the advertising department of the New York Herald Tribune awarded prizes last week in the New Rochelle High School for the best essays on "What the Reading of a Good Newspaper Means to My Future." A silver medal was given to the prize winner, and bronze medals to the runners-up.

YOU GET GOOD LAUGH BUT MAYBE BUY SHIRT

THE following advertisement of a Japanese shirtmaker taken from the Honolulu Star-Bulletin was printed this week in the New York Sun's "Sun Dial" column:

MUSA-SHIYA THE SHIRT-MAKER

(Also kimono make & Dry Good Sell)

This Time Announce out for Precious Silk Unported Japan

Did you came inside my back rooms which never had openly public you saw it very preciously silks, dazzled kimono, supremely obi etc and ect strike you on eye. My back room are not visibly if you came front side my shop every time, but ask to it I show it personally with many pleasure. If you examined insides you observed pongee (this pongee Japanese kind had excess feeling silky which Chinese kind cannot accomplish). Price are sapprise because very small shop resided on poor places.

HOW FINDING TO MUSA-SHIYA SHAP

If you forgot finding because never going before this place please going North King Street makai sides until pass away in front Fish Market. Do not paused until little more River then you see Namber 179 nice sign say so Musa-shiya. If you saw other Japanese shop pass away from it. Musa-shiya is the one. I hope you have a good healths.

BUFFALO NEWS GREETS PAN-AMERICANS WITH EDITION PRINTED IN SPANISH

Notable Collection of Comments on First Congress Read at Dinner Given By E. H. Butler—Tour of East and Central West States

TOURING the eastern and central states in buses a party of delegates of the First Pan-American Congress of Journalists during the past week were cordially received at a number of cities, including Syracuse, Rochester, Buffalo, Detroit, Akron, Pittsburgh and South Bend, Ind.

The tour was under the direction of the bureau of roads of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

A feature of the entertainment at Buffalo was a dinner given by Edward H. Butler, editor and publisher of Buffalo (N. Y.) Evening News. Mr. Butler made public at the dinner a notable collection of letters appraising the value of the First Pan-American Congress, including a letter from President Coolidge. Another feature of the Buffalo dinner party was the publication, wholly in Spanish, of a special limited edition of the Buffalo Evening News which was distributed to the guests as souvenirs of the trip to Buffalo and Niagara Falls.

Republication of the collection of letters from President Coolidge and the representatives in Washington of the 20 Latin American republics in the special edition made an instantaneous hit. Besides the President, the writers were the ambassadors, ministers and others in charge of Central and South American embassies and legations in the national capital.

The letters commented upon the achievements of the First Pan-American Congress of Journalists in a critical and constructive way, and appraised the potentialities of this endeavor as being almost without limit in the resulting benefits to free governments, free peoples, interchange of news and ideas and a free press. The President's letter to Mr. Butler was a personal message to be given, through him, to the Latin American journalists as they reached the Niagara Frontier. President Coolidge wrote:

"My dear Mr. Butler: I am happy to send a word of greeting to the Pan-American journalists as they reach Buffalo and the Niagara Frontier.

"The meeting of journalistic minds and the knowledge of our country and its people that the Latin American editors and publishers are getting on their trip inevitably will be beneficial to them and to us, and will bring about a better understanding between the Americas."

The views of the Latin American diplomats on the possibilities of the Pan-American Congress of Journalists and, indeed, its achievements to date represent in themselves a distinct contribution to the thought that the press of North, South and Central America effectually may supplement the highest aspirations of the statesmen of the western world for mutual understanding and good will which shall be an example to the world of happy neighborly relations and a bulwark for world peace.

For instance, the Brazilian ambassador, Gurgel do Amaral, wrote:

"More and more the world is governed by public opinion, and in the formation of that opinion the press is the chief advisor. Whether an international controversy shall find a peaceful solution or shall end in conflict depends much upon the wisdom and sincerity of the press. Care in ascertaining the truth and fearlessness in maintaining it are journalism's best weapons, and the happiness of mankind is largely dependent upon the conscientiousness with which they are used.

"In view of the great task and responsibility of the press in modern life, I feel certain that the First Pan-American Congress of Journalists, which just met in Washington, was the first of a long chain of milestones signaling the benefits of enlightened journalism through the ages in the American continent."

And J. Varela, minister of Uruguay, wrote Mr. Butler:

"I am pleased to tell you that the delegates of the First Pan-American Congress of Journalists have left the deepest impression in the diplomatic circles of Washington. Their intelligent actions show that international congresses are not always useless. After this memorable gathering Pan-Americanism appears with firmer foundations and higher prestige than ever. This is a cause of satisfaction to those of us who have always worked in favor of that high ideal which is, at the same time, a vital concern of the Americas."

Carlos Izaguirre V., charge d'affaires of the Honduras legation, remarked:

"As a result of the contact established between the Latin American newspaper men and those of the United States there will be more extensive information on our culture, habits, tendencies, aspirations and resources which will create a vigorous and solid international understanding."

The day following the dinner the English translations of the letters were printed in the regular editions of the Buffalo Evening News as part of its effort to promote friendship between the Americas and the understanding upon which it is based.

At the dinner Mr. Butler welcomed the Latin Americans and fifty prominent local guests in a brief speech to which the response was made by Jose L. Gomensoro, president of the Uruguay Press association and in a statement in the special edition, entitled "Bienvenidos a Buffalo," he said:

"After the remarkable meetings you have attended in Washington, and the tour of our country which we trust has been entertaining as well as educational, the Buffalo Evening News is honored to welcome you to the Niagara Frontier.

"That the Press of Latin America and North America, that mighty force in the lives of every free people, may become an increasingly potent instrument of peace among men; a defender of international law and the justice which flows from it is greatly to be desired. That we all, individually and collectively, can assist to attain this is not to be doubted and we of the Niagara Frontier, in common with the rest of the United States of America, humbly pledge ourselves to do our part toward the realization of these ideals and aspirations and the standards for which the Pan-American Congress of Journalists stands."

The special souvenir edition of the Evening News was done on coated paper and in addition to the letters referred to included a page of pictures, one of which showed the delegates to the congress gathered on the steps of the Pan-American Union in Washington; another view showed Niagara Falls and along with it was printed an ode to it by a noted Cuban poet; a story on the entertainment of the visitors in Buffalo; a story on "Buffalo, the Wonder City of America;" the Journalist's Creed by Dr. Walter Williams, president of the congress which was recommended for adoption, and a list of the delegates.

Syracuse extended its hand of welcome and hospitality to the nearly 100 Latin-American journalists at an informal luncheon Sunday noon.

QUOTING CELEBRITIES BY PRESS ATTACKED

Broadcasting Their Views on Subjects They Are Unqualified to Discuss a Bad Practice, Mendoza Says

In an address before the Woman's Club of Richmond, Va., Dr. Louis Mendoza, noted orator, declared that the press gives too much importance to persons in commanding positions who are not authorities on the subject quoted.

Dr. Mendoza was speaking on "Burbank's God and Immortality." He said that Burbank's utterances were given considerable attention by newspapers in all parts of the country because of his fame as a horticulturist.

He declared that Burbank was not an expert in theology and was therefore no more qualified to broadcast his views than a "Jones" or a "Smith."

"Mr. Burbank took the seeds from delicious California oranges, and made the red poppy yellow," said Dr. Mendoza. "As a horticulturist, he was fine—very fine, but as a theologian, he was still a fine horticulturist."

Dr. Mendoza declared that to publish utterances of Mr. Burbank on his idea of God and immortality was just as sensible as to quote a certain baseball player on Einstein's theeory of relativity or a certain moving picture actress on the League of Nations.

According to Dr. Mendoza who is highly respected by the press of Virginia and whose public utterances are nearly always "covered"—even his regular services in the temple at Norfolk—a newspaper's burden is to determine the value and weight of a man's utterances upon his qualifications in that respect rather than upon his position. This conception is in conflict with the generally accepted understanding of what is news.

New North Carolina Weekly

Sanford, N. C., is to have a new weekly newspaper, the Sanford Journal, with Todd Caldwell, an experienced newspaper man, as general manager. It will be independent democratic, and the first issue will appear before the end of the month.

ORDER "GOOD GRAPE" ADS CHANGED

Trade Commission Rules Beverage Maker Must Tell Public Plainly that Product Is Imitation of Grape Juice

The Federal Trade Commission has issued an order directed to the Good Grape Company, of Chattanooga, Tenn., operator of bottling plants in several states, requiring it to discontinue the use of the name "good grape" in connection with its product unless accompanied by an explanation indicating that the content is "imitation grape—not grape juice" or other qualifying words in letters equally as conspicuous as the words "good grape." Commissioner Thompson dissented.

The respondent, according to the findings, has nationally advertised its product under the name "good grape" and in addition has used the phrase or slogan "fruit of the vine," and has also by pictorial representation and by other means created the impression in the minds of the purchasing public that its product is composed of grape juice, whereas the concentrate No. 1 contains a percentage of grape wine which is not the juice from the natural fruit of the grape; and concentrate No. 2 does not contain any grape juice or grape wine. The beverage when sold to the public, it was found, contains less than seven-tenths of one per cent of the product of the grape which is not sufficient to color or flavor the beverage.

It was further found that the respondent in none of the advertisements indicated that its product was imitation grape or artificially colored and flavored. The words "imitation, artificially colored and flavored" appeared upon the bottle caps used by respondent's customer bottlers, but in such small letters as to make it difficult to be read except by most careful scrutiny. The findings otherwise show that the cap was removed in most instances before the customer received the bottle.

Respondent's advertisements, the findings continue, create in the minds of the consumer the erroneous impression that "good grape" is made entirely from the fruit of the grape and is grape juice.

Commissioner Thompson dissents from the form of the order because he is opposed to any description of a commodity on a bottle, carton or package which contains a statement that is not a true description.

Commissioner Thompson is of the opinion that in this case as well as in all others of a similar character, the label should either state that which the bottle actually contains, or refrain from making any statement in the description that is misleading or untrue, even though it is sought to explain the contents somewhere else on the bottle, carton or article by other language.

Pan-American journalists visiting the plant of New York Times.

"ADVERTISE ADVERTISING" URGED AT NATIONAL COMMISSION MEETING

Blanchard Urges Cooperative Effort to Counteract Public Apathy Which He Says Exists at Present Time—A.A.C.W. Convention Plans Discussed

ADVERTISE advertising!

This was more or less the slogan developed at the quarterly session of the National Advertising Commission held in Cincinnati, April 20-21 at the Hotel Gibson by F. LeRoy Blanchard, director of advertising and news for Henry L. Doherty & Co., of New York City.

Mr. Blanchard first brought forward the suggestion at the dinner given by 1,500 business men and advertisers of the Cincinnati district on Tuesday, April 20, to the visiting advertising men. Later at the business session of the National Commission just before adjournment on the day following, he emphasized his idea and obtained the adoption of a motion which provided for the appointment of a special committee to arrange for a campaign of special advertising to educate the public and the advertisers at large on the economic value of advertising and to combat false ideas which have sprung up in the minds of some business men and the public.

In his dinner address Mr. Blanchard spoke of the world-wide scope of advertising and made the plea that the public ought to be educated by the advertising men to the great service advertising performs in the promotion of national health, well being, progress and prosperity.

He said the public now thoroughly believes in what it sees in the advertising columns of reliable magazines and newspapers and that 95 per cent of all advertising is believable due to the success of the campaigns for truth in advertising waged by the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World.

"How often do you see articles in the newspapers telling how advertising has revolutionized housekeeping; how it has promoted health by exploiting new breakfast and other foods; how it has literally compelled people to take better care of themselves and particularly of their teeth by showing that certain dentifrices will prevent decay and improve their appearance; how it has introduced better ways of heating homes and directed attention to certain kinds of machines that cut the cost of production?" the speaker asked.

"Articles of this kind have appeared so infrequently," Mr. Blanchard continued, "that they have little or no influence towards counteracting wrong impressions of the public regarding advertising. If we could get the truth before our newspaper readers these wrong impressions would be changed over night. But unfortunately the advertising men have been neglectful of their own interests and have failed to advertise their own business. The public, those upon whom the manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers must depend to buy their goods, look at advertising from an entirely different angle than ours. Their conception of advertising and its functions are widely at variance from that of the advertising men and we have done little to set them right.

"We as advertising men ought to be alarmed at the present situation. The impression has gone out that advertising has increased the cost of goods. We all know the contrary is the truth and that far from increasing costs to the consumer it has decreased those costs by increasing the volume of output. But producers and sellers of merchandise who are regular advertisers declare that advertising does not produce the results it did ten years ago. More space and more frequent insertions are necessary to make an impression. It is not because advertising is less believable—the contrary is the fact—nor because people have less money to spend, for we know they have more—but it is due largely to the prevailing idea that advertising imposes an unnecessary item upon the buyer and that unadvertised merchandise is often better and costs less than advertised merchandise.

"From my viewpoint the responsibility of instructing the public in the economics of advertising rests in the largest measure upon the publishers and advertising agents. There are others, however, representing such media as street cars, posters, painted bulletins, electric signs, specialties and even the radio who are eager to co-operate I believe in carrying on any educational campaign which may be undertaken. Such a campaign should extend over a three year period, for I do not believe that anything could be accomplished under that time. The vital facts regarding advertising must be driven home, day after day, week after week, until practically every man, woman and child who can read has absorbed them.

"The future of the advertising business is imperiled by the blight of ignorance and misconception and it will take persistent advertising to redeem it."

Throughout the business sessions of the National Commission matters relative to the program for the Philadelphia A. A. C. W. convention in June were discussed. One of the interesting features settled at the closing session was that the Women's Advertising Clubs of the World, of which there are 18, are to participate in the advertising displays at the Philadelphia meeting. This will be the first time that women have been asked to make a separate display of their activities and 35 panels are to be assigned them for the women's advertising clubs.

President W. Frank McClure of the National Commission addressed the meeting Wednesday morning. He also gave one of the opening addresses of the conference in a talk before the Chamber of Commerce Forum which was attended by more than 200 business and professional men and the visiting advertisers as special guests. At the Forum address Mr. McClure stressed the economic importance of advertising and said that if advertising should suddenly cease it would mean that hundreds of thousands of workmen in all parts of the world, and particularly in the United States would be out of employment. He estimated that a billion dollars annually was expended in all forms of advertising and said that the business developed from these outlays had been variously estimated at from ten to sixty billions per annum. While it was hard to make an estimate, the speaker thought a conservative figure would be between thirty and forty billions.

In the departmental sessions which were held on the closing day, there were meetings of the retail merchants; graphic arts; real estate advertisers; financial advertisers; church advertisers; community builders; industrial advertisers; advertising agency men and out-door advertisers. The National Real Estate Advertisers Association was the newest departmental and was admitted to membership in the A. A. C. W. during the meeting. W. Edwin Blair of Philadelphia is the first president of the association. Frank A. Black of Wm. Filene's Sons Company, Boston, presided over the retailers departmental. E. H. Kittredge, past president of the financial advertisers Association, and a New York broker was chairman of the financial departmental; Col. E. T. Miller of the United Typothetæ, Chicago, presided at the Graphic Arts. Bennett Chapple, director of publicity of the American Rolling Mill, Middleton, O., presided at the industrial section and James O'Shaughnessy of New York at the agency meeting.

Judge Allen Frost, general counsel of the Outdoor Advertising Association, Chicago, presided at a joint conference between the agency men and the sign writers group, at which some of the points of variance were ironed out.

Dr. Christian F. Reisner, of New York, chairman of the church and religious department, took a prominent part in the discussions and delivered an address at the luncheon of the Advertisers Club, Wednesday, given in honor of the visiting members of the National Commission.

REALTY AD MEN JOIN A.A.C.W.

Admitted to National Advertising Commission at Cincinnati Meeting

At a meeting of the National Advertising Commission held at the Gibson Hotel, Cincinnati, April 20-21, the Real Estate Advertising Association was admitted to membership. The officers of the new association are: W. Edwin Blair, president, Blair, Inc., realtors, Philadelphia; Mrs. W. H. Wright, vice-president, Chicago; H. H. Van De Boe, second vice-president, Cleveland; Gertrude W. Banks, secretary treasurer, Toledo; directors, Ward C. Gifford, Carlton Schultz, W. J. Sarres, E. T. Purcell, F. T. Grennell, J. S. Waterfield, Parker Webb, Fred W. McCann, George B. Ricaby, Charles Edwards. The association has 55 members.

The delegates were entertained on Tuesday by the Chamber of Commerce at luncheon at which Frank McClure made the principal address. Wednesday evening was the scene of the closing banquet at which Mayor Seasongood, Judge Frost, Clarence Lovell of the Outdoor Advertising Corp., and E. D. Gibbs of the National Cash Register Company, also made speeches.

May Opens Washington Office

Paul May, for the last three years correspondent in Baltimore for 500 United States, Canadian, Hawaiian and Australian newspapers, has opened an office in Washington.

JURY AWARDS WOMA LIBEL DAMAGES

Mrs. Robertson Granted Total $10,000 in Two Suits Naming N. Y Telegram and Sun Defendants—Judge Reserves Decision

Mrs. Sarah Robertson, Orange, N. was awarded $10,000 damages by a ju in New York Supreme Court last we in a suit for $250,000 brought agai the New York Telegram and the N York Sun. The award represents $5,0 from each paper. Judge Churchill served decision on a motion to set asi the verdict.

The plaintiff alleged a story publish about her in February, 1922, to the eff that she had confessed the theft of h own jewels to a private detective, w libelous. The robbery took place Deal, N. J. Mrs. Robertson was arrest arraigned and acquitted under the la of New Jersey on a charge of conspira to defraud an insurance company.

The story carried in the report of local ticker news agency was publish by several New York newspapers. publishing it were named defendants Mrs. Robertson.

The New York Times won its case the New York Supreme Court. T plaintiff had asked $100,000 from t newspaper, which was represented court by Alfred A. Cook, attorney.

Mrs. Robertson has sued the New Yo World for $135,000, and this case scheduled for trial May 3. Counsel the World will be Charles B. Brop

Convincing Proof

There Is No Substitute For Circulation

Average Paid Circulation Figures for January, February and March

	1925	1926	Increase
Daily	40,679	50,547	9,970
Sunday	46,974	65,681	18,707

IMPRESSIVE FIGURES WHICH SHOW THE STEADY GROWTH OF PAID CIRCULATION.

FIRST IN CITY AND STATE CIRCULATION
ON SALE AT ALL NEWS-STANDS

The Florida Times-Union
~JACKSONVILLE~

Allied Newspapers, Inc. Opens Detroit Office

ON May 1, 1926, Allied Newspapers, Inc., opened an office at Detroit in the General Motors Building with Charles J. Feldmann as Detroit Manager.

Allied Newspapers, Inc.

New York Chicago Detroit Cleveland
San Francisco Los Angeles Seattle

National Advertising Representatives for

The Scripps-Howard Newspapers

Cleveland (Ohio)	PRESS
Baltimore (Md.)	POST
Pittsburgh (Pa.)	PRESS
San Francisco (Calif.)	NEWS
Washington (D. C.)	NEWS
Cincinnati (Ohio)	POST
Indianapolis (Ind.)	TIMES
Denver (Colo.)	EXPRESS
Toledo (Ohio)	NEWS-BEE
Columbus (Ohio)	CITIZEN
Akron (Ohio)	TIMES-PRESS
Birmingham (Ala.)	POST
Memphis (Tenn.)	PRESS
Houston (Tex.)	PRESS
Youngstown (Ohio)	TELEGRAM
Ft. Worth (Tex.)	PRESS
Oklahoma City (Okla.)	NEWS
Evansville (Ind.)	PRESS
Knoxville (Tenn.)	NEWS
El Paso (Tex.)	POST
San Diego (Calif.)	SUN
Terre Haute (Ind.)	POST
Covington (Ky.)	KENTUCKY POST
Albuquerque (N. Mex.)	TRIBUNE

NEWSPAPER MAKERS AT WORK

By HAROLD J. ASHE

"Help merchants to build business."—Harlan G. Palmer.

"YOU will not have 100 subscribers," declared seasoned newspaper men, when Judge Harlan G. Palmer advised them that he was going to change the Hollywood (Cal.) Citizen from a weekly to an evening daily.

It was in 1921 that Mr. Palmer came to the decision to which his well-wishers took exception, and in October of that year he made the plunge in a city of 100,000, but an integral part of a bigger city, Los Angeles, which then had five big dailies, all circulating in Hollywood, and making special efforts to serve that lucrative part of their territory.

Perhaps the keynote of his success is found in his statement that: "The big idea with us has always been what we can do for the advertiser to build up his business."

Prior to the time the Citizen became a daily there was no effective way for the Hollywood merchant economically to advertise in his buying territory. To place an advertisement in one or all of the Los Angeles papers meant paying too high a linage for Hollywood coverage.

Palmer decided upon two main policies. He would publish a paper which had an identity of its own—it would not ape its metropolitan rivals in Los Angeles—and on the business side he would specialize in giving the greatest possible service to his advertisers.

And so when sensational news breaks and it is featured in the Los Angeles papers Palmer sticks to his news policy, stated by him as follows:

"The Citizen is kept free of sensational news at all times. It is kept within the bounds of the Parent-Teachers Association ideals or those of similar organizations interested in child-welfare. Our paper can safely be left with a child for thorough reading without deleting or editing by the parent. Such has been the Citizen's policy since the papers inception."

Despite efforts to build up a circulation in proportion to the population of the city, one that would give full coverage to advertisers, it was found to be a physical impossibility in the face of the strong circulation efforts of Los Angeles dailies. And so two free editions of the Citizen are published. One is issued on Friday morning and is known as the Hollywood Advertiser. This paper has 25,000 circulation in the immediate Hollywood territory and some suburban sections. The other is the free Sunday paper.

"The Advertiser and the Sunday free edition were inaugurated because the publisher recognized that due to conditions of the field it was unprofitable for the advertiser to advertise through any other medium or combination of mediums to get 100 per cent coverage," stated Mr. Palmer. "There are thousands of homes in Hollywood taking no Hollywood paper. The rates in the metropolitan papers are too high for Hollywood merchants to pay for coverage in our territory, and further practically every Los Angeles paper would need to be included in the advertising program to get full coverage.

"With a view to building up the local merchants' business our immediate profits are disregarded. The only way a big business will be built here in Hollywood is when we have enough big merchants to corral Hollywood business. Anything we can do to help merchants to build business will help us build a bigger newspaper. With that policy in mind we promote special merchandising days, such as dollar days paying all promotion expenses ourselves."

Palmer had an unusual idea in connection with the Advertiser, which has resulted in additional classified linage. The rate on classified is 13 cents open, in the Citizen. He decided to make the Thursday classified rate 20 cents open, in combination, without additional charge, with the Friday Advertiser. The first week ads were run at 13 cents and thereafter at 20 cents, and from that time on Thursday classified volume has always been bigger than any other day of the week.

Several years ago Los Angeles merchants started a Shopping News. When first launched it was issued only on Saturday for Monday buying. Later it was issued twice a week, the other day being Wednesday for Thursday buying. Hollywood merchants felt the force of the paper, as it was heavily distributed in their territory, and they had no adequate means of meeting the competition through another advertising medium.

To protect his advertisers Palmer started the Hollywood Shopping News, much to the disappointment of newspapermen, who considered it competition. Palmer, however, considered that his first duty was to his advertisers.

The Hollywood Shopping News was launched as a Tuesday publication for Wednesday buying. Within a short time Wednesday proved to be the best day of the week for Hollywood merchants.

Many merchants however, wanted to meet the Los Angeles merchants on their own ground, i. e.: Monday buying, and so the Shopping News was changed to Sunday.

By the change the Shopping News is now a newspaper as well as an advertising sheet. A four-page news and feature section distinct from the Shopping News is circulated with it. It carries U. P. Saturday night wire news. In this section classified advertisers are given the Sunday circulation they had long sought. Classified advertisements occupy about nine columns, as do display advertisements, while news and features take up the balance of the 32 columns in the news and feature section.

The Shopping News Section is a twelve-page tabloid, occasionally running 16 pages. It is set solid with advertising in the customary Shopping News boxes. It has a free circulation of 30,000 taking in the San Fernando Valley and some sections of Los Angeles adjacent to Hollywood, which are not covered by the Friday Advertiser.

"We strive just as hard to distribute satisfactorily on our free editions as on our paid," said Palmer. "This involves a much harder problem, though as residents are less inclined to complain if they don't get a free copy. Three checkers are in the territory, which is covered by regular carrier boys.

"Some of the distribution goes into surburban territory and costs as much as one cent a copy to distribute, therefore, the amount of reading matter must be greatly restricted in order that the advertisers can stand the burden. However, there must be enough reading matter to insure a thorough reading of the edition."

The Citizen carries a Saturday real estate section and an auto section on Wednesday.

Judge Palmer is an active member of the Southern California Editorial Association, and as that organization's representative led the fight at the A. B. C. convention for a change in the rule on combination circulation, and won his point.

He started in the newspaper business merely as a means of family support, while studying law, intending to devote his life to the legal profession. He started the practice of law and served five years as a Los Angeles municipal judge, but quit to take care of his growing weekly which he had purchased in April 1910.

More than 90 million Bibles were put into circulation last year, but the system of distribution appears to be faulty and somehow we don't seem able to place them in the hands of the people who need them most.—Columbus Dispatch.

Why the Times-Star Leads in Tire and Accessory Advertising

There is no mystery about Times-Star leadership in display advertising of tires and accessories. The values of Times-Star advertising are so easily tested, the results so conclusively demonstrated, that the "gambling element" may be eliminated before the campaign begins.

Consider any classification in which it is possible to check advertising results against expenditures. In every one of them you will find the Times-Star not only leading, but dominating the field.

Take the primary necessities of life—food, clothing, household furniture, footwear, headwear, medicines—everything, in fact, that is essential to bodily life and health. For eighteen consecutive years, these things have been advertised in the Times-Star more extensively and more consistently than in any other Cincinnati newspaper.

Pass from the bodily necessities to the conveniences, comforts and refinements that make up the Cincinnati standard of living—electrical merchandise, articles of household decoration, and of personal adornment, musical instruments, radio, books and magazines. In every classification you will find the leadership of the Times-Star equally significant.

Go into any automobile accessory store or any tire and battery establishment. The merchandise on floors, shelves and counters, the gasoline that goes into your tank, the oil that fills your crank case and the lubricant that "takes the squeaks" out of your chassis bearings are the same that you have seen advertised regularly in the Times-Star.

CINCINNATI TIMES-STAR

Member Audit Bureau of Circulations

CHARLES P. TAFT, Publisher — C. H. REMBOLD, Manage

Martin L. Marsh, Eastern Rep.
927 Brunswick Bldg., New York

Kellogg M. Patterson, Western Re
904 Union Trust Bldg., Chicago

The New York Times Leads in Circulation Gains

THE NET PAID CIRCULATION of The New York Times, average daily and Sunday, for the six months ended March 31, 1926, as reported to the Post Office Department was 392,695. The gain of 10,690 over the total of the preceding six months was the greatest gain made in that period by any standard size New York morning newspaper.

	Six months ended MARCH 31, 1926	Six months ended SEPT. 30, 1925	GAIN	LOSS
THE NEW YORK TIMES	392,695	382,005	10,690	———
NEW YORK AMERICAN	347,771	362,862	———	15,091
THE WORLD	329,860	342,928	———	13,068
NEW YORK HERALD-TRIBUNE	294,327	287,386	6,941	———

The advertising rates of all these newspapers are fully justified by their circulations, but The Times is the only single medium in which the advertiser can reach the largest number of intelligent, substantial readers in New York.

No newspaper in the world, appealing in its character, content and make-up solely to thoughtful readers having an interest in the world's news, ever had anything approaching so large a circulation, or enjoyed so large a following.

The attention of this great number of readers of The Times, representing tens of thousands of the best families—men and women, discriminating, able to buy—can be attracted to the advertiser's message through no other newspaper.

In four months of this year The New York Times published more than 10,000,000 agate lines of advertising, a gain of 1,000,000 lines over the volume printed in the corresponding period of 1925 and an excess over the second New York newspaper of approximately 3,700,000 lines.

The New York Times

JOHN BUDD LEFT AGENCY BUSINESS TO EIGHT ASSOCIATES, WILL REVEALS

Members of Firm to Carry on Business of New York Special Representative—J. Frank Duffy Named President of Company

JOHN BUDD, head of the John Budd Company, newspaper representative, who died April 18, left his business to his associates, according to his will made public this week. Eight members of the firm are beneficiaries of this generosity.

They are: J. Frank Duffy and Edmund Hume of the New York office; Sylvester Blish, Mary M. Crowley, J. A. Kowalski, and Harry Mosier, of the Chicago office; C. W. Wessel, of the St. Louis office; and John Caldwell Myers, head of a prominent New York law firm and Mr. Budd's intimate friend and attorney.

J. Frank Duffy

Mr. Duffy has been elected president of the company, Mr. Mosier vice-president, and Mr. Hume, secretary and treasurer.

Signed by the John Budd Company, the following statement was made to EDITOR & PUBLISHER this week:

"The untimely death of our president has rendered it necessary for us to make an announcement concerning the future course of the Company.

"John Budd devoted the better part of his life to building up the organization which has borne his name for so many years. He built slowly, carefully, and methodically, as was his wont. In his work he used methods which he believed would develop an organization that would last because it deserved to endure. Above all, he wove into the very fabric of his work the high principles and ideals which animated him always. It was his hope and desire to create an organization which would not only render useful and conscientious service while he headed it, but would endure as a permanent institution, and continue to render such service after he had surrendered the management to other hands.

"Part of his plan was to admit to partnership in the enterprise those of his associates who in his judgment had contributed most to the success of his life work, and were best qualified to carry on what he had begun. For that purpose he gave them part of the stock in the Company, several years ago. By his will he has now made his plan completely effective by distributing practically all of the remaining stock of the corporation among the associates just referred to. He thus unmistakably showed his confidence in them and his desire to reward them.

"The associates who are the beneficiaries of Mr. Budd's remarkable generosity, and who will henceforth continue the business of the John Budd Company are the following, nearly all of whom have been in the employ of the Company for upwards of 18 years:

"J. Frank Duffy and Edmund Hume of the New York office; Sylvester Blish, Mary M. Crowley, J. A. Kowalski, and Harry Mosier of the Chicago office; C. W. Wessel of the St. Louis office; and John Caldwell Myers, who is the head of a prominent law firm in New York City and has for many years been Mr. Budd's intimate friend and attorney. The new officers of the Company are: J. Frank Duffy, president, Harry Mosier, vice-president, and Edmund Hume, secretary and treasurer.

"They and each of them are resolved to spare no effort to continue the John Budd Company in such a manner that it will be a worthy monument to their old chief. They believe in John Budd's ideals of service and will show their belief by living up to them as he did."

SWATTING PUBLICITY ON COAST

Southern California Editors Urged to Return Handouts to Firm Heads

In an effort to curb the growing free publicity evil, Ben H. Read, managing director of the Southern California Editorial Association is sending the following instructions to all members of the Association:

"We are enclosing herewith stickers to be pasted on free publicity matter, in our battle against these space grafters.

"Each member is urged to use these stickers on all free matter received, attach rate card of his paper and mail immediately.....

"Not to the agency sending the free copy.....

"But to the president or general manager of the company or organization to be benefited.

"This will show him that his money is not getting results when he spends it with the press agent.

"Make it the first duty of one employee, and see that it is performed strictly.

"It is said that national advertising paid campaigns are being held up now, until some press agent tries to put a free campaign across.

"This is part of a united campaign being carried on by all newspaper associations. Let's get on the firing line AT ONCE.

"Fraternally yours,
"Ben H. Read,
"Managing Director."

INSIDE STORY OF GENEVA PRESS GALLERY

(Continued from page 3)

long. Luther and Stresemann, by their continued rejections of Briand's and Chamberlain's compromises and in one case a Briand-Chamberlain compromise which was earmarked "Lord Cecil's" were dangerously near being regarded as deliberate obstructionists. It was at this juncture that both Briand and Chamberlain, calling in the newspaper men, declared to the world:

"We have gone the extreme limit of conciliation; if the League crashes or the Assembly is disrupted and Locarno lost, it is Germany's responsibility."

In truth, each and every "compromise" offered by the Allies had been a reiteration of the original program, couched in different words.

"But hasn't Germany been logical all along in rejection of the various Franco-British proposals," a British journalist asked Chamberlain.

To which the foreign minister replied: "My dear man, how often have I not told you that logic is disastrous in diplomacy."

The attempt to stampede the press into throwing the blame on Germany failed miserably. The correspondents refused to swallow a thing that even Chamberlain and Briand were ashamed of a few days later.

There was not a more tragic figure in all Geneva than Sir Austen Chamberlain the last few days of the Assembly and Council. And there was none more convinced of the power of the press—and the futility of old-line diplomacy without the backing of newspapers.

"They sought to build up a public opinion, through the press, which they could use in bolstering up their claims here at Geneva," Chamberlain declared, in discussing the part newspapers played. "But in the end the public opinion they had so carefully nurtured as their ally, became their masters."

In other words—even in England—the press had become a Frankenstein—it almost destroyed those who had sought to use it to attain their own ends. Had Briand returned to France with Germany alone in the League and on the Council, he would have lost his job. Had Skryznski gone back to Warsaw without a seat he would have fallen. Spain and Brazil would have been forced to quit the League as the result of the false nationalism their newspapers had created. And Chamberlain—even as things ended in a washout—commented cynically, on leaving Geneva:

"I am returning to London to face the executioners. Whatever I have to say will be said from the scaffold."

The League Assembly fight over the "Briand-Chamberlain-Skryznski" deal, for in the final analysis the promise to Poland that she should have a seat on the Council was the cause of all the turmoil, was the first skirmish of what may be a prolonged struggle between League principles and pre-war foreign office policies. A British cabinet minister—who still holds office—recently said:

"If you want to put across something, and avoid all suspicion, the place to do it is at Geneva."

Chamberlain had evidently taken his colleague at his word, and because that colleague "put over" something Chamberlain perhaps thought he could do it as well especially since he was aiding the astute Briand. Thanks to the British press, which in heavy headlines called upon Unden to stand firm and that "England Expects Every Swede to Do His Duty," the powers failed to "pack the League Council. They may make a second attempt in September, but with a hostile world press and an enlightened public, their chances are mighty slim for success.

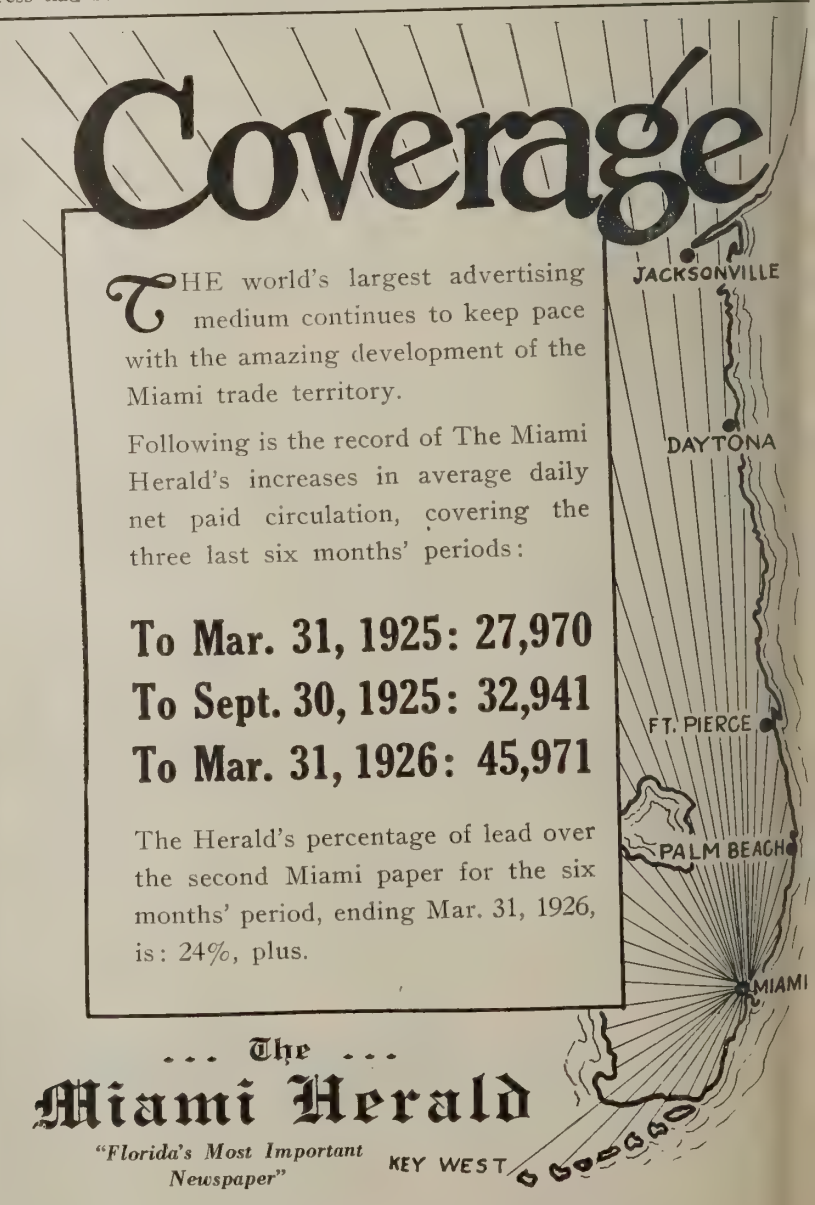
Are You Afraid of Marriage?

by

Frances McDonald

A stirring modern feature for the Flapper Wife and Sweetheart of Today.

CURRENT NEWS FEATURES, INC.
EVENING STAR BLDG.
WASHINGTON, D. C.



Coverage

THE world's largest advertising medium continues to keep pace with the amazing development of the Miami trade territory.

Following is the record of The Miami Herald's increases in average daily net paid circulation, covering the three last six months' periods:

To Mar. 31, 1925: 27,970
To Sept. 30, 1925: 32,941
To Mar. 31, 1926: 45,971

The Herald's percentage of lead over the second Miami paper for the six months' period, ending Mar. 31, 1926, is: 24%, plus.

... The ...
Miami Herald
"Florida's Most Important Newspaper"

FRANK B. SHUTTS, Publisher

NATIONAL ADVERTISING REPRESENTATIVES:
J. P. McKINNEY & SON,
NEW YORK CHICAGO SAN FRANCISCO
GEO. M. KOHN, 704 Walton Bldg., Atlanta.

AND IN FICTION, TOO!

NEA Service takes the lead. Ready proof of that is offered in the next serial release---

NEIGHBORS' WIVES

By Ernest Lynn

Lynn wrote "The Yellow Stub." A recent survey shows it created more newspaper circulation than any serial in years.

"Neighbors' Wives" is a distinct departure from the prevalent type of newspaper serial. It is an accurate piece of reporting of middle-class married life, powerful in its simplicity.

IT RELEASES MONDAY, MAY 17

NEA Service, Inc.,

1200 W. 3rd St. Cleveland, Ohio

The World's Greatest Newspaper Feature Service---Backed by 33 years' experience.

NEW ENGLAND GROUP VISITS MONTREAL

Newspaper Men Guests of Canadian Railways and Montreal Press Club On Two-Day Trip—Notables Speak at Banquet

Senator Raoul Dandurand, president of the League of Nations and government leader in the Canadian Senate, and Hon. Mederic Martin, Mayor of Montreal, officially welcomed at a dinner held Monday evening at the Windsor Hotel, Montreal, a body of visiting New England journalists.

The newspaper men were visiting Montreal Sunday, April 25, and Monday as guests of the Canadian National and the Canadian Pacific Railways, making the initial trip on the new Boston and Montreal express.

Boston editors leaving North Station, Boston, for Montreal jaunt

At the dinner Senator Dandurand expressed the wish that "our American cousins will come more often to Canada and aid in cementing the already firm bonds of friendship between our two nations."

Hon. Albert Halstead, United States consul-general, welcomed his fellow-countrymen.

Joe Carlin, assistant city editor of the Boston Post, spoke for the visitors.

On Sunday evening the New England journalists were taken to the Montreal Press Club where they were entertained by their local confreres. During the evening Senator J. P. B. Casgrain and President R. W. Lipsett of the Press Club, formerly of the Montreal Star, spoke.

Sir Henry Thornton, American-born president of the Canadian National Railways, received the visitors Monday morning in his conference rooms whence they adjourned to the Windsor Hotel for luncheon.

During the afternoon they were driven over the city and island of Montreal and shown the historic sights of the old city. Among these was the ancient Chateau de Ramezay where Benjamin Franklin, the dean of American Journalists, published the first Canadian newspaper, the Montreal Gazette, for the British Government.

Some of the visitors left for their homes Monday evening while others stayed over until Tuesday morning.

Those on the trip were: H. Gould, city editor, Boston Traveler; P. S. Deland, city editor, Christian Science Monitor; Edwin F. Melvin, Boston Transcript; H. Frazer, Boston Globe; J. K. Gowan, managing editor, Sunday Advertiser; M. G. Sullivan, Daily Advertiser; R. J. Gillis, city editor, Boston American; G. E. Richards, night editor, Boston Post; G. M. Drury, assistant city editor, Boston Herald; J. A. Jones, Boston Herald; Phil Coolidge, Pathe News, Boston; William Powell, Burlington (Vt.) News; Charles A. Poff, Concord (N. H.) Evening Telegram; F. W. Hartford, Portsmouth (N. H.) Herald-Chronicle; Peter Kelly, Boston Advertiser; Edward F. Crane, Burlington (Vt.) Free Press; Richard Power, Boston American; Dudley Hovey, Boston News Bureau; Bernard Peterson, Boston Transcript; George Parkhurst, Nashua (N. H.) Telegraph; A. J. Beiron, Nashua, N. H.; E. A. L. Hill, Boston Globe; Herberg Caryl, International News Service, Boston office; L. H. Pare, Manchester (N. H.) La Venir National; H. S. Thompson, Boston Financial News; Stanley Ryan, Montpelier (Vt.) Argus; Walter W. Cunningham, Christian Science Monitor; John H. Harrington, Lowell (Mass.) Sun; John J. McMahon, Boston Traveler; Joseph D. Carlin, Boston Post.

Among the local newspaper men entertaining the visitors were R. W. Lipsett; Henry Todd, assistant city editor, Montreal Star; Abel Vineberg, Montreal Gazette; F. DeWhy, Montreal Star; D. C. Watson, assistant city editor, Montreal Herald; Howard S. Smith, assistant telegraph editor, Montreal Star; H. Somerville, financial editor, Montreal Herald; L. Rountree, assistant sporting editor, Montreal Star; L. P. Gagnon, city editor, La Presse; R. Boyd, night telegraph editor, Montreal Star; A. Tremont, Le Canad.

To Revive Oakfield Weekly

Revival of the Oakfield (N. Y.) Independent, a weekly is planned for the near future. It suspended several months ago. L. H. Blackley of North Girard, Pa., will become the editor.

Press Badges for Springfield Writers

Official press badges have been issued to Springfield, O., newspaper writers by the city department of public safety. The action was taken because numerous persons have represented themselves as reporters to get behind police lines.

A $7500
CIRCULATION MANAGER SEEKS NEW CONNECTION

Box B-946
Editor & Publisher

YOUNGSTERS COMPETE IN SCOOTER CLASSIC

Home-Made Vehicles Flash from Barrier in Los Angeles Herald Contest—All Contestants Under Twelve

By Harold J. Ashe.

The "bowl" was straight; the racing cars were weak as to engines; the daredevil drivers were youngsters; yet the "speed classic" was the focal point for thousands of Los Angeles' solid citizenry.

The speed event was staged by the Los Angeles Herald with the lists open to all boys and girls able to command any variety of home-made automobile, scooter or coaster. The age limit was twelve, under not over.

The race was held through the cooperation of the park commission at Exposition Park, April 2 at 10 a. m., with Chief of Police James E. Davis as official starter for the races and Charles Keppen, prominent sportsman and announcer, wielding the megaphone.

Locally manufactured vehicles were offered as prizes to the prize-winners, who won only by a nose. More than one entrant had to limp from the track to his dugout for repairs—perhaps to re-fuel, or maybe to change a tire. No casualties were noted.

The events run off included:

Home-made automobile races—Three separate events, the first open to youngsters from 4 to 6, the second to those between the ages of 6 and 8, and the third from 8 to 10. Prizes: "Packard Eight," "Lincoln Eight," and "Chrysler Six," roadsters, pedalled propelled.

Kiddie Car or play car races—two separate events, the first for boys of 5 years or less, and the second for girls of 5 years or less. Prizes: Two pedal play cars with steel disc wheels and rubber tires.

Scooter races—Three separate events, the first for boys of 12 years or less, and the second for girls of 12 years or less, both with manufactured scooters, and the third for boys of 12 years or less with home-made scooters. Prizes: three scooters of the latest design, with brakes, steel disc wheels and rubber tires.

Coaster wagon race—For boys of 12 years or less. Prize: a de luxe model coaster wagon, with brake, steel disc wheels and oversize rubber tires.

Second prize in each event of the four main classes of races was a pair of rubber-tired, ball-bearing roller skates, and third prize was a pair of steel-wheeled ball bearing roller skates.

Bank Appeals Ardmorite Case

The American National Bank of Oklahoma has appealed to the Oklahoma supreme court from the decision of a lower court in refusing to allow it to recover $4,100 from the Ardmorite Publishing Company, publishers of the Ardmore Ardmorite. The publishing company, the bank alleges, made a contract leasing a building in which the Ardmorite was published, from U. S. Joines for a period of years. The newspaper moved out of the building in February, 1924, and the bank claims there is due it $4,110 for violating the contract, from rentals under the remainder of the lease. A jury in the district court in October, 1925, found for the Ardmorite.

Stovall Succeeds Truman On Coast

Otis S. Stovall, recently classified promotion manager of the Los Angeles Evening Herald, will direct all future promotion activities of that paper. Charles D. Truman, promotion manager, has resigned to become general manager of the Credit Guide Publishing Company, Los Angeles.

Fuller Buys Muskogee News

A. O. Fuller, general manager of the Muskogee (Okla.) News, has purchased the property from the Eastern Oklahoma Publishing Company and will be its president and publisher, with Carl Held continuing as editor.

PEJEPSCOT PAPER COMPANY

Manufacturers for Over Fifty Years of

NEWSPRINT

Combining the Three Essentials of Quality
Strength • Cleanliness • Color

Colored Newsprint a Specialty

Daily Capacity 160 TONS

MILLS IN THE STATE OF MAINE, U. S. A.
Sales Office: • 42 Broadway • New York, N. Y.

Publishers' Promotion Matter How To Make It Effective

With the mass of medium and market data passing over the desk of a busy representative of only one list of newspapers, just imagine that printed information multiplied many times, passing over the desk of a busy space buyer!

Does he read it?

He does not. He can't!

The main reasons why most publishers' promotion matter is wasted are:

Irrelevant.

Hard to read.

Too bulky, too long.

Unimportant points over-emphasized.

Hard to file and find.

A lack of uniformity or standardization on the part of the publishers, agents and advertisers for handling this sort of information.

The ultimate answer may be in the buyers and sellers cooperating to develop a somewhat standardized method comparable to the uniform system of circulation analyses.

Meanwhile a publisher can profit by having his material prepared or at least approved by a man of seasoned experience in the national field.

E. Katz Special Advertising Agency

Established 1888

Publishers' Representatives

DETROIT	NEW YORK	KANSAS CITY
ATLANTA	CHICAGO	SAN FRANCISCO

35 HOMES FINANCED AND BUILT BY N. Y. TIMES BUILDING ASSOCIATION

Thrift Encouraged by Employees Group Organized to Promote Savings and Handle Loans—$250,000 Advanced to Workers in 3 Years of Operation

"DON'T work like a beaver—for nothing" is the admonition concluding a folder distributed the other day to members of the New York Times staff by the New York Times Savings and Loan Association.

And behind it lies a system for encouraging employee loyalty and thrift applicable and workable in any newspaper in the United States, in the belief of E. Le Roy Finch, editorial auditor of the Times, and president of the association.

Mr. Finch, with James B. Stewart, real estate editor of the Times, this week made public for the first time the results of three years' operation of the newspaper's saving and loan association. The story of its establishment was also told. Mr. Stewart was first president.

"Approximately one third or 1,000 members of the Times' staff are not working like beavers for nothing," Mr. Finch said. "Assisted by the newspaper's own saving association operated on a profit sharing basis they are building homes for their present use and bank rolls for the future."

In three years the association has loaned about $250,000 to Times workers; has financed the building of 35 homes; and has furnished a depository for the investment by employees of $200,000 in building loan stock which yields 5¾ per cent dividends.

Just prior to the war, Adolph S. Ochs, publisher of the Times, had thougnt ot establishing an association such as is now in operation but it was pigeon-holed. Then one morning after the war an employee came to Mr. Finch asking a loan to assist in building a home. He had tried to raise the necessary funds, he said, through a big loan Company, but had found he couldn't get the money until the walls were up, or some such requirement. He wanted immediate financial help.

Mr. Ochs happened to be nearby at the time and overheard the conversation. After the employee had left he went up to Mr. Finch and Mr. Stewart to talk to them about it.

"That's a very peculiar situation, isn't it," he said. "You'd better come upstairs sometime soon and we'll find out if we can't remedy it."

The New York Times Saving and Loan Association was founded as a result of the subsequent discussion between Mr. Ochs and his editorial auditor and real estate editor. In the second section of the by-laws the objects of the association were listed as follows:

"The objects of this association are to encourage industry, frugality, home building, and the saving of money by its members, the accumulation of savings, the loaning of such accumulation to its members, and the repayment to each member of his savings when they have accumulated to a certain sum, or at any time when he shall desire the same or the association shall desire to repay same."

As a nucleus to start the association, Mr. Ochs presented at the beginning $100,000, and has, throughout its short existence, been keenly interested in its operation. The actual administration, however, is entirely in the hands of the employees. In addition to Mr. Finch, other officers are: Charles F. Hart, mechanical superintendent, vice-president; E. A. Hegi, cashier, treasurer; and Charles Hofmann, of the auditing department, secretary. Directors are Van Buren Thorne, Mr. Stewart, Mr. Finch, E. A. Dart, Hugh A. O'Donnell, Edward A. Hegi, Charles A. Flanagan, Edward H. Taylor, Eugene F. Ellis, John H. Dunton, W. A. Penny, Daniel Corcoran, Mr. Hart, W. F. Brosnam and Frederick R. Wheeler. These men serve without pay.

Any worker for the Times may take advantage of the association. He can start buying shares by depositing as little as one dollar and paying one dollar a month out of his salary. The shares "mature" in about 11 years and four months. In that time the dollar a month payer would have paid $136 for his one share. He receives $200 for it—the extra $64 representing dividends compounded semi-annually.

If a member of the association leaves the employ of the Times, he is permitted to continued paying his dues as a member, or he can withdraw.

Homebuilders who want to borrow money are aided by the association in locating a proper site, in appraising the property, in obtaining plans and specifications, in supervising the building, and in financing the home up to 70 per cent of the cost of the house and land.

The association has funds available to take over existing mortgages and to provide a means of liquidating the indebtedness on easy monthly payments.

A loan of $3,000 for instance, costs $30 a month; a loan of $4,000 costs $40 a month; $5,000 costs $50; and $6,000 costs $60.

In any loan, in fact the first two figures of the amount of the loan up to $10,000 denotes the amount of the monthly payments. At the end of 11 or 12 years the homebuilder's mortgage is cancelled and he gets clear title to his property.

Mr. Stewart, the association's first president, told EDITOR & PUBLISHER that 90 per cent of the members of the association belonged to the mechanical staff.

Officers of the New York Times Savings and Loan Association. Sitting (left to right): James B. Stewart, first president; E. Le Roy Finch, present president; E. A. Hegi, treasurer. Standing (left to right): Charles Hofmann, secretary; Charles F. Hart, vice-president.

No dull Summer IN Los Angeles!

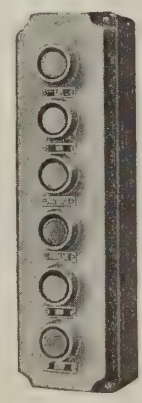
Keep your schedules active - in June, July, and August!

Los Angeles Examiner

100,000 GROUP PLANS TO EXPAND SURVEY

More Comprehensive Book to Be Issued for 1927, Participating Newspapers Decide—New Members To Be Added

Encouraged by the favorable reception of the present market book of The 100,000 Group of American Cities, representatives of participating newspapers who met at the Waldorf in New York April 23, plan a new and more comprehensive edition of the book for 1927, to be released probably next October or November.



Announcement to this effect was made Monday by W. A. Strong, publisher of the Chicago Daily News and president of the group. In the 1927 edition will be "A Study of Eighty-one Principal American Markets." It was also announced that new plans increase the number of markets and participating newspapers to approximately 90.

A tentative list of the new markets includes Long Beach and San Diego, Cal., Evansville and Fort Wayne, Ind., Allentown, Pa., Knoxville, Tenn., Savannah, Ga., Tampa, Fla., and Elizabeth, N. J. This list was approved at a directors' meeting April 19. No announcement of the additional newspapers will be made until approval by the directors at the meeting in Chicago next month.

Discussing the group's work for the ensuing year, Mr. Strong said:

"Our book was so favorably and enthusiastically received by advertisers, non-advertisers and advertising agencies during the past few months that we have concluded to publish a 1927 edition which will include statistical information for every city and town in the United States of 1,000 population or more. This will give the user of the book a comprehensive study of the entire country which he can divide into sections to fit his business requirements. Moreover, the information given in the new book will be greatly extended."

The Best Control Equipment is the Most Economical and the Best is Cline System

The Boss of the Press

Made to stand up under the most severe demands which can be made on it, by the use of better, heavier materials in its construction.

Safest, because of the extra strength built into every part of it.

Best suited to every printing need, because Cline engineers have specialized in control equipment for 25 years.

Specify Cline System —and have the best

CLINE ELECTRIC MFG. CO.

Eastern Office
Marbridge Bldg.
47 W. 34th St.
New York

Conway Building
111 W. Washington St.
CHICAGO

Western Office
First Nat'l Bank Bldg.
San Francisco
Calif.

CLINE ELECTRIC MFG. CO. CHICAGO SYSTEM CLINE WESTINGHOUSE

more about Dr. Cadman

The South Bend Tribune

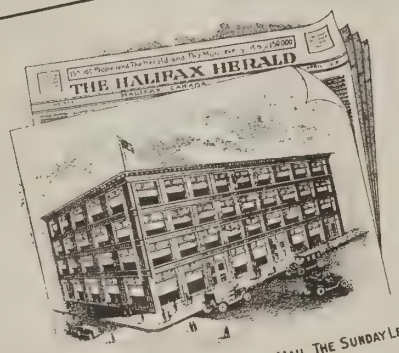
Mr. Harry Staton, April 14, 1926.
Mgr. Herald-Tribune Syndicate,
New York, N. Y.

Dear Mr. Staton:

For sustained interest and pulling power Dr. Cadman's daily column is one of the best things THE TRIBUNE gives to its readers. You are to be congratulated upon having obtained Dr. Cadman and should be urged to continue him as a member of your staff.

Cordially Yours,

Managing Editor
SOUTH BEND TRIBUNE



RHH-R.

"For sustained interest and pulling power, Dr. Cadman's daily column is one of the best things the TRIBUNE gives to its readers."—The South Bend Tribune.

"THEY COVER NOVA SCOTIA"

A W ROBB SECRETARY TREASURER

W H. DENNIS, GENERAL MANAGER

THE HALIFAX HERALD THE EVENING MAIL THE SUNDAY LEADER

THE HALIFAX HERALD, LIMITED

HALIFAX, CANADA

April 14, 1926

The New York Herald Tribune Sydnicate,
New York.

Dear Sir: ATTENTION MR. HARRY STATON, Manager

We are quite sure you will be interested in knowing that the Dr. Cadman feature which we have been running daily in our papers for some weeks is considered as one of the most valuable features in our columns. Certainly, it is one of the most widely read, and we have had numerous expressions from our readers to this effect. The daily column deals with a variety of interesting matters in a most attractive way placing them before the readers in a condensed and simple form.

Yours very truly,

Halifax Herald, Limited
A W Robb
Secretary-Treasurer

"... one of the most valuable features in our columns. Certainly it is one of the most widely read, and we have had numerous expressions from our readers to this effect."—The Halifax Herald.

New York Herald Tribune Syndicate

INDIAN MOTIF HEIGHTENED INTEREST IN VANCOUVER SPELLING BEE

Sun's Third Contest Conducted With Original Features Won Strong Community Support—Four Winners Taken on Boat Trip

By MYRTLE B. PATTERSON

Spelling Bee Editor, Vancouver Sun

THE Vancouver Sun's third annual "spelling bee" for the boys and girls of Greater Vancouver and New Westminster, British Columbia, is over, and the four winners have set sail on the "grand prize"—a five-day cruise to Stewart, B. C., and Hyder, Alaska, on the S. S. Prince George.

MYRTLE B. PATTERSON

Two factors entered into the successful promotion of the Sun's "spelling bee" this year: the prize list was eminently successful and the s. b. e. (spelling bee editor) found plenty of "color" for copy by playing up an Indian motif in prizes, music, entertainment, stage setting and costumes for the 16 final contestants.

Spelling, naturally, is the thing! It plays a big part in a "spelling bee," whether it be the old-fashioned "spell-down" of the country schoolhouse or the "spelling bee" de luxe which the Sun stages each spring for 35,000 Pacific Coast grade school pupils. But spelling alone has never put the words, "The Sun Spelling Bee," into the home conversation of thousands of families. This is the paramount duty of the spelling bee editor. The Sun's s. b. e. solved the problem this year by producing the "spelling bee" under the title of "Totem Tom-Tom Land" and by arranging a list of prizes that opened the eyes of boys and girls all over the Lower Mainland of British Columbia. Towards the end, the announcement that the Hon. Robert Randolph Bruce, new Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia, would make his first official bow to the province at the Sun's "spelling bee" kept interest at a high pitch.

With the academic side of the "spelling bee" wholly in the hands of the school authorities of Vancouver Centre, South Vancouver, New Westminster, Burnaby, Richmond, West Vancouver and North Vancouver District, the Sun was responsible only for the publicity of the competition, the prize list and the program of the actual "spelling bee" on March 30 in the Orpheum theatre.

This plan of delegating to the school principals the "spelling" side of the contest has worked most satisfactorily for the past three years. A Spelling Bee Committee, composed of men and women representatives from all the municipalities participating in the "bee," draws up the rules of the spelling meet, and a subcommittee of three school principals selects the 1,500 words upon which the entire "spelling bee" is based. This scientific list is printed in the Sun and, in addition, thousands of extra copies are printed and distributed by the paper.

The Sun agrees to accept the candidates offered by the respective school districts, and the burden of settling small disputes, distributing tickets for the final affairs and attending to dozens of other details that arise during the course of a "spelling bee" is thus left in the responsible hands of those best fitted to cope with it. School principals and teachers have given the Sun the most wholehearted co-operation during the past three years.

Copies of the rules of the "spelling bee" are sent to all the teachers of grade school classes in the municipalities represented. The list of teachers are obtained from the school board secretaries, and the Sun both prints the rules and mails them out. Each teacher, receiving a personally-directed bulletin, is thus made acquainted with the rules and the major prizes of the "spelling bee." This direct contact with the teachers of the districts and, more particularly, with the supervisors, cannot be stressed too much. It is essential for smooth-running machinery.

Four happy Indian maids and braves were loaded down with prizes at the close of the "spelling bee" and they were further cheered with the thought of a five-day cruise north to the edge of Alaska during the Easter holidays.

When the rules and the 1,500 words have been broadcast, the editor devotes his time to completing the prize list, arranging theatre parties for the 16 final contestants and 2,000 "near-winners," and preparing features for the big "spelling bee" itself.

This year the five-day Easter cruise to Stewart, B. C. with stops at the Powell River and Ocean Falls pulp plants, at Prince Rupert, British Columbia's northern port, and at Anyox and Stewart, B. C., both mining centers, lent itself admirably to many interest-getting newspaper stories. Entertainment was arranged in each of the ports, and publicity was given in the Sun to those who would entertain the spellers and to the attractions themselves.

A thoroughbred wire-haired terrier, "Sun-Spot," was offered by a Vancouver pet shop, 25 baby chicks—his third annual prize—came from a poultry fancier, a dancing course from a school of ballet, tennis racquet and balls, a radio, an Indian Chief doll, a sweater, candy, fountain pens, diaries—these all arrived to supplement the Sun's silver medal for the grand champion speller and a silver shield for the school of the champion. A dozen roses for the champion's mother and a box of chocolates for his teacher were also given away. An enamel button for each of the other 15 contestants, flowers for each, a theatre party, an Easter egg of candy for each and an after-theatre tea party. No child who won the right to represent his district at the final "bee" participated without getting enough fun and prizes to make it well worth his while.

W. A. Barnes, manager of the Orpheum theatre, arranged a special Saturday morning performance for 2,000 "near-winners" in the school eliminations. Tickets were sent to the principals by the Sun and were given to those who worked hardest on the spelling lists but who were not able to win the school championship. It was a splendid party this year —the best yet—and the Sun played it up afterwards with a good layout of pictures and stories.

On the afternoon of the final "spelling bee" (an afternoon event is not so satisfactory as an evening "spelling bee" and in 1927 the Sun will arrange it as a night affair as it did in 1924 and 1925) the curtain went up on an Indian tepee, Indian tom-toms and a little band of 16 Indian maids and braves. Each bore an Indian name—like "Round-Face-Beneath-a-Bob," "Chief-Top-of-His-Class," "Slim-Maid-of-Dusky-Hair," "Small-Tamer-of-Big-Words" and "Victor-of-a-Hard-Fought-Fight"—which the audience could determine by comparing the number worn by the contestant with the number on the program. The class was under the direction of a "paleface" teacher, J. S. Gordon, municipal inspector of Vancouver schools, who looked very dashing in a vivid Hudson's Bay Company blanket coat.

After the teacher's explanation that the "Indians" were to be met with a volley of word "bullets," a pronouncer stepped to the stage and the first 20-minute period of spelling was on. There were three 20-minute periods altogether, and only eight children had dropped out at the end of 60 minutes of spelling. A fourth period was arranged and the eight survivors tried a written test on 40 words they had not seen before. This determined the winners, and the prizes were then presented by Mayor L. D. Taylor.

Entertainment had filled the intermissions and the long wait for the returns of the contest. An address on Indian customs and legends by Professor Charles Hill-Tout, a children's dance revue, a violin and piano number, a recitation by a girl in Indian costume, presentation of flowers to Miss Helen Mackenzie, niece of the new Lieutenant-Governor, and to the girl artists—these all preceded the Lieutenant-Governor's speech. Mayor Taylor later spoke to the children and the grown-ups, and A. L. McWilliams, Vancouver trustee, made frequent speeches in his office as master of ceremonies.

Next year the Sun will make sure that it again has an orchestra. An unrehearsed performance like a "spelling bee" requires the offices of a professional orchestra in welding it together. It will also insist upon more professional intermission acts. The 20-minute spelling periods bore many in the audience, and bright entertainment features are essential in keeping them from getting restless.

A better plan for the distribution of "spelling bee" reserved seat tickets will also be found before next spring. This year they were sent out pro rata to the schools of the various municipalities and distributed by the teachers. The latter evidently did not stress sufficiently the fact that each ticket represented a reserved seat, as there were a number of unoccupied seats on the final afternoon. The public has been educated that only reserved seat ticket holders may gain admittance and there was no waiting line outside to fill up the vacancies. Next year, some plan will be found to take care of both the school pupils, teachers and pupils' parents and the scores of interested readers who beseige the newspaper for tickets of admission.

The spelling bee as an inter-school inter-municipality competition for school children, has established itself at the Pacific Coast and the Vancouver Sun is planning to perfect for next year this annual "community effort" which has earned the enthusiastic approval of pupils, teachers and parents.

BELLEVILLE TIMES WRECKED

Chase Allison, Editor, and Family Escape Dynamite Blast

Chase Allison, editor of the Belleville (Pa.) Times, with his wife and two children, narrowly escaped death, April 25, when the newspaper building was wrecked by an explosion. They lived above the newspaper plant. State police investigated and diagnosed dynamite.

Mr. Allison is more or less noted for his freedom of editorial expression in politics and other public matters.

"I have no known enemies," said the editor. "But," he told police, "I have received threatening letters telling me to watch my step."

The interior of the Times office was ruined, including machinery, stock and equipment. Allison estimated his loss at $15,000.

Timmons Heads Oklahoma Group

Samuel C. Timmons, editor of the Cherokee (Okla.) Messenger, was chosen president of Group 2, Oklahoma Press Association, at its semi-annual meeting at Kingfisher. Mrs. Bert Campbell of the Oklahoma Hornet, Waukomis, is vice-president, and G. C. Lawrence of the Woodward Daily Press, secretary.

DAILY PAPERS FROM OTHER CITIES
HOTALING'S NEWS STAND
BROADWAY AND 43RD ST.
NORTH END THE TIMES BUILDING

"Perhaps the most cosmopolitan spot in New York City is Forty-third Street and Broadway . . . Here is a mammoth news stand which sells newspapers from every city in the world. . . Every town has similar stands, but none as huge as this, and none as varied and as picturesque in its patronage."
—Boston Transcript, Oct. 29, 1921

HOTALING'S NEWS AGENCY, 308 WEST 40th STREET, NEW YORK

INTERCHANGEABLE MAGAZINES

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

HERE ARE YOUR LINOTYPES
as many as your product demands—different types of Linotypes for different kinds of work—Single or Multiple distribution—one, two or three main magazines—with or without auxiliaries—can be supplied to cast either 30 or 42 picas, maximum measure.

HERE ARE YOUR TYPE FACES
as many as you need—conveniently stored in Standard Interchangeable Linotype Magazines—ready to produce composition of the highest quality in unlimited volume.

PUT ANY SELECTION OF FACES
on the Linotype that is best adapted to the work in hand. When that job is finished, it takes only a minute to remove the magazines and re-equip the Linotype for its next task.

MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE COMPANY

Brooklyn, New York

SAN FRANCISCO CHICAGO NEW ORLEANS

CANADIAN LINOTYPE LIMITED, TORONTO

Agencies in the Principal Cities of the World

DISPLAY SET IN THE NEW NARCISS FACE, NOW BEING CUT FOR THE LINOTYPE, BODY IN LINOTYPE SCOTCH

580.26.2-A

READERS GET AS GOOD NEWSPAPERS AS THEY KNOW HOW TO DEMAND

So Reasons College Professor and Teaches Students to Insist On High Level for the Press—A "Cold Cash" Course Is Also Listed by Iowa Wesleyan

By CALVIN T. RYAN

(Director, Journalism Department, Iowa Wesleyan College)

ALTHOUGH Iowa Wesleyan college is the oldest institution of learning west of the Mississippi river with continuous existence, and although its founders intended the institution primarily for religious instruction of the prairie youths, it has neither lagged behind the speedy progress of the Middle West nor refused to admit that Christianity can be taught through the press as well as through the pulpit. Therefore, when other colleges added journalism to their curriculum Iowa Wesleyan joined the rapidly growing list.

Because our students are to be consumers as well as producers of newspapers, we strive to teach them how to read a newspaper and what they can rightly expect from the daily press. We do this believing that readers get just about as good newspapers as they demand, and believing, also, that they have no right to find fault with what exists unless they do something to make things better. Knowing what newspapers should be, and certainly every college trained man and woman should know, they can more intelligently insist on having the press always at a high level.

And so while no more than 50 per cent of our students take the courses in journalism, and probably not half of those who do take the courses ever follow journalism for their life work, we feel that a little leaven will leaven the whole loaf, and in doing so we shall contribute our part to this great public service. In all our courses we speak of the press as a great public institution, vital to the life of a democracy, and of every newspaper man as a public servant from whom the reading public has a right to expect some very definite things. While we do not give a course in the ethics of journalism, we permeate all our teaching with it.

Theory is combined with practice. Nothing is taught in a vacuum. Students learn to do by doing. They write news for the college paper, for the town paper, and for all the nearby city dailies. Each year several of the students pay the major part of their college expenses by writing news. Because what they have written has been printed as they submitted it is not always taken as a criterion of satisfactory work. Copy which has been published is again subjected to class criticism.

Students are put out on assignment after the first week of class room work They are held accountable not only for what they get, but also for what they miss that might have made good copy. They report all speeches, interview the leading men and women of the town, and those of note who visit either the town or the college. They are given to understand that the newspaper man must miss nothing, regardless of the trouble it takes to get it.

Newspaper scrapbooks are made by the students. These books are made for themselves, not for their instructor, so that when they have finished the course students have models of all kinds of stories, sample first pages representing all kinds of make-up and types of head writing, and typical editorials clipped from the best papers of the country.

Country as well as metropolitan journalism is studied. Country editors gladly co-operate with us, send us samples of their papers and appreciate whatever suggestions we make to them. Here, as well as with metropolitan dailies, the class studies what is being done, rather than what any particular textbook writer says should be done. In fact we use many texts rather than any particular one.

Through our college publications we invite the high schools of the state to send their school papers for criticism. We also stand ready to give advice to those high schools which wish to start a paper. Many of the high schools are introducing courses in news writing. To the instructors in charge of these courses, we offer our services free of charge. Attention is given in the courses to the standards to be expected in high school journalism. Many of our graduates teach in the high schools of the state, and whenever they are put in charge of the school paper they understand that they are at liberty to call on us for any advice we can give them. In the summer session, when many of our students are teachers, we make our college paper on the office mimeograph. We do this to show the teachers who teach in schools where it would not be practicable to have a paper published that a creditable sheet can be put out on the school mimeograph.

In addition to the work in the fundamental principles of reporting, editing and general newspaper background, courses are offered in feature and magazine writing. Here again the student studies features and magazine articles which are already in print, rather than any set of rules as laid down in a text. He is taught to discover his own rules, in so far as there are any. He is shown how to find subjects and how to prepare the material for the possible subject when found. Emphasis is thrown upon quantity of writing, for the first thing a neophyte has to overcome is his timidity in facing the possibility of having to write five thousand or more words for one assignment. Grades are determined largely on the amount and quality of work the student has published. As a rule students take these advanced courses because they feel that they have some ability in writing. The number in the classes is limited, so that the instructor can give individual attention to each student. The course in feature writing is commonly spoken of as a "cold cash" course, because the emphasis throughout the course is placed on "writing to sell."

A student expecting to major in journalism is advised to take at least one foreign language, and that for more than one year, contemporary history, political and social science, and English literature and composition. A college regulation prescribes that a student must take at least 24 hours in the field from which he has chosen his major. Those expecting to major in journalism are advised not to take any technical work in journalism before their sophomore year.

(This is the 16th article in a series obtained by EDITOR & PUBLISHER, interpreting the work of journalism schools to editors of the nation.)

NEWS WRITERS ORGANIZE

Harry A. Stroud Named President of Oklahoma Group

Harry A. Stroud of the Shawnee (Okla.) News is first president of the newly organized News Writers of Oklahoma which held its initial meeting at Shawnee, April 18.

Other officers are Lauren H. Clegg, Oklahoma City Times, vice-president; R. W. Holmes, Pawhuska News-Capital, secretary-treasurer; Eddie Anderson, Tulsa World, publicity director, and Curtis Ward, Oklahoma City News, chairman of the membership committee.

The next session will be held at Bristow, July 11.

Two New A.B.C. Members

The Audit Bureau of Circulations this week announced the Scranton (Pa.) Republican and Middletown (N. Y.) Daily Herald have been accepted as members of the Bureau.

Advertising must be considered an investment—not money spent, or money wasted.

Your product must be in a location where it will have proper distribution in order that it may become a SUCCESS.

You want RESULTS! Then you must use the newspaper of QUALITY and RESULTS. This is of VITAL interest to you. The New Orleans States will make a friend of you because this publication will help your business GROW. WHAT IS MORE ESSENTIAL?

Grow with the
NEW ORLEANS STATES

A Landslide to Ludlow

During the Past Two Years More Than 200 Newspapers (New Users) Have Installed the Ludlow System For Setting Ads and Heads

Here are a few of these leaders who know through actual experience the many short cuts to production that can be secured through the Ludlow system:

Miami Herald	New York American
St. Petersburg Times	Cleveland News
Pittsburgh Press	Salt Lake City Tribune
Los Angeles Examiner	Toledo News-Bee
New York Times	Washington Times
Tampa Tribune	Des Moines Register-Tribune
New Orleans Times-Picayune	New Haven Journal-Courier
New York World	Duluth News-Tribune
London Daily Sketch	San Francisco Bulletin
Birmingham News	New York Telegram
Los Angeles Herald	Brooklyn Times
St. Petersburg Independent	Rochester Journal
Philadelphia Public Ledger	Birmingham Post
Glasgow Herald	Los Angeles Record
New York Journal	New York Mirror
Buffalo News	New York Graphic
New York Sun	Philadelphia News
Tampa Times	Birmingham Age-Herald
Akron Beacon-Journal	Marion Star

For years, such papers as the Detroit News, Brooklyn Daily Eagle, Chicago Tribune, Chicago Daily News, Philadelphia Bulletin, Toronto Daily Star, Washington Star, Philadelphia Inquirer, Louisville Courier-Journal, London Daily Mail, and Indianapolis News have all been Ludlow users.

While the Ludlow is continually developing new and attractive typefaces and also is continually improving its system of operation, other papers continue to join the ranks of Ludlow users

Ludlow Typograph Co.

2032 Clybourn Avenue, Chicago

San Francisco: Hearst Bldg., 5 Third St. New York: World Bldg., 63 Park Row
Atlanta: Palmer Bldg., 41 Marietta St. Boston: Cummings Bldg., 261 Franklin St.

LUDLOW QUALITY COMPOSITION

The Advertising Significance of the Extra Cent

THE WORLD at 3 cents a copy has a larger circulation in Greater New York six days a week than either of its standard-sized competitors selling at 2 cents. On Sunday, it has a greater New York City circulation than The Times and The Herald-Tribune combined.

This statement is emphasized at this time because of its great importance to the advertiser. Most things are treasured in proportion to their cost. Material as this may seem, it is nevertheless true: that the more we pay for an article, the more important it becomes in our estimation.

Sixteen months ago THE WORLD increased its price from 2 cents a copy to 3 cents in Greater New York. During this period it has consistently retained its superiority in City circulation. This is a condition that was never for an instant doubted in THE WORLD office: it was believed, and has since been DEMONSTRATED, that THE WORLD was so essential in the lives of its readers as to be deemed well worthy of the extra cent charged.

It is doubtful if any other product, especially in the case of a newspaper, could continue to dominate its immediate market after an increase of 50% in its selling price.

There must be a reason, therefore, for THE WORLD'S continued leadership in New York City circulation—a reason based upon some sound principle of newspaper-making. No service, no piece of merchandise, can continue to command a wide sale at an advance in price unless there is an underlying reason for its higher cost.

We find this reason in the institutional character of THE WORLD. For forty-three years it has sturdily maintained an unswerving devotion to its public duty. Undisturbed by mergers and the kaleidoscopic changes of the New York newspaper world, it has continued to serve its public according to the principles laid down by the great editor who so long directed its destinies.

Advertisers who use THE WORLD share in this quality of permanency that has so long characterized the paper. Other newspapers have come and gone. In the last five years it has been estimated that 210,000,000 agate lines of advertising good-will, valued at $40,000,000 have vanished through newspaper mergers, yet THE WORLD has steadily increased in its service-value to the advertiser. Nothing could more clearly emphasize this point than the test of loyalty that came with the 3-cent price.

The advertiser who buys space in THE WORLD buys that continuity of impression which is the foundation of all good advertising. He purchases a circulation that cannot be dissipated, sold-off or merged over-night. It is a steady, constant value—the largest single unit of alert, prosperous New York City families that can be reached through any paper in the standard-sized morning field.

The fact that more than 225,000 New York City families out of a total circulation of nearly 300,000 voluntarily pay 3 cents per copy for THE WORLD (in competition with two other newspapers at 2 cents that rank among the best examples of modern journalism) makes its value just that much greater to the advertiser, since it is inevitable that the advertising columns must share in the increased reader-attention which the higher price insures.

The World

PULITZER BUILDING, NEW YORK

Tribune Tower, Chicago

NEW YORK TIMES AND KIMBERLY-CLARK PARTNERS IN GIANT PAPER VENTURE

All Newsprint Needs of Times to Be Supplied After 1928 By Mills Near Kapuskasing, Ont.—Development Involves $25,000,000

THE New York Times and the Kimberly-Clark Company, of Neenah, Wis., have become associated in the development of newsprint and pulp mills and hydro-electric power development in Northern Ontario it became known this week, when the Spruce Falls Power & Paper Company, Ltd., was chartered by the Ontario government. The site of the development is at and near Kapuskasing, Ont., on the Mattagami River, flowing into Hudson Bay. Full development of the enterprise involves an investment of $25,000,000, the daily production of 500 tons of newsprint and more than 120 tons of sulphite pulp and electric power for other purposes in connection with the industry. The Kimberly-Clark Company, established in 1872, is one of the oldest paper companies in the United States and was a pioneer in newsprint manufacture, which it discontinued in 1916. Since then it has made this class of paper only to tide customers for other grades over an emergency.

Following announcement of the inporporation of the Spruce Falls Power & Paper Company, Ltd., J. H. Black, general manager of the Spruce Falls Company, Ltd., a company established in 1920, stated that the Kimberly-Clark Company, owners of all of the capital stock of the Spruce Falls Company, Ltd., had agreed to transfer all the assets of the latter company to the Spruce Falls Power & Paper Company, Ltd., and had also entered into an agreement with the New York Times Company, whereby, on the transfer of the assets of the Spruce Falls Company, Ltd., it would become jointly interested in the new company.

The controlling shares of the Spruce Falls Power & Paper Company, Ltd., will be held by the Kimberly-Clark Company, which will operate the mills. Among the assets taken over from the Spruce Falls Company, Ltd., are a sulphite plant, now producing about 110 tons daily, and agreements with the Ontario government giving cutting rights over an area of more than 4,500 square miles, and leases to develop water powers at Smoky Falls and Devil Rapids, both located on the Mattagami River.

Kapuskasing, where the present sulphite mill is situated, is on the main line of the Canadian National Railroad transcontinental route, about 60 miles west of Cochrane. The powers to be developed at Smoky Falls and Devil Rapids are 40 miles north of the mill site.

A contract has already been let to Morrow & Beatty of Peterborough, Ont., for construction of the railroad and transmission line connecting the power plant and the sulphite mill at Kapuskasing, from which point power will be transmitted during construction at Smoky Falls. This work is already well under way.

Mr. Black stated that the construction work would be done from plans by George F. Hardy, 305 Broadway, New York, and that four 219-inch paper-making machines would be the original installation. It is expected that the new company will be producing paper during the summer of 1928.

The Kimberly-Clark Company of Wisconsin is one of the oldest paper companies in the United States. Established in 1872, and at present directed by F. J. Sensenbrenner, it now manufactures approximately 1,000 tons of pulp and paper daily. Its mills, located in Neenah, Appleton, Kimberly and Niagara, Wis.; Niagara Falls, N. Y., and the Province of Ontario, produce rotogravure, magazine, catalog and book paper besides a large line of paper specialties and other paper products, including a line of trade-marked specialties, sanek, cellucotton, a hospital absorbent, dental rolls, etc. Through its subsidiaries, the Cellucotton Products Company of Neenah, Wis., and Cellucotton Products Company, Ltd. of Niagara Falls, Ont., and Toronto, it also manufactures the trade-marked sanitary products kotex and kleenex.

The new company will supply all the newsprint required by the New York Times, estimated to be at present about one-third of the maximum production of the mills. The Times consumed during 1925 more than 80,000 tons of various grades of paper.

IOWA PRESS DES MOINES PROGRAM READY

Administration Problems to Be Discussed At Three-Day Convention, May 6-8—Many Social Events Planned

The questions of postal rates, competition and the business management of newspapers will be considered by members of the Iowa Press Association when the organization meets in Des Moines, May 6 to 8. Election of a new managing director to succeed G. L. Caswell, resigned, will be another of the major duties of the assembly.

The daily press section will meet May 6 to discuss legal notice advertising rates. K. F. Baldridge of Bloomfield will discuss new newspaper laws and decisions of the supreme court in relation to the publishing business. E. P. Chase of the Atlantic News-Telegraph will discuss rates for board proceedings. In the afternoon delegates will be entertained at Fort Des Moines and the Wakonda country club. At the fort a military review will be given under command of Col. Julian R. Lindsey. This will be followed by a polo game between the Fort Des Moines and Wakonda teams. The visiting newspaper men will be entertained at dinner at the Wakonda Club as the guests of the Credit Association of Printers and Supply Men.

On the morning of May 7 Mayor Fred Hunter of Des Moines will deliver an address of welcome to the association. Executives of press associations of other states will appear on the Friday morning program. Frank O. Edgecombe of Geneva, Neb., president of the National Editorial Association will speak, as will Ole Buck, field manager of the Nebraska Press Association and H. L. Williamson, secretary of the Illinois Press Association.

At the Friday afternoon session Frank Jaqua of the Humboldt Republican will speak on "Competition as the Death of Pleasure and Profit." C. A. Baumgart of Successful Farming, Vernon M. Vierth, Sumner Gazette, R. R. Roberts, Britt News-Tribune and Miss Irene Davis of the Toledo Chronicle will be other speakers. Harry E. Taylor of the Traer Star-Clipper will speak on "Results of the Drive to Drive the Government out of Business," and Arthur Bonnet of Chicago will address the convention on "Making Better Newspaper Success."

On Friday evening Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois will be the principal speaker at the banquet to be held in the ballroom of the Hotel Fort Des Moines where the general sessions of the convention are to take place. Governor John Hammill of Iowa, another speaker will talk on "Obligations of Newspapers of the State."

The various newspaper contests will be decided on the closing day. Trophies will be offered for the best mechanical makeup for papers from towns of more than 1,200 population and less.

TRADE MADE IN CERTIFIED DRY MATS THE U.S.A. MARK

The CERTIFIED POLICY

One Size
all mats 20" x 24"

One Quality
only the best we can make -- used by The New York Times, Cleveland Plain Dealer, Detroit Times, and several hundred other representative Newspapers.

One Price
15c on standing order

CERTIFIED DRY MAT CORPORATION
340 Madison Avenue New York, N. Y.
for wet mat printing with DRY MAT facility---use Certifieds
Made in the U. S. A.

You may deal with these 28 Iowa daily newspapers as with one publication. The "Iowa plan" offers you uniform marketing cooperation all over the state.

For a ready response— tell IOWA

Any manufacturer of worth while goods should certainly tell his story to Iowa.

Here are nearly two and a half million of the most uniformly prosperous, most typically American people to be found anywhere. Iowa ranks 51% higher than the nation's average in taxable wealth per capita.

About half of Iowa's people live on farms. The rest are engaged in industries and other pursuits.

But those farms on which half of Iowa's people live are worth more than the combined farms of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, West Virginia, South Carolina, Florida, Alabama, Arizona, Utah, Nevada, New Mexico and Wyoming.

Iowa has more automobiles on farms than any other state. There is now a car for every 3.7 persons in the state at large.

Iowa has more telephones per capita than any other state. She has more telephones than the entire country of France. More than any foreign country except England, Germany and Canada.

As prospects for your goods, these Iowa people rank many grades above the nation's average.

They are more willing and better able to buy both the necessities and luxuries of life.

You can reach them most surely and economically through their local daily newspapers, for practically everybody in Iowa reads one of these 28 dailies every day.

Let us send you full information about this wonderful market and how we help you with our merchandising service.

THE IOWA DAILY PRESS ASSOCIATION

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Ames Tribune
Boone News-Republican
Burlington Gazette
Burlington Hawk-Eye
Cedar Falls Record
Cedar Rapids Gazette
Centerville Iowegian & Citizen
Council Bluffs Nonpareil
Davenport Democrat
Davenport Times
Des Moines Capital
Des Moines Register and Tribune
Dubuque Telegraph-Herald
Dubuque Times-Journal
Fort Dodge Messenger
Fort Madison Democrat
Iowa City Press-Citizen
Keokuk Gate-City
Marshalltown Times Republican
Mason City Globe-Gazette
Muscatine Journal
Oelwein Register
Ottumwa Courier
Sioux City Journal
Sioux City Tribune
Washington Journal
Waterloo Evening Courier
Waterloo Tribune

IOWA—WHERE EVERY FAMILY TAKES A DAILY NEWSPAPER

EDITORIAL

VANDERBILT'S PLIGHT

ANY experienced newspaper men, knowing the surface facts, could long ago have told young Cornelius Vanderbilt that his course in journalism would inevitably lead to the present ugly snarl. Two years ago EDITOR & PUBLISHER warned him against the stock-selling methods that were being used with the public in his name—"come-on" advertising of the rankest order. It was obvious to us then that these methods would return to taunt Vanderbilt. For our well-meant criticism we were indirectly informed that EDITOR & PUBLISHER was regarded by Mr. Vanderbilt as distinctly unfriendly to him.

We agree with the celebrated legal defenders that young Vanderbilt has selected to contest against his father's decision to withhold his patrimony that the Vanderbilt newspapers have generally responded to a clean editorial ideal, and believe that young Vanderbilt has made a heroic attempt, according to his lights, to build a chain of tabloids, but his stock-selling methods were reckless and devoid of conscience, and the management of the business has been extremely bad, with Mr. Vanderbilt himself mainly responsible.

Naturally every newspaper man hopes that these newspapers can be saved. The day of cut-throat rivalry in America is dead. Any fellow with a good idea and money to back it is welcomed to the newspaper field. Vanderbilt's local competitors have been fair enough. He contends that $300,000 will save the properties. It would be a notable feat in journalism, in our opinion. Certainly Mr. Vanderbilt and his friends should be willing to make heroic sacrifices to defend the interest of those 25,000 stockholders, many of whom can ill afford to lose their investments.

Perhaps those who led young Mr. Vanderbilt into a hysterical stock promotion scheme have learned that the newspaper business does not list with the cats and dogs of the curb stock market.

Mr. Hearst says ten people read a boxed story for everyone who reads a story under a top head.

"BENEFIT AND CREDIT"

THE following note was appended to a handout from the National Council Lighting Fixture Manufacturers sent to newspapers this week:

"To receive the benefit and credit resulting from the publication of this news-item, please send checking copy to the General Offices of the National Council Lighting Fixture Manufacturers, 424 Guarantee Title Bldg., Cleveland, O."

Perhaps they have a supply of nice big lollipops for good and generous publishers.

Arbitration of questions in dispute is common sense in practice, but is unobtainable except as there is mutual desire for a just decision, based on full exposition of the facts before a trusted tribunal.

IMITATING NEWS PAGES

EDITOR & PUBLISHER commented recently on Macy's new advertising form, which is a combination of reading notices and pyramid display advertisements in a page make-up, possessing the general aspect of a news page but nevertheless adequately designated as a page of advertising.

This week we saw a page similarly made up by Foley Bros., and published in the Houston (Tex.) Press. This page, however, imitates a news page and bears no label. George B. Forristal, the sales manager, informs us that his store has been using this copy for more than a year and gives Foley Bros. credit for originating the idea.

There is no doubt that this is an attractive department store form, but in the case of the Foley advertisement lack of proper labelling of the page spoils everything. We are surprised that the Houston Press or any other newspaper would permit an advertiser to run reading notices in a make-up closely imitating a news page. It is a concession that goes too far, giving readers a false conception of what a newspaper has to sell in its columns. On the other hand, some readers resent such lures. In our opinion, Foley Bros. would lose nothing and advertising prestige would gain if the Foley page were marked advertising across the top, following Macy's form.

He that hath a bountiful eye shall be blessed; for he giveth of his bread to the poor.—Proverbs, XXII; 9.

"OVERLOOKED"

THE greased pig of journalism slipped through the legs of the entire aggregation of publishers at the Waldorf again last week. The resolution of the Bureau of Advertising of the A. N. P. A., asking for a committee investigation of free publicity, was completely muffed. The official announcement is that it was "overlooked."

And so, for another year, insofar as A. N. P. A. is concerned, the most dangerous leak in the editorial and advertising business will continue to pour its nauseous bunk into news columns, defeating legitimate space selling, making card rates of many newspapers farcical, offending the intelligence of the reading public, and violating not only the postal law which requires the labeling of advertising but a high editorial principle.

Nevertheless, regardless of how reckless or apathetic the membership of the A. N. P. A. may be, the fight will go on and individual newspapers will make the press agent increasingly unwelcome. Free publicity, now as heretofore, exists by reason of the weakness of the press itself.

South American editor calling at EDITOR & PUBLISHER office this week stumped us with: "Who is the most popular poet in the United States?" Whom would you have named?

WHITE'S GLITTERING HOPE

WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE, who constantly reiterates the statement that newspaper editorial freedom has been almost completely sacrificed to commercialism and that the man who puts up tens of thousands or millions for a modern plant cannot be independent as an editor, in a recent article in the American Mercury holds out this glittering hope for the future:

"A nation which has given the press all the constitutional guarantees of political freedom will not fail to see that economic freedom is necessary to the newspaper owner. A way will be devised in the wisdom of man and by the grace of God to bring that freedom in."

Mr. White then asserts that we are hampered by the "load of steel—presses, typesetting machines, rotogravure outfits, paper mills, motor trucks, and the whole lot of clumsy tools," but some day he says we shall slough off the load and find a new freedom—"perhaps take to the air."

Surely good Bill White does not mean to say that freedom from a "load of steel" can be found in radio. If so, he sadly lacks intimate experience with a broadcasting outfit, the patent situation and the traffic jam on the Class B wave band.

That chirping you hear is the press agent for the newly created "Canary Association," now flooding the mails with "features" intended to increase the sale of birds and cages.

AFTER A CENTURY OF TRIAL

IN celebration of 100 years of successful business the Swift Specific Company has issued a memorial booklet in which it is stated that the proprietors, after testing all forms of advertising, are convinced that "one medium alone now serves their requirements best—newspaper advertising."

It is an interesting and noteworthy testimonial because of the huge success of the company, its vast advertising experience and the fact that it now does business with the public through no less than 4,430 newspapers.

WAKE UP TO NEWSPRINT PERIL

NEWSPRINT production is a matter that American publishers must keep before them continuously. It is not merely a convention subject. Manufacturers cannot regard their chief raw material as of incidental concern to be occasionally laid on directors' tables. It demands constant attention.

We hope that every man who lives directly or indirectly through print on pulpwood sheets has been following the paper production situation, as revealed in articles appearing in EDITOR & PUBLISHER. Our fear is that many, even including publishers with large investments at stake, are apathetic, willing that "George" should plan the future supply. This attitude is certain to be expensive—sooner than many publishers would suspect. The best minds of the industry should get under such questions as: Conservation of supply, reforestation, government forest reserves, diversion of spruce for purposes other than for newsprint, equitable relations between the United States and Canada, imports from Europe, development of new sources of supply in the Northwest by new transportation means, continuous search for spruce substitutes and encouraging the paper makers to increase newsprint facilities. This immediate business of the press is to urge adequate federal forest appropriations—(See EDITOR & PUBLISHER for April 17, pages 19 and 22; also last week's issue, page 124).

Study and agitate the newsprint problem! EDITOR & PUBLISHER will gladly pass on to the profession any ideas any reader may have on the subject, with particular reference to the future newsprint supply.

What has become of the old-fashioned editor who used to throw pennies to the newsies just before the home edition went to press?

A LAUNDRY REFORM

INFORMATION comes from the Laundryowners' National Association that it has fired its press agent and will no longer bother publishers with laundry bunk in the guise of "news." Press agentry was found by this organization to be unprofitable and antagonistic to the relationships between the laundry business and newspapers. It was also discovered that to "make copy" press agents often quote officials improperly and in instances without their knowledge or consent. In the newspaper business this is called "faking." It is the chief attribute of most press agents. The laundry association concluded that it was wrong to employ a press agent to say things in editorial columns of the "easy press" which the association would not countenance in display advertising.

Nearly a year ago EDITOR & PUBLISHER called attention to the fact that the Laundryowners' National Association was seeking free editorial notices by press agent devices and we welcome this opportunity to proclaim its reform.

Bricklayers may make more money than most editorial laborers, but think of the fun they are missing.

"HEADLINITIS"

COINING a new word the World Review says: "Too busy to read or to choose wisely what we shall read, we skim the headliners, and call it a day's intellectual work. So we may diagnose our case as 'headlinitis.' It has become an American disease."

Tiresomely, this nonsense is repeated. All newspaper statistics disprove it. Newspaper circulations were never so great. Head-line reading is thin stuff, and it is not reasonable to believe that people go on year after year paying their money for such unsatisfactory information. Head-lines lead into text, and for every reader some item or feature must be interesting if repeat sales are made. Recently New York Evening World tested the question by offering prizes for the discovery of errors and sacks of mail came into the office every time a reporter or compositor slipped. Never in history has newspaper advertising been so effective as at the present time, selling merchandise or service with unparalleled economy. Advertisements must be read. "Headlinitis" is a cute word, but doesn't mean anything.

PERSONAL

. D. WHITE, general manager of the New York World, returned to New ork, April 24, from a Mediterranean uise. During the trip he also visited ngland, Scotland, and Ireland.

E. H. Butler, publisher of the Buffalo vening News, and vice-president of the ssociated Press, entertained Sir Esme oward, British Ambassador to the nited States, when he visited Buffalo is week.

Col. L. A. Watres, president of the cranton (Pa.) Republican recently oke to members of the Scranton Minerial association.

Chester C. Platt, president and treaser of the Batavia (N. Y.) Times will ave New York on May 29 to attend e Copenhagen conference to promote e taxation of land values and free trade. r. Platt will cover the conference for nd and Freedom, a trade journal.

W. C. Edwards, publisher of the Deni (Tex.) Record-Chronicle, has been ected governor of the 41st Rotary dist.

Gene Huse, owner of the Norfolk Neb.) Daily News will arrive in New ork May 10 after a four months' tour the Continent. It is his second trip road in two years.

IN THE BUSINESS OFFICE

. W. ALLEY has been promoted to the San Antonio Express-Evening ews merchandising staff, succeeding mner Needham Jr., resigned. Ed Ullrh, formerly with the Southern Messiger, San Antonio, has joined the Exess and News as advertising solicitor.

Ben F. Lawrence, general manager of t Indianapolis Star, was recently called t Coos Bay, Oregon, by the serious illss of his mother. Enroute home he cled upon newspaper men in Portland vhere he was formerly connected with tl Oregonian.

.t. Col. R. F. Parkinson, advertising nnager of the Ottawa Journal, after fer years in command of the Governor-Caeral's Foot Guards, is retiring. He wl be succeeded by Major C. Beresfd Topp, also a newspaper man.

ames F. Barrett, for the past six nnths advertising manager for the Lrington (N. C.) Dispatch, will be cnected with the Hollywood real estate dvelopment near Asheville, for the summr months, returning to the paper in th fall. B. C. Jervis, of Lynchburg, V, has joined the Dispatch staff, to reeve Barrett during his absence.

IN THE EDITORIAL ROOMS

VALTER SCHRAMM has been named news editor of the Toledo B de, succeeding Corwin Root, resigned.

ohn Olive, former city and Sunday dor of the San Antonio Light, has oed the San Antonio Evening News o desk.

e Roy Pope, for a number of years vn the Athens (O.) Messenger as pts editor, has joined the sports deament of the St. Louis Times.

aurice Lazar has joined the staff of n Chicago Evening American after an gt years' absence from newspaper rck. He was with the R. R. Donnelly rting Company.

Valter Paulison, of Northwestern Iversity, has joined the staff of the hago Evening Post.

ugh Schuck of the staff of the Tokio n Advertiser and Mrs. Schuck are ants of a son, born April 2. Both I and Mrs. Schuck are graduates of d University of Missouri School of rnalism.

Iurence Greene is now on general ssnments with the St. Louis Times. e came from the Brooklyn Eagle hre he was on night assignments.

Miss Helen Durno of the Chicago Daily Journal editorial staff, is vacationing in the Black Hills.

Frank Carson, supervising city editor of the Chicago Herald-Examiner, has returned to Chicago following a visit to the California ranch of William Randolph Hearst. He also visited Mrs. Carson who is in Colorado.

Mrs. Doris Bock, society editor of the St. Paul Daily News, and her husband, Fred W. Bock, artist, will sail June 5 for three months abroad.

Bill Shook and Harry Fohn are new reporters on the San Antonio Light.

Adrin Lee has been named city editor of the St. Louis Times, succeeding Sam Hurst. Lee has been identified in executive capacities with a number of Ohio publications.

A. W. Ferguson, police reporter for the Salt Lake City Telegram and Mrs. Ferguson are parents of a boy.

J. D. Keator, managing editor of the Scranton (Pa.) Times, has been critically ill for the past ten days with pneumonia.

J. F. Tweeby has been made automobile editor of the San Antonio Light.

Alton Cook has been transferred from rewrite to the copy desk of the St. Paul Daily News.

William A. Curley, Jr., of the Milwaukee Wisconsin News, and son of William A. Curley, managing editor of the Chicago Evening American, has returned to his Milwaukee home with his bride after a honeymoon in Chicago.

George William Eggers, director of the Denver, Col., art museum and art editor of the Rocky Mountain News has accepted the post of director of the Worcester Art Museum to succeed Raymond Henniker-Heaton who resigned a year ago.

Tom Williams, Toledo Blade labor reporter, is again covering federal beat for the Blade. Williams first covered the Toledo federal beat 25 years ago.

John P. O'Connell until recently a member of the Worcester Telegram reportorial staff has joined the federal immigration service and has been assigned to duty at Houlton, Me.

Charles H. Clark, editor of the Ogdensburg (N. Y.) Daily News has resigned to join the reportorial staff of the Ogdensburg Daily Advance.

Marion Eakes, formerly city editor of the Miami (Fla.) Tab, is now on the federal court beat for the Newark (N. J.) Ledger.

Nelson Randall has been transferred from federal to suburban beat by the Toledo Blade.

HOLDING NEW POSTS

LAWRENCE McCARTHY, from editorial staff, Ogdensburg Daily News, to Ogdensburg Republican-Journal.

FOLKS WORTH KNOWING

J. N. HEISKELL, editor of the Little Rock (Ark.) Gazette, and the new second vice-president of the Associated Press, was formerly an employee of the latter organization. He served one year as editor in charge of the Southern wires in the A. P. Chicago bureau, and for two years as correspondent in charge of the Louisville office. Later he and others launched the Arkansas Gazette in Little Rock, and he has been editor of that newspaper since 1902.

J. N. Heiskell

Graduated from the University of Tennessee in 1893, Mr. Heiskell, before joining the Associated Press, worked as a reporter and editor on newspapers in Tennessee. He was one of many Southern newspaper men to receive their training from C. P. J. Mooney, fighting editor of the Memphis Commercial-Appeal. At one time Heiskell was city editor of the Commercial-Appeal.

Mr. Mooney was Mr. Heiskell's immediate predecessor as Associated Press vice-president.

Governor Donahey of Arkansas appointed Mr. Heiskell United States Senator from Arkansas in 1913 to take the place made vacant by the death of Senator Jeff Davis. He served until the election of Senator Joseph T. Robinson, who is still serving.

Glenn Compton, from general assignments, Memphis Commercial Appeal, to rewrite, St. Louis Times.

Theodore Link, from federal building man, New Orleans Tribune, to general assignments, St. Louis Times.

H. G. Head, from San Antonio Evening News copy desk, to editor, Breckenridge (Tex.) American.

Patrick Cook, from Minneapolis Tribune to federal run, St. Paul Daily News.

Robert Paulsen, from New York Mirror, to staff, Chicago Herald-Examiner as manager of the art department.

Ralph H. Bennett, from city editor, Buffalo Evening Post, to night city editor, Niagara Falls (N. Y.) Gazette.

Richard Mealand, from Cleveland News, to Toledo Blade staff.

Ward Maher, from Denver Post ed-

(Continued on page 30)

PROOF OF THE PUDDING!

Cargill's cartoons, which are released exclusively through the Central Press service, are frequently reproduced by national reviews like the Literary Digest, the Outlook and the Review of Reviews. The three Cargill cartoons shown above appeared in the May issue of World's Work.

The Central Press Association

V. V. McNitt, President — Central Press Bldg., Cleveland — H. A. McNitt, Editor and Manager

Pine to Palm

The Success of

GAS BUGGIES

or

HEM AND AMY

By FRANK BECK

is not confined to any one region.

The strip is looked for and laughed at from Portland, Maine (The Express), to San Diego, California (The Independent).

Some of the users in "high spots" in between Portland and San Diego are:

Boston Traveler
New York Evening Telegram
Philadelphia Record
Pittsburg Sun
Louisville Herald
St. Paul News
Omaha News
Los Angeles News

Metropolitan Newspaper Service

Maximilian Elser, Jr., General Manager — Earl J. Hadley, Associate

150 Nassau Street, New York City

COSTUME DANCE IN HEARST HOME

Mr. and Mrs. William Randolph Hearst photographed at a costume supper dance given this week in the Gothic Room of their New York apartment home.

(Continued from page 29)
itorial staff, to Des Moines Register as assistant editor in the state news department.

MARRIED

CHARLES E. HODGES, owner of the New Dominion Printing and Publishing Company, of Morgantown, West Va., publishers of the Daily New Dominion, to Miss Florence Conant, of Ithaca, Mich., in New York, April 2.

Harry Burkhalter, of the San Antonio Light copy desk, to Miss Mary Ruth Goldman, recently.

E. B. McCann of the editorial staff, Decatur Review, to Miss Susie Shouse of Danville, Ill., April 24.

Leon K. Byrne, reporter on the Portland Oregonian, to Miss Eleanor D. Burtchaell, daughter of James T. Burtchaell, Portland banker, recently.

Ira B. Hyde, Jr., publisher of the St. Helens (Ore.) Mist, to Miss Lorene Fuller of Princeton, Mo., recently.

Irven C. Schiebeck, assistant sports editor, Columbus (O.) Dispatch, to Miss Lydia Margaret Counts a few days ago.

Edward Williams, Jacksonville correspondent, International News Service, to Miss Vivienne Bagnell, of New York.

NEW PLANTS AND EQUIPMENT

STEPS have been taken by the Wellsburg (W. Va.) Herald for the purchase of a permanent home, to be located at 610 South Main street. The property, at present occupied by the company following a fire on April 2, destroying the former home of the newspaper, consists of a 3 story brick building, providing adequate room for expansion. It is the intention to install a job plant within a short time and possibly to replace some of the press equipment.

Ludlow installations recently made include Tampa (Fla.) Times; Kenton (O.) News-Republican; Lake Worth (Fla.) Leader; Anderson (Ind.) Gospel Trumpet; Clearwater (Fla.) Morning Herald; Orlando (Fla.) Reporter Star; East Stroudsburg (Pa.) Sun; Seattle (Wash.) American Free Press.

A new brick building is under construction to house the Meeker (Okla.) Herald.

SPECIAL EDITIONS

LONGVIEW (Wash.) Daily News, Anniversary edition.

Goshen (Ind.) Daily Democrat, Automobile edition, April 14.

Norristown (Pa.) Register, 48-page second anniversary edition, April 14.

Welch (W. Va.) Daily News, 44-page Automobile Show number, April 10.

Chatham (Ont.) Daily News, Automobile supplement, April 24.

Lexington (Ky.) Herald, special edition on centennial anniversary of Kentucky Horse Breeders Association, April 15.

Tacoma (Wash.) Daily Ledger annual mid-spring development edition in four sections, April 14.

Ogdensburg (N. Y.) Republican-Journal 24-page Automobile edition.

PRESS ASSOCIATION NOTES

J. N. ATKINSON, for the last four years attached to the Associated Press, London bureau, is going to Vienna as a special correspondent for the Hearst publications and the London Daily Mail. He will send news not only from Vienna but from all parts of the Balkans. Before coming to Europe, Mr. Atkinson served on the Norfolk Virginian-Pilot.

Thomas T. Topping, of the Associated Press, Paris bureau has gone to Oudjda, Morocco, to report the negotiations between the Riffs and the French and Spanish.

Floyd E. Williamson, Boston correspondent of the Associated Press, recently addressed the New England Purchasing Agents' Association at a dinner held in Boston.

NEW PUBLICATIONS

C. C. EMSERSON has established a new paper at Magnolia Park in the San Fernando Valley, Cal.

Bernard M. Stone has started publication of the Leadfield (Cal.) Chronicle.

W. A. Maxwell, former editor of the Carlsbad (Cal.) Champion, has started publication of the Southern California Homeseeker at San Diego.

T. M. Hancock has started the publication of the Westmoreland (Cal.) Mail, weekly.

WITH THE SPECIALS

CHARLES H. EDDY COMPANY, New York, has been appointed to represent the Racine (Wis.) Times-Call.

Cone, Hunton & Woodman, Inc., publishers representatives, New York, have been appointed to represent the Knoxville (Tenn.) Journal in the North and West.

Veree & Conklin, Inc., New York, have been appointed to represent the Worcester (Mass.) Evening Post.

CHANGES OF OWNERSHIP

ARCH H. FULTON has purchased the Brookfield (Mo.) Gazette and will retain Charles Martin as editor. J. V. Martin, associated with the paper half a century and recently associate editor, is retiring.

A. R. Maeser, publisher of the Hackensack (Minn.) Independent, has bought the Backus Tribune and merged it with his paper under the title of Cass County Independent.

Holstad (Minn.) Journal has been purchased by C. A. Smaby of Litchfield.

B. A. Thompson, formerly of Gainesville, Fla., has bought an interest in Sherman (Tex.) North Texas Press, becoming its editor. M. D. Townley, who has been editor, remains with the Press.

A. J. Reichman, former publisher of the Platte (S. D.) Tribune and for eight years a resident of Platte, has purchased the Lyon County News, George, Ia., and was to take possession May 1. He has been in the newspaper business in South Dakota 20 years.

Jay (Okla.) Delaware County Chieftain, has been sold by Guy A. Tweedie of Grove to O. E. Butler, editor of the Tahlequah (Okla.) Arrow-Democrat and will be in charge of Owen Butler.

Charles C. Woodson, former editor and owner of the Quanah (Tex.) Times, has repurchased the paper from A. Clarence Smith, who is returning to Arkansas.

Willis Arthur Lane has purchased the Yuma (Ariz.) Evening Herald from George W. Lynn and has taken charge of the paper.

ASSOCIATIONS

BOSTON'S newspapermen turned actors in Jordan Hall, April 29, when the FOURTH ESTATE LODGE A. F. & A. M. presented an evening's entertainment of minstrelsy and follies. There were 40 men in the first part of the show. The endmen were Bob Emery of the Edison Electric Company station WEEI and Walter Myers, Bill Nye of the Boston Herald and Dad Center of the Boston Transcript.

About 40 members of the PANHANDLE PRESS ASSOCIATION attended the recent annual meeting of that organization at Amarillo, Tex. Joe J. Taylor, "State Press" of the Dallas News, was the principal speaker at a banquet given the newspaper men.

NEW YORK LEAGUE OF ADVERTISING WOMEN held an open meeting on "Trust in Advertising," in the Wanamaker auditorium, April 27. H. J. Kenner

(Continued on page 32)

THE

Chattanooga Newspaper Situation

The Chattanooga newspaper situation is different from days of the past. The space-buyers' guide of 1925 is out of date, much less 1920, when you want the facts on Chattanooga.

The Chattanooga News today has the largest net paid city circulation in its history.

Today more than 21,000 copies of The News, out of a total net paid of nearly 30,000, go into the homes of Greater Chattanooga, which has 25,000 homes, according to the best estimates available.

In addition to this 21,000 circulation in Chattanooga, another 6,000 is in the buying radius of 56 miles.

Talk about class circulation; talk about coverage; talk about the buying power of the people of the Chattanooga district, "The Ruhr of America."

The News covers everything—rich and poor; white and black; Protestant, Catholic, Jew and the rest.

Cover the Great Chattanooga district at one cost.

Check up on the A. B. C. reports—both the publisher's statements and the auditor's reports.

The CHATTANOOGA NEWS

GEORGE F. MILTON, President WALTER C. JOHNSON, General Manager

CHATTANOOGA, TENNESSEE

"The Dynamo of Dixie"

JOHN M. BRANHAM COMPANY

Publisher's Representative

Chicago St. Louis Atlanta New York

The Asheville Citizen Leads the Entire United States in Advertising Gain for the First Quarter, 1926—

Proving that Business is Exceptionally GOOD in Asheville, North Carolina

Asheville has entered upon a period of unmistakable prosperity in the opinion of local bankers, merchants, realtors and business men generally.

This is reflected in the Asheville Citizen's gain of over 1,000,000 lines during January, February and March.

Editor & Publisher's linage record of newspapers in 30 principal cities shows that in January, 1926, the Asheville Citizen's gain was surpassed only by 17 papers in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit, St. Louis, Boston, Baltimore, Washington, New Orleans and Houston, and in February by only the Chicago Tribune and in March by none!

The closest approach to the Asheville Citizen's gain of 1,011,710 lines for the first quarter of 1926 over 1925 was made by the Chicago Tribune with 866,856 lines.

The Asheville Citizen

Morning and Sunday — 14,000 Circulation

A. B. C. Member — Line Rate 5½ c.

Analysis of the Remarkable Advertising Gain

		National	Local	Classified	Total	Gain Lines
January,	1926	97,146	562,856	159,628	819,630
	1925	85,400	456,260	73,402	615,062
	Gain	11,746	106,596	86,226		204,568
February,	1926	112,896	675,500	210,924	999,320
	1925	88,690	496,244	86,618	671,552
	Gain	24,206	179,256	124,306		327,768
March,	1926	124,376	942,270	227,472	1,294,118
"	1925	114,212	582,792	117,740	814,744
	Gain	10,164	359,478	109,732		479,374
Totals	1926	334,418	2,180,626	598,024	3,113,068
"	1925	288,302	1,535,296	277,760	2,101,358	1,011,710

Total Net Gain of 1,011,710 lines, 48%

Developments around Asheville, the wealthy and beautiful mountain-city of western North Carolina, have been multiplying for several years. Suburbs like Biltmore Forest, Lakeview, Grove Park and many others defy description and strain belief. They typify wealth and culture. Many industries have been recently established.

Asheville, situated high in the Blue Ridge Mountains of Western North Carolina, is naturally a morning paper city. Papers from other cities cannot get into its circulation territory until the news is stale. And no evening paper in Asheville can get far out into the territory until the next morning.

The Asheville (Morning) Citizen has this natural advantage in addition to its news and feature services and sound management, which combine to make it one of the South's most representative newspapers.

Aside from local manufacturing, wholesaling, retailing, farming, fruit growing and stock raising, the "crop" most indicative of the territory is the "tourist crop," yielding millions of dollars. Six hundred thousand tourists came to western North Carolina last year.

There is no city the country over with more palatial homes or hotels. All this is reflected in the high grade merchandise displayed in Asheville's stores.

National Representatives

E. Katz Special Advertising Agency

NEW YORK CHICAGO DETROIT ATLANTA KANSAS CITY SAN FRANCISCO

(Continued from page 30)

general manager of the New York Better Business Bureau, spoke on "Truth in Advertising."

WOMEN'S PRESS CLUB of New York met at the Waldorf Astoria on April 24. The speakers were Charles Wakefield Cadman, Charles H. Meltzer, Mme. Katherine von Klenner and Mrs. Henry M. Tracy.

Member of the MASSACHUSETTS PRESS ASSOCIATION, made up of publishers of weekly newspapers, met recently at the office of Mayor Conwell of Somerville, Mass. The mayor is a member of the association as publisher of the Somerville Journal. Among those who attended the meeting was Charles S. Parker of the Arlington Advocate, who recently celebrated his 87th birthday. After the meeting the members were taken to see historic spots in Somerville, the northern artery route and some of the manufacturing plants.

IOWA POSTER ADVERTISING ASSOCIATION at its 13th annual meeting in Des Moines, last week voted to change its name to the Outdoor Advertising Association of Iowa and on invitation of the Iowa State College of Agriculture designated Ames for the 1927 gathering. J. B. Stewart of Clinton was reelected president.

BOSTON NEWSPAPERMEN'S GOLF ASSOCIATION held its annual meeting and election of officers last week. J. C. Kerrison of the Post was re-elected president. Other officers are Thomas B. Forsyth, Post, secretary; H. T. Claus, Transcript, treasurer; E. P. Cunningham, Traveler, first vice-president; D. J. McGuiness, Globe, second vice-president; N. J. Flately, American, third vice-president. Messrs. Whitman, Collier and Fowler were appointed permanent trustees of the Larry Paton Memorial Fund. These with Burt Hoxie and D. F. McGuiness were appointed to arrange for the tournament in 1926.

GREATER BUFFALO ADVERTISING CLUB has chartered a steamer and will conduct a cruise to Montreal early in June consuming four days in cruising and sightseeing.

L. W. Trester, Omaha, was elected president of the OUTDOOR ADVERTISING ASSOCIATION OF NEBRASKA at the annual meeting in Grand Island, Neb., this week and Mrs. A. J. Nutzman, Fairbury, elected secretary-treasurer. Among resolutions adopted were ones approving the state good roads program. Norfolk was selected for the next meeting.

Annual meeting of the CHICAGO PRESS GOLF CLUB will be held April 24 in the offices of Golf Magazine, 410 North Michigan avenue.

TOWN CRIERS CLUB OF ST. PAUL was entertained at dinner in the Dispatch tea room the evening of April 10 by the Dispatch-Pioneer Press management. W. H. Oppenheimer gave an exposition of the varied operations of the Dispatch Printing company, using lantern slides and moving pictures. The guests were then shown through the plant and saw all the operations of newspaper production.

M. Emory Watts of the Delta (Col.) Tribune and R. B. Spencer of the Fort Morgan (Col.) Times have been appointed to the executive committee of the COLORADO EDITORIAL ASSOCIATION to fill vacancies created by the resignation of Henry F. Lake, Jr., of Gunnison and A. L. Perry of Hotchkiss, Colo.

Portland Rose Festival, floral fete, has been suspended for one year and the WOMEN'S ADVERTISING CLUB of PORTLAND has jumped into the breach and announced that it will sponsor a rose week in June. While there will be no attempt to replace the entertainment feature of the Rose Festival, the advertising women will make a special campaign for the display and wearing of roses during rose week.

Kenneth Bragdon was elected president of the WATERLOO (IA.) AD CLUB at its annual meeting last week, succeeding Frank Fowler. Mr. Fowler was elected a vice-president and L. C. Leeper chosen secretary-treasurer.

COLORADO EDITORIAL ASSOCIATION will hold its annual mid-summer convention this year in the San Luis valley. Several valley towns will act as joint hosts.

W. A. Rogers, Wamego, was re-elected president of the KANSAS OUTDOOR ADVERTISERS' ASSOCIATION at the annual meeting in Topeka. Fred. R. Corbett, Emporia, was named vice-president; H. K. Hinkson, Topeka, secretary-treasurer.

SCHOOLS

DR. ELMER R. HOKE, president of Catawba College, has announced the donation by the Salisbury (N. C.) Evening Post of a silver loving cup to be contested for each year by the Athenean and Philomathenean literary societies. The cup, said Dr. Hoke, will be fifteen inches in height, of solid silver, and will be appropriately engraved. The societies will engage in debate each year for the cup, the winner to have custody of it during the ensuing year.

Preparation of advertising for the Wolff & Marx Co., San Antonio department store, was turned over for a day recently to the advertising class of Main Avenue High School, San Antonio. The copy drew the praise of J. H. Zimmer, the store's advertising manager.

Stanton L. Clark, Redfield, S. D., was elected president of the South Dakota chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, national journalistic fraternity at the University of South Dakota, at Vermilion this week. He succeeds James B. Brackett. Marvin Leonard, Cherokee, was elected vice-president; Louis Tollefson, Stratford, secretary and Alvin Murphy, Pierce, treasurer.

Students in the Department of Journalism at Syracuse University will take over publication of the regular editions of the Auburn (N. Y.) Advertiser-Journal, Wednesday, May 12. The students will gather and write the news and the entire editorial content of the paper, edit the copy, write the headlines and make up the pages. This is the fifth anniversary of the enterprise.

Oklahoma embryo newspaper men and women will meet in Norman, Saturday, May 1, for the annual meeting of the Oklahoma Interscholastic Press Association. Grace E. Ray, secretary-treasurer of the association called the meeting. She is an instructor in journalism at the state university, Norman. A series of round table discussions will be held at the University of Oklahoma, with the department of journalism acting as host. Judges will be: Miss Ray, Prof. H. H. Herbert, director of the school and Frank Dennis, Sand Spring, managing editor of the Oklahoma Daily, student newspaper.

A. W. Grant, managing editor of the San Antonio Express, was to address embryo journalists at a meeting in San Antonio May 1 to organize a Southwest Texas High School Press Association. Robert Lee Rhea, head of the San Antonio High School Press Association, will preside.

ADS "MAKE PEOPLE THINK"

And Then They Buy, Armour Man Tells Boston Ad Club

"I believe that advertising in the daily newspapers starts more people to thinking than any other media," declared Charles W. Myers, director of trades relations of Armour & Co., Chicago, in an address on "What Makes the Buyer Buy," before the Advertising Club of Boston April 26. "Local advertisers greatly outnumber national advertisers and the latter use the newspaper either for the purpose of preliminary announcements or for a continuous campaign."

"The buyer buys," he continued, "because he or she knows us and has confidence in what we say about our advertised goods. Buying follows identifying and we never can get away from the truth that the best advertising man is he who knows his merchandise, his markets and his media."

The speaker advocated brief, simple statements in an advertisement, the fewest and clearest words that will convey the idea. He recommended the familiarizing of sales forces with the advertising matter of the firm; with the prominent use of a trademark; with learning the needs of markets and customers and of knowing thoroughly the products one has to sell, such knowledge to be subject to frequent revision.

Fake Ad Solicitor Sentenced

Joseph H. Johnston, of Brockton, Mass., who is alleged to have obtained small sums of money through impersonating a newspaper advertising solicitor, was found guilty of larceny on nine counts in Quincy, Mass., district court and was sentenced to serve one month for each count in the house of correction.

WEEK'S AD TIPS

Blaine-Thomson Company, Inc., Fourth National Bank Building, Cincinnati. Handling advertising of Philo Burt Manufacturing Company, 5 West 4th street, Jamestown, N. Y., manufacturers of spinal appliances and shoulder braces.

D'Arcy Advertising Company, Inc., Missouri State Life Bldg., St. Louis, Mo. Placing advertising of the Three Minute Cereals Company, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, manufacturers "3 Minute Oat Flakes."

Albert P. Hill Company, Inc., 233 Oliver avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa. Handling account of Pratt & Lambert, Inc., Tonawanda street, Buffalo, N. Y., manufacturers of "61" floor varnish.

H. W. Kastor & Sons, 22 West 48th street, New York. Placing account of M. J. Breitenbach Company, 53 Warren street, New York, advertisers of "Gude's Pepto-Mangan."

Emanuel Linder Advertising Agency, 25 West 42nd street, New York. Handling account of J. H. M. B. Laboratoreis, 220 25th street, Brooklyn, N. Y., manufacturers "Richelieu" Pearls.

Charles H. Touzalin Agency, Inc., 7 So. Dearborn street, Chicago. Placing advertising of the Kirsch Manufacturing Company, Sturgis, Mich., manufacturers of "Kirsch" curtain rods.

FOR PROMPT SERVICE

TYPE

BORDERS ~ ORNAMENTS ~ BRASS RULE

Printers' Supplies

KELLY PRESSES ~ KLYMAX FEEDERS ~ PAPER CUTTERS
HAMILTON WOOD AND STEEL EQUIPMENT, INCLUDING OUR AMERICAN CUT-COST EQUIPMENT

Carried in stock for prompt shipment at the following Selling Houses of the American Type Founders Company

BOSTON	RICHMOND	DETROIT	MINNEAPOLIS	SAN FRANCISCO
NEW YORK	ATLANTA	CHICAGO	KANSAS CITY	PORTLAND
PHILADELPHIA	BUFFALO	CINCINNATI	DES MOINES	SPOKANE
BALTIMORE	PITTSBURGH	ST. LOUIS	DENVER	WINNIPEG
	CLEVELAND	MILWAUKEE	LOS ANGELES

ANNOUNCING

Change of Representation

Beginning May 1st, 1926, the Racine Times-Call, Racine, Wis., will be represented in the foreign field by the

CHAS. H. EDDY CO.

New York Boston Chicago

They will succeed the Allied Newspapers, Inc., the latter having decided to confine its representation solely to the Scripps-Howard newspapers.

Racine is one of the most prosperous cities in the country and the Times-Call has been first in city circulation for more than four years.

The average paid circulation of the Times-Call for the six months ending April 1st, 1926 was

10,209

A net gain of 623 for the six months' period and 1,067 for the year.

These gains have been won on merit and WITHOUT CONTESTS of any kind.

The Times-Call enters nearly 8,000 of the 12,000 homes in Racine daily.

THE CALL PUBLISHING CO
Racine, Wisconsin

Chas. H. Eddy Co.
New York, Boston, Chicago

United States Government Report of

ST. PETERSBURG, FLORIDA, NEWSPAPERS' CIRCULATION

From October 1st, 1925 to April 1st, 1926

The Daily News

Daily News, only St. Petersburg paper applying for A B C membership.
Daily Average for Second Six Months of Its Existence

5.—That the average number of copies of each issue of this publication sold or distributed, through the mails or otherwise, to paid subscribers during the next six months preceding the date shown above, is 13,656

Sworn and subscribed before me this 24th day of March, 1926.

ALEX WOHLWEND, Notary Public.
My commission expires July 13, 1929.

MAJOR ALFRED BIRDSALL,
Assistant Publisher.

St. Petersburg Times

Daily Average for 43d Year of Its Existence

5.—That the average number of copies of each issue of this publication sold or distributed, through the mails or otherwise, to paid subscribers during the six months preceding the date shown above is 12,143

(This information is required from daily publications only.)

PAUL POYNTER.
Publisher.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 31st day of March, 1926
L. R. BURB, Notary Public.

My commission expires June 8, 1928.

The Evening Independent

Daily Average for 19th Year of Its Existence

5.—That the average number of copies of each issue of this publication sold or distributed through the mails or otherwise, to paid subscribers during the six months preceding the date shown above is 11,917

L. C. BROWN.
(Signature of editor, publisher, business manager or owner.)

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 3rd day of April, 1926.
RUTH ERVIN, Notary Public.

My commission expires April 29, 1928.

First, THE DAILY NEWS, 13,656 — Daily Average for Second Six Months of its Existence

Second, ST. PETERSBURG TIMES, 12,143 — Daily Average for 43d Year of its Existence.

Third—THE EVENING INDEPENDENT....11,917 — Daily Average for 19th year of its Existence.

THE DAILY NEWS COVERS THE FIELD!

Daily News National Advertising Representative: GEO. B. DAVID, 110 East 42nd Street, New York; 1110 Hartford Bldg., Chicago.

Montreal Newspaper Man Dies

Percy St. Clair Hamilton, dean of the newspaper fraternity of Montreal, died April 21. Born in Halifax, N. S., November 16, 1858, he started his newspaper career on the Halifax Chronicle, then established and ran a paper in Yarmouth, N. S., and eventually joined the Montreal Star. Later he founded the Montreal Sunday Sun and published it until its absorption by other publications. He then joined the Montreal Herald and was for many years its theatrical critic and an editorial writer.

Former Washington Writer Dies

Austin Cunningham, 41, who died recently in Washington, was former correspondent for the San Antonio Express and Louisville Times, formerly an editor of the Red Cross Magazine, and former secretary of the National Press Club. At the time of his death he was principal of Peniel School, Washington. He formerly lived at San Angelo, Tex.

Obituary

GEORGE M. WATERMAN, 59, formerly editor of the Sidney (Ia.) Fremont County Herald and one of the best-known newspaper men in southwestern Iowa, died recently at his home in Carnegie, Okla.

LUCIUS R. HAMMOND, secretary and assistant business manager of the Hammond Printing Company, publishers of the Fremont (Neb.) Tribune, died April 12 of pneumonia contracted while recovering from injuries received in an automobile accident.

GEORGE E. KIRKPATRICK, 70, publisher of the Gilroy (Cal.) Gazette and former owner of the Rushford (Minn.) Star and Pepin (Wis.) Star, died at Gilroy recently.

CALVIN A. STULTS, 60, oldest newspaper reporter in Zanesville, O., is dead. He had been connected with Zanesville newspapers 35 years.

LEE LOGAN, 47, editor and manager of the White Earth (Minn.) Tomahawk, organ of the Chippewa Indians, died April 19.

LUTHER L. ORWIG, 82, a veteran printer and newspaper man died at his home at Napoleon, O., recently. He had been the owner and editor of the Northwest News since 1872.

JESSE W. STRONG, former owner and editor of the Canton (Ill.) Daily Cantonian, the Daily Leader and the Daily Republican, and for a time editor of the Register, died suddenly April 20 at his home in Canton. He had retired from the newspaper field several years ago and devoted himself to job printing.

WALTER WHITEHEAD, 65, owner of the Eagle Printing Company, of Sharon, Pa., and secretary of the Sharon School Board, died at his home April 24. Mr. Whitehead was born in England and resided in Sharon for 50 years.

MRS. CAROLINE GREENE SCOTT, widow of James W. Scott, founder of the Chicago Evening Post and the Chicago Herald, died Monday in the Presbyterian hospital in Chicago. She was 71 years old and a pioneer resident of Northern Illinois. Her sister, Mrs. Maria F. Hunkins, of Westerly, R. I., survives.

MRS. EVA EPSTEIN, sister of Max Annenberg, general manager of Liberty Magazine, and wife of Samuel C. Epstein of the Chicago Tribune, was buried in Chicago, Tuesday. She died last Saturday. She was a sister-in-law of Louis H. Rose, circulation manager of the Tribune. Besides her husband, Mrs. Epstein is survived by four children, two other brothers and two sisters.

HARRY EARL KRAUTH, of Oak Park, Ill., manager of the Chicago Herald-Examiner classified advertising department from 1906 to 1918, is dead after an illness of almost a year. He leaves a widow, Mrs. Adele Krauth, and two daughters. Burial was at Toledo.

FREDERIC C. LOWE, correspondent at various times for the Boston Globe, Post and Herald died recently at his home in Waltham, Mass. He leaves two brothers, Edward Lowe, city editor of the Waltham News-Tribune and Ernest Lowe, a reporter for that paper.

HUBERT J. CLAFLEY, a linotype operator on the Worcester (Mass.) Evening Gazette died recently.

JOHN W. PACE, 64, editor of the Jefferson Valley News, Whitehall, Mont., and the Montana Woman, died at his home in Whitehall, April 20.

JOSEPH P. DOWNEY, superintendent of the Ontario Hospital for the Feeble-Minded, Orillia, and previously editor of the Guelph (Ont.) Herald, died on April 19. He was born in Puslinch, Ont., in 1865 and entered newspaper work as a boy. He retired from the editorial desk 15 years ago to take up public service work.

A. C. F. GILBERG, 70, owner of the Observer Printing Company, of Celina, O., died at his home there.

HARRY S. WAGNER of Buffalo, former editor of the East Aurora (N. Y.) Citizen, died in Washington where he had gone for a vacation.

MRS. ELIZABETH BAUM, wife of A. T. Baum, sporting editor of the San Francisco Examiner and former President of the Pacific Coast Baseball League, died in Oakland, Cal., recently.

CHARLES ALDRIDGE, 81, pioneer newspaperman of Iowa and South Dakota, died April 14 in the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. H. Jandt, Sioux City, Ia. He founded the Monona County Gazette in Onawa, Ia., which he published 20 years. For the last 12 years he had operated the Fairview (S. D.) Eagle.

EDWIN HENDERSON, 82, a veteran newspaper man of Cincinnati, died a few days ago in Florida.

RICHARD W. LEDWITH, 73, former Chicago newspaper man, died recently in Wauwatosa, Wis. He worked for a number of Chicago papers, among them the Chicago Tribune. He had also been connected with the Associated Press. He was secretary to the late William Jennings Bryan during Bryan's last campaign for the presidency.

PAUL E. VANDOR, 68, died in Fresno, Cal., April 6. Vandor years ago was a reporter on the San Francisco Chronicle, the Examiner and the Evening Post. He was also city editor of the Fresno Democrat.

WANT AD AIDED NOVELIST

Sir Gilbert Parker Reveals Source of Latest Book

A humble newspaper want advertisement made it possible for Sir Gilbert Parker to write his latest novel, he revealed to New York ship news reporters on his arrival in this country this week.

Starting to write the book his memory, going back to 1885, fastened upon certain incidents of which he had heard at that time, but his recollection of them was too hazy. He knew there had been a fellow wanderer whose path had crossed his in widely separated places, and he decided only this man could fill the gaps of the plot.

Knowing no other way of finding the man, Sir Gilbert inserted this advertisement:

"Botany Bay wishes to meet Frank H., whom he met on the way to Los Angeles and later in the Sandwich Islands, New Zealand, London and Paris in the mid-eighties."

Answers came from many persons to "Botany Bay," but it was weeks before Frank H. wrote. Sir Gilbert invited him to New York. The meeting was a strange one, for Sir Gilbert had visualized his old companion as he was in the former century. He saw a white-haired, stoop-shouldered old man, and this old man found in Sir Gilbert but little trace of the careless youth he had known.

But the gaps in the story were filled as the two men sat living over again the wandering years of the eighties. With the plot complete, Sir Gilbert fashioned his novel.

Florida Bank Deposits Doubled Last Year

Consider the following comparative statement of Florida's bank deposits:

June 30, 1924....$298,093,265.90
June 30, 1925.... 602,238,856.69

INCREASE $304,145,590.79

More than 100 per cent. increase in one year!

Yes, business is good in Florida. People are making money here. And they are spending it, too.

Florida has nearly one and a half million year-round residents and nearly the same number of winter visitors. The per capita buying power of these people is comparatively high and their demands are comparatively heavy.

Here is a great, growing market for the manufacturer—a year-round market for general products and a special winter market for summer goods.

Cover Florida intensively but not expensively by using the most complete, economical media—the Associated Dailies of Florida.

ASSOCIATED DAILIES of Florida

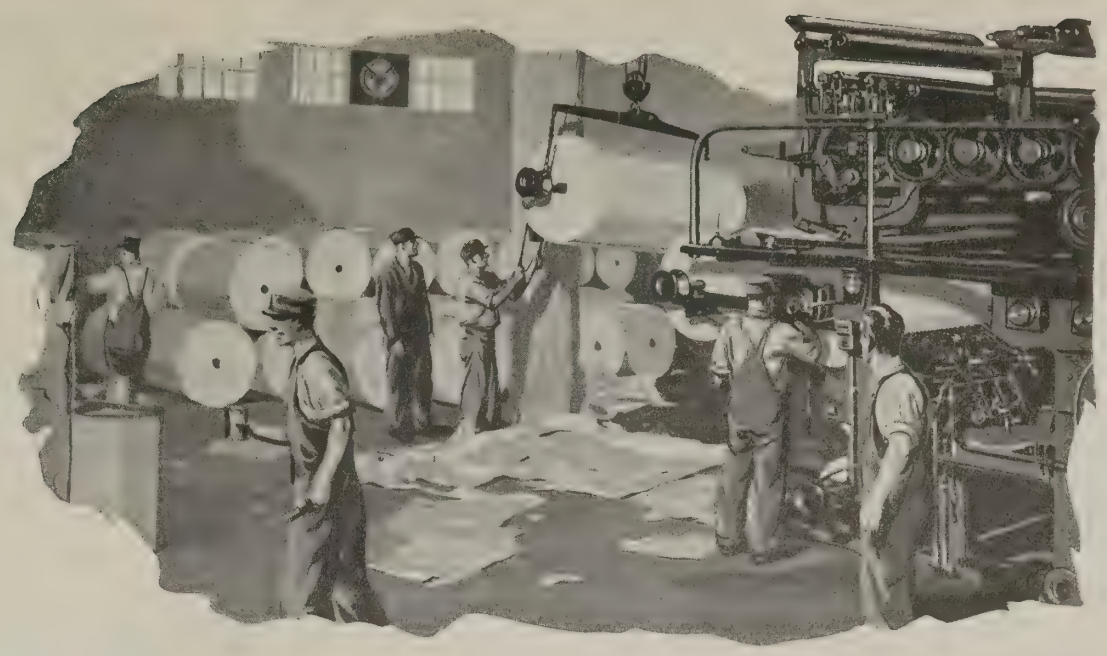
510 Clark Bldg. Jacksonville, Florida

Bradenton News
Clearwater Sun
Daytona Beach Journal
Daytona Beach News
Deland Daily News
Eustis Lake Region
Ft. Lauderdale News
Ft. Myers Press
Ft. Myers Tropical News
Ft. Pierce News-Tribune
Ft. Pierce Record
Gainesville News
Gainesville Sun
Jacksonville Florida Times-Union
Jacksonville Journal
Key West Citizen
Key West Morning Call
Kissimmee Gazette
Lakeland Ledger
Lakeland Star-Telegram
Melbourne Journal
Miami Daily News
Miami Herald
Miami Illustrated Daily Tab
Miami Tribune
New Smyrna News
Ocala Central Florida Times
Orlando Morning Sentinel
Orlando Reporter-Star
Palatka News
Palm Beach Post
Palm Beach Times
Plant City Courier
St. Augustine Record
St. Petersburg Independent
St. Petersburg News
St. Petersburg Times
Sanford Herald
Sarasota Herald
Sarasota Times
Stuart Daily News
Tampa Times
Tampa Tribune
Winter Haven Chief



At Your Service

Sturtevant

Atlanta, Ga.
Boston, Mass.
Buffalo, N. Y.
Camden, N. J.
Charlotte, N. C.
Chicago, Ill.
Cincinnati, O.
Cleveland, O.
Dallas, Texas.
Denver, Colo.
Detroit, Mich.
Hartford, Conn.
Indianapolis, Ind.
Kansas City, Mo.
Los Angeles, Cal.
Minneapolis, Minn.
Montreal, Canada
New York, N. Y.
Pittsburgh, Pa.
Portland, Ore.
Rochester, N. Y.
St. Louis, Mo.
Salt Lake City, Utah
San Francisco, Cal.
Seattle, Wash.
Toronto, Ont.
Washington, D.C.

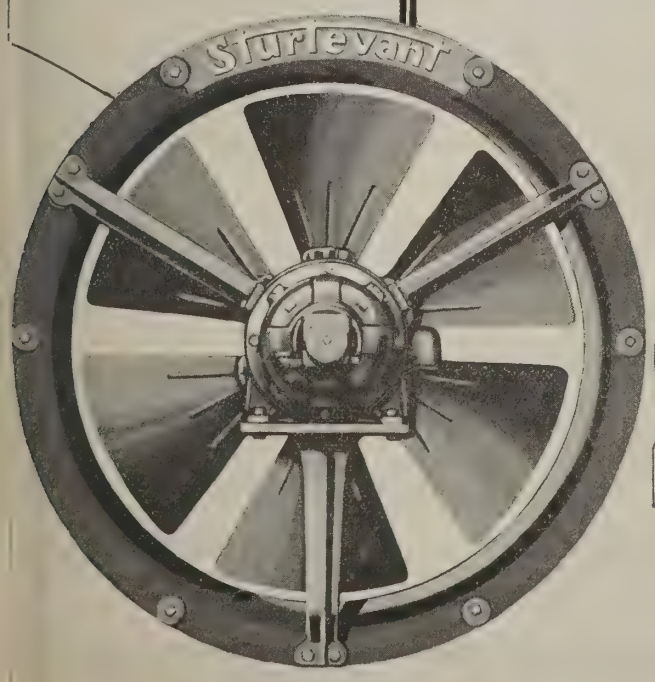
GraybaR

Albany, N. Y.
Atlanta, Ga.
Baltimore, Md.
Birmingham, Ala.
Boston, Mass.
Brooklyn, N. Y.
Buffalo, N. Y.
Charlotte, N. C.
Chicago, Ill.
Cincinnati, O.
Cleveland, O.
Columbus, O.
Dallas, Texas
Davenport, Ia.
Denver, Col.
Detroit, Mich.
Duluth, Minn.
Grand Rapids, Mich.
Harrisburg, Pa.
Houston, Texas
Indianapolis, Ind.
Jacksonville, Fla.
Kansas City, Mo.
Los Angeles, Cal.
Memphis, Tenn.
Miami, Fla.
Milwaukee, Wisc.
Minneapolis, Minn.
Nashville, Tenn.
Newark, N. J.
New Haven, Conn.
New Orleans, La.
New York, N. Y.
Norfolk, Va.
Oakland, Cal.
Omaha, Neb.
Philadelphia, Pa.
Pittsburgh, Pa.
Portland, Ore.
Providence, R. I.
Richmond, Va.
St. Louis, Mo.
St. Paul, Minn.
Salt Lake City, Utah
San Antonio, Texas
San Francisco, Cal.
Savannah, Ga.
Seattle, Wash.
Spokane, Wash.
Syracuse, N. Y.
Tacoma, Wash.
Tampa, Fla.
Toledo, O.
Worcester, Mass.
Youngstown, Ohio

Fight hot-weather fatigue with fresh, invigorating air

Time and Tide wait for no man—neither do the editions of the daily press.

Good air—ventilation—is the stimulant that keeps the news-writer, the compositor, the stereotyper, the pressman, the delivery-room gang geared to the job.



Soon the hot summer days will be here—when your men, more than at any other time, will appreciate and need fresh, invigorating air. Prepare now to keep them working at top-notch efficiency during this man-fatiguing period.

Sturtevant Ventilating Fans for Newspaper Plants supply a complete change of air every few minutes. They bring in the fresh, invigorating air of the outside—drive away the fumes of the lead-pot and steam table—expel the heavy air of the press-room. They can be secured at once—can be quickly and easily installed at very little expense and without interrupting your operations.

The Sturtevant and Graybar Electric Company offices listed in the panel to the left are at your service. Phone or write to the nearest one, or show this advertisement to your electrical contractor.

B. F. STURTEVANT COMPANY, HYDE PARK, BOSTON, MASS.

Distributors: Graybar Electric Company and Leading Electrical Contractors Everywhere

The most efficient fan of its type ever developed

The Sturtevant Ventilating Fan shown above is the latest Sturtevant achievement.

The fact that this fan is 20% more efficient—that size for size it will deliver more air—than any other similar fan on the market, is a Sturtevant advantage that speaks for itself.

The Sturtevant Ventilating Fan is a fan that you can depend on—there is not a single piece of flimsy construction in it. Sturdy—highly efficient—dependable—backed up by the largest manufacturer of ventilating equipment in the world.

If the name STURTEVANT is on a fan you can install it with confidence.

1505-50

Sturtevant

Ventilating Fans

WHAT'S WHAT IN THE FEATURE FIELD

New Cartoon Series Features Automobile Accidents—"Ivanhoe" Offered in Strip Form—Future of Nuptial State Predicted—Countess Cathcart's Serial on Market

PETE KEENAN has drawn a series of 50 cartoons under the title line "A Fool There Was—," for the International Syndicate, Baltimore, believed to be the first important effort of a newspaper syndicate to promote an appeal to reduce the number of automobile accidents throughout the country. The series is scheduled for tri-weekly publication.

"The automobile is the greatest menace of all times," the syndicate asserts announcing its new cartoon series. "It killed 21,000 people last year, more than 7,000 of them being children. There were 1,000,000 accidents, and more than 600,000 people were injured."

Some of the "fools" picturized in the cartoons are those who "loved too many girls"; "who taught the little woman to drive in traffic"; "who went window shopping in a gas buggy"; "who fills himself instead of the gas tank"; and "who works his horn overtime."

"Ivanhoe," celebrated novel by Sir Walter Scott, is now being offered in art-strip form by NEA Service, Inc., New York and Cleveland. The drawing is being done by Lawrence Redner.

More than a score of celebrities take part in a symposium recently gathered by the Ledger Syndicate, Philadelphia, on the subject, "Marriage a Century Hence." Among those predicting the future of the nuptial state are E. Phillips Oppenheim, W. L. George, Albert Payson Terhune, Samuel Hopkins Adams, Will Irwin, and Magistrate Jean Norris.

Bell Syndicate, Inc., New York, announces the memoirs of George M. Cohan, entitled "Twenty Years on Broadway and the Years It Took to Get There," is now ready for newspaper syndication. They appeared originally in Liberty.

Frederick L. Ferguson, president of NEA Service, Inc., left New York this week on a business trip to the Pacific Coast.

Henry Major, caricaturist, showed his speed April 20 by producing 500 rapid fire likenesses of the editors attending the "Polar Lark" at the Friars Club, New York, as guests of M. Koenigsberg, King Features Syndicate president.

The independent office of the R. V. Hardon Newspaper Service, 63 Park Row, New York, will be discontinued, effective May 1, and the Hardon features distributed through the National Newspaper Service, Chicago, of which John F. Dille is president. Hardon features include: "The Marriage Game," daily; "Two-Minute Intelligence Test," daily; and "The Well-Known Fair Sex," daily.

Beginning the week of May 3, Electricaster Service, Omaha, Neb., will inaugurate a sports department under the heading, "The Sportscope," written by Ivan L. Gaddis, middle western sports writer. The new department is described rather as sporting comment than sports news. The Service also announces special features for Mother's Day, May 9. "Adventures in Matrimony," by Grace A. Berger, and "Those Children of Ours," by James Ray Ellis are new Electricaster features.

Ernest Lynn, author of "The Yellow Stub," has written a new newspaper serial for NEA Service, Inc., entitled, "Neighbors' Wives."

A home gardening service under the title, "Indoor and Outdoor Gardens," and written by Jane Leslie Kift is a new offering announced by the Ledger Syndicate, Philadelphia. Other new Ledger features are "Get Fit Quick" in 24 lessons, by William J. Herrmann, and "The Mystic Maze," a daily puzzle by Walter B. Gibson.

A series of Charleston lessons by Gilda Gray, illustrated by half-tones, is being distributed by the Imperial News Service, New York.

Harry King Tootle, promotion manager, and Joseph F. Hanratty, his assistant, have resigned from the King Features Syndicate, Inc., New York. Mr. Tootle is now director of publicity for the Fruit Dispatch Company, New York, and Mr. Hanratty has joined the staff of the Camden (N. J.) Courier as a circulation promotion specialist. No successors have been appointed.

"The Woman Tempted," a serial written by Countess Vera Cathcart, of "moral turpitude" fame, has been acquired for newspaper syndication by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate, New York.

Christy Walsh, president of the Christy Walsh Syndicate, New York, and Mrs. Walsh are the parents of a 10-pound boy, Christy, Jr., born April 23, in New York. The baby and his mother, formerly Miss Madaline Souden, of Los Angeles, are well and happy. Messages of congratulations were received from Ty Cobb, "Babe" Ruth, Knute Rockne, Tad Jones and Hendrik Van Loon.

John Dille, president of the National Newspaper Service, Chicago, who was in New York this week, informed Editor & Publisher he had established a new policy for dealing with newspaper editors, offering them established features on a long term contract basis, in order to insure them against price advances. Features that are thus being offered include: Kin Hubbard's "Abe Martin"; Dr. Herbert Brady's "Personal Health Service"; Ida McGlone Gibson's serials; Arthur Dean's "Your Boy and Your Girl"; and Chick Evans' and Chester Horton's golf columns. His syndicate has just taken on a new feature called "Men and Women," and signed by Rudolph Valentino.

Mary Marshall, fashion writer for the McClure Newspaper Syndicate, New York, has sailed for France to spend the next few months writing on Paris styles.

WORD "STORY" NOT LIBELLOUS

British Appeals Court Reverses £10 Libel Decision Against Papers

The word "story," used in newspaper reports is not libellous, according to a recent decision of Lords Justices Bankes, Scrutton, and Atkin, in the British Court of Appeal. The London Daily Dispatch, and the Daily Sketch recently used as a heading "Student's Story of Legacy," and the student referred to in the story under the caption was awarded £10 damages for libel.

Reversing this decision in the Court of Appeal Lord Justice Atkin remarked that to treat the word as defamatory would be unduly to restrict the vocabulary of the journalist.

Key West (Fla.) Daily Suspends

The Key West (Fla.) Morning Call has suspended publication and the Key West Citizen has launched a morning edition to take over the vacated field. L. P. Artman is publisher of the Citizen.

"Second Love"

sequel to

"These Women"

is ready for release June 5, in 60 chapters

You need not have published "These Women" in your paper to get complete results from the new serial—

"Second Love" is a complete story in itself.

WIRE OR WRITE FOR YOUR TERRITORY

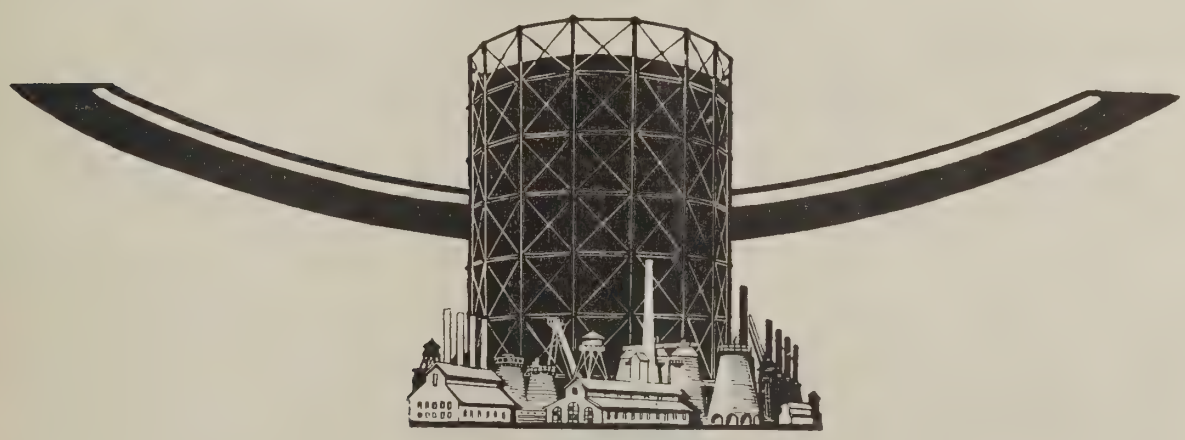
EUGENE MACLEAN

519 California Street

San Francisco California

Why Tie Up Capital?

Is your capital working in your business or tied up in a fuel supply?



Your local gas company will supply fuel as you need it. You don't pay for gas till after it is used.

There are no tie-ups, or traffic delays in the delivery of gas—a dependable supply always available at the burner.

The manifold advantages and economies of gas as a factory fuel are explained in our new book, "Gas—The Ideal Factory Fuel".

Write for your copy today—no charge.

American Gas Association
342 Madison Avenue :: New York City

Four Advantages of Gas

Dependable—any time, any place, any quantity.

Economical—
lowest final cost per unit of production.

Controllable—
exact temperatures, automatically controlled.

Clean—comfortable factory working conditions.

YOU CAN DO IT BETTER WITH GAS

PITHY SLOGANS FIXATE NEWSPAPERS' AIMS, CLAIMS, AND PERSONALITIES

Former Newspaper Writer Makes Random Survey of Press Citing Many Banner Lines Now in Use Attractive and Arresting

By WALTER IRVING CLARKE

AS an old newspaper man, alert to the personality of each paper, my eye has been caught, in recent travels about the country, by the slogans which are becoming more and more in evidence on the mastheads of Ameerica's newspapers.

Probably the best known slogan of all American dailies is that of the New York Times, "All the News That's Fit to Print." After this had for a long time occupied the right hand ear of the front page, the publisher offered a substantial prize for a better slogan that would more fittingly describe the character of that publication. Many excellent suggestions were made, but no more suitable slogan was devised, the prize was never awarded, and the original slogan still occupies that selfsame ear, also the eye of the public.

"The World's Greatest Newspaper!" slogan of the Chicago Tribune is known far and wide.

"Iowa's Greatest Evening Paper" is the Des Moines Evening Tribune statement.

"For You and Your Town" is the policy set by Arthur Capper for the Kansas City Kansan.

Across the river, in the Missouri Kansas City, the Post first pats on the back its territory with "Published in the Heart of America, Most Prosperous District of the World," and then proclaims its own aim, "The Truth, Without Courting Favor or Fearing Condemnation."

"Always First, Always Fair, Always Complete," says the Indianapolis Star.

Lafe Young, at the head of his Des Moines Capital editorials, proclaims that he has "Nothing to Serve But the Public Interest."

Dailies of Columbus, O., spread slogans across the top of the front page and at the editorial masthead. The Ohio State Journal flies the banner "The News Unbiased and Unbossed." The Evening Dispatch claims title to "Ohio's Greatest Home Daily," and carries as an ear: "The Newspaper has become the universal educator; and, mindful of its responsibility, the Dispatch has set for itself a high standard." The Sunday Dispatch runs the line "Clean News, Clean Advertising, Clean Purpose."

In Canton, O., McKinley's old home paper, the Repository, proudly boasts "Over a Century Young—Covers Canton Like a Blanket—Up-to-the-Minute."

In Zanesville, the Ohio city famous for its "Y" bridge, the Signal "Prints the News—Tells the Truth."

"Clean, Alert, Reliable," was the slogan on which the Cleveland Commercial was founded.

The West Chester (Pa) Daily Local News, "Has No Political Or Sectarian Bias." It also styles itself "The People's Home Paper," as well as "Chester County's Pioneer Daily." It further boasts "The Largest Circulation of the Inland Dailies of This State." Its newer neighbor, the Coatesville Record, labels itself the "Chester County Paper for Chester People," and emphasizes "More Than Fourteen Years in the Public Service."

Sticking close to local interests, the Raymond Gazette of Clark County, S. D., is happy in the homely title "A Real Good Newspaper in a Real Good Community," and somehow I like that slogan.

The famous Eastern Shore is pictured, town by town, along the Atlantic and along the Chesapeake, clear across the top of the front page of the Eastern Shore News of Cape Charles, Va., with the slogan "The People's Paper—Service—Co-operation."

Another paper proud of rustic habitation and devoted to its immediate surroundings is the Edinboro (Pa.) Independent. Its banner line is "The Truly Distinguished Mind Prefers the Provinces," and its front-page ear reads "Devoted to the Simple Verities of Human Life."

Girard, Pa., has in the Cosmopolite Herald "A Weekly Journal of News Devoted to the Best Interests of the Community."

Up at the Hub the Boston Telegram proclaims "The Big News Always First." The Boston Traveler labels itself "A Newspaper for Everybody—It Goes Into the Home."

One of the earliest slogans still in daily active service is that of the New York World, "Circulation Books Open to All," a reminder of the dark days when all men were liars, especially circulation jugglers.

When the New York Tribune was still the Tribune without any hyphen or Herald prefix, it established its slogan "First to Last—the Truth: News—Editorials—Advertisements," and fought misleading merchants in the courts in maintaining that principle.

"If It Happens in New York It's in the Evening World," is the way that paper for a long time emphasized its devotion to Manhattan and its environs.

Various slogans have been emblazoned by the New York American, among them "The Newspaper of the Home," "America First," "Character, Quality, Accuracy, Enterprise," "An American Paper for American People," while from the top of its editorial page have leaped the words "Truth—Justice—Public Service."

The New York Journal of Commerce advertised that it was often called "The Mirror of Wall Street," but its sub-title was "The Premier Business Paper."

Dana's old paper long since lost its original identity, but in the memory of members of the journalistic profession it still "Shines For All," a case where the slogan has survived the columns that carried it. Which reminds us of its twin slogan, "If You Se It in The Sun, It's So." And that in turn recalls how its enemies used to say "If You See It in The Sun, It's So-So!" Slogans may be diverting or diverted.

KATZ ENTERTAINS CLIENTS

Nothing But "Shop Talk" At Biltmore Convention Week Dinner

E. Katz Special Advertising Agency entertained its visiting publishers at a get-together dinner "for the sole purpose of talking shop," during A.N.P.A. week April 22, at the Biltmore, New York. The affair was in the nature of an experiment, and proved so successful that the publishers themselves said they would like to have the gathering become an annual event, it was stated.

George R. Katz discussed publisher co-operation with the representative in developing national advertising.

Guests at the dinner were: William C. Deming, Cheyenne (Wyo.) Tribune-Leader; Charles A. Webb, Asheville (N. C.) Citizen; Howard F. Emerson, Ansonia (Conn.) Sentinel; Henry J. Allen, Wichita (Kan.) Beacon; W. Y. Morgan, Hutchinson (Kan.) News-Herald; J. J. Bernstein, Massillon (O.) Independent; T. E. Nowels and C. C. Hamlin, Colorado Springs Gazette-Telegraph; E. K. Gaylord, Oklahoma City Oklahoman & Times; J. H. Long, Huntington (W. Va.) Advertiser; H. J. Powell, Coffeyville (Kan.) Journal; J. J. Mead, Sr., and J. J. Mead, Jr., Erie (Pa.) Times; Frank Johannesen, Erie (Pa.) Times; P. Muller; G. R. Katz, H. N. Kirby, W. Brett, M. J. Beck, G. H. Gunst, Herbert Goldberg, A. Doris and F. V. McCabe.

THE NEWFOUNDLAND POWER AND PAPER CO., Ltd.

MANUFACTURERS OF

Clean White Newsprint

PARTICULARLY ADAPTED TO THE NEED OF THOSE PUBLISHERS WHO TAKE PRIDE IN A WELL PRINTED NEWSPAPER

DAILY CAPACITY

CORNER BROOK NEWSPRINT DEPENDABLE

400 TONS

THE BOWATER PAPER CO., Inc.

342 Madison Avenue, New York

SOLE DISTRIBUTORS FOR THE U. S. A.

Announcement

&

THE BUTTERICK COMPANY

announces the election of

JOSEPH A. MOORE

as Chairman of the Board of Directors

and

S. R. LATSHAW

as President of the Corporation

&

THE BUTTERICK COMPANY
Butterick Building
New York

April 21, 1926

SCHOOL GIRLS AND BOYS FLOOR ELDERS IN DAILY'S CURRENT EVENTS BEE

Brooklyn Eagle Executives Forced Into Conference On Further Questions When High School Contestants Exhaust Printed Supply

By E. K. TITUS
School Editor, Brooklyn Eagle

A RECORD number of high schools participated in the Eleventh Annual Current Events Bee of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle, in the Girls Commercial High School, Brooklyn, Friday, April 16. Another bee was broadcast over Station WNYC, a week later. The Eagle has found the bee satisfactory as a means of interesting public school pupils in the news of the day—a subject which is, at present, inadequately taught.

The school children go wild over the bee. It is like an athletic contest for them. The auditorium was packed with 1,600 yelling youngsters. Each school had its cheering section. The procedure of the bee resembles that of the old fashioned spelling bee, except that a series of question on the news events of the last year takes the place of a series of words to spell.

The bee, this year, was directed by H. V. Kaltenborn, associate editor of the Eagle, and originator of the idea, and the school editor.

Over a period of years, the Eagle finds that high school students show an increasing knowledge of the affairs of the day, partly on account of the Eagle Bee. This year, for the first time, the Eagle underestimated the current events knowledge of the contestants. An insufficient number of questions was prepared. The youthful walking current events encyclopedias would not be floored. After all the questions were gone, Mr. Kaltenborn made up a few on the spur of the moment. These were not sufficiently difficult.

The audience then waited while Mr. Kaltenborn called together a board of question strategy, in an effort to devise questions that would be fair and at the same time sufficiently difficult to down those contestants who had thus far withstood the barrage of queries. Herbert F. Gunnison, president of the Eagle, joined with Harris M. Crist, managing editor, and the Board of Judges, composed of Dr. William J. O'Shea, superintendent of schools in New York, Commissioner Arthur S. Somers of the Board of Education, and U. S. Judge Grover M. Moscowitz, in a council to invent queries that would down the young wizards.

The deciding question was this:

"The king of what country died recently without leaving an heir?"

Sam Sillen of Boys High School, winner of two previous Eagle bees, answered "Hungary."

He was wrong. The question was then put to Maurice Goldbloom of Erasmus Hall High School, the only other contestant remaining standing.

Goldbloom's dramatic gasp, "Siam!" was the magic word that won the bee for him.

The Eagle cup went to Boys High School, which, with its two contestants, Sillen and Hammer, made the best team score. But Goldbloom of Erasmus won first place in both the regular Current Events Bee and the radio Current Events Bee, over WNYC, on April 23.

Through its Current Events Bees, as a supplement to its regular school page service, the Eagle has won the support and commendation of pupils and educators alike. Dr. William L. Ettinger, former superintendent of schools, calls the bee "an educational treat." Dr. O'Shea, the present superintendent of schools, has acted as judge for two years.

The Eagle has received thousands of letters requesting copies of the questions asked in the regular bee and in the Radio Bee. The Radio Bee excited particular interest among a huge audience. Radio critics of many newspapers commented favorably on the event.

Paris Herald Raises Franc Fund

The Paris Herald, European edition of the New York Herald Tribune, is conducting a "save-the-franc" fund, and this week the total reached nearly a half million francs. The theme of the campaign is American assistance to France. A measure providing for the creation of an autonomous fund, in which all voluntary contributions would be placed for the amortization of France's domestic debt was included in the 1926 budget, and the money raised by the Herald will be used in this way.

CARTOON MURAL COMPLETED

McCutcheon's "Injun Summer" Now Decorates Chicago Tribune City Room

"Injun Summer," famous pen and ink drawing of John T. McCutcheon of the Chicago Tribune, now regarded as a cartoon classic, has been painted on a wall of the local room of that paper. In this way editors of The Tribune expect to preserve the drawing in the years to come.

Below the painting appears the story of the "coming of Injun Summer when the corn stacks change into tepees" as it is told to the little country lad by his father. The entire drawing on the wall is 15 feet long and 12 feet high.

McCutcheon's cartoon first appeared in the fall of 1912. Since then it has been re-published yearly.

Read EDITOR & PUBLISHER—$4 a year.

NEWS MEN TO ADDRESS POLITICAL INSTITUTE

Annual Gathering at Williamstown, Mass., to Include Conference on Public Opinion in World Affairs —Arthur S. Draper, Chairman

Newspaper men this year will play a part in the annual Institute of Politics held at Williams College, Williamstown, Mass., during July and August. A general conference on public opinion in world affairs is announced as part of this year's agenda.

ARTHUR S. DRAPER

Arthur S. Draper, foreign editor, New York Herald Tribune, has been appointed chairman of the public opinion conference. Divided into public lectures and round table discussions by experts, the conference will hold sessions Fridays and Saturdays during the institute, beginning the last week in July and continuing through August.

Speakers so far appointed include Willis J. Abbot, editor Christian Science Monitor; Frank Simonds, writer on international politics; Hal O'Flaherty former European manager, recently appointed foreign editor of the Chicago Daily News; and James W. Brown president of EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

Iowa Publisher a Suicide

N. A. Hurd, 56, for 25 years publisher of the Waucoma (Ia.) Sentinel committed suicide by hanging near Dubuque, Ia., April 26. Ill health forced him to give up his paper Sept. 22, 192

THE supply of our Brochure Reproductions did not meet the demand. We are asked daily for additional copies. ¶ To comply with these requests we now have the second edition on the press and we will gladly send a copy to all desiring one.

Send name and address to

Powers Reproduction Corporation
205 West 39th Street, New York City
Telephone, Penn. 0600

Makers of PRINTING PLATES OF QUALITY
for the Leading Publications and National Advertisers

NEW ENGLAND—

The concentrated market that takes fewer salesmen to cover.....

The most concentrated commercial and industrial area in the United States is New England.

The six states comprising this area have always held wonderful sales possibilities.

Distance between cities is comparatively small. Salesmen easily cover this territory and for its sales volume and business possibilities New England is the most economical section of the country to advertise and sell your products.

A diversity of manufacture makes New England an ideal territory to sell your goods. And the daily papers are the direct contact with the buying public.

Cover these six states thoroughly with the daily papers.

Reach New England through these newspapers

MASSACHUSETTS—Population, 3,852,356

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
*Attleboro Sun .....(E)	5,778	.03	.03
Boston Globe .....(M&S)	287,590	.50	.50
Boston Globe .....(S)	332,282	.55	.55
*Boston Transcript ....(E)	38,807	.20	.20
Boston Post .....(M)	377,443	.60	.60
Boston Post .....(S)	349,596	.55	.55
††Fall River Herald ....(S)	17,052	.06	.06
Fitchburg Sentinel ...(E)	11,828	.06	.045
*Haverhill Gazette ....(E)	15,729	.065	.05
††Lynn Item .....(E)	16,699	.065	.05
††Lowell Courier-Citizen and Evening Leader ..(M&E)	21,918	.07	.07
*New Bedford Standard Mercury (M&E)	32,111	.10	.10
*New Bedford Sunday Standard (S)	27,392	.10	.10
North Adams Transcript (E)	9,918	.0425	.035
††Pittsfield Eagle .....(E)	17,011	.05	.05
Salem News .....(E)	21,398	.09	.07
††Taunton Gazette ....(E)	9,279	.05	.04
*Worcester Telegram-Gazette (M&E)	92,314	.26	.23
Worcester Sunday Telegram (S)	51,096	.19	.16
(E)	4,046	.0214	.015

NEW HAMPSHIRE—Population, 443,683

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
*Concord Monitor-Patriot (E)	5,041	.0375	.025
††Keene Sentinel .....(E)	3,887	.036	.023
†Manchester Union Leader (M&E)	29,422	.13	.10

RHODE ISLAND—Population, 604,397

††Newport Daily News..(E)	6,271	.0336	.0293
††Pawtucket Times .....(E)	27,451	.07	.07
Providence Bulletin ..(E)	68,815	.18	(B).25
Providence Journal ..(M)	36,416	.11	(B).25
Providence Journal ..(S)	70,518	.18	.18
Providence News ....(E)	29,123	.08	.08
††Providence Tribune ..(E)	21,719	.10	.09
*Westerly Sun .....(E&S)	4,476	.025	.025
Woonsocket Call ....(E)	14,508	.05	.05

VERMONT—Population, 352,428

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
Barre Times .....(E)	7,112	.03	.025
†Bennington Banner ...(E)	3,132	.0125	.0125
Brattleboro Reformer ..(E)	3,370	.03	.0175
Burlington Free Press (M)	13,071	.05	.05
*Rutland Herald .....(M)	11,038	.04	.04
††St. Johnsbury Caledonian-Record (E)	4,055	.03	.0175

CONNECTICUT—Population, 1,380,631

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
*Bridgeport Post-Telegram (E&M)	43,008	.15	.15
*Bridgeport Post .....(S)	20,827	.10	.10
Hartford Courant ....(M)	33,003	.08	.08
Hartford Courant .....(S)	56,274	.11	.11
†Hartford Times .....(E)	50,354	.13	.13
*Middletown Press ....(E)	8,214	.0325	.03
††New Haven Register (E&S)	46,218	.14	.13
New London Day.....(E)	12,054	.07	.045
††Norwich Bulletin ....(M)	12,724	.07	.05
*Norwalk Hour .....(E)	6,069	.04	.04
††South Norwalk Sentinel (E)	5,043	.04	.025
Stamford Advocate ..(E)	10,329	.05	.04

*A. B. C. Publisher's Statement, September 30, 1925.
†Government Statement, September 30, 1925.
A. B. C. Publisher's Statement, March 31, 1926.
††Government Statement, March 31, 1926.
(B) Combination rate Daily Journal and Eve. Bulletin.

CLEVER HAND-LETTERED COPY ADDS ATMOSPHERE AND DISTINCTION

Attention Getting Value of Unusual Lettering Considered by Writer—Gives Opportunity for Increasing Taste and Personality of Newspaper

By HAMMOND EDWARD FRANKLIN

IF you have a soft drink or ice cream to advertise this summer and want to make your newspaper copy look "cool," you can learn a lesson from the sign painter of the corner drug store.

In the winter, he has the sign, "HOT CHOCOLATE," lettered with tongues of flame leaping upwards. In the summer he has show cards calling attention to ice cream or ice cold drinks with icicles

Hand-lettering gives distinction to this copy and snow hanging down from the letters.

Clever hand-lettering can lift a newspaper campaign out of the ordinary. It can create a definite atmosphere in the reader's mind. The newspaper, the agency and the advertiser frequently have the problem of how to use it to advantage to make words "sing."

An advertiser who wished to push rubbers for the winter wear had the single word, RUBBERS, in big, black, bold letters with piles of white on the tops and at other points where snow would be apt to fall. Slantwise dashes of white on the black letters suggested a storm with snow flying.

When Eskimo Pie took the country by storm, much newspaper advertising carried the name in tall, slim letters with icicles and snow hanging down. In one advertisement, the headline, "It sure hits your taste spot" and at the bottom "ESKIMO PIE—the genuine has the midnight sun on the wrapper," were roughed in crazily yet with notable attention effect.

When balloon tires were being talked about everywhere, the Lovejoy Manufacturing Company, makers of shock absorbers, planned the lettering of their copy with the words, "For balloon tires," puffed way up picturesquely like real balloons. It made the copy doubly appealing.

If the Sunday editor wanted to dress up a full page feature on a star reporter's experience in Chinatown, it is very likely he would have an artist hand-letter the English words so they looked like Chinese.

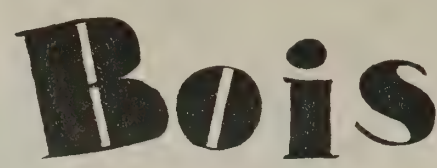
Perfumes, imported Oriental novelties, Chinese restaurants, travel tours, or similar products or institutions may be given an exotic touch by injecting the Oriental spirit into the lettering.

Where rapid service is a feature, the lettering may be in the form of lightning flashes.

Many food products, candies and forms of apparel may be given the real home atmosphere with heavy "old-fashioned" lettering.

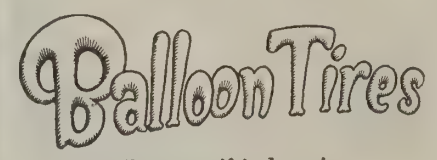
Large letters with black and white checkers on them are a distinctive form of lettering which has been little used.

A new message exchange was opened up at the Grand Central at New York City. The messengers were to wear green caps. It was desired to use the newspapers with some copy which would acquaint the business public with this service.



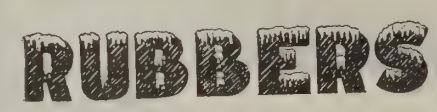
Space eight inches by two columns with the sentence in hand-writing, "Ask a green cap," repeated 24 times, each smaller than the one before, formed a road which narrowed down to the announcement in a small box at the upper right part of the copy. The unique roadway of lettering, with ample white space, swung the eye into the announcement.

Letters at a slant, with black shadows stretching out behind, form another welcome variation for "punch."



De Forest Radio not only had its own name oddly hand-lettered against a Ben Day background with a lightning flash careening across it, but obtained its heading by drawing tiny crosses to make up each letter, in a summer campaign some time ago.

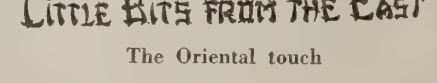
A department store across the top of five columns had the words, "The Keep-Cool Campaign at ————" lettered in black with snow on top of the letters and an electric fan blowing streamers all the way between the two lines of letters.



Another store had a large advertisement with figures and copy apparently drawn on a slate so it appeared white against a Ben Day back in early fall sales of

Suggesting French smartness

Balloon motif in lettering



Snow and cold

Olden times

Discriminating taste

The Oriental touch

girls' dresses. A border like that of a slate completed the effect.

Imitation hand writing has many possibilities. By this form and silhouette pictures, a woman's specialty store has built an exceptional reputation. The writing should always be readable and white space is desirable to set it off.

A frock shop has a heading, "Peep behind the screen of fashion," and its name below hand-lettered jauntily for a single column six inch advertisement. The head and feet of a maiden drawn in the same style appear with a box in the center telling of new offerings and covering up the rest of the girl.

A restaurant which specializes in southern dishes, shows a cut of a cabin and its hand-lettering (much like hand writing in southern dialect invites:

"Heh's you' invite. We gwine ter have a regular cawn shucking supper wid awde big stuff!

"Lawsee! dat ar fried chicken en den hot waffles! Ef yo' wants ter see sum pin', cum on!"

A photograph with lettering right across it sometimes will furnish an unusual heading, a fact well known to experienced newspaper editors.

If the subject has anything to do with phonographs, pianos, radio sets or other instruments of a musical nature, a large scale may be shown with the lettering taking the place of notes.

Trademarks are a study in themselves but any representative group shows a great deal of thought. The value of hand lettering for "snapping up" small copy is unquestioned.

On all products with a fashion appeal, a study of magazines of the vogues shows an infinite array of letters which express style. A certain breeziness and almost freakishness is permissible for some advertising in this class. Delicate lines prevail.

The Oldsmobile Six had a newspaper advertisement built this spring by having various selling points, such as "Its beauty speaks for itself," "Try it on the hills," "Quality down to the smallest hidden part," "See it at the show," etc., tipped in

MERCHANT & EVANS CO.

Philadelphia

Producers of

SPARTAN TYPE METAL

Since 1866

Trade Mark
Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

LINO — MONO — STERO — INTERTYPE — COMBINATION

Stocks in Principal Cities

I want to help this circulation expert land the position he merits.

During the past six months I have had on one of my publications a circulation manager of outstanding ability.

Circumstances (explained to anyone rightfully interested) are such that very shortly I will be deprived of his services.

For me he has produced excellent results and has effected substantial savings in both the circulation department and press room. I believe the publisher who secures his services will be well satisfied.

Because of his excellent service for me I am interested in seeing him secure a happy connection. He merits one. If you are in need of a high class circulation manager, write to me, I will give you further details and put you in touch with the man.

Address:
Box B-947, care of Editor & Publisher

phazardly, yet artistically, in space over aquarter page.

A retail store, in announcing its birthdy, showed a reproduction of a huge thday cake with 16 candles from its ndow. For newspaper advertising, the cnpany's message was lettered on the e of the cake in white.

The German style of illustration and dering has been applied with remarkable ention value in a small space campaign ppearing on condensed milk. European sters and publication advertisements, pecially the former, suggest novel treatnts.

Contrast for heads and subheads is the e of one of the leading agencies. Usuy its top head is a boldface type and its bhead an italic.

An artist of long agency experience says at the average cost which may be coted safely for lettering is 10 cents letter.

From California continue to come campigns which are a delight in their free of hand-lettering. One campaign, of ny I have viewed is especially disguished in interest. It is entirely handtered, or at least suggests that such the case. I refer to Schilling's Coffee d Tea which formerly ran across four lumns publishing a sweeping story ich started from a fantastical initial tter in which a coffee cup was given istic wings.

In two column copy now running, copy confined to three sentences with no e indented equally, the name most ntly lettered, and a figure of a host bearing a cup of steaming beverage, s drawn in keeping with the rest. hite space is ample. In the case of tea, the company has "Sealed HOT in vuum" with flowing lines to suggest t idea.

Last, but not least, the mail order man th his dark, striking displays of handlering can testify that he depends upon to get the reader into his thick body tter.

Much of the opportunity for increasing t taste and personality of newspaper vertisements for the leading 227 natnal advertisers who invest $70,000,000 ear in space, and for the smallest user newspaper advertising who is just rting in one paper, is to be found in rking hand-lettering talk.

ON TO PARIS!

New York Critics Leave to Attend International Convention

Four New York dramatic critics are legates to the International Convention Dramatic and Musical Critics to be hd at the Institution Cooperation Intectuelle in Paris, May 3-8.

They are: James S. Metcalf, New York Evening World, president of the New Yrk organization of dramatic critics known as "The First Nighters;" Gilbert Gabriel, New York Sun; Edward Everett Hlgeon, New York Journal of Commerce, and Arthur Pollock, Brooklyn Eagle.

Paul Genistry, president of La Critiques Dramatique and Musicale of Paris, extended the invitation to the New York grn.

Press Agent Rewarded By France

The French government through the Minister of Public Instruction and Beaux Arts has conferred the palm of Officer of Public Instruction upon Edward L. Bernays, counsel on public relations, New York, for services rendered to the French government, according to announcement made by the French Embassy in the United States.

Explosion Damages Daily's Plant

Damage estimated at $12,000 to the Amarillo (Tex.) News-Globe plant resulted from a boiler room explosion, this week, attributed to escaping gas. The paper is using an old press that belonged to the Globe before its consolidation with the News pending repairs to damaged equipment.

LATSHAW NOW HEADS BUTTERICK COMPANY

Former Vice-President Takes New Post Under Re-organization—Joseph Moore Is Chairman of Board

Following the annual meeting of the Board of Directors of the Butterick Company, held in the Butterick Building, New York, Wednesday, April 21, announcement was made by G. W. Wilder that he was retiring from the presidency and would be succeeded in office by S. R. Latshaw.

S. R. Latshaw

Mr. Wilder announced that Joseph A. Moore will be chairman of the board of directors. Mr. Moore has been for a number of years treasurer of the several publishing properties of William Randolph Hearst, including: The International Magazine Corporation, Good Housekeeping Magazine, Cosmopolitan-International Magazine, Harper's Bazaar, and the Star Publishing Company. He resigned from that group, as announced in Editor & Publisher last week, to purchase a large interest in the Butterick Company.

Mr. Latshaw, the newly elected president, has been vice-president and advertising director of the Butterick Company for several years. Previously, he was assistant advertising director of the Curtis Publishing Company, publishers of the Ladies' Home Journal, Saturday Evening Post and Country Gentleman.

In making this public announcement of the change in the direction of the Butterick Company, Mr. Wilder stated that he would continue on the board of directors but would relinquish active management of the business. The Butterick Company are owners of the Delineator, Everybody's, and Adventure magazines. The Delineator was founded in 1868, the founders being Ebenezer Butterick, Abner Pollard, and Jones Warren Wilder, father of the retiring president. Its original name was the Metropolitan Monthly, and in 1873 it was changed to the Delineator. It was the pioneer publication of service to women, he recalled. Among the public movements it has inaugurated are: The "Child Rescue" Campaign, through which 20,000 orphans were placed in homes; The Junior Red Cross, Better Homes in America, Adult Weight Conference, and the Conference on the Food Habits of the American People, held in Washington last week, with the approval of President Coolidge and Secretary Jardine.

E. F. Kennedy Named Editor

Edward F. Kennedy has been promoted to editor of the Oshkosh (Wis.) Daily Northwestern, following the retirement of F. C. Walker, who had served more than 30 years on the paper. Other promotions made from within the ranks by O. J. Hardy, publisher, include Louis H. Toreyson to managing editor; L. K. Bronson to city editor; Aaron Mace, assistant city editor.

Retired Canadian Publisher Dead

William E. Smallfield, for many years editor and publisher of the Renfrew (Ont.) Mercury, and a past president of the Canadian Press Association, died at Guelph, Ont., on April 21.

New Daily in Montana

The Glendive (Mont.) Evening Free-Lance is scheduled to start publication May 3, using the Associated Press report. J. R. Widmyer, previously publisher of a weekly in Glendive, is publisher of the new daily.

. . . after all, a publisher's checking proof problem is so closely tied up with the problem that confronts the agency that he has no choice but to consider every phase when trying to find his own solution—and if he does that, then he will surely want to investigate the solution we offer.

The Agency Appeal

CAMPBELL-EWALD COMPANY, Advertising
GENERAL MOTORS BLDG.
DETROIT

March 29th, 1926

The Advertising Checking Bureau, Inc.,
79 Madison Avenue,
New York City, N. Y.

Gentlemen:

We have found your checking service a great help and know that if we could receive tear sheets from all publications thru your service a great problem in our Checking Department would be solved.

It is our desire to make publishers see this point as it not only lightens our work during the rush period of each month when many thousands of newspaper invoices are received, but it insures prompt payment to publishers.

We heartily welcome any additional publishers to your list.

Yours very truly,
CAMPBELL-EWALD COMPANY
Signed: A. C. Schroeder
Assistant Treasurer

ACS/PS.

THESE NEWSPAPER PUBLISHERS RESPOND

(April acceptances to our Complete Checking Proof Service)

Appleton, Wisc.....Post Crescent
Battle Creek, Mich...Enquirer-News
Beloit, Wisc. .....News
Decatur, Ill.....Review
Dubuque, Iowa....Telegraph-Herald
Eau Claire, Wisc...Leader-Telegram
Elgin, Ill.....Courier-News
Grand Rapids, Mich.....Press
Green Bay, Wisc.....Press Gazette
Jackson, Mich.....Citizen-Patriot
Kalamazoo, Mich.....Gazette
Lancaster, Ohio.....Daily Gazette
Madison, Wisc.....State Journal
Milwaukee, Wisc....Wisconsin News
Muskegon, Mich.....Chronicle
Norfolk, Nebr. .....Daily News
Pontiac, Mich.....Press
Port Huron, Mich.....Times Herald
St. Joseph, Mo.....News Press
Superior, Wisc.....Telegram
Toledo, Ohio.....News-Bee
Wichita, Kan.....Eagle

The Advertising CHECKING BUREAU Inc.

538 So. Clark St.
CHICAGO

79 Madison Avenue
NEW YORK

MANY SOCIAL EVENTS FOR JOURNALISM WEEK

Receptions, Dinners and Dances Arranged For Annual University of Missouri Event—Several Groups to Come On Campus

A series of receptions, dinners and dances for visiting journalists and alumni will form a part of the elaborate social program arranged in connection with the annual Journalism Week at the University of Missouri, May 10 to 15.

A special feature of this year's program will be "Alumni Day," May 13, when an oil painting of Dean Walter Williams will be presented by journalism alumni and members of the senior class to the School of Journalism. The portrait was made by Charles F. Galt, St. Louis artist.

Mrs. W. C. Curtis of Columbia will open the social program Sunday night, May 9, before journalism week begins, with a reception at her home for the members of the Missouri Writers' Guild. On Monday the annual Guild dinner will be a social feature of the program of Missouri Writers' Guild Day.

Dean Walter Williams will preside Tuesday, which will be "General Features Day." At the close of the evening session Sigma Delta Chi, men's professional journalism fraternity, and Theta Sigma Phi, a similar organization for women, will hold a reception for all Journalism Week visitors.

Wednesday's program will be devoted to the Missouri Press Association. E. H. Winter, editor of the Warrenton Banner, and president of the association, will preside. At Fulton, Mo., near Columbia, Ovid Bell, publisher of the Fulton Gazette, will be host at the annual dinner of the Past Presidents' Association of the Missouri Press Association. At Columbia, there will be a dinner for members of Kappa Tau Alpha, honorary journalism fraternity. After the evening sessions, Alpha Delta Sigma, advertising fraternity and Gamma Alpha Chi, advertising sorority, will hold a reception for all Journalism Week visitors.

Rex B. Magee, president of the Missouri Journalism Alumni Association, will be in charge of "Journalism Alumni Day" sessions Thursday. The day's program includes group breakfast meetings in honor of visiting alumni, a reunion of the 1916 journalism class, a complimentary luncheon by the Columbia Commercial Club for all out-of-town guests, the annual dinner of the Journalism Alumni Association, and a dinner of the Missouri Associated Dailies, organized during the past year. Local alumni will be hosts in the evening at a dance and reception for all Journalism Week visitors.

The annual Journalism Week banquet Friday night will be the social feature of the entire week. This will also be Missouri Press Association Day.

WILLIAMS APPOINTS

Names Additional Latin-American Vice-Presidents of World Press Congress

Dr. Walter Williams, president of the Press Congress of the World, and Dean of the School of Journalism, University of Missouri, has announced the appointment of Oscar Rodriquez da Costa, director of the Jornal do Commercio, Rio de Janeiro, and Felix Pacheco, of the Brazilian Press Association, as vice-presidents of the Press Congress for Brazil, and Rafael Huete, of Diario de Costa Rica, San Jose, and Otilio Ulate, of La Tribuna, San Jose, as vice-presidents for Costa Rica.

President Williams also announced the selection of James Wright Brown, Jr., of Editor & Publisher, New York City, as official reporter to assist him in compiling the history of the Congress sessions to be held at Geneva and Lausanne, Switzerland, September 14-18.

Several of the South American publishers who were in the city last week announced their intention of attending the Press Congress. They will come to New York, August 31, and join the delegates from Mexico, Canada, Hawaii and the United States in the sight-seeing and entertainment, previous to sailing on the S. S. Carmania, September 4, for Geneva.

Dailies Aid Scholastic Contest

Six hundred dollars in cash prizes, given by Kansas newspapers and A. A. Hyde, of Wichita, were to be awarded May 1 in the annual scholastic contest of Kansas high schools by the Kansas State Teachers College, Emporia. Papers co-operating in the prize fund are: Kansas City Star, Topeka Daily Capital, Emporia Daily Gazette and the Fort Scott Tribune-Monitor.

BUCKEYE CIRCULATORS MEET AT COLUMBUS

Round Table Discussions Supplant Formal Addresses at Ninth Annual Convention—Forty Managers Present

(By Telegraph to Editor & Publisher)

Columbus, O., April 28.—More than 40 members of the Ohio Circulation Managers' Association participated in round table discussions on a dozen subjects directly related to circulation problems of daily newspapers at their ninth annual convention at the Chittenden Hotel, Columbus, Wednesday. Among the subjects discussed were: "How Would You Build Circulation Without Use of Premiums?"; "What Advantage the Office Owned Routes Have Over Independent in Smaller Cities?"; "Advantages or Disadvantages of Travel Accident Insurance?"; "What Way Has a Small Town Paper to Protect Itself From Metropolitan Papers?"; "What Is Your Plan of Getting Co-operation From the Rest of the Employes of Your Publication?"; "Stunt Letters You Put Out and What Returns Obtained?"

J. Omansky, circulation manager, Cleveland Times, spoke on the relation of the circulation manager to the publisher and how he can further his interests. Bus transportation problems encountered by circulation departments were discussed by James P. Dugan, acting secretary, Ohio Public Utilities Commission.

A majority of newspapers in larger cities and some of the smaller cities of the state were represented at the meeting. Officers of the Association are: T. S. Morehead, Cambridge Jeffersonian, president; Thomas J. Dowling, Cleveland Press, vice-president; C. L. Sink, Zanesville Signal and Times-Recorder, secretary-treasurer.

Former Newsboy Buys Building

Abraham M. Liebling, publisher of the Chicago Jewish Press, who began his career as a newsboy, this week paid $412,500 for the office building which towered above his old newsstand. The purchase was made, he said, to "gratify a sentiment." Mr. Liebling sold Chicago papers 26 years ago.

Our Customers Write Our Ads

Wooster, Ohio, Daily Record

Says—

"Our DUPLEX TUBULAR press is giving us fine satisfaction. We are proud of it."

DUPLEX PRESSES

FOR ALL NEWSPAPERS

Duplex Printing Press Co.

BATTLE CREEK, MICH.

R. PULITZER TO HUNT BIG GAME IN AFRICA

Editor of the New York World Will Sail May 8 for Five Months' Trip with Paul Dougherty, Artist—To Arrive in Mombasa, June 10

Ralph Pulitzer, editor of the New York World, has taken up the favorite sport of the Roosevelts. On May 8, he will sail from New York with Paul Dougherty, artist, to hunt big game in British East Africa with guns, movie cameras and paint boxes. He will be away five months.

Ralph Pulitzer

Mr. Pulitzer will visit his mother, Mrs. Joseph Pulitzer, for a week in Marseilles before sailing with Mr. Dougherty for Mombasa on May 22. They expect to arrive at Mombasa on June 10, when they will be met by A. S. Klein, their guide, with forty or fifty carriers for the trip into the interior.

Klein will have a large movie camera with which he has made several films of big game in Africa. Mr. Pulitzer will carry a smaller machine and Mr. Dougherty will have brushes, paints and canvases on which he will depict scenes and life in the bush.

Mr. Pulitzer, Mr. Dougherty and the guide will be the only white men in the party. They expect to remain in Africa for ten weeks and to return to New York September 24.

Mr. Dougherty's work is in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Brooklyn Institute Museum, the Corcoran and National Galleries in Washington, Carnegie Institute, Pittsburgh and in museums at St. Louis, Chicago Minneapolis, Omaha and other cities He won the Inness Gold Medal in 1913 the Panama-Pacific Gold Medal in 1915 the Carnegie Prize in the same year an the Chief Altman Prize at the Nationa Academy in 1918, besides other award in previous years. He has specialized i landscapes and seascapes, choosing hi subjects throughout the world.

Daily Promoting Flower Gardens

The Colorado Springs (Col.) Gazett and Telegraph recently launched "garden in every back yard" projec giving away 7,500 packages of speciall packed flower seeds to residents. Th plan includes a grand prize for the be garden grown with the newspaper seed as a foundation. Seeds were given o coupon, either by mail or in person.

Landsman Handling Nassau Accoun

The advertising account of the Hot Nassau, Long Beach, Long Island, being handled by Benjamin Landsma 1440 Broadway instead of by Alfred Silberstein, Inc., 118 W. 32nd street, reported by Editor & Publisher recentl following receipt of an announceme from Mr. Silberstein.

Dimon Resigns in Tulsa

William B. Dimon, for the past tw years business manager of the Tul (Okla.) Tribune, has resigned on a count of ill health. Mr. Dimon has be seriously ill for the past two years. J. Cargile, treasurer of the Tribune Pu lishing Company, succeeds him as bus ness manager.

Daily Adds Merchandising Paper

The Honolulu Star Bulletin h launched the first issue of a month merchandising paper, The Merchandis James H. Coke is editor.

A SINGLE
ADVERTISING APPROPRIATION

Will cover the two publications that reach those who control the national advertising of the United States and Great Britain.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER
New York
and
ADVERTISING WORLD
London, Eng.

have entered into an agreement in respect to editorial and advertising representation in their respective fields and thereby afford a single source of information and service for those interested in international marketing and advertising.

Combination Advertising Rates for 12 Insertion Contract

Full Page .....$280.00 per insertion
Half Page ..... 145.00 per insertion
Quarter Page ..... 82.50 per insertion

You are cordially invited to communicate with Editor & Publisher, Suite 1700 Times Building, New York, for further details of circulation, editorial policy and mechanical requirements of Advertising World. This office can be of great assistance to manufacturers who desire information in regard to marketing conditions of Great Britain. Publishers of leading American newspapers will also avail themselves of this opportunity to deliver their messages to the largest advertisers of Great Britain, many of whom are keenly interested in the markets of America.

Editor & Publisher
1700 Times Building
Broadway at 42d St.
New York, N. Y.
Telephones:
Bryant 3052 - 3053 - 3054 - 3055 - 3056
Cable Address: EDPUB, NEW YORK

Advertising World
14 King Street
Covent Garden, W. C. 2
London, England
Telephone: Gerrard 7615
Cable Address:
ECOPUBLISH, RAND, LONDON

REAL COMFORT FOR SPORTS WRITERS IN U. OF KANSAS' ENCLOSED PRESS BOX

A CONCRETE and glass press box was used for the first time on the ccasion of the Kansas Relays at the niversity of Kansas recently. The Box" is 11 by 96 feet in size, with six penings 16 feet in the clear, and perched the top of the west unit of the Uni-ersity Memorial Stadium. From the ress box, an unobstructed view of the uarter mile track, 220-yard straight-way and all field events is obtainable, nd, in event of rain or high wind in the uring, or cold at the football season ass windows may be closed.

A glass partition is yet to be installed one end to provide a booth for the dio announcer.

Army field phones are installed on the field and the results of the various events of a track meet telephoned to the press box, mimeographed, and distributed to the reporters, who use the "summary" thus supplied in connection with their own descriptive stories.

At the relays, Dr. F. C. Allen, director of athletics, started the practice of serving sandwiches and hot coffee to the working newspaper men. Fielding H. Yost of Michigan, referee of the relays; Governor Ben Paulen, Chancellor Lindley and others took occasion to visit the press box while the refreshments were being served.

ARM CIRCULATION IS ADVERTISER'S TOPIC

.N.A. to Probe Country Field at Semi-Annual Convention in Chicago, May 10-12—Marco Morrow and Brundidge to Speak

A "Farm Paper Circulation Clinic," der the chairmanship of O. C. Harn, vertising manager of the National ad Company, will be a feature of the mi-annual convention of the Associa-tn of National Advertisers to be held a the Edgewater Beach Hotel, Chicago, ay 10-12, according to an announce-nt made this week by Robert K. avitt, association secretary.

Speakers at the clinic will be Marco rrow, assistant publisher of the pper Publications, Horace C. Klein, blisher of the St. Paul Farmer, and T. Hall, vice-president of the Ralston rina Company, and association presi-nt. They will talk on the subject, "irculation Methods in the Farm Field."

In holding the clinic, the A.N.A. is ntinuing an idea originated at the last mi-annual convention held at Atlantic y, when circulation methods of the gazines were discussed in detail. The vertisers are seeking to learn the class readers reached by their copy.

At the semi-annual dinner of the asso-ion on May 11, Clarence Darrow, ed lawyer, and Harry T. Brundidge, Louis Star, will probably be the akers. Mr. Darrow has tentatively epted the association's invitation to ver the principal banquet address. Brundidge gained fame as the reporter o exposed the medical "diploma mills." Other speakers at the convention will A. W. Shaw, president of the A. W. Shaw Company, Chicago, on "The Advertising Department; Its Place in Business Organization"; Kenyon Stevenson, Armstrong Cork Company, on "Organizing to Get Things Done in the Advertising Department"; H. G. Weaver, assistant to the director, sales section, advisory staff, General Motors Corporation, on "Laying the Foundations of an Advertising Campaign."

W. S. Lockwood, advertising manager, Johns-Manville, Inc., "The Organization of an Advertising Department for Production"; Everett R. Smith, advertising manager, Fuller Brush Company, "How We Sell Advertising Co-Operation to Our Salesmen"; W. K. Towers, advertising manager, Paige-Detroit Motor Car Company, "How We Sell Our Distributors on Advertising Co-Operation"; and W. F. Earls, advertising manager, United States Rubber Company, "The Records of an Advertising Department."

L. E. Frailey, Ralston Purina Company, "Management of Departmental Personnel"; Kerwin H. Fulton, "New Developments in Outdoor Advertising"; H. M. Bourne, advertising manager, H. J. Heinz Company, "Standardization of Process Colors"; G. Lynn Sumner, president, G. Lynn Sumner Company, "Is the Advertising Dollar Increasing in Effectiveness"; Harry R. Wellman, professor of Marketing, Amos Tuck School, Dartmouth College, "Wastes in Advertising"; and V. C. Cutts, advertising manager, H. W. Gossard Company, "Some Things We Can Learn From the Department Store Advertising Manager."

Paper Company Seeking Site

The Thunder Bay Paper Company is negotiating for a new site in Port Arthur, Ont., so that they may build a larger newsprint mill than was at first intended.

SEATTLE
Has Turned to Its MORNING Paper!

Publishers' Official Government Statements, just issued and covering six months' period ending March 31, 1926, compared with the six months ending September 30, 1925, reveal the interesting information that the Post-Intelligencer leads all Seattle newspapers in Week-Day Circulation and has materially increased its Sunday supremacy! Here are the official figures which prove conclusively that the Post-Intelligencer is Today—and will be Tomorrow—the best advertising investment in this most prosperous Northwest community!

Week-Day Circulation:

Post-Intelligencer . . *83,454
Star 82,841
Times 76,587

Post-Intelligencer Week-Day GAIN—9,116
Star Week-Day . . . . . GAIN—1,310
Times Week-Day . . . . . LOSS—1,459

Sunday Circulation:

Post-Intelligencer . *147,531
Times 103,440

Post-Intelligencer Sunday GAIN—11,892
Times Sunday . . . . . Gain— 559

Some Very Pertinent FACTS:

In just one year—April, 1925, to April, 1926—the "P.-I." made a record-breaking GAIN of 15,096!

70% of this GAIN is within Seattle's City Limits!

The six months' period ending March 31, 1926, shows a week-day average GAIN of 9,116!

And 80% of this is within Seattle's City Limits!

January 1, 1926, to April 15, 1926, "P.-I." CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING showed a phenomenal GAIN of over 50,000 lines—by far the largest GAIN of ANY Seattle newspaper!

DISPLAY ADVERTISING for this same period GAINED 23,287 inches (326,018 lines) over the same three-and-a-half months' period last year!

Three months' statements (January-March, 1926, inclusive) to the Audit Bureau of Circulations covering Seattle Newspapers will be issued very soon. For later detailed information check these reports.

Seattle Post-Intelligencer

Seattle's Only Morning Newspaper

FIRST in CIRCULATION!

W. W. CHEW, 285 Madison Ave., New York City
W. H. WILSON, 915 Hearst Building, Chicago
T. C. HOFFMEYER, Monadnock Building, San Francisco

PRIVILEGE LAW CITED BY LIBEL LAWYER

Harold Cross Explains Rule to New York Herald Tribune Staff—Filing of Pleading Does Not Constitute Judicial Proceeding

Libel dangers that lie in the report of a pleading not submitted to the court were outlined this week by Harold Cross, of the firm of Sackett, Chapman, Brown & Cross, attorneys for the New York Herald Tribune. The outline a response to an inquiry from Julian S. Mason, managing editor, was posted on the editorial room bulletin board for the benefit of the Herald Tribune staff. The letter follows:

"Dear Mr. Mason:

"Since several cases have arisen recently involving the extent of the privilege to report judicial proceedings, a letter on the subject may be useful for the guidance of the staff.

"The statute involved (Civil Practice Act, Par. 337) reads:

"'An action, civil or criminal, cannot be maintained against a reporter, editor, publisher, or proprietor of a newspaper, for the publication therein of a fair and true report of any judicial, legislative or other public and official proceedings, without proving actual malice in making the report.

"'This section does not apply to a libel contained in the heading of the report; or in any other matter added by any person concerned in the publication; or in the report of anything said or done at the time and place of the public and official proceedings which was not a part there.'

"It is now the law of this state (Williams v. New York Herald, 165 App. Div. 529) that 'the mere filing of a pleading, without any submission to the Court, or a judicial action taken thereon, does not constitute such a judicial proceeding as will give rise to a privilege to a newspaper to publish its contents.'

"In that case, the pleading reported, though filed, had not been served and the action in which the pleading was entitled had not been commenced by the service of the summons.

"Whether a pleading or other paper which has been served in an action which has been commenced may be reported under protection of privilege in advance of submission thereof to the Court, or of judicial action thereon, has not been decided in this State. While we contend that the privilege applies to such a report, we are bound, in the absence of a decision in this State, to point out that there are contrary decisions in other States, that the trend of judicial utterance is to the contrary and that there is at least a responsible possibility that our courts will hold the contrary. Though we think it should be, we cannot advise that such a report is privileged.

"Therefore, the staff, before reporting a filed paper which has not been acted upon by the Court, should at least ascertain whether such paper has been filed and whether the action in which it is entitled has been commenced and, in addition, should understand that even if such paper has been served in a pending action, a report published in advance of judicial action thereon may not be privileged."

EVENING HERALD
Los Angeles, Calif.
Gained 5,015 Daily Average Circulation
Sworn Government Statement, Six Months Ending March 31, 1925, 177,298 Daily. Six Months Ending March 31, 1926, 182,313 Daily. Increase in Daily Average Circulation, 5,015.
IT COVERS THE FIELD COMPLETELY
REPRESENTATIVES:
H. W. Moloney, 604 Times Bldg., New York.
G. Logan Payne Co., 401 Tower Bldg., 6 North Michigan Ave., Chicago.
A. J. Norris Hill, 710 Hearst Bldg., San Francisco, Calif.

RALEIGH TO ADVERTISE

Newspapers to Get $4,500 of $10,000 Chamber of Commerce Fund

The Raleigh (N. C.) Chamber of Commerce has adopted a budget of $10,000 to be devoted to advertising the city. It acted on the recommendation of John A. Park, publisher of the Raleigh Times, who recently made a trip to Florida and Western North Carolina to investigate the methods of advertising cities there.

Of the $10,000 appropriation, $2,500 will be spent in Northern newspapers, $2,000 in Florida newspapers, $200 for golf club hangers, $1,500 on new Raleigh booklets, $1,000 on an information booth in the city, $2,500 for signs, and $300 for advertising in tourist magazines.

Michigan Daily Absorbs Weekly

The Owosso (Mich.) Times, weekly, founded in 1879 by the late L. E. Gould and published for many years by E. O. Dewey and later by George M. Dewey, has been purchased by the Owosso Argus Press, a daily. Publication of the Times was suspended with this week's issue. S. W. Garnett has published the Times for the past three years.

Rood Joins Oklahoma City News

L. L. Rood of Allied Newspapers, Inc., has become business manager of the Oklahoma City (Okla.) News, Scripps-Howard paper, succeeding Maurice L. Crowther who resigned to become New York advertising representative of the Capper farm publications. Rood has been attached to the Cleveland office of Allied Newspapers.

Porter Joins Atlanta Constitution

Herbert Porter for the past six years advertising director of the Atlanta Georgian this week was named advertising director of the Atlanta Constitution by Clark Howell, Jr., business manager. Before joining the Georgian, Porter was with the Birmingham News. At one time he was assistant advertising manager.

W. R. Wright Joins Knight

William R. Wright, formerly director of advertising of the Baltimore American, and for several years associated with Prudden King & Prudden, Inc., New York City, has been appointed vice-president of the Emerson B. Knight, Inc., newspaper development organization, Indianapolis.

News Man Takes Political Job

Thomas Carens, who for the past few years political writer on the Boston Herald, this week was appointed a member of the secretarial force of Senator William M. Butler of Massachusetts. He assumed his duties in Washington at once.

A paper with the people
The public decides the progress of a newspaper.
The continuous rising circulation of the New York Evening Graphic vividly demonstrates popular acceptance of this newspaper as a medium of unusual reader interest.
Advertisers daily realize the benefit of this power through achieved results from the advertising columns of the New York Evening Graphic.
With a constantly increasing circulation, plus a constant growth in advertising lineage, the New York Evening Graphic offers the advertiser an extremely profitable opportunity.
NEW YORK EVENING GRAPHIC
Published by BERNARR MACFADDEN
H. A. AHERN, Advertising Mgr.
25 City Hall Place
New York City

JAPANESE ESTABLISH ASSOCIATED PRESS

Eight Newspapers Join in Forming Non-Profit Making Mutual News Association—Kokusai Service Is Dissolved

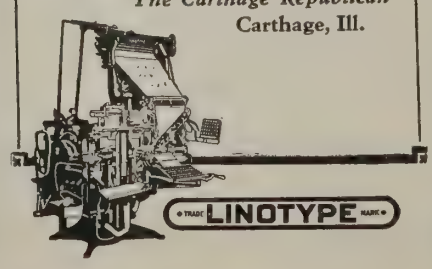
Representatives of the largest Japanese newspapers met in Tokio, April 26, and established a new non-profit making mutual news association similar to the Associated Press in America. At the same time dissolution of Kokusai, Japan's national news agency, was announced.

The Japanese name of the new association is the Nippon Shimbun Rengo, which, translated into English, is "The Associated Press of Japan." Eight newspapers, having 75 per cent of the total newspaper circulation of Japan, compose the charter membership. They are the Asahi, Nichi-Nichi, Hochi, Jiji, Kokumin and Chugai Shogyo of Tokio and the Asahi and Mainichi of Osaka.

Yukichi Iwanaga, who has been managing director of Kokusai, was elected to a similar position in the new organization.

The new news service was hailed as a great step in congratulatory messages cabled by Frank B. Noyes, president, and Kent Cooper, general manager, of the Associated Press.

"We are highly gratified at the formation of Rengo along the lines which made the Associated Press's initial co-operative effort so successful," Mr. Noyes cabled. "On behalf of the Associated Press and its members, I congratulate the organizers of Rengo, and extend best wishes for every success."



Mr. Cooper cabled: "The Associated Press of America welcomes the Associated Press of Japan into the fraternity of co-operative news associations. Heartiest congratulations."

The new association was the idea of Yukichi Iwanaga, formerly managing director of the Kokusai News Agency. F. Douglas Williams, New York representative of the new association, which is located at 383 Madison avenue, said yesterday that it had long been the ambition of Mr. Iwanaga to bring the newspapers of Japan into an association which would undertake for them the collection, supplying and distribution of world and local news.

Mr. Williams said that the eight newspapers which are charter members of the Rengo represent more than 75 per cent of the entire newspaper circulation of Japan.

U.P. Boston Office Moved

The New England bureau of the United Press Associations recently moved from its former quarters at 309 Washington street, Boston, to 262 Washington street, the old Boston Journal building.

From the Linotype Mailbag
MODEL 26
"work is done quickly and easily"
"The Model 26 Linotype has been in use in our shop since July 1, 1925, and has given perfect service all the time."
"Quick change magazines give us access to seven different faces of type. These faces can all be set on one slug and distributed simultaneously. The multiple distributor has given 100 per cent performance, often running for days without a stop during working hours."
"With our Model 26 we compose advertisements, high grade job work and much straight composition. The work is done quickly and easily, and the results are artistic."
"In combination with our Model 14, we consider our composing-room on a par with other shops having several machines of other models. We are issuing several weekly and monthly periodicals that have been highly complimented that are composed entirely on these two machines without a line of hand set type.
"The Model 26 is the most human machine we ever worked with, and we can recommend it as a comfort beyond words, in any shop."
The Carthage Republican
Carthage, Ill.

New Jersey Is Divided in Two—
We are content with the Southern Half Camden Courier
and the Morning Post
60,000 Circulation
Combination Rates
National Representatives
Story, Brooks & Finley

Luck can't take the place of navigation—for a ship any more than for a classified medium.
THE BASIL L. SMITH SYSTEM, Inc.
International Classified Advertising Counsellors
Packard Building Philadelphia

NEW YORK STATE
Westchester County's
Fastest Growing Cities
Mount Vernon and New Rochelle and The Vicinity Towns
Are Covered Completely by THE DAILY ARGUS
of
Mount Vernon
THE STANDARD STAR
of
New Rochelle
Both Members of A. B. C.
Westchester Newspapers, Inc.
Franklin A. Merriam, Pres.
Mount Vernon—New Rochelle

ADVERTISING AGENCY AFFAIRS

Athur E. Hobbs Elected Vice-President of Charles W. Hoyt Company, Inc.—Lyon Agency Moves to New Quarters—Agency Men Going to Europe—Hevner Joins Street & Finney

THUR E. HOBBS, managing di-ector of the Springfield office of Charles W. Hoyt Company, Inc., elected vice-president of the agency ie annual meeting held April 15.

Lon Advertising Agency, New York smoved its New York offices from Times Building to 270 Madison re.

Wesley Hevner, formerly with S. B. W. Fleisher, Inc., yarn manufactur-, Philadelphia, has joined the staff treet & Finney, Inc., New York, as e-resident and account executive.

Jn F. Hall, former newspaper man, s opened offices in the Professional iling, Los Angeles, where he will con-c a general advertising and publicity s ess.

Frmal opening of new offices of the I. Majewski Advertising System, Palm Beach, Fla., is scheduled for a 15.

A:Kenna-Muller, Brooklyn advertis-g gency, on April 26, moved from 186 r emon street, Brooklyn to the Temple rBuilding, 44 Court street.

Vilter S. Brown has joined the staff e John S. King Company, Inc., as ouction secretary. Mr. Brown was rerly assistant advertising manager ie Billings-Chapin Company, paint ufacturers, of Cleveland.

Ie Pitluk Advertising Company of nAntonio has opened an agency office 110 Post-Dispatch building, Houston. Houston office is in charge of Jay kinner, who for four years has been dvertising counsellor and copy writer ouston.

Doremus & Co., advertising agency, has opened offices in Los Angeles. The company was founded in New York by C. W. Barron, more than 20 years ago, and has offices in Chicago and Boston, in addition to the new office. C. W. Barron, president, is president of Dow Jones & Co., publishers of the Wall Street Journal. He also owns the Boston News Bureau, Philadelphia News Bureau and Barron's Weekly.

Standings in the Advertising Agency Baseball League, New York, were unchanged as the result of the second day's play, April 24. Ruthrauff & Ryan, Inc., defeated the Federal Advertising Agency, Inc., 7—2. Barton, Durstine & Osborn, Inc., came out on the long end of the 14—6 score in their game with the J. Walter Thompson Company. The H. K. McCann Company beat Frank Seaman, Inc., 4—2, and Calkins & Holden, Inc., won from Joseph Richards Company, Inc., 11—9. All four winners are tied at 1000 and the losers at 0.

The series will consist of seven games, ending June 5. The Walker Engraving Company will award a trophy—a silver cylinder on which appears the figure of a gold baseball player—to the winning team, and A. G. Spalding & Bros., a large silver baseball to the runners up. Awards will also be made to all members of the winning team, to the most valuable all-round player, and for the man who will also be given the title "Advertising's Babe Ruth."

Agency executives sailing for Europe this week from New York included: Frederick E. Richards, secretary of the Andrew Cone General Advertising Agency; Harry Dwight Smith, president of Fuller & Smith, Cleveland, and Earnest Elmo Calkins, president of Calkins & Holden, Inc.

WITH THE GENERAL ADVERTISERS

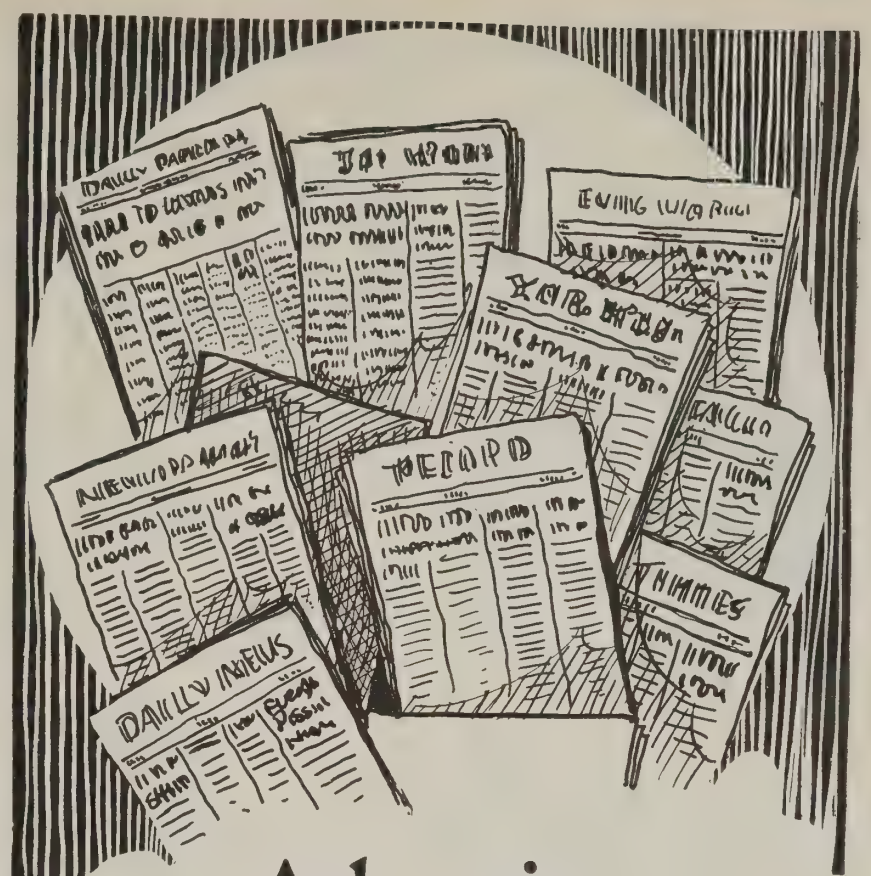
mith Typewriter Firm Starts Newspaper Campaign—Maltmolak to Be Promoted in Dailies—Colgate & Co. Appoints George Batten Company to Handle 1927 Campaign

C. SMITH & SONS, manufacturers f typewriters, this week started a inal newspaper campaign to run rgh the spring and fall, with a lapse rg the summer. The copy, designed apeal to business executives, was pre-r by Barton, Durstine & Osborn, Inc. York, agency handling the account.

Declared as preliminary to a national mpaign in the newspapers, a test drive ng conducted in dailies by the Dern many, Colorado Springs, Col., for its duct, "Tenmor-Derngood Coffee." The rtising agency in charge is the Hath-a Advertising Service, Colorado rings.

The 1927 advertising of Colgate & Co., be handled by George Batten Com-y Inc., New York. This company is ely directing the advertising of Col-e Rapid Shave Cream, but will, here-e also prepare and place the adver-n of Colgate's Ribbon Dental Cream, b Cashmere Bouguet soap, and other lgate lines.

Changes have recently been made in the m and the personnel of the company nufacturing Armour's Oats, an ac-nt handled by the Mitchell-Faust Ad-rtising Company, Chicago. The e manufacturing division of the Ar-ur Grain Company is now a separate poration named Mapl-Flake Mills, c. (cq.), 208 South La Salle street, icago. George E. Marcy, formerly sident of the company, has retired m active executive participation and is chairman of the board of directors. Matters relating to advertising are in charge of J. A. Mander, vice-president of the company.



A newspaper campaign is planned to promote "maltmolak," product of the Marshak Maltmolak Company, Brooklyn. The schedule is being drawn up by Churchill-Hall, Inc., New York.

Salt Lake City will use 22 metropolitan newspapers this year in its community advertising campaign. The money to finance the drive was raised last year. About $70,000 was collected. General chairman of the campaign is Gov. George H. Dern.

Sid Grauman, Hollywood theater owner, announced this week the organization of a $20,000,000 concern to operate theaters in 22 cities with a population of more than 500,000.

Newspapers are to be included in a co-operative advertising campaign to be conducted by the Irish and Scottish Linen Damask Guild, Inc., an organization recently formed in New York. Hommann, Tarcher & Cornell, Inc., New York advertising agency, has been appointed advertising counsel.

Collin A. Campbell, formerly sales promotion manager of the Marmon Motor Car Company, Indianapolis, has joined the Stutz Motor Car Company of America, Inc., as sales development manager.

Advertise to the Hoosiers— through this group of newspapers . . .

The people of Indiana are interested in politics and world events. They follow the news carefully. Hoosiers are known for the great interest they show in their community, state and nation.

The daily papers serve as their guide and you can reach them in no better way than through the daily press.

When you are ready to plan your advertising campaign, let these papers show you the market possibilities of Indiana for your goods.

They have the facts for you to go by—facts that will show you the stability of Indiana's business.

	Circulation	Rate for 5000 lines
Columbus Republican (E)	4,912	.03
††Connersville News-Examiner (E)	4,681	.025
†Decatur Democrat (E)	3,194	.025
Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette (M)	35,247	.08
Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette (S)	28,468	.08
*Fort Wayne News-Sentinel (E)	42,168	.10
*Gray Evening Post-Tribune (E)	15,019	.06
†Hammond Times (E)	17,127	.06
Huntington Press (M&S)	4,079	.025
††Indianapolis News (E)	128,341	.25
Lafayette Journal & Courier (M) 7,878 (E) 13,583	21,461	.06
††La Porte Herald-Argus (E)	6,726	.04
†Shelbyville Democrat (E)	4,012	.025
*South Bend News-Times (M) 9,634 (E) 15,671	25,305	.07
*South Bend News-Times (S)	23,249	.07
††South Bend Tribune (S) 21,431 (E)	22,254	.06
††Terre Haute Tribune (E&S)	23,442	.06

*A. B. C. Publishers' Statement, Oct. 1, 1925.
†Government Statement, Oct. 1, 1925.
A. B. C. Publishers' Statement, March 31, 1926.
††Government Statement, March 31, 1926.

DEPARTMENT AUTONOMY WON SUCCESS FOR PALO ALTO TIMES PARTNERS

Three Men Have Followed Strict Non-Interference Policy in Building Strong Local Daily Within 30 Miles of San Francisco Metropolitan Journals

By ANDREW R. BOONE

FOR six years three men, all graduates of the same university, each a part owner and each maintaining absolute autonomy in his department, have managed, edited and manufactured a daily newspaper without any friction among them.

WILLIAM F. HENRY

One is a Democrat, the second a Republican and the third — but that doesn't matter. Each has autonomy of his department, consequently the Democratic editor decides it shall be an independent newspaper.

The paper is known to a comparatively small clientele, as newspaper circulations are generally computed, as the Palo Alto (Cal.) Daily Times. It enters 3,000 homes within the immediate vicinity of Palo Alto every afternoon but Sunday.

It gives more space to the arguments of the opposition on issues favored by the Times than to its friends and in the face of intensive metropolitan opposition originating in the offices of six great San Francisco dailies thrives and keeps away active local competition.

GEORGE MORRELL

But this is not wholly a story about a newspaper, but concerns primarily the men behind the scenes—George Morrell, manager and owner; Dallas E. Wood, editor and part owner; and William F. Henry, foreman of the mechanical department and part owner.

These men have known nothing but the newspaper business since all three attended Stanford University and prepared to become, one a teacher, the others lawyers. Henry studied English. He also married while yet a student. Necessity sent him in 1900 to the composing room of the Times, then a weekly. Since that time he has been identified with the publication, through its various progressive stages.

Wood studied law, gave that up in favor of a prune ranch and before the first crop had been gathered turned his thoughts toward dissemination of news and ideas. He, too, had smelled the smell of printer's ink in college, as a correspondent for nearby papers.

Morrell, the business head of the trio, attended college with Wood. They became friends. He studied law to become a better business man. But he dabbled in the business end of publishing while learning his advanced A.B.C.'s and as a result was innoculated by the same germ.

1919! H. W. Simpkins, Republican, and W. D. Kelly, Democrat, owned the Palo Alto Times. Since 1892, when first it was established as a weekly newspaper for the purpose of exchanging news between the local community and Stanford University, then opening its doors for the first time, it had been independent of party. In its columns any one with a word could find expression.

DALLAS E. WOOD

Simpkins, who later wrote brilliant editorials for the now defunct San Francisco Journal, published in one column of the Palo Alto Times caustic criticisms of the Democratic party, its policies and methods. And in the adjoining column Kelly set forth his views of the Republican party, which, it must be recorded, were no less pronounced in their praise of all the Jeffersonians stood for.

By 1919 the two editor-managers came to the crossroads. Under their administration the enterprise had not shown a sufficient financial return and at that time Morrell, Wood and Henry came together again.

"I propose," said Morrell to Wood and Henry, "that we purchase this paper. I will run the business office. You, Wood, will be editor. And you, Henry, will have absolute control of the mechanical department."

The other two agreed and forthwith they commenced the experiment, each agreed to let the others alone in their conduct of their respective dominions. Each had to stand or fall by his own efforts.

And by these four principles they have succeeded in so pleasing all factions in the community that no outsider during these six years has received any encou agement from business men or reade when he proposed to establish a ri newspaper:

1. The Times shall cover the lo news field thoroughly. (By local meant all that district from which merchants of the city may draw trade.
2. The Times shall go into every ho at least once.
3. The Times shall give all factio an opportunity for full expression.
4. The Times shall demonstra through superior service, that an ad

Palo Alto Times plant

in Detroit—

Free Press city circulation reaches 31,000 more than the total number of families owning their own homes.

THE DETROIT "FREE PRESS"

"Starts the day in Detroit"

BIROTADRUCK

HYDRAULIC MATRICE PRESS

Direct pressure under complete control. Fast, positive, non-vibrating, hydraulic operation.

The New York Times uses Birotadruck Hydraulic Matrice Moulding Presses exclusively.

For full information and sample pages address

AMERICAN BIROTADRUCK CO., Inc.
120 West 42nd Street
New York

TO ENTERPRISING EDITORS

Church advertising is virtually a new field for men with ideas, and new ideas on this phase of advertising are springing forth regularly.

At the international advertising convention in Philadelphia, June 19th to 24th, advertising men, pastors and editors will meet in conference to discuss this very timely subject.

Twenty-five or thirty competent speakers have already been scheduled to speak in the pulpits of Philadelphia churches on Sunday, June 20th, and the program for the departmental sessions on Tuesday and Wednesday, June 22nd and 23rd.

Are you planning to be among those present at the Church Advertising Department sessions?

We suggest that you make your hotel reservations early.

Church Advertising Department
ASSOCIATED ADVERTISING CLUBS,
383 Madison Avenue
New York, N. Y.

ical paper would be an economic waste o advertisers and readers.

f the three owners, Henry has by a the least spectacular public role to l. And so, by first appearances, the dor and the manager have built up the er from a circulation of less than 1,000 in only seven subscribers paid up for riod longer than one month, to 3,000- subscribers with more than half paid for six months or a year.

ny executive knows that smoothness operation spells away many ills. The anical department of the Palo Alto es has perhaps as small a labor turn- as any newspaper in the United es. When a linotype operator or man comes to the Times, he stays. reason is simple. He is treated with tesy and consideration and given well ed, warm quarters in which to work. h the same reason explains why the rial department draws its workers the nearby university, members of up usually attracted to the cities for newspaper jobs.

sults of improvements on the paper ared more quickly through the ef- of the editorial and business offices. type is not always recognized by readers while a changed editorial ir becomes immediately apparent. And hants are quick to appreciate added tising service.

nsequently, I set down here Mor- added principles, not usually formal- pressed, by which the paper has such a substantial growth in what nerally considered a "high brow" munity. They express a lesson which business man could easily apply to wn affairs and any individual to his ess and private life.

uild on a rock."

ve your customers and your friends than they expect."

impartial and fair in all dealings."

the beginning Wood decided the should be independent, and it is cy that. No party as such finds with it. Yet it will take a vigor- stand on any worth-while issue, ical or otherwise.

What is the news 'policy' of the ?" I asked Wood.

We consider it a country paper, al- we are only 30 miles from San risco and in its field," he replied. e usually finds the news columns ountry paper filled with personalities itorial comment. Editorial attitudes eligiously kept out of the news ns. We confine them to the editorial end all news is made impersonal. r readers are of a type that want candal, and so we try to give them news, stories of scientific advance- and political news."

w have you managed to keep out ition when the community has 50 per cent in five years?" I said orrell, business manager, pointing t especially in the west the business is tend to grow faster than resi- demands.

have not attempted to establish a oly," he declared, "but by giving r service in our different depart- have caused the merchants to be contented with our product.

advertising in one paper, they get distribution in 11 towns and cities. h an arrangement with a nearby we handle local advertising for blication. This adds three com- ts to the advertising coverage, completes the entire area local nts hope to reach.

"We have never offered special inducements to obtain new readers. Consistent soliciting has been the only means employed.

"On the advertising end, rates for contracted advertising are from 25 to 80 per cent lower than for transient advertising. Contracts are made on a six-months basis, one-sixth to be used each month and the agreements are automatically renewable unless terminated by the notice of either party. Thus some contracts continue to run for several times the specified original term without change."

Apportioning the advertising on a monthly basis assured the paper of a stabilized income during its early days and has proved an excellent factor in spreading the advertising evenly instead of loading the paper at the beginning or the end of the contract period.

The true success of the Palo Alto Times is found in its service-plus policy. Morrell asks the advertisers to change their copy every day, with no additional expense to the advertiser. The composing room cost runs higher, but—"we want changing ads in the paper as this is necessary to get results for the advertiser. Results! They build their businesses and ours."

How to Get a Job

Nonchalance of Approach Stressed in Prof. Sim Posium's Course For Neophytes—Vigorous Back-Slapping Urged

By ED. MEISBERGER

COURSE 2E-2. Curriculum in Journalism—"How to Get a Job"; class meets every Tues., Wed. and Fri. at 10 a. m. Prof. Sim Posium. Specifications—Not to be taken too seriously; may be followed by course in "How To Hold It."

Following is sample of instruction given aspiring journalists:

If you are indisposed you may call city editor of prospective newspaper by long distance and inquire if there is an opening. Be sure to have call charged to newspaper.

If calling in person, approach city editor when he is rushing copy through for an edition.

In event the city editor does not observe you the instant of your arrival at his desk, throw one leg over the corner of desk and toss your hat in the copy basket.

To relieve the strain of waiting, the prospective journalist should turn to the assistant city editor and remark, the same while pointing to the man he is waiting to see, "Is this guy the city editor?"

Just as the city editor looks up and is about to speak, rush over to a far corner of the room and give the clasp to a fraternity brother you have recognized. City editors are strong for brotherly love.

The prospective journalist then may return to the city editor, confident the display of friendship with a member of the staff had made an impression.

It is best to open the conversation with the city editor by saying, "Well, I've come up to go to work for you. Father wants me to take a rest trip, but I want to get back into the game."

If city editor inquires what is meant by "being back in the game" show him clippings of your correspondence to your home town paper. Also inform city editor you have sent stories to leading magazines. Have rejection proofs handy for verification.

Do not neglect to tell city editor of your social connections, family tree and that your father often plays poker with the owner of the paper.

Much may be gained by informing city editor you want to start in as dramatic critic or as a feature writer. State in no uncertain terms the salary you desire, threatening to go to New York if you are not paid sufficiently.

If the city editor announces his pleasure of putting you on the staff, give him to understand you will not be able to report for work for several days, as you have theater parties and tea dansants dated for the interim.

Call city editor by first name, slap him on the back and bid him goodday.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER's classified columns "turn the trick."

NEWSPAPER "TODAY'S BIBLE"

Springfield Pastor Urges Daily Reading—Praises Editors

"The newspaper is the Bible of today, telling of the battles of right and wrong, the progress of Truth and the courage and valor of those who love her," said Rev. Elmer D. Colcord, Springfield, Mass., pastor, in his Sunday sermon. He added the injunction that a man "ought to read his newspaper as religiously as he does his Bible, to find out what has happened in God's great world during the past 24 hours."

"The least useful part of the paper is the people's forum," he said.

"There ought to be a ruling that no one person should send in more than one contribution in two weeks.

"I never read a newspaper without feeling a little bit of wistfulness. It might do so much more for human welfare and progress. The presence of a great and good editor in a community can work a social millennium.

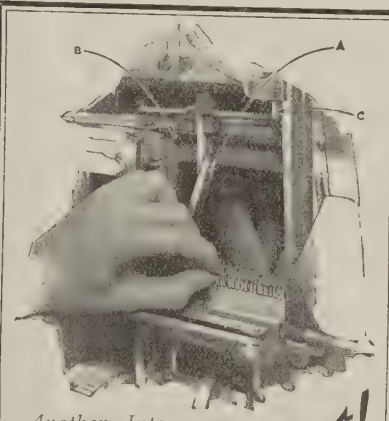
"This is the kind of editor who gives no tolerance to wrong, nor pretended ease to the paths of waywardness, nor encouragement to those who seek to evade the common law," the minister concluded.

CIRCULATION BUILDING SUPREMACY

We opened 1926 with the greatest newspaper campaign ever conducted, and secured over $300,000 in prepaid subscriptions for The Cleveland Plain Dealer. We can attain similar success for you!

THOUSANDS OF NEW, PREPAID, BONA-FIDE HOME-DELIVERED SUBSCRIBERS SECURED IN TEN WEEKS' TIME

HOLLISTER'S Circulation Organization



Wire or Write us at 717-718 Commercial Exchange Bldg., LOS ANGELES

Largest Evening Circulation in Largest Market

For 26 consecutive years the Evening Journal has had the largest evening circulation in America—concentrated in New York and suburbs. More than DOUBLE the circulation of any other New York evening paper.

NEW YORK JOURNAL

America's Largest Evening Circulation and at 3c a copy

Another Intertype time-saver

Convenient!

Intertype Line Delivery Carriage

The hinge (A) saves time; facilitates corrections in the assembler.

Prevents breakage of spacebands.

Improved release (B) and handy grip (C) are typical minor Intertype improvements.

INTERTYPE CORPORATION
1440-A Broadway, New York

Standardized INTERTYPE

Profit-Making Features—No. 10

Gaining Circulation and Prestige

The Baltimore News gained 16,251 circulation in February over the same period a year ago. The Baltimore American gained 10,175 circulation during the same period.

This alone is convincing proof of the rapid strides that have been made in this great market of nearly a million souls by the fastest growing newspapers in Baltimore.

Sold separately or in combination.

THE BALTIMORE NEWS

and

Baltimore American

PAYNE, BURNS & SMITH CO.
Eastern Representatives

G. LOGAN PAYNE CO.
Western Representative

Item-Tribune
RNING-EVENING-SUNDAY

OMPLETE COVERAGE
at one cost
,000 circulation—20c a line week-days

ver New Orleans At ONE Cost

FIVE OFFERS OF AID REACH VANDERBILT

(Continued from page 5)

the number of stockholders has been reduced to 5,000 and the experts placed in charge of the reorganization report that with $300,000 the three newspapers can in six months be put on a paying basis with flowing profits and vastly increased circulation.

"Clarence Darrow and I, representing Mr. Vanderbilt, have been carefully studying all the circumstances of this situation and we feel it would be little short of tragic not to be able to meet this financial exigency.

"Mr. Vanderbilt, with splendid ideals and courage, has not been happy merely to live off the income of a vast family fortune, but has gone out to help create something splendid and progressive in the field of journalism. A young man of wealth who turns from a parasitic life to make a contribution to sound public opinion and citizenship should receive generous approval.

"Mr. Vanderbilt has received no profits from his newspapers, and even his salary has for many months past been used to meet corporation obligations and expenses. At serious costs to his health he has made and will make every effort to preserve his newspaper chain and save his stockholders' investment. No more gallant effort has ever come within my professional experience.

"This unusual announcement of the above emergency has seemed necessary because of the unexpected urgency of the situation.

"Dudley Field Malone."

To the reporters, young Vanderbilt and his lawyer, Mr. Malone, appeared "brimming with optimism."

"Everything will come through all right," both reiterated.

The attorney explained that the method adopted for making the situation public was Mr. Vanderbilt's own idea. Cornelius, he said, wanted to make the statement in this, perhaps unusual way, because he wanted to reach as many people as he possibly could.

Mr. Vanderbilt gave the figures on the amount of the capital stock and told how it was held.

"I started with about $115,000," he said, "and last year the gross earnings of the three newspapers were $2,165,000. We expected a gross of $3,000,000 at the end of our fiscal year, which would be June 1. For the next six months, according to the estimates of experts, we face a monthly income of $165,000."

He was asked to tell how the $5,000,000 stock which had been issued was divided.

"There are about 50,000 shares of preferred stock which has a par of $100 a share. There are about 100,000 shares of common stock of no par. We usually issued two shares of common for every share of preferred. No dividends have been paid, of course. What claim would the stockholders have in the event the $300,000 is not obtained? Well, I don't know; much of the stock has changed hands. You see, under the California law, when stock changes hands, the second or later holder has no claim against the corporation."

He said experts on newspaper properties, representing his family as well as himself, had surveyed the three newspapers and their plants and had reported that $300,000 would be needed to tide them over the ensuing six months. Mr. Vanderbilt said that if this period could be spanned, the income of the papers would enable him to continue their publication.

The report of the experts was delivered four weeks ago. Mr. Vanderbilt said his father had definitely refused further financial aid, through demand notes, last Friday. He was asked whether the Vanderbilt family objected to tabloids.

"It wasn't a question of tabloids or the blanket size of a newspaper," he said with a laugh. "It was the family's aversion to newspapers and to my participation therein. My family opposed my going into journalism. After the report they said they didn't want to put any more money into it, but I said I would stand to the last ditch."

Mr. Vanderbilt said he had a staff of 1,600 on the three newspapers. The total of employees, he added, was 8,000, but this included newsboys hired to deliver newspapers on routes. When he was asked how long the newspapers could carry on, if the $300,000, were not obtained, Mr. Malone interjected with a laugh:

"That's within the realm of God," a statement which brought a nod from Mr. Vanderbilt.

Mr. Vanderbilt said he had undergone fourteen operations in the last year. He was ill from an infected jaw at Atlanta last November and spent some time early this year at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore. He attributed his ill health to overwork.

"It is too bad that this has to come after fourteen operations," he said.

Tug Named for Ship News Man

A large and modern tug, recently launched on the Willamette river, was christened for W. E. Mahoney, veteran marine editor of the Portland Oregonian. Joseph Supple, ship builder, named the vessel as a recognition of 20 years' work by Mahoney in reporting ship news at Portland.

To Continue "Getting Ahead" Bureau

The Chicago Evening American has announced that it will continue its Getting Ahead bureau, a daily feature in which prominent men and women of the city offer advice to people, young and old, striving to get ahead in the world. A. D. Lasker, president of Lord & Thomas advertising agency, Charles H. Markham, president of the Illinois Central Railroad, Albert M. Johnson, chairman of the board of the National Life Insurance Company, T. F. Mersels, president, Montgomery Ward & Co. Samuel Insull, public utilities magnate, Dr. Anna Dwyer, Mrs. Ora H. Snyder, head of Mrs. Snyder's candy stores, Mrs. Jacob Bauer, and Mrs. Mabel Reinecke, collector of internal revenue, Chicago district, are among the editors of the bureau.

FLASHES

Premier Briand declines to marry. He never should think of it until he gets a steady job.—Milwaukee Journal.

Emerson's remark about the world making a beaten path to a house in the woods where better stuff is made was certainly prophetic.—Florence (Ala.) Herald.

It might help some if at sixty miles the speedometer would bring into view a miniature ball and chain.—Schenectady Gazette.

Herrin seems to stay converted only about long enough to clean its gun.—Columbus (Ohio) State Journal.

A Washington magazine has just closed a contest on "What is a Democrat?" There were 8,000 definitions—all different, of course.—Dallas News.

General Andrews says embalming fluid is being used in the manufacture of present-day whisky. This, in time, should reduce the mortician's art to the simple matter of laying the lily on the victim's chest.—Arkansas Gazette.

Whatever else Gen. Smedley D. Butler may be, he never will be acclaimed the life of a party.—Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph.

There is always a way of salvation, and the Charleston is doing wonders for muscles almost ruined by the flivver habit.—Washington Post.

The churches have tried about everything except swinging half-doors.—Passaic News.

There's always a bright side. Eventually the franc will have nowhere to go but up.—Newark Ledger.

With girls making 99 out of a poss 100 bull's-eyes, putting the shot 30 and doing the 100-yard dash in 11 onds, there won't be much chance a man after a while either to duck run.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

It is said that 150,000 boys will gra ate from American high schools summer. They will have 300,000 h not one of which will grip a plow-ha an ax helve or an engine throttl Houston Post-Dispatch.

Dr. Mayo declares walking is the exercise one can take. So it is, Do it is—if you can find any place to v —Milwaukee Journal.

John Galsworthy, the English nov deplores the number of wild animals in captivity in this country. Perhap was referring to the tigers.—Indiana Star.

If Quality

of circulation is your first consi eration

The Evening St

With Sunday Morning Editio

Washington, D. C.

will have your preference—sa as it has the preference of pra tically everyone in the Natio Capital.

The Star's circulation is ho circulation—both quality and qua tity—the kind that counts m with advertisers.

New York Office — 110 E. 42nd Dan A. Carroll

Chicago Office — Tower Buildi J. E. Lutz

For the First Three Months of 1926

THE TAMPA MORNING TRIBUNE

printed 7,355,276 lines of Advertis and thus moved up from twelfth SIXTH place among the newspaper the United States.

The only newspapers printing a gre volume of advertising during that pe than The Tribune were the M Herald, the St. Petersburg Times, Detroit News, the Chicago Tribune the New York Times.

The Tribune covers the rich S Florida territory of 24 counties and cities and towns, with a populatio 713,943.

That's Why Its Advertising Vol Grows

The S. C. Beckwith Special Agenc National Representatives.

HOW WELL ARE YOU "COVERED" IN QUEENS?

In Queens, The "Home Borough" of New York City, the total combined circulation of the Metropolitan evening newspapers is 13,725 in the territory served by the Daily Star.

The circulation of The Daily Star, the dominant newspaper of Queens, was 22,115 (circulation statement March 31, 1926.)

Are you satisfied to touch only the high spots here and there, or do you want real coverage in the Borough of Homes?

Can You Afford to Leave THE DAILY STAR Off Your List?

Publication Office: Star Square, Long Island City, Borough of Queens, New York City.

BUILDINGS PLANT LAYOUTS PRODUCTION OPERATION

An organization specializing solely in newspaper building design, manufacturing and production problems.

S. P. WESTON

Newspaper Buildings
Plant Layouts
Production, Operation

120 West 42nd Street New York

THE WELFARE COMMITTEE
of the
INTERNATIONAL CIRCULATION MANAGERS ASSOCIATION

Can supply you with competent circulation men of capacity and ability capable to take entire charge of your department or to fill important posts in the department.

Address the Secretary-Treasurer please, Mr. Clarence Eyster, care Star Building, Peoria, Ill.

creating
Impression!

nearly half the 2013 national advertisers using the Cleveland Plain Dealer in 1925 used it exclusively.

The Plain Dealer

ONE Medium — ONE Cost ALONE Will sell it

J. B. Woodward 110 E. 42d St. New York

Woodward & Kelly 360 N. Mich. Ave. Chicago

The DES MOINES CAPITAL

Completely covers Des Moines' entire trade territory for you at a rate of 14c per line.

It is the best Advertising buy in the mid-west

O'Mara & Ormsbee
Special Representatives

The DES MOINES CAPITAL
Lafayette Young
Publisher

SIX CENTS LIBEL LOSS IN 21 YEARS

(Continued from page 9)

go a long way. And it is well to remember, too, that a plaintiff's character must be above question to sue for real damages. It often happens that people of shiftless and doubtful character, technically libeled, are induced by a shyster lawyer to file suit, so that he can collect a $200 fee, the usual nuisance value of a small town libel action.

"Don't concede anything until every angle is investigated. If the person has been libeled and has a character that can be damaged, make amends—and swiftly.

"When you find you are at fault and have wrongfully offended an individual, try, of course, first to settle the affair out of court.

"Serious loss rarely results when the paper, recognizing its mistake, publishes a prompt retraction and offers cash amends."

The libel action against the New York World, which offered Mr. Dapping experience as a legal investigator in his early newspaper days concerned a handwriting expert involved in a Boston will case about 15 years ago. Millions of dollars depended upon the outcome of the will dispute, and the chirographer was an important witness.

While court was in session, the reporter saw the expert pick up an exhibit, examine it carefully and breathe upon it. He wrote the scene into his story carried by wire into the World office. It was implied libel, of course, the insinuation being that the witness had tampered with the exhibit. Because of the way it was written, it was not extremely dangerous. A man on the World's copy desk wrote into the head bluntly "Expert Tampers With Exhibit."

Noted lawyers were engaged by the World to fight the subsequent libel case, but the jury awarded the Plaintiff $15,000. He had demanded $50,000. The action was carried to a higher court, where the decision was reversed and a second trial granted. There a better defense was made and the $15,000 was cut to $2,200, and the case closed. The amount seems small, but who knows the extent of the legal fees and other expenses contingent with the case?

Was the copyreader fired?

Perhaps he learned his lesson and is the most reliable man on the staff today. According to Mr. Dapping's policy and belief, he most certainly should not have lost his job, unless he had previously been a habitual offender.

"Keep the man who wears one libel scar," Mr. Dapping advises. "If he survives a libel suit, he is apt to be an extremely careful reporter the rest of his newspaper career.

"It is a mistake to fire a reporter for the libellous mistake. There is no more reason in being unjust and injuring an honest reporter who has made a mistake in good faith, than there is in doing an injustice to the person whom his error has libeled.

"Of course, a habitual offender is too dangerous and costly to support. But, if a newspaper man gets into a scrape once and emerges creditably, nine times out of ten his value to his office has been immeasurably increased."

Next week Mr. Dapping will from his 21 years' experience in the small city field furnish facts for the eighth article in EDITOR & PUBLISHER'S libel series. It will tell of the libel dangers lurking in the notes sent in to state editors by country correspondents, and will suggest ways of guarding against this news hazard. This article will be entitled "Those Libellous Country Correspondents."

OREGON MEETING JUNE 18-19

Speakers Named for State Editorial Association Convention

A group of interesting speakers has been obtained for the annual session of the Oregon State Editorial Association, which will be held in Prineville, June 18 and 19.

Dr. C. A. Prosser, in charge of the Dunwoody Institute for Boys at Minneapolis, will tell the editors how newspapers may help solve boys' problems. Luke S. May, Seattle criminologist; Nathan Eckstein, Seattle business man; Lewis A. McArthur of the Oregon geographical board, and Marshall N. Dana, associate editor of the Portland Oregon Journal, will also be on the program.

R. H. Jonas, publisher of the Central Oregonian and chairman of arrangements, has announced that the entertainment will include a buckaroo breakfast on a large ranch near Prineville and that the newspaper men will be expected to don chaps and sombreros and use bronchos for transportation to and from the ranch.

Besides Mr. Jonas those attending the committee meeting were: A. L. Mallery and Arne G. Rae, both of Tillamook; Hal E. Hoss of Oregon City; R. A. Cronise of Albany, and Joseph D. Thomison of Hood River.

GILLROY HEADS SPHINX CLUB

New Officers Announced At Annual Ladies' Night Dinner-Dance

The annual ladies' night dinner and dance of the Sphinx Club was held Wednesday night in the grand ball room of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. A fine program of entertainment was presented, and speeches were made by Sir Charles Higham, of London, England; George McManus, cartoonist and creator of "Bringing Up Father," and Charles Dana Gibson, publisher of Life.

The newly elected officers of the Sphinx Club for the coming season are: President, James P. Gillroy; vice-presidents, Preston P. Lynn, Charles Dana Gibson, George Ethridge, William H. Rankin, John Irving Romer and James Wright Brown; executive committee, R. F. R. Huntsman, chairman, and Stanley R. Latshaw, George Howland, Gilbert T. Hodges, Frank W. Harwood, Herbert Everett, James O'Flaherty; secretary, Roger J. O'Donnell; treasurer, F. St. John Richards.

GEORGIA PRESS TAKES TRIP TO HAVANA

Association Members Lavishly Entertained During Four-Day Stay in Cuban Capital—Annual Meeting August 9-11

Members of the Georgia Press Association reached Tampa Wednesday returning from their cruise to Havana where the annual Winter frolic was held. The Association held a short business session at Valdosta, Ga., April 21, with an address by ex-Governor Osborne of Michigan as the principal feature. A special train was taken to St. Petersburg, where the group was tendered a breakfast by the St. Petersburg newspapers and the Chamber of Commerce. There were talks by members of the Press Association, the mayor, and the secretary of the Chamber of Commerce. The party left Port Tampa Thursday afternoon on the steamship Cuba. At Key West representatives of the Mayor of Havana, the Havana Association of Reporters, and others met the ship and accompanied the visitors. Havana was reached Friday afternoon.

Four days of elaborate entertainment followed. There were luncheons, banquets, auto rides, a trip to Mantanpos and other features.

Upon arrival in Havana the visitors went direct to the city hall where D. Louis Carmona, secretary to the mayor received them and presented the keys of the city. The Hotel Plaza was headquarters for the visitors and much entertaining was done there, the principal feature being a banquet on the roof garden tendered the visitors by Alfredo Ornedo, editor of El Pais. This was an elaborate affair and there were addresses by the host, Ernest Camp, president of the Georgia Press Association, Gordon Saussy, of Savannah, attorney of the Association and Royal Daniel, editor of the Valdosta Times.

The Havana arrangements were in charge of representatives of El Mindo La Discussion, the Commerce El Sol, Diario Espanol and other papers.

Tuesday before leaving Havana Gerardo Machado, Cuban President, received the visitors in the Gort Palace.

Dates for annual meeting of the Association were fixed for Aug. 9-10-11 at Louisville, Ga. Side trips will be made to Waynesboro and Augusta, and Asheville, N. C.

Waters Again Re-elected

W. G. Waters of Des Moines, Ia., was re-elected president of the Missouri Valley Typographical Union for the eighth time at the annual convention at Pittsburg, Kan., recently. The vote was unanimous.

Buffalo, The Wonder City of America

Buffalo—A Profitable Market for Advertisers

Sales in Buffalo are splendid for advertised goods. Employment conditions excellent, retail and other business thriving. One newspaper will put your story over to 83% of the people—that paper is the

BUFFALO EVENING NEWS

Read in 4 out of 5 Buffalo Homes

Edward H. Butler, Editor and Publisher
Kelly-Smith Company, Representatives
Marbridge Bldg. New York, N. Y. — Tribune Tower Chicago, Ill.
Atlantic Bldg. Philadelphia — Waterman Bldg. Boston

IN some cities, the "leading" newspaper may have merely a few hundred more circulation than its competitor. The Press has 40,000 more net paid circulation in Pittsburgh than the other two evening newspapers combined—and 35,000 more net paid circulation in Pittsburgh than the other two Sunday newspapers combined.

THE PITTSBURGH PRESS

A Scripps-Howard Newspaper
Member of the A. B. C.

have you been following the remarkable growth of the Detroit Times

THE JUDGMENT OF EXPERTS IN DALLAS!

During 1925 The Dallas Times Herald carried 495,507 lines more Department Store advertising than the next Dallas newspaper.

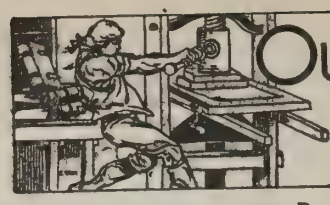
During the first two months of 1926 The Times Herald carried 82,734 lines more Department Store advertising than the next Dallas paper.

THE TIMES HERALD
First in Dallas
S. C. BECKWITH SPECIAL AGENCY
National Representatives

Regional Advertising at Regional Rates in The Christian Science Monitor

An International Daily Newspaper
Publishing SELECTED ADVERTISING
ATLANTIC, CENTRAL and PACIFIC Editions
Rates and Circulation Data Supplied on Request
ADVERTISING OFFICES
Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, New York, London, Paris, Florence, Kansas City, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle, Portland
"Buy What You Can Use"

Cover Fashions by Printing Fashion News



See samples of Our New Daily Service by wire or mail

FAIRCHILD Newspaper Services
8 East 13th St. New York

Dominant in the rich Louisville field

The Courier-Journal THE LOUISVILLE TIMES

Represented Nationally by
The S. C. BECKWITH Special Agency

Our Own World of Letters

By JAMES MELVIN LEE

TO read "Our Times" (Charles Scribner's Sons) by Mark Sullivan is like reading in a newspaper the story of some performance we had witnessed the night before. The author is evidently going to let his story run and in the present volume confines himself to "The Turn of the Century" (1900-1904). Of course the late nineties furnished the background.

The volume is an account of newspaper items for newspaper readers by a newspaper worker. Consequently, although it deals with past events, it has all the freshness and raciness of today's press. Part of the charm of the volume comes from the advertisements which are reprinted. The contrast in the classified sections is most striking, as the ads reproduced on page 18 will show. Some words, not yet in the dictionary, tell their own story about motion pictures, aviation, radio, etc. Even the index reminds one of the quarterly volume put out by the New York Times.

Anything that Sullivan might write would have to have some mention of politics. But the author is a reporter and not a pleader. He deals more with personalities than with parties. By way of illustrations he reproduces newspaper cartoons which recall numerous artists who are not at present drawing for the press.

In this story of the American people at the turn of the century Mr. Sullivan tells about their fads and fancies, their foibles and follies, their comedies and tragedies, their books and songs. But why reprint the index?

Of the editorial, "What's the Matter with Kansas?" after its first appearance in the Emporia Gazette, Mr. Sullivan speaks as follows:

A copy of the paper fell into the hands of Paul Morton, a Chicago man, who, as a native of the country west of the Mississippi, took pains to keep informed about conditions in that territory. Morton, happening to meet Herman Kohlsaat, publisher of the Chicago Times-Herald, told him he had just read an editorial in a little Kansas paper giving a striking picture of conditions which, Morton said, Chicago and the East ought to know about. Kohlsaat asked Morton to send him the paper. The next day Kohlsaat printed the editorial in the Times-Herald. As soon as that edition reached New York the Sun gave it a second impetus.

As a result of this sequence of merit, accident and appreciation, there trickled in to the young man, on his vacation in the Colorado mountains, news that he had become famous. He had the substance to live up to the reputation that came so adventitiously. As William Allen White he became and remained a national character, as much beloved for his friendliness and whimsicalness as admired for his devotion to every fine ideal; with a reputation not only as a spokesman of his local community and a political philosopher, but also as a novelist and short-story writer with a high place in the American literature of his time.

But Mr. Sullivan was not able to get all the material he wanted for his volume. In discussing the book with him recently in Washington he told me he was very anxious to obtain a cartoon that represented a cow standing with her forefeet on Western states and her hind feet on Wall Street. She was, of course, being milked. Possibly some reader of EDITOR & PUBLISHER can tell Mr. Sullivan where a copy of this cartoon may be found.

It is needless to say that the follow-up stories of "Our Times" to take up the years following the turn of the century will be awaited with interest by every one who has read the present volume.

* * *

WHAT every newspaper man ought to know about the freedom of the press and the public confidence may be found in the Century Magazine for May in an article under the caption "An Unfortunate Necessity." Its author, Gerald W. Johnson, is a professor of journalism at the University of North Carolina, Raleigh, N. C.

Mr. Johnson tells the newspaper men some things they ought to know about John Milton who blazed the trail for copy readers on English newspapers and who was an early champion for the freedom of unlicensed printing. But Milton's "Areopagitica" is not treated so much in detail as is the first amendment to the Constitution. This amendment, as is pointed out in the article, did not affirm that freedom of the press should never be abridged but only denied that Congress is the authority by which it is to be abridged.

In one paragraph of the article the following mention is made of a symposium conducted by EDITOR & PUBLISHER:

Not long ago the courts had to concern themselves with a case too nauseating to name. The evidence was of a nature to shock Dr. Krafft-Ebing, not to mention a layman; yet thousands of words of that evidence were sent out daily and printed in the public journals. While the stink was at its most terrific, EDITOR & PUBLISHER, a trade journal, published the answers to a questionnaire it had sent to editors all over the country, asking their personal opinions about the publication of stuff of that sort. Twenty-two answers to the inquiry were published. Twelve were against such publication. The free press of the republic was dragged up to that low standard of intelligence and decency by a majority of one vote!

The article makes much of the fact that a certain cancer "is neither cut out nor cauterized" but is "merely plastered over with a salve of greasy moral preachments, which serves only to irritate it."

It has an interesting paragraph about carping critics of the press. Later it goes so far as to say:

The filthiest story ever told in court can be presented in every essential detail in the newspapers without offense to any intelligent reader. But this cannot be done easily. The reporter who does it must have education, experience, fine judgment, first-rate command of English, and ingenuity.

By way of conclusion, Professor Johnson winds up his article as follows:

Whether or not American newspapers have so degenerated is a matter of opinion, but on that contingency hangs the difference between a free press that is a thing of value in itself and a free press that takes rank with the maison tolérée. Recent events lend color to the optimistic theory that our newspapers are still relatively free from utter degradation—in the ratio, say, of twelve to ten.

* * *

THE free editor in the opinion of William Allen White of the Emporia Gazette is passing. White's views will be found in the American Mercury for May, and they are well worth reading.

With admirable clearness Mr. White sums up the more important points he makes in his article in the following paragraph:

Meanwhile, it may be well to pause and take account of the tremendous weight of all this machinery needed to make an adequate newspaper and distribute it. The weight of these endless rows of machines has become a great burden. We are hampered by the load of steel—presses, typesetting machines, rotogravure outfits, paper mills, motor trucks, and the whole lot of clumsy tools by which, now, human ideas are exchanged. Some day we shall slough off all this load. Some way we editors shall find for our craft a new freedom. We may even take to the air, and as the Jurassic fishes found wings, find a new, simple and more effective means of plying our art in the next stage of man's spiritual progress. The gods of chance do many miracles less wonderful than that.

* * *

DUNCAN AIKMAN, an El Paso newspaper man, has just published a collection of essays, "Home Town Minds." His contribution to the American Mercury for May, however, is of more immediate appeal to newspaper men, for in it he discusses the "Connecticut Valley Bible," the Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

After reviewing the history of the Republican, Mr. Aikman chats as follows about the so-called Springfield School of Journalism:

The value of Republican training, such as it was, seems to have been mainly the result of a careful picking of men and of the sequence of experiences each man went through after being picked. The paper, on account of the fame of its graduate—George Harvey and the late Charles R. Miller of the New York Times were but two of numerous luminaries—had always, until war times, a long waiting list of applicants. The third Samuel sifted them over and chose each cub on the basis of such intellectual promise as total journalistic inexperience had so far been able to demonstrate. This mainly meant a Phi Beta Kappa key, or a certain definite achievement in college journalism or literary effort; some of the choices were naturalborn English professors. But on the whole this method kept the staff fairly full of youngsters of more brains and individuality than were enjoyed by the average group of picture-swipers and police political intriguers on the small city newspapers of the first decade of the century. Such reporters indulged in an incredible amount of vapid intellectual poppycock, but taught each other a good deal about the newspaper business in spite of it.

His conclusion will bring a smile to all who, like myself, have worked on Springfield newspapers:

Aside from its still somewhat chaotic venture in monopoly, the Republican has settled down to the policy of trying to buy liveliness outside while maintaining the sedateness—and some of the sedatives—of the Hayes administration within its own bosom. It wants, apparently, to be both one of the boys and the only 102-year-old girl in American journalism who has never been kissed.

* * *

THOSE who pasted in their scrapbooks "Songs of the Craft" which Henry Edward Warner of the Baltimore Sun printed in EDITOR & PUBLISHER will be glad to have a companion volume "Songs

COMPLETE WIRE REPORTS FOR EVENING AND SUNDAY PAPERS

International News Service

"Get It FIRST but First Get It RIGHT"

63 Park Row
NEW YORK CITY

CUMBERLAND

is the second largest city in Maryland and in the past five years has grown in population from 27,000 to 45,000.

Annual industrial payroll is $25,000,000.00; resources of six banks now $19,494,036.51.

Surrounded by a prosperous agricultural territory. One of the most responsive markets in America.

Covered thoroughly by

THE EVENING TIMES

Circulation now over 14,000 daily

Represented nationally by
THE DEVINE-MACQUOID CO., INC.
New York Pittsburgh Chicago

Use the COMBINATION RATE
OF
The Gazette Times
(Morning and Sunday)
AND
Chronicle Telegraph
(Evening)
in order to cover Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania thoroughly at the lowest cost.

Member A. B. C.

URBAN E. DICE, Nat. Adv. Mgr.
GAZETTE SQ., PITTSBURGH, PA.
National Representatives:
E. M. BURKE, Inc.
42nd and Broadway, N. Y.
122 S. Michigan Blvd., Chicago.
Constitution Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.
R. J. BIDWELL CO.
742 Market St., San Francisco, Cal.
Times Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

Do you know what percentage of errors are made in your Composing Room?

We suggest you go there and take fifty original proofs. Count up the number of lines and the number of errors. Get the percentage of errors to lines.

It takes twice as long to correct an error as it does to make it, so multiply this percentage by three.

Take this resultant percentage and apply it to your total Composing Room payroll for the year. See how much money errors are costing you.

When you find out what they cost you write and tell us the amount. We will show you a source of profit you have never heard of.

Matrix Contrast Corp.
33 W. 42d St., New York City

Detroit

Fourth Largest City

Complete coverage with one paper.

The Detroit News

Offers advertisers unusual opportunities

DO YOU NEED A TRAINED MAN?

The Personnel Bureau of Sigma Delta Chi, an organization of college trained newspaper, magazine and advertising men, wants to help you find him. The Bureau puts you in touch with experienced, energetic men—it saves you time by recommending only those who meet your requirements.

If you expect a vacancy, please write Robert B. Tarr, Director, Personnel Bureau of Sigma Delta Chi, P. O. Box 115, Pontiac, Michigan.

NO CHARGE TO EMPLOYERS.

GRAVURE SECTIONS PRINTED

SPECIAL AND REGULAR EDITIONS, MAGAZINE INSERTS AND COMMERCIAL WORK

Standard Gravure Corporation
LOUISVILLE KY

the Sanctum" (The Stratford Company) by James C. McNally. Each of the lyrics in "Songs of the Sanctum" tells a worthwhile tale. Some are in the lighter vein and bring in a smile: others awakening anew "the echoes of the past" have a touch of pathos.

Typical of the latter is the song sung by the Editor Emeritus:

Once a week he hobbles up the stair,
A crippled veteran, but eagle-eyed;
And fills again the sanctum's biggest chair—
The one for forty years he occupied;
And scans the Star-Vedette deliberately—
The editor-in-chief that used to be.

Not far removed his young successor sits
Forcing a smile, but plainly ill at ease,
Stirred by the look of quiet scorn that flits
Across the other's face, which by degrees
Turns to supreme contempt, the while he makes
These candid comments on the scribe's mistakes:

"The Star is losing ground this week, I see;
The market ad is out, and Tailor Hughes;
I kept them both by sheer diplomacy—
By frequent boosts along the line of news;
You've got to jolly 'em to get their jack,
And once they quit, it's hard to get 'em back.

"Your local page grows better; by the way,
You've put two l's in Mitchel's name, he'll kick
Like twenty steers; and so will Sheriff Gray
For telling all and sundry that he's sick;
His liquor laid him out, as people guessed;
They'll grin to hear he's troubled with his chest.

"Your Council Chronicle is full enough,
But prosy detail makes it dull and dry;
The 'smokes' received from Town Attorney Guff
To print his legal stuff come mighty high
When Constant Reader skips it with a curse,
And thinks the 'S-V' must be getting worse.

"This twaddle by the Rev. Tompkin shows
You're partial to his brand of Bible pap;
What love for you and yours do you suppose
You get from other sects who feel his rap
At worshippers outside the Tompkin flock?
The Star's their target now for many a knock.

"Your 'nose for news' stuffs up at times, I fear;
If this reflects the town, we're all one side;
A Baptist, Democrat and Anti-Beer—
An implication strenuously denied
By over half your fellow citizens
Who think you're either bigoted or dense.

"Your editorials are infantile;
Five years from now you'll blush to think you penned
Such rubbish as 'A Case of Civic Bile,'
'The Man of Mark,' and 'Frumptum Is Your Friend';
This amateurish rot is harmless, but
It makes your reader rate you as a 'nut!' "

* * * *

Once a week he hobbles up the stair,
A crippled veteran, but eagle-eyed;
And thus discourses from the sanctum chair—
The one for forty years he occupied;
And then, he hobbles down—a sight to see—
The editor-in-chief that used to be!

Other poems take up "At The Press Club," "The Sob Sister," "To a Young Editor," "Big Scoop," "Free Speech," "In Printer's Ink," "Fleet Street and Park Row," "Headlines," "His Nose for News," "Upstairs and Down"—to mention a few that especially appeal to me. The volume is strictly up to date for it has a poem on "The School of Journalism."

Toward the close of the volume Mr. McNally has several personal poems in the nature of tributes to the editors of yesterday. He speaks of Henry Watterson of the Louisville Courier-Journal as "soldier and citizen and lettered knight." He pays a fine tribute to Samuel Bowles of the Springfield Republican and mentions "the difficult road his sires blazed." Of these personal poems possibly the best is the one to Charles Ransom Miller who sat so long in the editorial chair of the New York Times. Of him Mr. McNally sings as follows:

A voice anonymous amid the maze
Of noisy egoists who strove for fame,
Who wrought secluded from the public gaze,
And, when he passed, not many knew his name.
His sanctum spirit calls, morning and night,
To keep the record true, the torch alight!

* * *

DURING the first half of 1925, the Los Angeles Evening Herald printed something like one hundred and fifty editorials on financing the home. These came from the pen of its financial editor, Elwood Lloyd IV. The Evening Herald justified their insertions as follows:

> The function of a newspaper not only is to record accurately and impartially the history of peoples and events as that history unfolds from hour to hour and from day to day, but it is also the duty of a newspaper to help its readers and to make the world better because the newspaper is published in it.

These editorials have now been put between the covers of a book and given the general title "Successful Financing of the Home."

Mr. Lloyd lays a good foundation when he first defines financial terms and then describes various systems of budgets. He devotes one chapter to the husband's responsibilities and another to the wife's obligations. He is possibly at his best in the chapter, "Budgeting the Children." For all members of the family he performs a useful service in his chapter about insurance for the home-maker—a chapter which he follows with one dealing with wills, trusts and estates. To round out the book he has chapters on how parents may provide for old age and how widows should make investments. His concluding chapter is "A Little Review of the Series."

In speaking of these financial editorials by Mr. Lloyd The Evening Herald comments as follows.

> If in presenting these articles to the reading public, this newspaper can be of help in the formation or financing of even one single happy home, it will experience a pride of achievement greater than though it had razed a city and more lasting in benefit than though it had named a President.

Mr. Lloyd is to be congratulated upon his success in putting over his ideas in a way that can be understood by newspaper readers. He does not confuse stinginess with thrift and he is delightfully frank in outlining the art of managing husbands—from the financial point of view. Unconsciously possibly he has produced an excellent text on certain phases of economics. He is fortunate in being connected with a newspaper that had faith in the idea and was willing to let his story run—both in space and in time.

* * *

IN The Outlook for April 21 may be found this satirical note about the press from the pen of Howard Brubaker:

> Dr. Rhodes of Cornell has discovered a practical method of removing ink from newspapers so that the stock can be used again. He is unable to assure us, however, that the papers will do any better on the second attempt.

* * *

SOME of the contributors and editors of McNaught's Monthly drafted at a luncheon a bill to enroll, classify, regulate, and discipline the people of the United States. This bill, printed in full in McNaught's Monthly for May, can be read between takes or at least between editions.

* * *

HUSTON THOMPSON contributes the third of his series of articles dealing with the inner side of Woodrow Wilson to Dearborn Independent for April 10. This third installment is headed, "Wilson Was Best and Worst Copy."

Thompson's second installment was "Why Wilson Disliked Reporters." When I was in Washington last week I learned the reason why. Wilson allowed Washington correspondents to heckle him from the floor of his executive office. Coolidge insists that questions by newspaper men be turned in in writing just before he admits reporters to his office. The latter practice makes plain why Coolidge likes newspaper men.

* * *

BOOKS on advertising are becoming more varied in their subject matter. Historical rather than practical is the description that applies best to "20th Century Advertising" (D. Van Nostrand Co.) by George French. More to come in a later issue.

* * *

GROVE WILSON'S second novel "Sport of the Gods" (Frank-Maurice, Inc.) is going even better than his first novel "Man of Strife." Mr. Wilson is on the staff of the New York World.

* * *

POSSIBLY the best book about the British press in the seventeenth century is "Sir Roger L'Estrange" (Kegan Paul) by George Kitchin.

Planning New Sapulpa Daily

A new daily for Sapulpa, Okla., the Evening Bulletin, has been announced, with Jerry Rand and J. G. Bennett in charge. H. H. Horton, publisher of the Okmulgee (Okla.) Times and Democrat will be the owner of the new paper. The first issue is scheduled to appear June 1. The Bulletin will be Republican in politics.

FREE PAPERS TO PATIENTS

Lexington (Ky.) Herald Cultivates Friends in Local Hospitals

The Lexington (Ky.) Herald believes that patients in the hospitals are good people to cultivate as friends, with the result that a free copy of the Herald is sent to each patient in the local hospitals every morning.

Pasted on the front page of the paper is a little sticker printed in red ink which tells the recipient just how it happens that they are getting a free paper. The label is worded as follows:

"Every time we were ever sick we wanted something to read. That's the reason we're sending you the Herald. We think it's a good paper. If you think so and want to subscribe when you get well, call 4700. And we hope you get well mighty soon whether you take the Herald or not.

"LEXINGTON HERALD COMPANY."

Weekly Woman-to-Woman Talks by lend character and interest to every one of the long list of papers that carry her articles.

KATHLEEN NORRIS

Exceptionally fine 3 and 4 column illustrations add to value of this feature. Results she has obtained in other cities she can get in yours.

THE BELL SYNDICATE, Inc.
John N. Wheeler, Pres.
154 Nassau Street,
New York City

MICHIGAN
and the
BOOTH NEWSPAPERS

THE LEADING NEWSPAPER IN GRAND RAPIDS — THE ONLY DAILY IN SEVEN OTHER CITIES

The Grand Rapids Press
The Flint Daily Journal
The Saginaw News Courier
The Kalamazoo Gazette
The Jackson Citizen Patriot
The Bay City Times Tribune
The Muskegon Chronicle
The Ann Arbor Times News

National Advertising Representatives

I. A. KLEIN — 58 East 42nd St. New York City
J. E. LUTZ — Tower Building Chicago, Ill.

"SKIPPY"
By PERCY CROSBY

The best juvenile comic strip. Combines great humor, excellent drawing and emphatic adult appeal.

A feature you can't afford to miss

JOHNSON FEATURES, Inc.
1819 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

SERVICE
THE CHARLES PARTLOWE COMPANY
America's Largest Circulation Building Organization
-RESULTS COUNT-
6th Floor Occidental Bld.
INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

WHAT'S HE DOING NOW?
A New Three Times a Week Sport Feature
by
MAXWELL
Is Being Mailed to You This Week

The story of your favorite Sport Hero of yesteryear and what he is doing now.

Two column mat and proof of copy

COSMOS NEWSPAPER SYNDICATE INC
Covering the World
NINE EAST THIRTY-SEVENTH STREET NEW YORK CITY

Herbert S. Houston, President and Editor-in-Chief
Myles F. Lasker, Vice-President and General Manager

Consistent Builders of Circulation

We do not use just one outstanding success to show you as proof of our ability. Year in and year out, for twenty-two years, we have continued to make each and every campaign a success.

We have proven our methods.

MYERS'
Circulation Organization
415 E. Third St., Waterloo, Iowa

first! in OHIO
5,345,751 Lines

Dispatch advertising record for January, February and March, 1926, exceeding other Columbus newspapers combined by 709,855 lines. In 1925 the Dispatch published 21,544,376 lines exceeding second largest Ohio newspaper by 2,648,383 lines.

NET PAID CIRCULATION

CITY	55,812
SUBURBAN	26,973
COUNTRY	23,666
Total Daily Circulation	106,451

Columbus Dispatch
OHIO'S GREATEST HOME DAILY

IMPORTANT DECISION ON WAR PAPER RATES

Victory for Tulsa World and Allies in Freight Suit May Have Wide Application on Post-War Claims

A decision by Federal Judge Franklin A. Kennamer of the western Oklahoma district in suits brought by Tulsa, Okla., newspapers against the railroad administration, will, in the opinion of traffic experts, facilitate the collection of reparations in a number of cases involving unreasonable freight rates on newsprint.

The case on which Judge Kennamer passed was instituted originally by the Tulsa World, the Democrat Printing Company and the Tulsa Paper Company later joining as plaintiffs. It arose out of an attack on the newsprint rate from Wisconsin and Minnesota points to Tulsa. The interstate commerce commission found the existing rate "relatively unreasonable" and ordered reparations paid, establishing a new rate November 8, 1920.

The railroad administration refused to pay the reparations on the ground that the word "relatively" as used by the I. C. C. meant that the rates assailed were "merely discriminatory" and that actual damages or loss of business must be proved as a basis for recovery. Judge Kennamer held that the I. C. C. language was intended to declare the rates actually "unjust and unreasonable."

On the refusal of the railroad administration to pay the reparations ordered, the World and co-plaintiffs brought suit, naming James C. Davis, director-general of railroads as defendant. Judge Kennamer's decision, if sustained on appeal, will enable the collection of reparations in like cases, on a basis of the difference between the rate charged during the period of government operation of railroads and the rate fixed by the I. C. C. as just.

CROSS-WORD TOURNEY

New York Herald Tribune Believes Puzzle Still Popular

Proof that the New York Herald Tribune still believes the cross-word puzzle popular is shown by the announcement made this week by that newspaper of a second cross-word puzzle championship to be held May 15.

"The interest in cross-word puzles has not waned in the months since the first championship," the announcement read. "On the contrary, the interest has increased through the winter.

"More puzzles are being submitted now than at any other time and the quality is constantly improving, indicating that a genuine effort is being expended by the makers of puzzles which appear in the Herald Tribune."

The puzzle tourney is conducted as follows: first, an elimination contest to find the 10 best cross-word puzzlers; then these ten will enter into the final, and the two who survive will fight for the championship, huge blackboards with puzzles being their battle ground.

The 10 will work out their puzzles at a public meeting as will the two who meet for the title.

WEEKLY 100 YEARS OLD

Greensboro (N. C.) Patriot Reaches Century Mark April 24

The Greensboro (N. C.) Patriot, weekly newspaper, on April 24 celebrated its hundredth anniversary by issuance of a centennial edition.

This publication is alive and thriving after the vicissitudes of a century. It has chronicled the doings of the nation since April 24, 1826. Accounts of the battles of four wars are in its files—the Mexican War, Civil War, Spanish-American War and the World War. It is the oldest newspaper in North Carolina.

A few issues of the Greensborough Patriot were put out early in 1826, but the paper did not officially get into being until April 24, of that year. T. Early Strage was editor and owner. In the spring of 1827 it went into the hands of William Swaim, who enlarged it and published it until 1836. Since then many men have been at the helm. T. J. Murphy is present editor manager and majority stockholder. He is former mayor of Greensboro, former member of the North Carolina general assembly in the lower house, and an attorney. He acquired control on June 1, 1893.

Other papers were consolidated with it from time to time. In early days those merged with it were the Palladium, the Telescope and the Yadkin Flag. For a short while in 1880 it was published as a daily, but soon went back to weekly and semi-weekly issues.

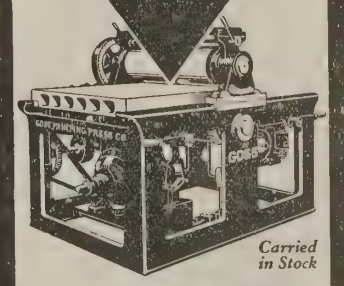
Pioneer S. D. Weeklies Suspend

The Bradley Globe and the Garden City Tribune, both pioneer Clark county, South Dakota, weeklies, have been suspended by Gordon McLean, publisher. W. H. Dudley, former publisher of the Globe, is said to be considering re-establishment of the Globe.

The human face is growing longer, says a British anthropologist. Probably from looking at tax bills during the past few years.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

Reporter Launches Monthly Paper

Harry Hampton Williams, former livestock reporter on the San Antonio Express, has launched at San Antonio a monthly magazine, Southwestern Range & Field. Williams is editor and S. L. Davis business manager.



Brown Joins Texas Press Bureau

Lowell W. Brown, a former student of the Missouri School of Journalism, has joined the Texas Press Bureau, a new organization representing small dailies in Texas in the national advertising field, as secretary and general manager.

Supplies and Equipment

Rebuilt
GOSS & HOE PRESS
BARGAINS
ALL TYPES
SEND for LIST
THE GOSS PRINTING PRESS CO.
CHICAGO – NEW YORK – LONDON

GOSS
STEREOTYPING MACHINERY

Carried in Stock

Some outstanding and exclusive features of The Goss Combination Wet and Dry Matrix Roller: Patented stretching roller produces dry mats without a wrinkle. Both ends of cylinder are set at same time. Heavy cast-iron cylinders with forged steel shafts. Extra heavy bed—no racks—large enough to run chase with columns crosswise. Rolls wet mats in 11¼ seconds; dry mats in 22½ seconds. Write for complete catalog of Goss Stereotyping Machinery.

THE GOSS PRINTING PRESS CO., CHICAGO

Want a Salesman or Representative? Write to the Classified Department of Editor & Publisher

Don't "Pig" Metal
It Wastes Money
Don't melt your metal twice to use it once. Write for trial offer. The Monomelt "Single Melting System." References gladly furnished.
MONOMELT SLUG FEEDER
Eliminates the Metal Furnace
Printers Manufacturing Co.
1109-17 Transportation Bldg.
Chicago Illinois
World Bldg., New York City

Modern Composing Room
Furniture
as made by us will speed up production and reduce costs—A real saving in your Pay Roll. Are you interested? If so, consult your regular dealer in printers' supplies or write us direct.
Do it now!
HAMILTON MFG. CO.
TWO RIVERS, WIS.

FOR BETTER PRINTING use
Herrick Inks
Cost more. Worth it.
No substitutes. Made from the best materials.
Specializing to requirements of each pressroom.
Ask the Publishers who use them.
WM. C. HERRICK INK CO., INC.
401 West 33rd Street
New York City
Factory: Rutherford, N. J.

PRESS CONTROL
C-H
"Safest System in the World
For large and small plants
Cutler-Hammer Controllers for presses of every size and for every type of motor-driven machine.
Address all communications:
The CUTLER-HAMMER Mfg. Co.
Pioneer Manufacturers of Electric Control Apparat
1203 St. Paul Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis.
CUTLER-HAMMER

Hoe Combined Saw Table and Mono-Rail Trimmer

This Machine combines the advantages of the Hoe Pedestal Saw Table and the Hoe Mono-Rail Trimmer. The Trimmer is supplied with either Style "A" Cutter Head for trimming Wood Blocks or Style "B" for extra heavy cutting on Zinc or Copper. The Hoe Patented Mono-Rail principle allows the Operator to follow the work beyond the Cutter Head permitting more speed and greater accuracy in trimming Wood or Metal Blocks of varied sizes.

IF IT'S A HOE, IT'S THE BEST
R. HOE & CO., INC., 504 Grand Street, New York, N. Y.
7 So. Dearborn Street, CHICAGO, ILL. 7 Water Street, BOSTON, MASS.

Employment—Equipment—Services

EDITOR & PUBLISHER Classified Advertising Information

TRANSIENT RATES

SITUATIONS (Cash with Order)

1 Time — .40 per line
2 Times — .35 per line
3 Times — .30 per line

ALL OTHER CLASSIFICATIONS (Cash with Order)

1 Time — .60 per line
4 Times — .55 per line

Rate space charge at same rate per line per insertion as earned by frequency of insertion. Special rates quoted for 13, 26 and 52 insertions. The Editor & Publisher reserves the right to classify, edit or reject any advertisement.

COUNT SIX WORDS TO LINE.

ADVERTISING

General Promotion

Advertising Promotion—If you want more business, communicate with the International Publications Service, Incorporated, Suite 1004, 8[illegible] Broadway, New York City.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

Brokers

[illegible]ing Daily in Illinois community of 75,000 population, annual receipts approximately $50,000, returning owner about $10,000. Rapidly growing community and business. Field only [illegible]ll developed. $60,000. Prop. 918x. The [illegible]. Henrichs Agency, Litchfield, Ill.

[illegible]n D. Gray, the best known Newspaper [illegible]or in the United States, residing at [illegible]eon, Mo., writes:

"I want to hear from the men who have [illegible]0 or more in cash to invest in newspapers [illegible]b offices. I have over 300 propositions [illegible]e in 42 states.

"Him hearing from the men who own daily [illegible]s and who want to sell for good reasons [illegible]o not want their property hawked about. [illegible]e do not want anyone in their home cities [illegible]low they have priced their property. I [illegible]how to handle these deals and not em[illegible]rs these newspaper owners—that's why I [illegible]etting so many good properties to sell. [illegible]t a million dollar deal to handle. You [illegible]rust me implicitly.

"If you had rather just buy an interest in a [illegible]e and draw a salary and let the owner [illegible]most of the responsibility I have some[illegible]s for you.

"I have a newspaper owner who has a prop[illegible]at is clearing lots of money. He wants [illegible]l to two young men with a total of [illegible]0 capital an interest in his business and [illegible]m draw a nice salary and dividends.

"I can sell you a Missouri weekly for $3,750 [illegible]h 2,350 cash.

"If you have $3,000 cash I can sell you a [illegible]d proposition near St. Louis priced at [illegible]an $8,000, making good money.

"Don't be bashful. Tell me your troubles. [illegible]s to work. I help lots of people. I am [illegible]-between. I get a peck of mail every [illegible]. I delight in spending my money for [illegible]e stamps. I get fat paying advertising [illegible]lts. I do things differently. You'll like [illegible]er we have passed one or two letters."

[illegible]esirable Evening Paper located in mid[illegible]uthern state. Population of city 20,000 [illegible]ng rapidly. Population of field over [illegible]0 modern adequate equipment; circula[illegible]00 A. B. C. Net profits 25% on price [illegible]d J. B. Shale, Times Building, New York.

Newspapers Wanted

[illegible]nt to Buy Publication, weekly or monthly, [illegible]ork City, sporting or otherwise. State [illegible]irculation, advertising, net income. [illegible]e Room 1010, 165 Broadway.

CIRCULATION

Promotion

[illegible]n Solicitors are doing 8-12 orders daily [illegible]n promotion cost to paper, on two new [illegible]ffers in Ohio. Write for details. The [illegible]g China Co., Carrollton, Ohio.

[illegible]ion campaigns successfully operated. [illegible]r Results." Address A. B. Rudolph, [illegible]ily Times, Erie, Pa., where a cam[illegible] now in operation.

[illegible]ion—When quick, additional circulation [illegible]a becomes necessary, remember that our [illegible]3 years in this one line of endeavor is [illegible]roof against experimenting. Write or [illegible]cific Coast Circulation Service, Bell [illegible], Cincinnati, Ohio.

[illegible]ion Builders—Blair & Austin, 1504 Cen[illegible]y, Reading, Penn. Originators of Sales[illegible]n Club Campaigns.

[illegible]ion Builders—Sherman & Eckert, 353 [illegible]apton St., Easton, Penn. For more [illegible]am and new reader interest our "Op[illegible]n Club" plan campaigns are winners. [illegible]ive you particulars.

CIRCULATION

Premiums

Premiums of every description. Your Publisher takes no risk. C. R. Bailey, Hoboken, N. J. Formerly New York. Estab. 1888.

EDITORIAL

Syndicate Features

Worcester Gazette and Wilkes-Barre Miner are the new customers this week. Write for samples of a live, alert, up-to-date service. The Graphic Syndicate, 25 City Hall Place, New York.

EMPLOYMENT

Help Wanted

Advertising Manager, prosperous evening daily, midwest city of 40,000. Salary $6,000 and substantial bonus to real producer. Write fully, stating qualifications, references and present salary. B-934, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Manager for the leading newspaper in highly competitive field. $90 weekly for top-notcher. In replying give full details of previous experiences and accomplishments. B-948, Editor & Publisher.

City Circulation Man—Must be sober, dependable, energetic, thoroughly experienced in city promotion and a producer of carrier or home delivered circulation, and knows how to handle solicitors. This is a morning paper in city of nearly 300,000, having the largest home delivered circulation and a successful man carrier delivery system. State papers worked for, how long with each, in what capacity and what salary expected, also give references. Permanent to right party. Address B-883, Editor & Publisher.

City Editor for prosperous small city morning paper in Middle West. One who has made a success in small city work. Good pay and fine opportunity for real live wire. Address B-943, Editor & Publisher.

For daily and job office in one of the best cities of 10,000 in central Northwest, thoroughly practical man wanted who can conduct business under direction of editor-manager and take full charge during absence of the latter. Give full particulars, including salary expected. Opportunity for investment later on if desired. Address B-931, Editor & Publisher.

Manager Wanted for the Denver Jewish News. Must be man who can sell advertising and at same time dominate editorial and news policy. Wonderful opportunity for a real business getter. Denver Jewish News, 1950 Curtis Street, Denver, Colorado.

Situations Wanted

Advertising Manager—Owing to late merger of newspapers an advertising manager of wide and successful experience on morning and evening papers, published in cities of one hundred to five hundred thousand population, is seeking the advertising management of a daily in need of the constructive work he is competent to render. For full particulars address, Room 219, Claridge Hotel, St. Louis, Mo.

Advertising Merchandising—Man 24, university grad; majored in adv., marketing, made practical by newspapers and commercial experience. B-953, Editor & Publisher.

Advertising Manager—Thoroughly experienced newspaper executive. Fifteen years on four publications in cities up to a million population. Have enviable record for organizing and producing on second or third papers. Experience covers display, classified and national. Want permanent connection where results will be rewarded. Have initiative and welcome hard work. Married. For full details and interview address Box B-951, Editor & Publisher.

Advertising Man—Specialist in building classified. Thoroughly experienced as Classified Manager and Counsellor. Knows bookkeeping, how to train solicitors, clerks and telephone operators. Writes good promotion copy. This man desires an opportunity with good newspaper as Assistant to Publisher, Business or Advertising Manager, where he can direct classified, but be able to learn other responsible work. Age 28, neat appearing. Best references for character and ability. Very capable salesman and contact man. Will earn his salary by increasing your classified, but wants opportunity of learning business end. Experienced in Display. B-892, Editor & Publisher.

Business Manager or Assistant to Publisher, experienced, executive ability. Married. Good creator of business. Familiar with all branches of newspaper work. B-907, Editor & Publisher.

Business and Advertising Manager—This advertisement is addressed to a daily newspaper publisher who wishes to unload his burdens upon the shoulders of a capable executive. Must be given absolute control of business and mechanical departments. Fair salary and percentage of savings, based on 1925 per page costs. Now employed on Pacific Coast. Satisfactory results assured. Exceptional references. B-899, Editor & Publisher.

EMPLOYMENT

Situations Wanted

Circulation Promotion Manager, 12 years of thorough experience in city promotion and producer of home delivered circulation. Best reasons for changing. First class references. 34 years old. Married. B-937, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Manager—I have for sale the services of a thirty-three year old circulation manager. 17 years of circulation experience including 12 years of successful circulation management will make these services highly valuable to any publisher in need of a first class circulation man. Further information gladly furnished on request. Inquiries treated positively confidential. B-944, Editor & Publisher.

Desk Man, Reporter, educated, experienced, whose own ideas do not obscure the policy of paper he is serving, desires permanent connection on p. m. daily in eastern city after June 1. B-950, Editor & Publisher.

Editor, 21, experienced on country and metropolitan newspapers. Good writer, copyreader, makeup man. Knows advertising, too. B-936, Editor & Publisher.

Editor—Position wanted on Long Island weekly by editor who has built successful weeklies and knows how. B-852, Editor & Publisher.

Editorial Department Executive, with 18 years' experience, desires connection where real future is assured as result of initiative, intelligence and hard work. Has handled all departments of daily newspaper. Capable of taking entire charge of paper of 15,000 to 20,000 circulation. References. B-932, Editor & Publisher.

Experienced Newspaper Man—Street and state, telegraph and city desk, wants change. Available on two weeks' notice. B-935, Editor & Publisher.

Experienced Newspaper Executive and worker will consider investment in established weekly, Long Island or New Jersey. B-949, Editor & Publisher.

Newspaper Man, thoroughly experienced, young, ambitious and with ideas, wants place with future for one who can demonstrate ability. Six years present place, city 75,000, street work, city, state, telegraph desks and have written editorials. Minimum $50. B-945, Editor & Publisher.

Publisher or Business Manager of evening daily—Man thoroughly competent to relieve owner of detail. Trained in the best ethics of newspaper work and with experience and background that should make him very valuable to owner of reputable newspaper. For interview address B-906, Editor & Publisher.

Sales Executive—An experienced, aggressive, high powered salesman is open for connection on short notice. Big record of success in selling both local and national advertising and also syndicate features. Would make a successful salesman for any allied newspaper work that requires selling. Well recommended and a big producer. At present earning over $7,000 yearly. An interview will not only be interesting but may be profitable to both parties. Interview can be arranged in New York or elsewhere at your convenience. B-939, Editor & Pubisher.

Special Edition—Publisher contemplating special edition or industrial or special pages may obtain organization on fair commission basis. Clean solicitation guaranteed. References Address B-908, Editor & Publisher.

Syndicate Man wants to connect with New York syndicate. Experienced placing shorts, novelettes and serials. Knows the market from Maine to California and is familiar with foreign rights and selling. Has thorough knowledge of rights, from book to second serial. Can select and edit fiction, prepare synopses, make broadsides, correspond and sell. Managed fiction syndicate two years. Before that three years on metropolitan paper. Has had road experience but would rather remain at desk. B-940, Editor & Publsiher.

Want Experienced Newspaper Man, good writer, to take charge of your editorial page? If so, write me. Moderate salary. Must give present employers two weeks' notice. B-938, Editor & Publisher.

Young Man, 30, married, long experience in circulation work, desires position in any department other than circulation or as general assistant to publisher in small town or city. Good office man, typist. Willing, steady and reliable. Please tell all in first letter. B-916, Editor & Publisher.

MECHANICAL

Equipment for Sale

Printers', Bookbinders' Outfitters—Modern cut cost equipment, also rebuilt machinery. Corner Fendler Branch, A. T. F. Co., New York City.

MECHANICAL

Equipment for Sale

Babcock Standard Drum Cylinder Press for sale. Takes seven column quarto. In good order. Will sell at a bargain to quick purchasers. Write to B-942, Editor & Publisher.

Campbell B & J Two Revolution Press in first class condition. Sheet 28x40. Has four form rollers, plate distribution, front delivery. Will sell for $1,000.00, which is a fraction of its real value. Terms if desired. Box B-941, Editor & Publisher.

Complete Newspaper Engraving Plant for sale. Ideal for one or two-man shop. Miles Machinery Co., 286 Eighth ave., New York City.

Duplex Metropolitan Stereotype Press, low down, one deck construction; prints 4, 6, 8, 10, 12, 16, 20 pages, 8 columns, 12½ ems; length of column 21 inches, sheet cut 22¾ inches. Press in excellent condition doing fine work; only reason selling, to make room for Duplex sextuple. Must leave our press room May 15th Bargain if purchased immediately. Convenient terms. Daily Home News, New Brunswick N. J.

Duplex Newspaper Press, eight-column, eight-page, double drive, angle bars, adjustable former, rebuilt new two years ago. Must make room for larger press. Can be seen in daily operation until June 1st. Will sell cheap. Address Meridian Star, Meridian, Miss.

Hoe Jig Saw and Drill for sale. Completely rebuilt. Fine condition. Miles Machinery Co., 286 Eighth ave., New York City.

Ludlow Typograph equipped with electric pot, mold, motor, matrix cabinet, 20 fonts of matrices and Elrod caster equipped with motor and molds, for sale at bargain. This equipment is practically new and will make liberal discount account liquidation of newspaper Realty Publishing Company, 250 Royal Palm way, Palm Beach, Florida.

Used Goss Mat Roller for wet mats only, for sale cheap. The Goss Printing Press Co., 1535 So. Paulina St., Chicago, Ill.

Used Goss Comet Eight-Page Flat Bed Webb Press, thoroughly factory rebuilt. For quick shipment, price reasonable. Easy terms. Goss Printing Press Company, Chicago.

WE ARE EQUAL TO YOUR PROBLEM:

To Buy a Newspaper,
To Sell a Newspaper,
To Appraise a Newspaper.

PALMER DeWITT & PALMER

For Thirty Years the Recognized Leaders in SALES—APPRAISALS

NEWSPAPER PROPERTIES

350 Madison Ave., New York

Successful Performance

This firm has a record of almost 15 years of successful performance in the difficult work of

PURCHASE, CONSOLIDATION, SALE AND APPRAISAL

of newspaper and magazine properties throughout the U. S.

HARWELL & CANNON
Times Bldg. New York

WE CONNECT THE WIRES

OVER TWENTY-FIVE YEARS we have conducted a service bureau for employers and position seekers in the Advertising-Publishing field. Our lists include men and women fitted for positions up to the highest responsibility in all departments of newspapers, class journals, advertising agencies and the publicity departments of mercantile and manufacturing concerns. Registration free. No charge to employers.

FERNALD'S EXCHANGE, INC.
THIRD NAT'L B'LD'G., SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

DOLLAR $ $ $ $ PULLERS

ONE DOLLAR WILL BE PAID FOR EACH IDEA PUBLISHED

SELECT two or three of your classified ads calling for mail replies and which have proved to be good pullers. Secure from the advertiser the envelopes of all of his replies and either display them in your window, together with an enlarged copy of the ad, or else have both photographed and reproduce in your paper as an ad of your classified columns.—E. R. Lowe.

You can probably get extra advertising from dealers in various food products if you run a series of "favorite dishes" explained by the chefs of your big local hotels.—David Resnick.

Here's a useful tip that will help build goodwill and add to the number of personal items in your newspaper: Every time Paul Feltus, editor and publisher of the Bloomington (Ind.) Star, a weekly, sends to a subscriber a notice that his subscription is due, he encloses with the letter a neatly printed note with the heading: "Send Us An Item." The invitation says: "Do you know that just as you like to read items in the Star about your friends, so they like to read about you. Won't you send us an item or two about yourself or your family? Use the blank space below and if there is more to tell, use the reverse side or another sheet of paper and send it along! We'll print it!"—Norman J. Radder.

Horseback riding is one of the favorite forms of spring recreation. Why not make it a source of good advertising for your paper by interesting the riding schools, the saddlers, the equipment houses and the department and sporting goods stores that deal in riding habits to advertise.—C. E. Pellissier, Boston.

Men who have business property or do business on a certain street or in a certain section of a city are often open to the suggestion that they advertise together to enhance the value of their locations. This is being done by ten firms of Santa Ana. The first of a series of advertisements occupies three columns full, and is entitled: "Main Street." The Sinclair Lewis novel is brought into the introduction.—Fremont Kutnewsky, San Luis Obispo, Cal.

Take a full page on a quiet day to advertise the merits of the "ad" in your paper. A striking page in the Seattle Star recently anent their ad service, showed a border of drawings connecting home with the newspaper and a pungent paragraph in big type. The message was as follows:

"Yes, but that's only an ad:

"Only an ad—but that bit of news represents the combined efforts of scores of people who have given a great deal of time and thought to the preparation of that ad in order that you might be able to take advantage of the opportunity it offers.

"The merchant scours the four corners of the earth seeking the things you want and need. . . . He presents the news of these things to you in the comfort of your home. These ads contain not only the news of the things with which you are familiar, but the description of all the new commodities, their prices and the stores where they may be obtained.

"Yes, it's only an ad. . . . your telephone is 'only a telephone' until you use it properly. . . . The ads are 'only ads' to the reader who skips lightly over them, but they are the direct means of reducing the household expenses of the reader who reads them for the money-saving opportunities they offer.

"There are ads in this newspaper which you can't afford to overlook."—C. M. L.

DEFINES A DEMOCRAT

Col. E. A. Halsey Wins Second Prize in Washington Contest

Col. Edwin A. Halsey, assistant Sargent-at-Arms of the United States Senate and at one time Washington correspondent of EDITOR & PUBLISHER recently won second prize in a contest conducted by The Pathfinder magazine of Washington, D. C., in defining "What Is A Democrat?"

COL. E. A. HALSEY

Col. Halsey's winning definition was:

"A Democrat is one who votes to adhere to the principles of the party as expounded by Jefferson, Cleveland and Wilson; which assure personal liberty, freedom of religion, speech and press; equal justice, industry, frugality and happiness; abhorring corruption and privilege, and preserving inviolate the Republic in vigor and union."

The definition was read on the floor of the Senate by Senator Heflin of Alabama.

HUNCHES

ONE DOLLAR WILL BE PAID FOR EACH "HUNCH" PUBLISHED

THE Dayton Daily News livens up the Sunday news pages with a regular weekly feature column under an art head "Saturday Night in Dayton." Short paragraphs depicting human interest incidents, such as may be witnessed in the streets of any city on a Saturday night, furnish the subject matter. Interest is also maintained by occasional mention of local personalities.—C. W. Myers.

Are all bachelors women-haters? A girl reporter posing as a subscription solicitor interviewed a number of unmarried prominent men in a Northwestern city and got an interesting story. Some were found to be wary, some bashful and others just too lazy.—Edw. J. Fitzharris.

The New York Herald Tribune recently conducted an essay contest "What the Reading of a Good Newspaper Means to My Future" in the high schools of Westchester County. A silver medal was awarded to the prize winner, and bronze medals to the runners-up.—C. L. O.

People are always interested in former residents of their city. While letters from former residents have long been a standard feature in newspaper making, the Newcastle (Ind.) Courier has a new angle on this subject. The Courier has a department headed "The Bad Penny." Here are printed interviews with people who moved from Newcastle and then returned. They generally have something to say about Newcastle being the best place, after all. It is an excellent local booster idea.—Norman J. Radder.

Now is the time to get busy and organize a juvenile sand lot baseball league in your city. Have it under the name of your newspaper. Provide a playing field (one of your parks will do) and offer a cup to the league leader at the end of the season. The publicity among the boys will do you real good in the future.—B. A. T.

The Indianapolis Star is running a series of articles each Monday on how Indianapolis ministers are telling their congregations and how they are saying it. The articles deal not only with the sermon itself, but also with the setting and manner of delivery.—Donovan Turk.

How To Play GOLF

By JOHNNY FARRELL

Famous Teacher of That Game

24 LESSONS

Illustrated

For release daily

KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, Inc.

New York City

BRUCE BAIRNSFATHER

is doing a daily cartoon for newspapers under the caption

TROUBLES THEY NEVER HAD

and

CHOOSE YOUR NEAREST EXIT

Supplied in two and three column

The McClure Newspaper Syndicate

373 Fourth Avenue, New York

BY UNITED PRESS

AROUND THE WORLD AROUND THE CLOCK

UNITED PRESS ASSOCIATIONS

World Building New York

A Fool There Was—

A new 3-a-week cartoon, showing the many fool things which contribute to automobile accidents.

The International Syndicate

Baltimore, Md.

SHORT STORIES DONE IN PICTURE STRIPS

Famous Stories By

POE, STEVENSON, DUMAS CONAN DOYLE

To Run 10 Days 2 Weeks

Beautifully Drawn, Full of Action, Suspense and Thrills

Write for Rates

WHEELER-NICHOLSON, Inc.

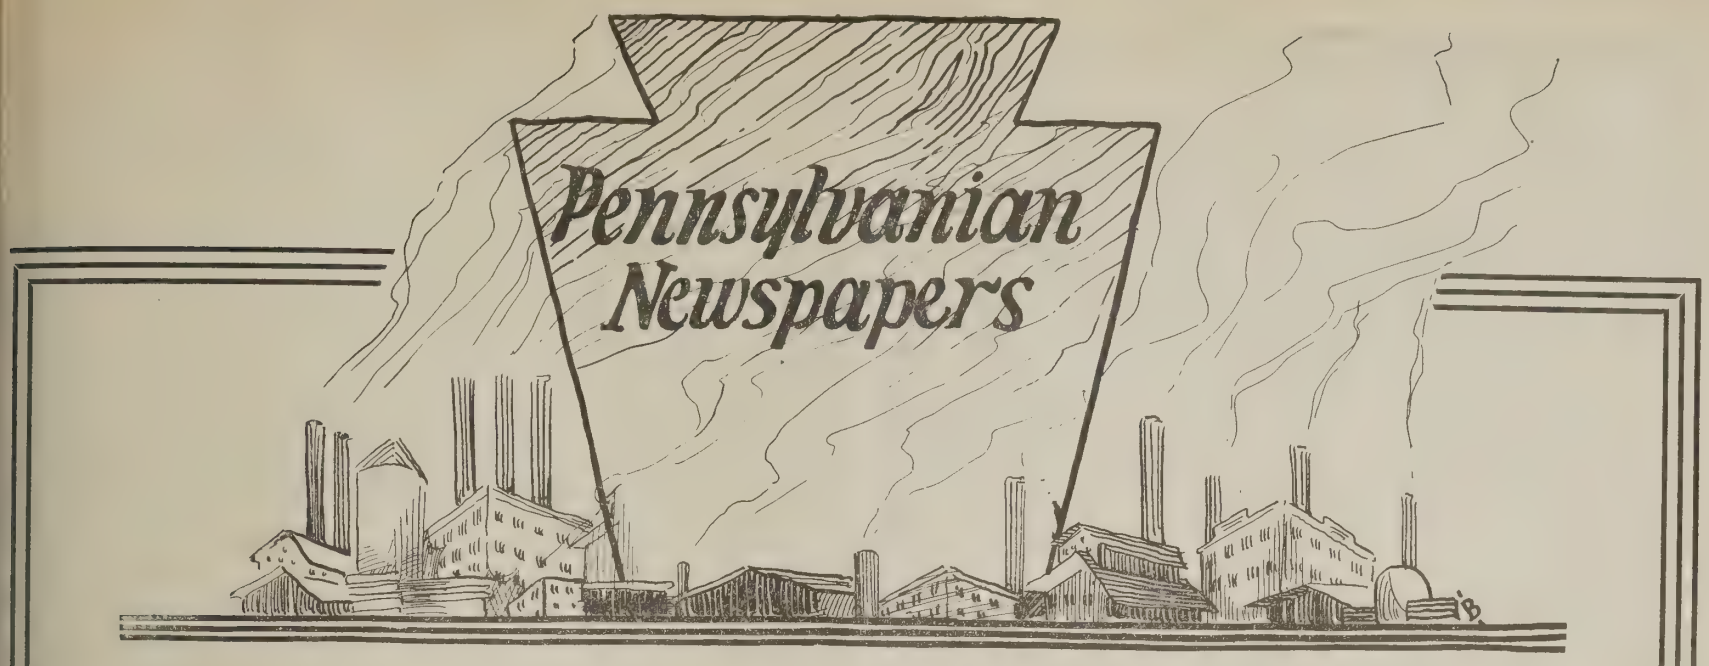
373 4th Ave. New York City

Features Wanted

A live, reliable syndicate now serving about 200 newspapers can handle several more good features on an advantageous basis. All communications will be held strictly confidential.

Address B-952,

Editor & Publisher



THOS. W. BRIGGS CO.

Columbian Mutual Tower

MEMPHIS, TENN.

CREATORS OF LOCAL DISPLAY FROM A NEW SOURCE

Our Business Review and many other feature pages now running in more than 80 leading American and Canadian newspapers. Write or wire for our representative.

advertise to producers in newspapers that produce

Business is always good in the Keystone State. Its world-famous factories—its steel mills, coal mines and textile plants—daily send products to everywhere in the United States and beyond to foreign lands.

Pennsylvanians are producers and prosperity is evident throughout the state. Its workers have the money and they spend it.

You can reach these workers through the daily papers of the industrial cities of Pennsylvania. These papers will help you in the sales promotion and proper distribution of the merchandise you make.

No campaign is complete without covering the rich market of Pennsylvania.

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
Allentown Call ..... (M)	31,400	.10	.10
Allentown Call ..... (S)	22,349	.10	.10
††Beaver Falls Tribune ..... (E)	6,553	.03	.03
††Bethlehem Globe Times ..... (E)	13,272	.06	.06
††Bloomsburg Press ..... (M)	7,673	.04	.04
Chester Times ..... (E)	18,295	.06	.06
††Coatesville Record ..... (E)	6,783	.035	.03
††Connellsville Courier ..... (E)	6,457	.02	.02
††Easton Express ..... (E)	25,652	.08	.08
Erie Times ..... (E)	28,596	.08	.08
††Greensburg Tribune Review ... (EM)	14,883	.05	.05
††Hazleton Plain Speaker ..... (E) / ††Hazleton Standard-Sentinel .. (M)	19,852	.07	.06
Mount Carmel Item ..... (E)	4,307	.0285	.0285
Oil City Derrick ..... (M)	8,588	.04	.04
*Pottsville Republican and Morning Paper ..... (EM)	15,857	.08	.07
Scranton Times ..... (E)	43,230	.13	.12
Sharon Herald ..... (E)	7,236	.0357	.0357
Sunbury Daily Item ..... (E)	5,224	.03	.03
*Washington Observer and Reporter ..... (M&E)	18,136	.06	.06
††West Chester Local News ..... (E)	11,860	.04	.04
Wilkes-Barre Times-Leader .... (E)	26,204	.06	.06
††Williamsport Sun ..... (E)	20,655	.09	.09
††York Dispatch ..... (E)	19,632	.05	.05

*A. B. C. Publishers' Statement, Sept. 30, 1925.
A. B. C. Statement, March 31. 1926.
††Government Statement, March 31, 1926.

Superior Circulation

The New York Sun represents and reflects the thought of the better people of the world's greatest city.

Among the intelligent, responsive, representative citizens of New York, The Sun has a larger home circulation than any other New York weekday newspaper—because it appeals to and is appreciated by the whole family.

The Sun's net paid daily average circulation for the six months' period ending March 31, 1926, was 259,351. This represents an increase of 11,981 over the correponding six months of 1925.

More and more people are reading The Sun because they find it a newspaper of distinct and superior individuality, containing all the important news of the day, presented in a lively and interesting manner but without sensationalism.

The Sun's editorial page is a strong influence in local, national and international affairs.

The Sun does not seek circulation through prizes, contests or forced features of any kind. Its growth in circulation is a natural, steady, sound increase, won purely on the merits of the paper itself.

The Sun

280 BROADWAY NEW YORK

BOSTON Old South Bldg. WASHINGTON, D.C. Munsey Bldg. CHICAGO 208 So. La Salle St. SAN FRANCISCO First National Bank Bldg. LOS ANGELES Van Nuys Bldg. PARIS 49 Avenue de l'Opera LONDON 40-43 Fleet St.

THIS ISSUE:—HOW LABOR CENSORED AND GAGGED BRITISH PRESS.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

1884 The Oldest Publishers' and Advertisers' Journal in America 1926

SUITE 1700 TIMES BUILDING, NEW YORK
42ND STREET AND BROADWAY.

Original second class entry The Journalist, March 24, 1884; Newspaperdom, March, 1892; The Editor & Publisher, December 7, 1901; The Editor & Publisher and Journalist, October 30, 1909; Advertising, February 7, 1925; Revised entry, Editor & Publisher, May 11, 1916, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Vol. 58. No. 50 NEW YORK, MAY 8, 1926 By Mail in Advance $4, U. S. A. $4.50, Canada; $5, Foreign 10c Per Copy

JOURNALISM LIBRARY
Not to be taken from this room

HARVESTING in the New York Market—as it should be done!

April Averages

DAILY . . . 1,071,176
SUNDAY . . 1,275,698

BUMPER sales crops in the New York market cannot be harvested with inadequate media! Nine million people in New York City and its suburbs cannot be sold through small media. Use enough circulation to cover America's largest and richest city market. Use The Daily News, with its MARVELOUS MILLION* circulation, 95% concentrated in city and suburbs, reaching more people everywhere, mass and class alike. The small page and small paper get the copy seen, cut the advertising cost! Get the facts!

THE NEWS
New York's Picture Newspaper
Tribune Tower, Chicago 25 PARK PLACE, NEW YORK

Buffalo the Wonder City of America

"The growth of Buffalo within the next 15 years will be the outstanding feature of municipal development in America."
—W. R. Hopkins, City Manager, Cleveland, O.

This Book is of Importance to National Advertisers

A NEW book on the Buffalo market detailing many facts of major interest to advertisers has just been published.

National advertisers will find much of importance in this book on Buffalo. In addition to an outline of this rapidly growing market, it contains much detailed information as to wholesale and retail outlets.

Copies have been mailed to many advertisers and advertising agencies. Others interested may receive a copy upon request.

Cover the Buffalo Market with the

BUFFALO EVENING NEWS

A. B. C. Sept. 30, 1925
128,502

EDWARD H. BUTLER
Editor and Publisher

Present Average Over 140,000

National Representatives

KELLY-SMITH COMPANY

Marbridge Building
New York City

Waterman Building
Boston, Mass.

Atlantic Building
Philadelphia, Pa.

Tribune Tower
Chicago, Ill.

More GAINS

CIRCULATION

	Six months ended March 31, 1925	Six months ended March 31, 1926
Daily	275,219	285,750
Sunday	330,358	345,316

Daily	10,531	GAIN
Sunday	14,958	GAIN

(From Publisher's Statements to the A. B. C.)

New York Herald Tribune

The Evening Bulletin—Philadelphia's Foremost Newspaper welcomes American manufacturers and advertisers to attend the 22nd Annual Convention of the ASSOCIATED ADVERTISING CLUBS OF THE WORLD at Philadelphia

© Aero Service Corp. of Phila. WHERE THE A.A.C.W. CONVENTION WILL BE HELD

In the lower left foreground may be found the group of buildings of the University of Pennsylvania where the proceedings will take place. Franklin Field, the vast stadium shown in the centre seats 80,000 persons. In the upper left is the business portion of Philadelphia.

"In Philadelphia nearly everybody reads The Bulletin"

The circulation of The Evening Bulletin is larger than that of any other Philadelphia newspaper, and is one of the largest in the United States.

Net paid daily average for six months ending March 31, 1926

533,169 copies a day

Fresh Ideas and Viewpoints at Philadelphia

Philadelphia's business and advertising men under the leadership of the POOR RICHARD CLUB are preparing for the biggest business and advertising convention ever held in America, when the 22nd Annual Convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World convenes in Philadelphia, the City of Homes, June 19 to 24, next.

Delegates from all the world, as well as from all sections of the United States and Canada will give and get new ideas, fresh viewpoints, valuable plans and suggestions for utilizing advertising in creating, holding and serving new and more business.

Convention headquarters are in the Bulletin Building, and delegates are invited to make this newspaper their headquarters. The staff of the Bulletin's advertising department will gladly give business and advertising men first hand information regarding the Philadelphia market—Third Largest Market in the U. S.

"In Philadelphia Nearly Everybody Reads The Bulletin"

(Copyright 1926—Bulletin Company)

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Issued every Saturday, forms closing ten P. M. Thursday preceding Publication by The Editor & Publisher Co., J. W. Brown, Publisher; Marlen E. Pew, Editor;
Suite 1700 Times Building, 42nd St. at Broadway, New York. Telephone, Bryant
3052-3053-3054-3055-3056. Charter Member Audit Bureau of Circulations.

Vol. 58 NEW YORK, MAY 8, 1926 No. 50

How Labor Censored and Gagged Press Told By London Newspaper Editor

Press Room Assistants Lead in Demands for Suppression of Editorials and News—Almost Entire Press of England, Wales and Scotland, Silenced

By RALPH D. BLUMENFELD
Editor London Daily Express
Written Exclusively for EDITOR & PUBLISHER

(By Cable to EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

LONDON, May 4.—The suppression of London newspapers through the unwarrantable censorship of trade unionists is the culmination of a long series of tyrannical proceedings which have made newspaper publication extremely irksome. It has emanated solely from one section of less responsible departments of our newspaper organizations. The leaders for the most part have been unskilled workmen.

Until now this interference has been confined to questions of hours, wages and privileges and owing to their watertight organization and rigid rules, these workmen have been able to obtain advantages which to the ordinary business man appear to be simply ludicrous. They have never heretofore attempted to interfere with editorial policy, but for some time past, there have been open threats that when the time for action arrived, they would not hesitate to censor and even suppress any article which they might consider objectionable, or inimical to their interests.

The first attempted interference came on last Saturday night, when various Sunday newspapers were setting an advertisement calling for recruits in behalf of an organization which was to secure the peoples' food supplies. The Sunday Express declined to reject the advertisement. The Weekly Dispatch printed it. The News of the World took it out, Lord Riddell, its proprietor, asserting that it was his fixed policy not to print propaganda advertisements.

Ten o'clock Sunday night, the Daily Mail had set a leading article headed "For King and Country," which self-appointed censors declared provocative. They invaded the editor's room and demanded suppression of the article. Mr. Marlowe (Thomas Marlowe, editor of the Daily Mail) unhesitatingly refused, whereupon the packers, pressmen and stereotypers stopped work and the paper did not appear. The Daily Mail, however, through its Manchester plant, was able to bring some 50,000 copies to London Monday morning, but, as its circulation in London is more than 1,000,000, and other newspapers did not increase their output, there was a consequent shortage of newspapers. The article which offended the unionists included the following:

"We do not wish to say anything hard about the miners themselves. As to their leaders, all we need say at the moment is that some of them are under the influence of people who mean no good to this country.

"A general strike is not an industrial dispute; it is a revolutionary movement, intended to inflict suffering upon the great mass of innocent persons and thereby put forcible restraint upon the government. It is a movement that can only succeed by destroying the government and subverting the rights and liberties of the people.

"This being the case, it cannot be tolerated by any civilized government and must be dealth with by every resource at the disposal of the community.

"A state of emergency and national danger has been proclaimed to resist the attack. We call upon all law-abiding men and women to hold themselves at the service of King and country."

The leading article of the Daily Express was more provocative with regard to the coal negotiations than was the Daily Mail's leader, and when I heard Sunday night that the Mail had been closed down, I expected a similar fate, but it did not come.

Instead a delegation from the house chapels came up merely to protest against a statement in the leader that the general strike would fail and asking me if I would print a letter from them to that effect, in accordance with our custom of printing all sides. They made no demands, but simply asked a favor. On Monday the house chapels again took the war path. At one o'clock they ob jected to a news article in the Evening Standard, which is part of our organization, stating that there was a rush of volunteers to assist the government against the strike. We declined to withdraw the article and the Evening Standard shut down.

Simultaneously, they carried out similar actions at the Evening News plant, which was also shut down. The Evening News is a part of the Daily Mail organization. There are only three evening newspapers in London, and the only one not closed was the Star, which was decidedly pro-strike and anti-government. Yet it too was closed because its editors insisted on printing the news about a rush of recruits. Monday night, when the general strike was to take place at midnight, they closed down the Daily Mirror and refused to permit the Daily Mail to come out again. They suppressed it at Manchester as well and gave orders at several offices as to the conduct of leading articles.

We had no difficulty at the Express, although the contents of our columns left no doubt as to our attitude of opposition to the strike. Indeed, the men worked right through the night and we got our normal issue of more than 1,000,000 copies away without any difficulty.

The compositors and stereotypers, who are not under the orders of the Trade Union Council which called the general strike, did not go out with the other unionized workmen, but at this moment it is impossible to know what they will do after Thursday, when their meeting is to be held to decide their course. They are not in sympathy with the general strike; indeed the majority of our people who have been called out are against it and regret the high-handed action of the individual house chapels who have seriously jeopardized their future of trade unionism in the printing industry.

(By Cable to EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

LONDON, May 6.—"The suppression of the newspapers on the eve of the general strike was a grave mistake on the part of the trade unions," Sir Charles Starmer, proprietor of the Westminster Gazette and a group of other newspapers in London and provincial cities, said to EDITOR & PUBLISHER. "Freedom of expression is vital just now and the suppression of the newspapers has powerfully swayed public opinion against the strikers."

The first blows against the newspapers were struck, according to news dispatches to New York newspapers, by members of the pressroom force. It is not clear whether they were acting as chapels, or under instructions of the national union, although the indications are that the several chapels acted independently.

Compositors, engravers and stereotypers, not being under the jurisdiction of the Trade Union Council, did not strike at midnight Monday, but as Lon-

(Continued on page 38)

LONDON TIMES PRINTS ONE-PAGE STRIKE ISSUE TO UPHOLD TRADITION

The Times

...on Wednesday May 5, 1926 Price 2d.

air to dull, risk of local rain.

...E. Liverpool, Leeds, Northampton, Cardiff, yesterday Portsmouth, Dover, N.Derbyshire, Monmouthshire.

...call of Evening papers appeared at Bristol, ...rdered by Southampton, several Lancashire towns ...members and Edinburgh, and typescript issues at ...lly, though Manchester, Birmingham and Aberdeen. ...sported to The Atlantic Fleet did not sail on its ...themselves summer cruise at at Portsmouth yesterday. ...protested The men went on shore duty.

...ial road Road & Rail Transport:- There was no ...suspended. railway passenger transport in London ...L.C.C. yesterday except a few suburban trains. ...inting in- Every available form of private transport was used. A few independent omni...landstill, buses were running, but by the evening ...on with- the railway companies, except the District ...mon have and Tubes, had an improvised service. ...a strike Among the railway services to-day will ...peratives, be:- 9.30 a.m. Manchester to Marylebone ...housing, 9.30 a.m. Marylebone to Manchester; ...engineering 10.30 a.m. Marylebone to Newcastle; 9 a.m. ...men the Norwich to London; 9 a.m. King's Cross to ...they con- York; 3 p.m. King's Cross to Peterbo...interfer- rough; 9 p.m. Peterborough to King's ...the ship- Cross. L.M.S. Electric trains between ...two dis- Watford and Euston and Broad Street will ...on repair

Here is a facsimile of the front page of the London Times sent from London to Acme Newspictures by radio, Wednesday. The Times put out a one page issue, after its men had walked out, to maintain an unbroken tradition of 141 years continuous publication. Other papers put out handbills containing bulletins of the latest news. A fire broke out in the building of the Times as this issue was being printed. Officials refused to disclose the origin of the fire.

SPORTING PUBLICITY TO BE PROBED BY SOCIETY OF EDITORS

Committee of Six Named by President Hopwood to Conduct Thorough Investigation and Report at Annual Meeting—Other Committees Appointed

A committee to investigate thoroughly sporting departments and sporting publicity has been appointed by Erie Hopwood, editor, Cleveland Plain Dealer, in his capacity as president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

Erie Hopwood

Appointment of the investigating committee is the result of discussion of the subject at the annual meeting of the Society in Washington last winter, where it was denounced by some editors as an evil.

The investigation will embrace "sporting publicity, the management of sporting departments, and the best means of handling sporting copy," Mr. Hopwood said.

Members of the committee are:

Will Owen Jones, Editor, Lincoln Nebraska State Journal, Chairman; M. W. Bingay, managing editor, Detroit News; Moses Strauss, managing editor, Cincinnati Times Star; E. Robert Stevenson, managing editor, Waterbury American; Philip A. Payne, managing editor, New York Daily Mirror; Charles M. Stanton, editor, San Francisco Bulletin.

This committee will make a report at the next annual meeting.

Members who have suggestions as to the nature and scope of the inquiry have been asked to communicate at once with the committee.

In addition to the above committee, the following have been appointed by President Hopwood to serve for the coming year:

Committee on Program and Entertainment: Grove Patterson, editor, Toledo Blade, Chairman; Marc A. Rose, managing editor, Buffalo News; C. M. Morrison, Philadelphia Public Ledger; Newbold Noyes, Washington Evening Star; Julian S. Mason, New York Herald Tribune.

Committee on Syndicates and Press Services: Olin W. Kennedy, managing editor, Miami Herald, Chairman; John V. Riley, editor, Rockford Morning Star; A. C. Ross, managing editor, Rochester Democrat and Chronicle; Phil J. Reid, editor, Detroit Free Press; M. S. Sherman, editor, Springfield Union.

Committee on Legislation: E. B. Doran, editor, Dallas News, Chairman; E. W. Booth, editor, Grand Rapids Press; Charles B. Welch, editor, Tacoma News Tribune; Geo. A. Hough, managing editor, New Bedford Standard; W. W. Waymack, managing editor, Des Moines Register and Tribune.

Committee on Membership: Marc A. Rose, managing editor, Buffalo News, Chairman; James A. Stuart, managing editor, Indianapolis Star; E. A. Dickson, editor, Los Angeles Express; Ch. B. Forbes, editor, Nashville Tennessean; Geo. T. Richardson, editor, Worcester Post.

The Committee on Ethical Standards is not yet completed, Mr. Hopwood said.

"It is the hope of the board that particular emphasis will be placed on committee work this year," he told Editor & Publisher. "One of the most valuable works of the Society is its contribution to the literature of journalism through the reports of its committees, addresses and discussions on the floor. The committee work in the past has almost without exception been of unusual merit, but it has not, in the opinion of the President, been given sufficient emphasis on the program, nor has sufficient time been given to some of the important subjects which have been presented by the committees from time to time. The President hopes that every committee member will co-operate to the very fullest degree with his committee chairman and come to the annual meeting prepared to supplement the formal report with discussions from the floor."

TO HONOR BRITISH EDITOR

Bust of C. P. Scott, Manchester Guardian, to Be Placed in City Museum

A bronze bust of C. P. Scott, editor of the Manchester Guardian, who will soon reach his 84th birthday and round out 54 years as editor of the Guardian, may shortly be placed in the Manchester City Museum. An appeal for funds to purchase the bust, the work of Jacob Epstein, was made May 2.

Completion of the 50th anniversary of Mr. Scott's editorship four years ago was the occasion of a celebration by his many friends. His writings have always been anonymous, and although the Manchester Guardian is quoted throughout the world, he himself is comparatively unknown. His principles expressed through his paper have been such as to gain the respect even of political opponents.

SYLVESTER LOSES SUIT

Appeals Court Affirms Dismissal His $25,000 Suit Against N. Y. Telegram

The right of an author to the product of his talent was qualified by a decision of the Court of Appeals handed down in Albany, May 4, where the rights of his employer are involved. The court affirmed the lower courts in dismissing the complaint of E. Rodgers Sylvester against the New York Herald Company, publishers of the New York Telegram, to recover $25,000 damages. At the request of his employer, Sylvester wrote "The Story of Classified Ads," which was published by the Telegram as a pamphlet and advertised for sale as having been written by Gilbert N. Gundersen.

Sylvester, admitting the story became the property of his employer, alleged that by reason of making a false statement as to its authorship, he had been damaged by being deprived of the opportunity of claiming it as his work, or establishing a reputation as a writer. He contended there is an implied understanding that the work of an employe shall not be falsely attributed to another, and if done, there is liability in damages.

The dismissal by the lower court and its affirmation by the Court of Appeals was on the ground that as his name was not mentioned and since the public did not know him to be the author of the story, there was no basis for which damages could be assessed.

Burnside Promoted on Telegraph

The New York Morning Telegraph, this week announced the appointment of V. W. Burnside as advertising manager. Burnside for 10 years was with the New York Hearst organization, and for the past 10 years has been with the Telegraph business staff.

Mack Joins Lakeland Ledger

Bryan Mack, Florida newspaper man, recently with the American Review of Reviews, has joined the Lakeland (Fla.) Ledger as business manager. He has served on the Jacksonville Times Union and Pensacola Journal.

Canadians Urge Tax on U. S. Magazines

The Montreal Publicity Association at a meeting May 5 advocated that Canda impose a tax of 10 cents a pound on foreign publications which now enter the Dominion free of duty. At present there is a duty of 15 cents a pound on advertising matter going into Canada and a tariff of 2 5to 35 per cent on paper imported, but foreign magazines, periodicals, and other publications enter Canada free of duty.

Semi-Weekly to Enter Daily Field

The Okmulgee (Okla.) Record, semi-weekly paper, has announced that it will publish a daily beginning May 15.

"BILL" BEAZELL, OF WORLD, WINS!

W. P. Beazell receiving congratulations on his election to the presidency of the New York Newspaper Club. In the picture are (left to right): W. P. Beazell, John J. Leary, Jr., labor writer, New York World, and a newly elected director; Dwight Perrin, city editor, New York Herald Tribune, retiring president, and Augustin McNally, secretary.

BEAZELL WINS IN CLUB ELECTION IN NEW YORK

Named President of Newspaper Men's Group on Conservative Ticket—Largest Vote in History of Club

In the most sharply contested election in the history of the New York Newspaper Club, William P. Beazell, assistant managing editor of the New York World, representing the Conservative ticket, was elected president, and a Conservative board of directors was placed in office, Monday, May 3.

Beazell defeated by the close vote of 104 to 93 Royal Daniel, Jr. city editor, New York Mirror, who headed the Progressive ticket.

The Progressives succeeded in winning the first vice-presidency, naming Charles S. Hand, political writer for the New York American, to that office.

James Melvin Lee, director of the department of journalism, New York University, and conductor of "Our Own World of Letters" in Editor & Publisher named on both tickets, was elected second vice-president

Frank E. Perley, editor of Record and Guide, real estate paper, and Augustin McNally, special writer, were named treasurer and secretary respectively. They were also supported by both factions.

Percy Soule, of the New York Times, reporter, a Conservative, defeated Prentice Winchell for corresponding secretary.

The new board members are: Dwight S. Perrin, city editor, New York Herald Tribune, retiring president; John J. Leary, Jr., labor writer, New York World; Michael Haggerty, New York Times; Jacob Magidoff, Jewish Daily News; Edwin J. Judd; H. I. Phillips, columnist, New York Sun; and William J. Guard, representing the associate members.

The high interest of the club membership in the election was shown in the large vote, 200 ballots being cast, of which three were voided, leaving a total vote 197.

Hot campaigning was carried on for weeks before the voting. The Progressives advocated a club-owned home, more club entertainment and larger membership.

Conservatives upheld the present policy of careful, sound upbuilding of the club's membership and finance, and opposed expansion of the entertainment program.

Open letters to candidates and replies from their backers were widely circulated.

"I am extremely gratified over the interest taken in the election," Mr. Beazell said to Editor & Publisher following his election. "The fact there was strong opposition was an encouraging sign. A club where members take no interest in annual elections is in a bad way. I am told the poll in this election of the Newspaper Club was one of the largest in its history. This is certainly a healthy sign."

HOTELS USING DAILY'S MAP

N. Y. Sun's "Shopping Place of Millions" on Display As Shopping Guide

A map issued by the New York Sun about a year ago entitled "The Shopping Place of Millions" is now being displayed in mounted and framed form, 34 by 44 inches by 36 hotels in New York in their lobbies or in their special consulting rooms as a shopping guide for the convenience of their guests, according to George Benneyan, of the Research Department. Most of the large hotels in New York are included in this group.

In addition 29 hotels are using the map in muslin mounted form on their information desks for ready reference.

"The Shopping Place of Millions" shows the location of all the local stores in Manhattan that advertise in the Sun. The stores are divided into fourteen different groups and each group is indicated by a separate shade of color.

GEORGIA DAILY WINS COVETED PULITZER PRIZE

Columbus Enquirer Sun Awarded Gold Medal for Best Public Service—Kingsbury, N. Y. Times, Given Editorial Prize—Fitzpatrick and Miller Winners of Cartoon and Reporting Competitions

WINNERS of the Pulitzer prizes in journalism, art, and letters were announced this week at Columbia University, New York. The journalism prizes were awarded as follows:

For the most disinterested and meritorious public service rendered by an American newspaper during the year, a gold medal costing $500, awarded to the Columbus (Ga.) Enquirer Sun, for the service which it rendered in its brave and energetic fight against the Ku Klux Klan, against the enactment of a law to bring the teaching of evolution, against dishonest and incompetent public officials, and for justice to the negro and against lynching.

For the best editorial article written during the year, the test of excellence being clearness of style, moral purpose, sound reasoning and power to influence public opinion in the right direction, due account being taken of the whole volume of the writer's editorial work during the year, $500 awarded to the New York Times for the editorial entitled 'The House of a Hundred Sorrows,' by Edward M. Kingsbury, published Dec. 14, 1925.

For the best example of a reporter's work during the year, the test being strict accuracy, terseness, the accomplishment of some public good commanding public attention and respect, $1,000, awarded to William Burke Miller of the Louisville (Ky.) Courier-Journal for his work in connection with the story of the trapping in Sand Cave, Ky., of Floyd Collins.

For the best cartoon published in any American newspaper during the year, the determining qualities being that the cartoon shall embody an idea made clearly apparent, shall show good drawing and striking pictorial effect, and shall be helpful to some commendable cause of public importance, due account being taken of the whole volume of the artist's newspaper work during the year; $500 awarded to B. R. Fitzpatrick of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, for the cartoon entitled, 'The Laws of Moses and the Laws of Today,' published April 12, 1925."

There was no competition for and therefore no award of the $1,000 prize "for the best history of the services rendered to the public by the American press during the preceding year or for the publication and distribution through the Columbia University Press of publications of service to American journalism."

Five times the amount of journalism material was submitted for consideration to the Pulitzer judges this year than last, Jerome Landfield, executive secretary of the advisory board, told EDITOR & PUBLISHER. In some cases, it was ten times greater, he said.

For instance, he pointed out the work of 41 different reporters was sifted before the prize winner, Miller, formerly of the Louisville (Ky.) Courier-Journal, was picked. The jury on the reporters' prize, named from members of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, made five recommendations to the advisory board, starring Miller's work as their first choice.

Seventeen different newspapers entered the public service competition, but Mr. Landfield said there was no hesitation in awarding the prize to Julian Harris, Columbus (Ga.) Enquirer-Sun, because the character of the service performed by this paper was on "such a high plane."

A double tribute was paid Mr. Harris. In addition to winning the award, he was also named a member of the Pulitzer prize advisory board to fill the place vacated by the resignation of John Stewart Ryan, publisher of the Richmond (Va.) News-Leader. The appointment was made at the annual meeting of the board in New York, April 24.

E. M. KINGSBURY'S PULITZER PRIZE EDITORIAL

Printed in New York Times, Dec. 14, 1925

THE HOUSE OF A HUNDRED SORROWS

The walls are grimy and discolored. The uneven floors creak and yield under foot. Staircases and landings are rickety and black. The door of every room is open. Walk along these corridors. Walk into this room. Here is a sickly boy of 5, deserted by his mother, underfed, solitary in the awful solitude of starved neglected childhood. "Seldom talks." Strange, isn't it? Some, many children, never "prattle," like your darlings. They are already old. They are full, perhaps, of long, hopeless thoughts. There are plenty of other "kids" in this tenement. Here is one, only three. Never saw his father. His mother spurned and abused him. He is weak and "backward." How wicked of him when he has been so encouraged and coddled! Doesn't know any games. How should he? Do children play? Not his kind. They live to suffer.

In Room 24 is Rose, a housemother of 10. Father is in the hospital. Mother is crippled with rheumatism. Rose does all the work. You would love Rose if she came out of Dickens. Well, there she is, mothering her mother in Room 24. In Room 20 age has been toiling for youth. Grandmother has been taking care of three granddaughters who lost their mother. A brave old woman; but what with rheumatism and heart weakness, threescore-and-ten can't go out to work any more. What's going to happen to her and her charges? Thinking of that, she is ill on top of her physical illness. A very interesting house, isn't it, Sir? Decidedly "a rum sort of place," Madam? Come into Room 23. Simon, the doll-maker—but handmade dolls are "out"—lives, if you call it living, here. Eighty years old, his wife of about the same age. Their eyesight is mostly gone. Otherwise they would still be sewing on buttons and earning a scanty livelihood for themselves and two little girls, their grandchildren. The girls object to going to an orphan home. Some children are like that.

You must see those twin sisters of 65 in Room 47. True, they are doing better than usual on account of the coming holidays; making as much as $10 a month, whereas their average is but $6. Still, rents are a bit high; and the twins have been so long together that they would like to stay so. In Room—but you need no guide. Once in The House of a Hundred Sorrows you will visit every sad chamber in it. If your heart be made of penetrable stuff, you will do the most you can to bring hope and comfort to its inmates, to bring them Christmas and the Christ:

"For I was a hungered, and ye gave me meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink: I was a stranger, and you took me in.

"Naked, and ye clothed me: I was sick, and ye visited me: I was in prison, and ye came unto me."

"There was a surprising increase in the number of newspapers participating in the public service competition," Mr. Landfield said. "Some newspapers sent in whole files of their newspapers to show the public good they accomplished, during 1925. Others prepared elaborate documents.

"Competition for the best editorial prize was also keen. More than 40 different applications were sent in. Mr. Kingsbury's beautiful editorial was chosen as the winner, the selection being made not only on the basis of this one editorial, but also on the past work of the writer, which has been most brilliant.

'The cartoon selection required heated discussion. Many admirers sent in their choices. These were judged as well as entrants made by the newspapers. In all about 25 different cartoons were considered. A number were ruled out, because of the fact that the terms of the Pulitzer prizes bars cartoons of a political nature."

Mr. Landfield said a rule made by the advisory board prohibited him from making public the names of participants other than the winners.

"I wish I could lift the lid," he said. "It would be a revelation of the activity and the ingenuity of American newspapers and newspaper men. The most extraordinary feats were accomplished during 1925 by American reporters. There were hosts of interesting stories written. In making the final selection, the main question became whether or not the reporter's work had commanded wide-spread public attention.

"It is the feeling of the board," Mr. Landfield concluded, "that the interest shown this year will be reflected in even increased interest in 1926, and it is hoped that the fact that small city newspapers and newspaper men were among the 1925 winners has proved conclusively that there is nothing to the hitherto prevalent idea that the prizes were sure to go to metropolitan dailies."

Sinclair Lewis's "Arrowsmith" won the $1,000 prize "for the American novel published during the year which shall best present the wholesome atmosphere of American life and the highest standard of American manners and manhood."

Lewis, in a letter to the Advisory Board following announcement of the prizes, refused his $1,000 award.

"All prizes, like all titles, are dangerous," Lewis wrote in refusing the distinction, adding that by the terms of the Pulitzer Award novels were appraised not upon literary merit, but upon the moment's code of "good form"; that a continuation of the Pulitzer Award tended to make its administrators a supreme court impossible to challenge; and that only by regularly refusing the Pulitzer prize can novelists keep such power from being permanently set up over them.

Ralph Pulitzer, editor of the New York World, commenting on Mr. Lewis' action and the contentions made in his letter said:

"Without assuming to speak for the Advisory Board, which made the award and of which I am only one member of a total of eleven, I should say that Mr. Lewis has the right to refuse any prize awarded him whether he does so from principle or from self-exploitation."

Jerome B. Landfield, Secretary to the Advisory Board said:

"The whole thing is very amusing, and it looks very much like free advertising to me."

The drama, "Craig's Wife," by George Kelly, won the $1,000 prize "for the original American play performed in New York, which shall best represent the educational value and power of the stage in raising the standard of good morals, good taste and good manners."

The sixth volume of the "History of the United States," by Edward Channing, won the $2,000 prize "for the best book of the year upon the history of the United States."

Harvey Cushing's "The Life of Sir William Osler," won the $1,000 prize "for the best American biography teaching patriotic and unselfish services to the people, illustrated by an eminent example, excluding, as too obvious, the names of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln."

The late Amy Lowell's "What's O'Clock" won the $1,000 prize "for the best volume of verse published during the year by an American author."

Three traveling scholarships, worth $1,500 each, open to "graduates of the School of Journalism who shall have passed their examinations with the highest honor and are otherwise most deserving, to enable each of them to spend a year in Europe, to study the social, political and moral conditions of the people, and the character and principles of the European press," were awarded to Lawrence Hopkins Odell of White Plains, N. Y.; Miss Dorothy Ducas of New York City and Leif Eid of Everett, Wash. Their alternates are Gordon Neander Havens of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Lawrence Robert Goldberg of Revere, Mass., and Francis Lincoln Grahlfs of Jamaica, N. Y.

Miss Lucille Crews of Redlands, Cal., won the $1,500 scholarship for "the student of music in America who may be deemed the most talented and deserving, in order that he may continue his studies with the advantages of European instruction, on the nomination of the teaching staff of the Department of Music and of the teaching staff of the Institute of Musical Art." Her winning composition was a sonata for viola and piano and a symphonic elegy for orchestra, entitled "To the Unknown Soldier."

The awards were ratified Monday at a meeting of the trustees of Columbia University in accordance with action taken on April 22 by the Advisory Board of the School of Journalism, which was established at Columbia by the late Mr. Pulitzer.

The members of the Advisory Board are Melville E. Stone, Associated Press; Edward Page Mitchell; Ralph Pulitzer, the World; Robert Lincoln O'Brien, Boston Herald; Arthur M. Howe, Brooklyn Daily Eagle; John L. Heaton, the World; Joseph Pulitzer, St. Louis Post Dispatch; Rollo Ogden, the New York Times; Alfred Holman, San Francisco; Casper S. Yost, St. Louis Globe-Democrat, and President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University.

The Advisory Board in making its decisions had before it recommendations from members of the National Institute of Arts and Letters in the case of awards in letters, and from members of the teaching staff of the School of Journalism and members of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, in the case of awards in journalism.

The award in drama was recommended unanimously by a jury consisting of A. E. Thomas, Chairman; Owen Davis and Walter Prichard Eaton.

Dr. Butler authorized a statement that in the opinion of the jury the "most worthy book" was Bernard Fay's "L'Esprit Revolutionnaire en France et aux Etats-Unis à la Fin du 18 Siècle," but it was "held to be ineligible under the terms of the award," so that the prize went to Channing's volume on the "History of the United States.'

PULITZER GOLD MEDAL TO GEORGIA DAILY

Julian Harris, Editor and General Manager, Columbus Enquirer-Sun, Delighted and Surprised at Prize For Public Service

"I am of course delighted and surprised at the Pulitzer award," Julian Harris, editor and general manager of the Columbus Enquirer-Sun, told EDITOR & PUBLISHER. "I thought I might get a 'best editorial' award, but it seems like a dream to think of a morning paper of 7,000 circulation being honored with the gold medal. I suppose you noticed that I have been named as a member of the Advisory Board of the School of Journalism of Columbia University. This pleased me tremendously, also. I've had an unbelieveable hard fight here and this unexpected recognition not only heartens me, but I believe with a great inspiration to many editors of smaller newspapers. It looks as if the mouse-trap story had come true with the Enquirer-Sun."

Julian Harris

The Enquirer-Sun is the smallest morning newspaper in Georgia in point of circulation, and, as population goes, is published in the fifth city of the state. It was founded in 1828 by Mirabeau Lamar, the first vice-president of the Republic of Texas, who was its editor. At one time it was edited and owned by Beale Richardson, uncle of Frank R. Kent, Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun.

For the past five years Mr. Harris has been the controlling owner of the Enquirer-Sun, and since the fall of 1922 has been both editor and general manager. Associated with him in the ownership and editorial management is his wife, Julia Collier Harris, the author of the "Life and Letters of Joel Chandler Harris," and the "Foundling Prince." In addition to her work on the Enquirer-Sun, to which she contributes editorials and articles on literature, art, education and music, she has written for the Nation, Social Forces (published by the University of North Carolina) and has had articles in the Baltimore Evening Sun, the New York Herald Tribune and the Atlanta Constitution.

From the moment Mr. Harris assumed editorship of the Enquirer-Sun, the original program of a fight against the Ku Klux Klan was broadened out. His first editorial was entitled "Putting Out a Fire with Gasoline," and criticised adversely Judge Geo. P. Munro in connection with the change of venue for a murder case. The editor was arrested and brought before the court on the charge of contempt and there stated his views of what a newspaper should stand for, and the imperative need for a free press. He was dismissed with a warning; the judge was defeated at the next election.

For more than five years the Enquirer-Sun has fought the Klan denouncing it as "100 per cent un-American" and as "a cowardly masked gang" which attempted to usurp the rights of constituted authority and foment racial prejudice and religious intolerance." With the exception of a small afternoon daily and a couple of weekly papers, the Enquirer-Sun carried on a lone fight. Finding that no other Georgia newspaper intended to print the New York World's expose of the Klan graft and corruption, and the Enquirer-Sun did so. Twenty per cent of its circulation disappeared and the air and the mails were burdened with anonymous threats. The Columbus Chapter of the Klan as a final gesture paraded about 300 strong, masked and robed and carrying placards which contained such sentiments as "America for Gentiles" "Down with the Jews," "Down with the Negro." The fight against the Kluxers was continued until the local Klan dwindled to the point of disappearing from public notice. The original chapter disbanded and efforts to get any strength have failed.

Along with the fight against the Klan, the Enquirer-Sun took up the cudgels for religious tolerance, and for justice to the negro. In the face of what Harris calls "a banal and over-worked slogan of 'It's great to be a Georgian'" which the present governor either originated or adopted, the Enquirer-Sun has told what it believed to be the truth about the state, using such captions as "the Empire State of Illiteracy" "The Invisible Empire State," "The Lynching of a Lunatic Negro" and "Thirteen Little King Canutes," this last being the opening gun of the Enquirer-Sun's campaign against the anti-evolution bill which was recommended for passage by the so-called legislative committee on education.

(Continued on page 49)

FITZPATRICK'S WINNING CARTOON

"The Laws of Moses and the Laws of To-day," St. Louis Post-Dispatch, April 12, 1925

WINNERS OF TRAVELLING SCHOLARSHIPS

LAURENCE ODELL

DOROTHY DUCAS

LIEF EID

MILLER'S HEROISM WO REPORTING AWARD

Louisville Courier-Journal Writer Ma Seven Perilous Trips to Side of Trappe Man 80 Feet Underground—Has Left Newspaper Work

William Burke Miller, awarded $1,0 for his story on the attempted rescue Floyd Collins, caught in an undergrou cave in Cave City, Ky., has left new paper work and the Louisville (Ky Courier-Journal, and is now in the ic cream business with his father at Wint Haven, Fla.

Miller, whose everyday name "Skeets," was born in Louisville, a went directly from high school to t police court beat of the Courier-Jo nal. He is now only 22 years of a As a reporter, he said frankly he h no interest in newspaper work. wanted to be a singer, he said, and h

Photographed at Sand C

William B. Miller

become a reporter to get money to t him to Europe for a musical educati

He had been three years on the C rier-Journal, when he was sent one ni to investigate the story that a man l been caught 80 feet underground ir sandstone cave. Miller took compl charge of the rescue of Floyd Collins following morning. He is very sm weighs only 110 pounds, and was able slip down the tortuous passage until lay beside Collins.

In all, Miller made seven trips into cave. He wrote:

"It is terrible inside. The cold, di water numbs me as soon as I start I have come to dread it, as have all oth who have been in, but each of us tell o selves that our suffering is as noth compared to Collins's. His patience d ing long hours of agony, his constant h when life seemed nearing an end, enough to strengthen the heart of one. Collins doesn't know it, but he playing a very, very big part in his o rescue."

After the militia arrived at the c reports were circulated that the story a hoax. Miller was the chief witness the investigation which followed, since was one of the only two men who actu ly had seen Collins.

Miller's stories during the first days the rescue were quoted by the Associa Press and thus published from one of the country to the other. The C rier-Journal gave him a bonus of $1,0

After this exploit Miller returned his paper, but continued as a repor only a short time. At present he is ing at Winter Haven, Fla., where he in the ice-cream manufacturing busin

TRADE BOARD HEARS CONSPIRACY TESTIMONY

Representatives of Vick Chemical and Firestone Testify as to Difficulty of Obtaining Agency Commission on Business Placed Direct—Respondents Deny All Charges—High Tribute to Newspaper Advertising EFFORTS by the Federal Trade Commission to establish conspiracy between advertising agencies and newspaper publishers and representatives to deprive direct advertisers of the usual agency discount, continued throughout this week in New York. Eugene W. Burr, chief counsel for the commission questioned Chester F. Chapin, formerly advertising space-buyer for the Vick Chemical Company, Greensboro, N. C., bringing into the record the gist of the charges made by the commission at the application of the Vick Company and others. Mark Cooper of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Company, a direct advertiser also brought out points for the commission.

The hearings were adjourned Friday, subject to call on two weeks' notice by the examiner.

L. B. Palmer, manager of the A. N. P. A., took the stand Wednesday and Thursday and denied generally and in detail that any conspiracy existed between the A. N. P. A. and the A. A. A. A. or any of their members. Other witnesses called this week were Harry S. Prudden, of Prudden, King & Prudden; William A. Thomson, director of the A. N. P. A. Bureau of Advertising; F. J. Hermes, secretary-treasurer of the Hickman Company, and Floyd Y. Keller.

The testimony of Chester F. Chapin, former director of the Vick Chemical Company, and for 10 years up to about a year ago, space buyer for that organization, was apparently designed to prove that agency members of the A. A. A. A. made much trouble for newspaper publishers and their representatives, or were a menace of trouble, who accepted the Vick advertising and allowed the company the usual agency discount of 15 per cent. Mr. Chapin testified that Vick's always had placed its advertising directly with the newspapers except that early in the history it had passed some of its advertising through the Freeman Advertising Agency, of Richmond, Va., but had discontinued even that since 1915.

Up to 1917, Mr. Chapin declared, Vick's was advertising in practically all Southern newspapers except those of Texas, all except a few allowing the usual agency discount, or commission. The company had then, he said, distribution for its goods practically all over the country except the centers of New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and Boston. The newspapers in these sections, he said, would not accept the Vick advertising or allow discounts as to agencies.

Newspapers, the witness said, were regarded by him and his associates as "the best form of advertising we could use." Other advertising, such as billboards, were used only where newspapers refused to accept Vick advertising at net rates, but was too expensive. He said his sales force would be "no good" without newspaper advertising, and that the only way to approach replacing it was by house-to-house canvassing, which was very costly.

Soon after the time mentioned, he said, he had found opposition to placing the advertising at direct rates, with discount allowed. Mr. Burr introduced as an exhibit about 35 letters and carbons of replies dealing with the matter of direct rates, written to the Vick Chemical Company and answered by Mr. Chapin. The letters were from the Chattanooga (Tenn.) Times and the John Budd Company, its representative; Houston (Tex.) Chronicle; Alexandria (La.) Town Talk; New Orleans Item; Richmond (Va.) News-Leader, Atlanta (Ga.) Journal. All refused Vick advertising at direct rates.

These letters were met by the usual form of objections from counsel for the respondents, which were overruled by the examiner, as respondents' objections usually have been.

Under further questioning by Mr. Burr, against objections of opposing counsel, Mr. Chapin told of coming to New York at the time of the A. N. P. A. convention of 1920 and seeing Willard E. Carpenter, since deceased, who, he said, told him that there was a great deal of feeling against direct advertising, adding that he was being pressed by members of the A. A. A. A. not to allow agency commission to direct advertisers. "He wanted me," witness continued, "to take as many papers as possible of his list because it was not fair to ask him to jeopardize his business for a small number; that he would lose other business because he was accepting Vick advertising and allowing agency discount. If I could not take practically all his list, then he would be compelled to discontinue the commission deduction."

Objections made to the admission of this testimony were withdrawn when Mr. Burr declared that the sole object was to show a common line of understanding between this one man and the A. A. A. A. members.

Mr. Chapin mentioned also a conversation with Mr. Wolcott, of Hammond & Wolcott, special representatives of the St. Paul Daily News and the Minneapolis News.

"He told me," the witness said, "that he had heard of a meeting of the A. A. A. A. which had discussed the Vick contract, and said that the George Batten Agency had asked him, on one of his calls there, if he was allowing commission on Vick advertising. When he answered 'yes' he was told that he could not expect business from that agency if he continued to do so. He wanted me to give him a contract which would show that he himself was getting the commission."

Among others who spoke to him about this same situation, he said, were Herman Halsted of Paul Block, Inc., and George Reichard, Scripps-Howard Newspapers.

M. H. Long, of the John M. Branham Company, he testified, told him that "further pressure had been brought to bear upon him by A. A. A. A. members against accepting Vick direct advertising contracts." Charles P. Eddy and Frank P. Alcorn, he said, had told him practically the same thing. Mr. Reichard, he said, told him that he should be very easy on newspapers and expect increased rates and poor service, since they were under strong pressure to decline Vick contracts.

"I went to the S. N. P. A. convention in Asheville, N. C.," Mr. Chapin testified, "and heard Collin Armstrong, chairman of the newspaper committee of the A. A. A. A., report on his work. Afterward I talked with H. Galt Braxton, of the Kinston (N. C.) Free Press, who told me he could not take Vick advertising and allow agency commissions. When he went home he gave me a contract at local rates, telling me that the S. N. P. A. approved the agency commission and he could not step over it."

In the spring of 1920, Mr. Chapin said, Harry Reynolds, of the Benjamin & Kentnor Company, told him the newspapers he represented were restless about allowing commission to direct advertisers.

Continuing, Mr. Chapin said: "In February, 1924, I went to B. F. Lawrence, of the Star League—Indianapolis Star, Muncie Star and Terre Haute Star, who had discontinued running Vick advertising and asked him to take it back. He told me he had stiff competition in the Indianapolis News and needed agency support; to continue to accept our advertising would knock him out. But I arranged with Keifer-Judd Company, jobbers, to run Vick advertising at local rates. Their advertising is still running, I believe."

Asked what that meant in dollars and cents to the newspaper publishers, Mr. Chapin quoted figures to show that local rates were less than national rates with agency commission deducted.

"Some newspapers," he said, "which had 'thrown us out' later took us back again. The Montgomery (Ala.) Advertiser threw us out in July, 1923, and took us back in February, 1924. The Knoxville Journal threw us out in 1923 and took us back in 1925. The Richmond News-Leader threw us out in 1923 and took us back later. Major Allen Potts, business manager of the News-Leader, said it was 'all a lot of damn foolishness' and he did not see why he could not carry Vick's, though the paper had thrown us out before. He took us back."

Mr. Chapin told of going to Iowa to try to get Vick advertising into newspapers at net rates. Failing to induce the publishers to give him net rates, he got Vick advertising inserted at local rates, on the accounts of local druggists, in the Ottumwa Courier, Muscatine Journal News-Tribune, Davenport Democrat, Davenport Times and La Crosse (Wis.) Tribune. In this connection, also, he showed that local rates were lower than national rates less commission, and said the publishers lost money by accepting Vick advertising at local rates.

He said that about 150 newspapers refused Vick advertising in 1923, though now the number declining it had diminished to about 120.

Mr. Chapin described the advertising department of the Vick Chemical Company as consisting of about 25 persons, which furnished to newspapers complete copy, matrices and electrotypes.

In cross examination of Mr. Chapin by Mr. Plante, for the A. N. P. A. and the Six Point League, it appeared that counsel was trying to establish that the Vick Chemical Company withdrew its advertising from newspapers not because of opposition by any outside force, but voluntarily.

Before Mr. Plante began, Mr. Burr, for the Commission, read the following stipulation into the record:

"Counsel for the Commission, in order to save multiplication of evidence, desires to place of record their admission that all members of the respondent newspaper publishers' associations have been during the times named in the complaint, and still are, willing to grant advertising space at gross rates to all direct advertisers whose advertising is acceptable in other respects. We regard this fact as not particularly material to the charges of maintenance of the price of advertising service and denial of less than gross rates by combination or conspiracy."

In an effort to draw from the witness an admission that withdrawal of Vick advertising was voluntary where publishers refused to give agency discounts to direct advertisers, Mr. Plante got the explanation that "We did not think we should not receive the discount and provide agency service. In the early days of the Vick advertising there were very few agencies which could give us the service we needed. Later, agencies were established too far from Greensboro to be convenient."

On the question of the cost of the service Mr. Chapin testified that the advertising department of Vick's cost about 17½ per cent of the amount annually spent by it in advertising, and that at least one newspaper representative of an advertising agency told him that his house could not handle it for as little as it was costing Vick's. Using posters where it was impossible to deal with the publishers direct, he said, cost far more than the 15 per cent agency commission.

It was not only refusal of the agency

(Continued on page 42)

AT THIS WEEK'S HEARING OF THE FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION

Left to right—L. B. Palmer, manager, A. N. P. A.; G. B. Plante, counsel for A. N. P. A. and Six-Point League; J. T. Finley, counsel for S. N. P. A.; Charles A. Brodek, counsel for A. P. A.; Clark McKercher, counsel for A. A. A. A.; C. F. Chapin, representing Vick Chemical Company, John W. Addison, Examiner for Federal Trade Commission; Eugene W. Burr, chief counsel for Trade Commission; John R. Dowlan, counsel for Trade Commission; (rear) James F. Hoge, counsel for applicants; Walter Sammis, reporter for applicants; William A. Thomson, director Bureau of Advertising of A. N. P. A.

SYNCHRONIZING ADVERTISING WITH THE NEWS

Joseph H. Appel, Advertising Director of John Wanamaker Stores Believes in Future of Photoradiogram Talks on Powers of Newspaper Space

ADVERTISERS should take advantage of all means of rapid international communication by word or picture and synchronize their advertising with the news, is the belief of Joseph H. Appel, advertising director of the John Wanamaker Stores, New York, expressed in an interview with EDITOR & PUBLISHER this week. The logical and best medium is, therefore, the newspaper, he said.

JOSEPH H. APPEL

The Wanamaker stores were among the first to make pioneer use of the new photoradiogram service for transmitting a merchandise picture by wireless across the Atlantic from London to New York, and the first to transmit a complete advertisement from New York to London, and Mr. Appel was sought out to express the advertiser view of this latest marvel of human ingenuity.

"The photoradiogram is still in its early stages of development," Mr. Appel said. "Those who remember the initial difficulties of telephone communication, will require but little imagination to vision the future of this new great force of rapid picture transmission.

"I can see enormous possibilities for the use of photoradiograms by an advertiser with world-wide distribution.

"Advertising today must focus on the news of the day. To get over the ideas embodied in an advertisement, the copy must appear when the public is thinking along similar lines. The public mind must, in other words, be entered when it is receptive.

"If an advertiser of such things as fashions which change rapidly, goes through the long process of preparing and planning an advertising campaign ahead, as he has hitherto, he is likely to find that conditions have greatly changed before the copy actually appears—that his advertising has become obsolete.

"The alternative, offered today, is for him to take advantage of all means of rapid international communication and synchronize his advertising with the news of the day.

"You know how long it requires to place advertising in the magazines. You know how copy must be drawn up and prepared months before it finally is presented to the public. The obvious medium, then, is the newspaper. Why use a medieval courier to carry your message in this wireless age.

"The photoradio is a new force to be used in advertising. How are we going to use it? Perhaps the future alone can reply.

"Advertisers may now use the photoradiogram as they have used pictures overnight in the newspapers—to tie up the day's news with a picture while it is still new.

"If there is something in this new service for us we are going to use it; and we believe there is something there."

With no little difficulty, the Wanamaker stores put the new radio service to advertising use twice in its first week of commercial operation by the Marconi Wireless Company of England and the Radio Corporation of America. Other advertisers likewise pioneered. Carrera, Limited submitted an advertisement of Craven tobacco to be inserted in the New York Times. Lord & Taylor's London representative filed a sketch of a gown by a famous French designer for transmission to New York. Abraham & Straus, Brooklyn department store, flashed over a picture of its London office.

"Craven Again Makes History" was the headline of the Carrera copy.

Under the picture of its London office, the Abraham & Straus advertisement read, in part, as follows:

"This radio photograph, received under such dramatic circumstances, spotlights the world-wide scope of Abraham & Straus—emphasizing the fact that the world is the hunting ground for A. & S. purchasing agents.

"We hope to use this new service in bringing European fashion news and pictures to you even more quickly than now."

Carried from Paris to London by airplane a photograph of the latest Reboux hat was sent by photoradiogram to New York to be used in the Wanamaker advertisement in New York newspapers Saturday, May 1.

"As soon as the newspapers were on the street Saturday presenting a John Wanamaker advertisement of the latest Reboux Paris hat flashed overnight from London by the new photo-radio service, customers began coming to the store to have the hat reproduced as pictured," Mr. Appel said.

On Monday, May 3, Wanamaker's further developed the practical commercial use of the radio service sending to London over the air the first "advergram" to be published simultaneously Monday in the London Times, London Telegraph, and London Daily Mail, the Paris Herald, the Paris editions of the London Daily Mail and Chicago Tribune; the New York Times, the New York Herald Tribune, the New York World, and New York American; and the Philadelphia Public Ledger, Philadelphia Record, and Philadelphia Inquirer. The store, Mr. Appel said, has applied for a trademark on "advergram."

The advergram quoted John Wanamaker as saying in 1919 that "the Atlantic Ocean in our thoughts is not half as wide as it used to be, that the visions of the Columbuses who are exploring the air have created the belief that the whole world has come to be neighbors.

"The merchant will find the radio of great service in linking country with country, people with people to the end that all may live and work together peacefully and happily," the advergram read.

"In the business of living, no one can live to himself alone."

As illustration, the advergram carried line drawings of the New York and Philadelphia Wanamaker stores.

Considerable difficulty attended transmission of the advergram from New York to London and Paris, according to Mr. Appel. It was regular three-column newspaper copy, but this proved too wide for the picture sending machine, which limits the size of pictures to be radioed to 4¼ inches. Thus the original was cut into horizontal strips, and transmitted sidewise. Originally filed on Friday, the Radio Corporation was unable to complete the process until Sunday afternoon. Officials took pride in their work, and several attempts were made on each strip before perfect synchronization was obtained. The last paragraph was, indeed, not filed by the photo-radio process. Instead it was radioed in code to London. The London Times received its complete photo-radio copy at 8:40 Sunday evening. The advergram was published as scheduled in all the London papers except the Daily Mail, which did not publish at all on account of strike conditions, and in all the Paris papers.

When Mr. Appel was interviewed on the photoradiogram innovation, he was asked to enlarge on his views regarding the value of newspaper space generally.

The value of the newspaper as an advertising medium, he said, could best be demonstrated by the case method, by actual test, and he cited as a recent case the sale by Wanamakers of more than $1,000,000 worth of Ware and Thermiodyne radio receiving sets in two months' time.

"The manufacturer," he explained, "is apt to think that advertising will do everything; but it wont. Price, product, time, and the consumers' market situation must all be taken into consideration.

Reproduction of photoradiogram advertisement sent from London to New York this week

And the rapidly changing market situation can best be met by newspaper advertising.

"The retail dealer, being closest to the people, senses the public mind. He knows what will sell, and what won't sell. He knows when to advertise. To be successful in advertising, you must get down close to the public.

"Retail advertising in the newspapers is closest to the public mind; it is a truthful barometer of what will sell, and what won't sell."

Mr. Appel said that more than 10,000 radio sets, representing a value of more than $1,000,000, were sold by use of only one series of four different advertisements, staggered in the various New York newspapers, over the two months' time. Each advertisement measured about six columns wide.

The advertising expense, he concluded, was under four per cent of the sales.

FAVOR WOODBRIDGE RE-ELECTION

A.N.A.E. Members Think Present A.A.C.W. Chief Should Serve Another Term

Members of the Association of Newspaper Advertising Executives favor reelection of C. King Woodbridge as president of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, according to replies to a recent questionnaire sent out by Newspaper Advertising, official organ of the association.

The majority of the A. N. A. E. members gave one or more of the following reasons why a newspaper man should be elected president of the A. A. C. W.:

1. Any one of a number of active newspaper executives would prove to be an efficient president of the A. A. C. W., if consent were given to present his name.

2. The newspapers have been a vital factor in the development of the A. A. C. W. and many present and future plans of the A. A. C. W. are predicated upon the support of the newspapers.

3. Every one recognizes the newspapers as one of the most important advertising media. In fact, advertising expenditures in newspapers equal the expenditures in all other media combined, including direct-by-mail.

4. At no time during the existence of the A. A. C. W. has a newspaper executive been elected president of the organization. Rowe Stewart of the Philadelphia Record served as president of the A. A. C. W. but he, as the elected vice-president, completed the term of resigned president.

NEW ZEALAND OFFICIAL DISCUSSES CABLE SNARL

Technical Objection on Type of Metal to Be Used in Duplicate Wire to Antipodes Was First Point of Divergence

Sir James Allen, High Commissioner for New Zealand in London, has recently issued a statement regarding the relations of Hon. Charles Murphy, Postmaster-General of Canada with the Pacific Cable Board, which throws some new light on the difficulty which has arisen in connection with the duplication of the Pacific cable.

"The first serious divergence arose," says Sir James, "owing to Canada wanting to duplicate the cable via Honolulu. The Pacific Cable Board emphatically disagreed with this on the ground that the cable should follow an 'all Red' route to Australia and New Zealand and the contract was let on this basis."

Then, according to Sir James, there was a technical objection, Mr. Murphy wanting permalloy instead of numetal for the sheathing of the cable. Independent investigation by experts, says Sir James, had persuaded the Board that permalloy was superior, in addition to which it was a British Made compound, while numetal was made in the United States.

"If Canada continues to dissent" concludes Sir James, "there are only two courses open to her. She must either refuse a landing for the cable at Bamfield or she must withdraw from the Board. The former course is unthinkable for even foreigners are not denied a landing of their cable while the latter would necessitate discussion at the Imperial Conference, whereat Britain, Australia, New Zealand and Canada would argue regarding the terms of dissolution of the partnership."

According to a British United Press cable, Australians and New Zealanders in London are anxious to know whether Canada as a whole is behind the Postmaster-General and whether his statement of objections has the sanction and approval of the Canadian Government. The principal objection previously credited to Hon. Mr. Murphy was that the Pacific Cable Board had no right to proceed to let contracts for the duplication of the cable without Canada's approval and that Canada claimed the right to say how the cable surplus should be expended.

Asks Girls' Names Be Suppressed

Suppression of the names and addresses of girls and women attack victims in newspaper accounts has been asked by the Chicago Federation of Women's Organizations in resolutions that assert that many cases of the kind are not prosecuted because of the attendant publicity. Several of the newspapers have followed this policy for some time.

Monitor Prints All-Canada Edition

The Christian Science Monitor on Aprill 16, issued an All-Canada special edition in 64-pages. Articles were contributed by Bliss Carmen, Canadian poet and Charles G. D. Roberts, fiction writer and poet. A complete map of Canada was included in the edition, as well as many illustrations, articles and other material on the resources and industries of the Dominion.

RADIO PICTURES LINK BRITAIN WITH U. S.

Commercial Photoradiogram Service Inaugurated in Time to Cover British General Strike Crisis—Editors Disappointed with Results, But Look for Future Improvements

PHOTORADIOGRAMS, pictures transmitted by wireless, united Great Britain with America this week, with general strike photographs snapped in London appearing within a few hours in newspapers of New York and as far west as San Francisco.

The Radio Corporation of America, co-operating with the Marconi Company of England, inaugurated the commercial picture service, April 21, after many months of preliminary tests. A charge of $50 a picture between London and New York fixed.

New York newspapers gave initial pictures big play, and continued thereafter using radioed strike views, although editors admitted disappointment with results, in interviews with EDITOR & PUBLISHER. All questioned, however, looked for vast improvements in the near future.

Some pictures received in New York from London by the radio route were relayed over wires of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company to Chicago and San Francisco for reproduction in newspapers of those cities.

The first New York daily to receive a photoradiogram for publication May 1, was the New York Times; the first syndicate was NEA Service, Inc. All New York Dailies were served with at least one picture for their Saturday editions. Static and storm conditions caused some delay.

The Times' picture showed a group at the speakers table at the Pilgrim's Society dinner in London, April 28. The total time consumed in sending the picture was one hour and forty-five minutes. Alanson B. Houghton, the American Ambassador, one of the speakers, was easily recognizable. The features of Lord Reading, guest of honor at the dinner, were also preserved fairly well on the radio crossing of the Atlantic. Between these two was the figure of Lord Desborough, the toastmaster.

Charles M. Graves, picture editor of the Times, was critical of results obtained.

"But wireless transmission of pictures is, of course, in an embryonic stage just now," he said. "There will be improvement. It crawls now; soon it will walk; someday it will run."

Acme Newspictures, subsidiary of NEA has made arrangements to bring one photoradiogram daily from abroad as a special service for its clients, according to R. T. Dorman, general manager.

"Pictures received at the start of commercial service," Mr. Dorman said, "show a vast improvement over the early tests. I really believe that in the course of a year photographs sent by wireless will be as good as those transmitted by wire by the A. T. & T."

Mr. Dorman complained of delay, however. Pictures promised within two hours in some cases required 48 hours to get through.

H. B. Baker, general manager of P. & A. Photos, claimed his service had tried to send seven pictures in two days, and by May 4 had only received one of them.

P. & A., controls the Bartlane process for transmitting pictures by cable. Two strike news pictures received by this method this week showed a riot scene with a mob chasing a bicycle courier and a conference of labor leaders.

"We intend to spend $6,000 in the next week or 10 days on pictures for cable, radio and telephone transmission," Mr. Baker said.

"Newspapers throughout the country appear to be showing considerable interest in fast news picture transmission. On May 4, we sent out wires to 70 newspapers offering them a special service of pictures received from abroad by the various new speed methods. By May 5, we had received 30 replies, and all but five of them were acceptances."

Commenting on the first day of the commercial service, W. A. Winterbottom, traffic manager of the Radio Corporation of America said that static conditions were bad and that the machines were operated slowly on that account.

"Normally, we would send a picture every twenty minutes," he said to EDITOR & PUBLISHER. "On the first night, because of electrical storms and because we were using the apparatus for the first time for commercial use, we adjusted the instruments in London and New York to run three times as slow as usual, turning out about one picture an hour.

"Since the first night, the principle cause of delay has been the tremendous increase in the normal volume of business from England to the United States on account of the strike, both by cable and by wireless. This is a temporary situation which should soon be obviated.

"Then, again, the pictures which we are able to transmit in 20 minutes measure 3¼ by 4½ inches while those that were filed during the first days of the service were in most cases large plates, averaging 4½ by 6½, and requiring twice as long to send."

Only two instruments are in operation in each country now, according to Mr. Winterbottom, one sending and one receiving. The Radio Corporation expects to install more machines later.

"We want to make better pictures first," the traffic manager said. "When we get really satisfactory results, we will put on additional machines.

"Generally speaking, the process does not do very well on subjects which contain a great deal of small detail. They are not at their best on portraits. Black and white designs and other subjects offering much contrast are handled with the best results."

In addition to disturbance from static, the apparatus is subject to other slight troubles. Exact synchronization of action must be maintained between the transmitting and receiving instruments and slight mechanical trouble is sufficient to spoil a picture.

The pictures are translated into radio impulses, by photo-electric cells. These radio impulses, crossing the Atlantic, actuate a receiving instrument which produces the picture as a sketch in hot brown wax. The wax flows from a fountain pen, which is operated by radio impulses. The reproduction is a sketch in wavy lines of wax which is deposited on the paper a little thicker than ink on an engraved card.

In the picture-sending system in use over land wires the picture is translated by photo-electric methods into a continuous current whose variations are utilized to make up the lighter and darker parts of the picture. These delicate variations of current, however, cannot survive the transatlantic static and interference, so that the dot-and-dash method was developed by Captain H. H. Ranger of the Radio Corporation of America, who is in charge of the sending apparatus on the London side. Fine variations of light and shade are not recorded by the dot-and-dash method. A black spot on the picture is translated into a radio dot. A short gray line is also translated into a radio dot. In other words, a given quantity of blackness causes a radio dot and one motion of the fountain pen, whether that blackness is concentrated at one point or spread out for some distance on the line which is being translated into radio.

The opening of the commercial service was thus described by a writer for the New York World:

"With Winterbottom, Traffic Manager for the Radio Corporation, in the photoradiogram room in Broad street were Engineers L. A. Briggs and W. R. Retzbach. Ranger had several of his associates in London.

"Everybody else was excluded from the cabinets, both in London and New York, on this momentous occasion. The power used in the actual radio leap over the Atlantic was 200 kilowatts, equivalent to nearly 300 horse power. Figuratively it took that "herd" of invisible electrical horses fifty-nine minutes to drag the World's photograph from London to New York.

"The Radio Corporation of America and the British Marconi Company united their powerful equipment on each side of the Atlantic for a twenty-four-hour-a-day picture service.

"This was no stunt but the opening of regular service for the daily interchange of news photographs and facsimiles of documents between two continents, separated by 3,000 miles of ocean but united by the all-developing ether."

STATUE OF COMPOSITOR IN DAILY'S LOBBY

"THE Make-Up Man," said to be the first sculpture of a printer ever made, has been completed for the Camden (N. J.) Courier-Post. Cast in bronze, the statue will be placed in the lobby of a publishing building, and a replica will be given by the Courier-Post to the local typographical union which will present it to the Printer's Home, Colorado Springs, Col.

"The Make-Up Man" was modeled from life in the Courier-Post composing room by Max Kalish, noted American sculptor. Charles Goodwin chief make-up man of the Courier posed for the sculptor between editions.

Kalish has won fame here and abroad by his statues of craftsmen. He has made statues of steel workers, railroad engineers and firemen, etc.

J. David Stern, publisher of the Courier and Morning Post met Kalish in Paris last year. The sculptor spoke of having modeled nearly every craft.

"Have you ever made a printer," Stern asked the sculptor.

"No," said Kalish, "but I don't believe there is any characteristic pose of a printer which would lend itself to sculpture."

From this conversation evolved the idea of modeling "The Make-Up Man," as the most characteristic pose of a newspaper compositor. Kalish has caught the exact poise of the make-up man's hands in the act of "letting out" a column.

As far as is known, this is the first time a compositor has been done into bronze.

ILLINOIS GROUP NAMES McCONACHIE PRESIDENT

Southern Editors Hold Annual Meeting in Murphysboro—Smith, Wood, Fairweather, Chief Speakers—"Wet" Dailies Assailed

John McConachie of the Coulterville Republican, was elected president of the Southern Illinois Editorial Association at the annual meeting in Murphysboro, April 30 and Mrs. Ruby Jones, St. Elmo Times, was elected vice-president with Norris Goode, Virden Record, secretary-treasurer. The convention was adjourned to gather at a July date to be announced later, for the annual Mississippi river trip which will take the journalists to St. Louis and Cape Girardeau, Mo., where the members will be guests of the Naeter Brothers, publishers of the Cape Girardeau Southeastern Missourian. The current session concluded with a motor trip through the Murphysboro tornado district where the editors saw the work of rehabilitation already accomplished.

W. J. Smith, Waukegan Sun, president of the Illinois Press Association, one of the speakers at the session declared that "We are living in an age every day of which brings some startling development not only in newspaper circles but in all others and as a result the public is reading newspapers more than ever before and possibly because the papers are printing so many matters of large public interest."

Referring to the recent radiophone conversation between New York and London he said: "This, to my way of thinking, opens up a possibility in the matter of collecting news in the future. It is an epoch in telephoning and at the same time an epoch in newspaper work to speculate what the future may bring forth in collecting news from distant points."

Urging further co-operation, Mr. Smith said that while newspapermen of today had come into their own in a large extent they had not taken complete advantage of their associations, as men in other professions and industries have done. He cited the Illinois Press endorsement of the issuance of professional certificates to newspapermen as a step in that direction.

L. M. Wood, editor of the Flora Journal-Record declared that "utterances of certain 'wet' metropolitan dailies had been almost, if not quite, treasonable," but added that the country newspapers had saved the Eighteenth amendment.

"Editors and teachers have in common the task of influencing thought, the development of a larger thinking capacity and the moulding of opinion," said W. C. Fairweather, editor of the McLeansboro Times. "The work of both has its direct and indirect influence. Both are educators; both utilize fact material for the basis of their activity and by the selection of such materials and the emphasis placed on the same they carry their own impressions to the minds of others. Editors and teachers are engaged in the task of making their own ideas and ideals register as active forces in the lives of other people. The teacher delves more into the past than the editor, but both are concerned with making the living present a larger factor in the lives of living human beings, of revealing the close relationships that exist in life, of making individuals and society realize the rightful place held in human history."

NEWSPAPERS' RIGHT TO CRITICIZE JUDGE SHOULD BE FOUGHT FOR BY PRESS

Fair, Temperate Criticism a Privilege Not to Be Relinquished Under Contempt Threats, Writer Declares—Urges Press Groups Co-operate in Defending Editors

By THOMAS S. RICE
Brooklyn Daily Eagle Staff

IN the May 1, issue of EDITOR & PUBLISHER appeared a news story of vital interest to all newspaper owners, editors and writers, but its significance seems to have been overlooked by the newspapermen most directly concerned.

The story was headed: "Judge Fines Editor $15 for Contempt." It related that T. J. Bryson, editor of the Fort Pierce (Fla.) News Tribune had been fined $15 by Judge Liddon of the county court of Saint Lucie county, for contempt, which consisted of animadversions upon the criminal sentences imposed by Judge Liddon. Editor Bryson was writing about a coming election for a new judge, and Judge Liddon was not a candidate for re-election, but the editor argued that the sentences by Judge Liddon had not been sufficiently heavy to impress and deter criminals.

Editor Bryson paid the fine, but said he had not in the least changed his opinion, although he paid a high tribute to the personal character of Judge Liddon. He added:

"If the fine had been bigger we would have considered taking an appeal. We are confident we could win in a higher court."

Editor Bryson owed it to the newspaper Bryson to appeal, and his fellow editors in Florida owed it to themselves to assist him. His alleged offense consisted in publishing strictures upon sentences which had been duly promulgated. How harsh his strictures were I do not know, but the nominal fine is proof enough that they could not have been violent. Apparently that Saint Lucie county judge ruled that contempt had been committed, and imposed the fine, not to inflict condign punishment upon the editor but to serve notice that the publicly recorded proceedings of the court in completed cases must not be unfavorably mentioned.

In the dual capacities of lawyer and newspaper man I have steadily maintained for many years that when the judgment by a court had been duly entered by the clerk and had become a public record, that judgment was open to temperate, honest, constructive discussion. For some reason which I have never been able to understand, newspaper editors, on the whole, seem inclined to accept the attitude which so many judges take toward themselves, that is, that the judges, and likewise their judgments, are sacrosanct and should be immune from even adverse remarks, much less from sharp censure.

It is no exaggeration to say that part of the crime wave now disgracing the United States has been due to the unwillingness of newspapers to take a chance on rebuking judges who have notoriously and persistently imposed inadequate sentences. Newspapers denounce roundly, when they think the occasion requires, all public officials, from the President to poundkeeper, except judges in criminal courts. If they editorialize upon a sentence it is almost always by way of praise for handling a particularly vicious criminal an exceptionally stiff penalty. The thought of drawing public attention to a long succession of inadequate sentences by police magistrates, or by judges, seldom occurs to editors, yet I am convinced that the papers have a perfectly legal right to express their opinion upon sentences whether too light or too heavy.

Things have come to such a pass, because of the passivity of the majority of newspapers, that police magistrates and even cross-roads justices of the peace believe they are empowered to dictate to, or to throw into the hoosegow, reporters or editors who disagree with them, and write other than laudatory notices of their judgments or decisions.

As a member of the bar I have the caste feeling that criticism of judges should ordinarily be rare, temperate and judicial in tone; but, as a newspaper man I have the caste feeling that the newspapers have been sadly bluffed, especially by judges in inferior courts, and that the neglect, or unwillingness of the papers to call the bluff by proper condemnation of obvious miscarriages of justice in the matter of too-light sentences, has wrought great harm to the entire country.

To mention one instance of a number within my personal experience:

In the period from about 1908 to 1912 the vicious disorders committed by organized gangs of roughs on the elevated railroads running from Manhattan, through Brooklyn to Coney Island gave Greater New York and its Police Department malodorous reputations throughout the land. Thugs who had committed mayhem, or assault with intent to murder, were being let off with fines of from one to ten dollars. That is no exaggeration. Finally the Brooklyn Eagle took a hand, at this writer's suggestion, and obtained pledges from all the police magistrates to make the penalty, for those convicted of organized disorders, invariably a period in jail, and not a fine. The magistrates attacked the problem, all on the same day, and began handing out from ten days to one year in prison for the offenses. They stuck to their knitting, those magistrates. In less than a month they had entirely crushed the hoodlumism—and it has never been resumed.

Another phase of the case of Editor Bryson raises this question:

Why did not the Florida State Editorial Association take a hand, not only in his behalf, but in behalf of every member of the association, by insisting that he appeal, and helping him financially, if he needed such help, in carrying the case to the highest court in the State?

Judge Liddon was presiding over a court of record. Judges in the same State are loath to disagree with their fellows of the bench; in fact, they are prone to follow the precedents set by even the inferior courts, if there be no appeal court decision to the contrary. Sooner or later every newspaper in Florida will almost certainly find itself hampered in discharging its duties to the public by Editor Bryson having submitted tamely to a rule for contempt after he made unfavorable comment upon criminal sentences which had become public records. It would have been far more simple to have fought that case through the appellate courts, and have beaten it, as I believe would have happened, than it will be for another paper in the future to beat a similar case in the lower courts.

Why do state editorial associations exist if they are not to have for their primary object mutual benefits for the members? The highest service they can perform for the members is to protect the liberty of the press. Editor Bryson's troubles in Saint Lucie county should have been of deep concern to papers in every other county in Florida, but he was left to his own devices.

Every state, sectional and national association of publishers or editors should have as its first requisite a legal department constantly on guard to protect the newspapers, editors and writers from injustice, and to protect them from the attempts of judges and other officials to restrict their proper freedom of expression by means of contempt proceedings or libel actions.

It may be asked why I, who am neither an owner nor a managing editor, should busy myself with the troubles of Editor Bryson. The answer is that I am one among several hundred hired hands on newspapers who daily, or occasionally, are writing news or editorials about criminal trials and sentences. If the Florida judge be allowed to get away with his inferred contention that all judges and their judgments are sacrosanct, and judges in other States follow his example, as they will be very much inclined to do, the writers will be constantly in danger of landing in the hoosegow along with owners and managing editors, some of whom are distressingly lacking in a sense of humor and would be sad and dreary cellmates.

In closing let me insist again that I am firmly convinced that newspapers have a legal right to comment adversely, but fairly and temperately, upon judicial decisions, more particularly criminal sentences, after the decisions and sentences have become part of the public records. Further, I believe that the newspapers have neglected their obligations to the public by not pointing out more frequently the tendency of certain judges to impose inadequate sentences.

The modification of the bail bond law, and numerous other highly desirable changes in the Criminal Code, were adopted by the New York Legislature of 1926 because the newspapers not only exposed the weaknesses in the code, but did not hesitate to specify judicial decisions and practices which had unconsciously caused some magistrates and judges to play straight into the hands of professional crooks. If the ruling of Judge Liddon, of Florida, that criminal sentences already recorded were inviolable and must not be criticized, had been in effect, the papers of the State of New York would not have been able to publish sufficient specific instances to impress the Legislature and cause it to pass the reform statutes.

"WE TOLD THE TRUTH" DAILY'S LIBEL ANSWER

Raleigh Times Denies Malice But Affirms Truth of Editorial Statements Cited by Minister in $25,000 Action

The Raleigh (N. C.) Times has filed its answer in the Cabarrus superior court to the J. R. Pentuff $25,000 libel suit. The answer, filed by attorneys for the Raleigh publications, admits publication of the editorial to which exception was taken, but denies "malicious" intention of injuring the plaintiff, and affirms the truth of "all statements" contained in the editorial.

Mr. Pentuff, Baptist minister, filed his suit in Concord on March 23, alleging publication in the Raleigh Times of Feb. 23, of the "injurious" article. He alleges that the article "was injurious to Dr. Pentuff as an individual and an educator," it being alleged that the minister was referred to as an "ignorant ignoramus," and called "unmannerly" and "discourteous."

The editorial in question followed the appearance of Dr. Pentuff before a legislative committee in connection with the discussion of the teaching of evolution in the state-owned schools and universities in North Carolina.

The defendants, John A. Park, publisher; O. J. Coffin, editor, and the Times Publishing Company, in their answer "expressly deny that they wrote or published any libellous and defamatory article."

They likewise deny other allegations with reference to alleged damage done the plaintiff.

Publication of the article to which reference is made in the complaint is admitted and the defendants "affirm the truth of all statements therein contained."

The defendants likewise admit that notice was served upon them "five or more days before the commencement of this action," and "further admit that they have made no retraction or apology on account of the editorial complained of."

Daily Changes to Eight Columns

The Columbia (Mo.) Daily Tribune, E. M. Watson, publisher, has changed from a seven-column paper to eight-columns, to handle increased advertising, it is announced.

K. C. DAILY WINS POINT IN LIBEL SUIT

$5,000,000 Action Brought by Former Governor Against Journal-Post to Be Tried in Federal Court

The $5,000,000 libel suit of Jonathan M. Davis, former governor of Kansas, against the Kansas City Journal-Post, will be heard in the federal court of Kansas. Judge Otis Hungate of Shawnee county, Kansas, last Saturday issued an order removing the suit to the federal court.

The order followed arguments made a week previous on a petition for removal filed by the attorneys for the Journal-Post.

Besides the Journal-Post and its owner, Walter S. Dickey, virtually all of the state's witnesses in the recent trial of the former governor and his son, Russell, on a charge of bribery, are made defendants by the libel suit.

Two of the defendants are W. G. Clugston, Topeka, Kan., correspondent of the Journal-Post, and W. H. West, a public stenographer in Topeka. The suit was brought in the state court on the ground that Mr. Clugston and Mr. West are residents of Kansas.

The petition for removal, filed in the name of the other defendants, all non-residents of Kansas, insisted that Mr. Clugston and Mr. West were not proper defendants and that the naming of them was a fraudulent joiner for the purpose of denying the other defendants their right to a trial in the federal court.

Attorneys for the Journal-Post pointed out in their arguments that Mr. Clugston and Mr. West had had no part in the acts set up as a basis for a claim for damages.

The Journal-Post was represented in the presentation of the petition for removal by Maurice H. Winger, P. E. Reeder and Leland Hazard, of the firm of Miller, Winger & Reeder, Kansas City; A. L. Berger, Kansas City, Kans., and Paul Heinz and Edward Rooney, Topeka.

A motion to remand, if filed by the plaintiff, would be heard and passed upon by Judge John C. Pollock, of the federal court in Kansas.

COURT REPORTERS HONORED

Tendered Dinner by New York Neighborhood Mayors

Reporters who cover criminal courts in New York City were the guests at dinner last week of the "Neighborhood Mayors" at Zoller's Rumanian Restaurant, 97 Forsyth street, New York. Herman Zoller, "Mayor of Forsyth Street," and Jack Spiero, "Mayor of Washington Heights," alternated as toastmasters.

Among those who addressed the reporters were Dr. Perry M. Lichenstein, resident physician at the Tombs; ex-City Magistrate Frederick J. Groehl; ex-Judge Leonard A. Snitkin, and others who come in daily contact with the news writers. A half-dozen officials were the only "outsiders" present.

To Double Newsprint Output

In the annual report of the Price Bros. & Co. Limited, it is stated that the directors propose to double the capacity of their new newsprint mill at River Bend, St. Joseph d'Alma, Que. and that the increased production will be available by January, 1928. The mill commenced producing in December last.

World Reporter Gets $25 Bonus

John T. Parker, reporter on the staff of the New York World, was awarded a $25 bonus this week on the order of Herbert Bayard Swope, executive editor, for special services in connection with the report of the inauguration of the photo-radiogram service from London to New York.

LIBEL LURKS IN EVERY STATE EDITOR'S MAIL

Careless Country Correspondents Often Let Dailies in for Heavy Damages, W. O. Dapping, Auburn (N. Y.) Citizen States—Better Use Rural Copy Chiefly as Tip Service

By PHILIP SCHUYLER

That story from the country correspondent the state editor doubted, but didn't flag, may blow up, after publication, with a big libel bang.

A state editor sits on a libel volcano and he must wear the asbestos of scepticism if he doesn't want to be burned himself, or watch the spectacle of his paper pouring out money like lava to defense lawyers or to a plaintiff to satisfy damage claims.

W. O. Dapping, managing editor of the Auburn (N. Y.) Citizen, advises state editors to recognize the dangers of their jobs and to beware of baneful routine habit in this the eighth article of a series obtained by EDITOR & PUBLISHER, stripping the libel law of legal verbiage.

ONE news source highly important to many a newspaper and equally highly dangerous as far as libel is concerned is the country correspondent.

Perhaps he is editor of a small weekly, perhaps he or she is on the staff of the county paper. In many instances, the correspondent is the clerk in a corner drug store, the high school teacher, or the talkative wife of the postmaster. They know a lot about local affairs, but little or nothing about libel.

Gossip hovers around and about them like an aureole. Gossip is 99.8 per cent slander, and published slander, of course, becomes libel, apt to prove costly to the newspaper putting it into type.

"There's dynamite in every envelope reaching a state editor's desk" was the way W. O. Dapping, managing editor of the Auburn Citizen, keen student of libel law, expressed it in a recent interview. "The great majority of small town nuisance libels are due to this source."

The utmost discrimination and judgment is required of a state editor. He is the one to be made libel proof, not the country correspondent. H. T. Webster's cartoons "The Adventures of a Timid Soul" might well include the plight of a country correspondent if a state editor actually let loose his wrath, finding justifiable fault with the copy as it flows across his desk.

The average country correspondent is not over-paid; but he usually is enthusiastic. He rushes everything that comes to his ears into print. Try too hard to train him, and he dries up completely.

"It is better," Mr. Dapping continued, "to let him run wild. Use the country copy chiefly as a tip service. If a story appears big enough, send out a staff man to investigate it at its source.

"The man at the desk must be the brains to guide his country hands. His chief concern should be the avoidance of baneful habit. He cannot afford to treat his work in routine fashion.

"Many newspapers meet this situation by frequent rotation of the state editor—shifting the wire news man to the mail desk, and shifting back again."

Apparently a state editor had too much faith in the country scribe and let the famous Southern "bull dog libel suit" loose. When that story came in, it was doubtless hailed as "perfect" and printed in fancy type with borders. Have you ever heard it?

It concerned a rustic wedding, beautiful in its homeliness. The country correspondent's story was that the best man had plenty of nice blue overalls, but no dress suit. He borrowed one from a neighbor. The neighbor owned a bull dog. The bull dog knew the scent of his master's suit. The trusty canine guardian was sure robbery had been committed. He got on the trial of the suit, but didn't catch up until the best man stood at the altar with the bridegroom and his bride.

Down the church aisle came the bull dog, straight for the best man's borrowed pants.

So ran the correspondent's story, with complete details of what happened when bull dog and pants met; and so it was published, without check for truthfulness.

The enraged best man brought suit against the paper. He had been held up up to public ridicule, without justification or privilege. The jury returned a verdict of 6 cents in favor of the plaintiff. That threw the costs of the trial on the newspaper for the country correspondent's mistake.

Country correspondents are not always to blame. Practical jokers think it's smart to get something printed about a friend, that isn't true. A man may have a grudge against another man, and spills a little misinformation into the country correspondent's ear, hoping to see it published, and thus to get even in a backhand way.

Newspapers in some states are protected by legislation against this libel source. It is a misdemeanor, for instance, in New York state wilfully to give misinformation to a newspaper reporter. The Virginia State Press Association had a bill passed by the 1924 legislature modeled upon the New York statute.

One trouble so far, however, has been that there hasn't been enough publicity given the law to scare the nit-wit practical joker or the dangerous libel carrier.

The country correspondent meets a man on the street.

"Howdy," says he. "You send in items to the Daily Blank, don't you?"

"Yes."

"Well, did you hear how Frank Swan's gone and got married."

"No, has he?"; and out comes pencil and paper.

That seems like good country news, and the correspondent sends it in. The unforunate part of it, however, is that Frank Swan is still a bachelor, and the girl's name given the correspondent as the new Mrs. Swan is that of a "Hatrack" woman in a neighboring village. And a lawyer very likely collects a $200 nuisance fee, paid by the newspaper.

A country correspondent once telephoned in the news of a fire that destroyed a barn to Mr. Dapping's paper, the Auburn Citizen. He gave as the cause that a farmhand had carried a lantern into the haymow. The statement was vigorously challenged next day—some insurance complication had apparently come to figure in the matter. The country correspondent put upon the paper the burden of proving the alleged details. Prudent work by a competent re-write man would have conveyed the story without any "comeback."

Then, again, correspondent carelessness causes a libel suit—carelessness of which regular staff men might well be guilty, particularly those on the police beat, generally reserved for cubs.

A true case of this sort concerns a small town boy summoned to the police station to explain why his board bill was so long overdue. The police reporter, who also covered local news for a nearby large city newspaper, got the boy's name correctly, but skipped two lines in copying the charge from the blotter. The reporter's notes showed that the boy, who had actually been asked to appear at the police station to be questioned about his boarding house bill, had been arrested on a charge of uttering a false check; and thus the story was written, published in the local daily, and sent to the large paper's state editor.

A local lawyer advised the boy he had a case. The papers sued, however, investigated properly and found that the boy's reputation was such that it could not have been damaged to any great extent, even by the libellous publication. Eventually the boy was willing to accept a $50 cash settlement out of court. The newspapers published corrections.

One hard libel nut to crack is that caused not through the fault of country correspondent or staff reporter, but through an error or the sloppiness of public officials. The official gets out easily, while the newspaper gets it "in the neck.'

In an up-state New York city not so very long ago, murder was committed in the Italian quarter. Maria, an Italian girl, and her lover, had killed the third angle of the inevitable triangle, the villain who had been annoying the hero's prospective bride. After the bloody deed, said to have been a Lady Macbeth affair, hero and heroine disappeared. To follow up the first report of the crime, the "police probe," "police dragnet" and the usual "country-wide combing" story was naturally scheduled.

Maria and her lover were obviously the guilty persons. Policemen entered Maria's room, ransacked bureaus, cupboards and trunks, and emerged finally with a girl's picture ,which they captioned "Maria ———," and reproduced on posters to be sent to police stations to be hung up in public places. The newspapers also wanted Maria's photograph and collected copies from the police station, and published them.

The unfortunate side of this story was that the police, in their enthusiasm, had not picked Maria's picture but that of her chum, Amie.

Amie, falsely accused of murder through police error, sued for libel, and after long months of litigation received a judgment of $2,000 from the English language newspaper. The local Italian paper was all but put out of business by this public official sloppiness. Of course, defense lawyers endeavored to prove their clients' innocence of carelessness or malice, but the court did not consider the mistake of the policemen sufficient mitigation.

Somewhat similar was a recent Virginia case. A reporter on the capitol run in Richmond made his regular call at the state prohibition commissioner's office. Spread out for the inspection and use of newspaper men were reports received from various prohibition officials throughout the state. On a regular blank form appeared the information that the mayor of a nearby country town had been arrested with three associates for storing liquor on his property. On the basis of of this information, the reporter wrote his story which was published in the Richmond News-Leader.

He was not guilty of either carelessness or of error. The man at fault was the prohibition deputy. The latter had merely wished to state that the mayor and his associates had been summoned for questioning, but lacking the correct form, had used the blank reading:

"I this day ..... arrested ..... at ..... hour, etc."

Official red tape had tangled up into a libel suit.

All four persons libeled filed complaints,

(Continued on page 45)

SUES FOR $525,000; WINS SIX CENTS

THE nine cases of libel brought against three Syracuse newspapers, the Post-Standard, Herald and the Journal, for a total of $525,000 resulted in the jury returning verdicts of damage amounting to only six cents, that amount being in but one case against the Syracuse Journal. The trial took place six days last week in Supreme Court before Judge Jerome L. Cheney. The jury was out two and one-half hours and the verdict was reached Saturday morning.

As told in EDITOR & PUBLISHER last week the nine actions were combined in one case brought against the Post-Standard et al. The suits against the Journal and the Herald were combined in the one with the Post-Standard. The actions grew out of stories printed in the three papers during 1922 in which they maintained irregularities in the conduct of a so-called sanatorium in the city.

Twenty-two actions in 11 other libel suits against newspapers from various parts of New York state were brought up for trial last Monday morning. Because of the verdict rendered in the previous cases against Syracuse newspapers these new cases were adjourned for later disposition and it is believed they will not be continued. These actions were brought against Edward H. Butler, the Schenectady Publishing Company, Troy Record Company, Rochester Times Union Company, the Crowley Company, the Brockway Company, Auburn Publishing Company, Advertiser-Journal, Inc., the Telegram Publishing Company, the Binghamton Press Company, and the Journal Company.

The cases of the Syracuse newspapers have been closely watched in newspaper circles for some time. They were the largest cases that have been tried locally since the famous Roosevelt-Barnes libel suit. The newspapers pleaded the truth of their cases concerning the Post-Standard and the Herald from reports obtained by reporters assigned to police headquarters.

The individual cases were disposed of as follows: Violetta Lott and George Lott against the Post-Standard, no cause for action. The three cases brought by Violett Lott against the Post-Standard, Herald and Journal resulted in a verdict no cause for action. The court granted non-suit in the action brought against the Post-Standard and the Herald by Myrtle Cochrane. In her case against the Journal the verdict was no cause for action. In the case of George Lott against the Herald the verdict was non-suit and against the Post-Standard it was no cause for action. The only action which awarded damages was in the case of George Lott against the Journal, for six cents.

The suits grew out of accounts published in Syracuse newspapers taken from complaints filed in affidavits at police headquarters by a student nurse employed at the sanatorium conducted by the three above named persons bringing the actions. The affidavits were not used as the basis of warrants and the court declared they were not privileged, ruling that they were proceedings of the police and not court proceedings. The newspapers in their articles charged that dead babies were burned in a bonfire. The defence for the newspapers was arranged by the law firm of Estabrook & Estabrook.

C. S. Estabrook of that firm is vice-president of the Post-Standard Company and a relative of Jerome D. Barnum, publisher of the Post-Standard. Charles V. Byrne represented the Herald and Stewart Hancock represented the Journal with Willis H. Michell as trial counsellor.

Representatives of other newspapers throughout the state were present at the trial, since suits are still pending against other dailies which received reports from, or copied items about the case from Syracuse papers.

The verdict in favor of the Syracuse newspapers was popularly received among members of the newspaper profession.

W. R. HEARST DENIES HE PLANS TO RETIRE

"The Time To Retire Is When God Retires You," He Wires His Executives at the Annual Conference in Detroit—Promotion Plans for His Dailies Important Topic at Meeting

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST silenced rumors of his retirement in a telegram addressed to Hearst executives and read to them at their annual business conference in Detroit, April 26-27-28, EDITOR & PUBLISHER learned this week.

"The time to retire," he telegraphed his associates, "is when God retires you, and not before."

Mr. Hearst sent the telegram to the Detroit conference in answer to a wire from the delegates congratulating him on his 63rd birthday, which fell, April 29. Rumors have recently been current in newspaper circles that Mr. Hearst was preparing to retire from active management of his newspaper properties and turn them over to his son, George Hearst.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER wrote to Hearst about these rumors and he replied that his sons, except George, were too young.

"George," he added, "already has the New York Mirror."

In the telegram to his associates, Mr. Hearst declared he enjoyed looking back over the past, but enjoyed more looking forward to future accomplishments. It was hard for him, he said, to imagine anyone retiring, since retirement meant giving up all those mental activities that make life worth while.

Institutional advertising to promote the Hearst newspapers as a group was discussed at the conference, and a committee was appointed to confer with Mr. Hearst to arrive at definite plans for putting such a campaign in operation. It is not known when the conference will be held. Mr. Hearst left New York for California, May 5.

Mr. Hearst has long been a believer in the advisability of advertising his newspaper chain to the advertising profession and to the general public, and his belief was stressed in a long telegram addressed to the convention. About 100 members of the staffs of the 25 Hearst newspapers were present.

This was the first time that promotion men had gathered for the business conference, and representatives of this newspaper department met with all other groups, in order to acquaint themselves with the various angles of the business it is their duty to build up.

Groups meeting, and their chairmen were: publishers, Clarence R. Lindner, Detroit Times; display advertising managers, M. C. Meggs, Chicago American; classified managers, R. E. Seiler, Los Angeles Examiner; circulation managers, A. E. Crawford, San Francisco Examiner; and promotion managers, E. M. Carney, supervisor of promotion at New York headquarters, and editor of Exchanges, the Hearst house organ.

The long telegram from Mr. Hearst, read at a get-together dinner on April 27, discussed, in addition to promotion, editorial character and advertising income. He also declared himself in favor of picking men while young and training them in the organization. He wanted it understood that any man in any minor Hearst position might rise to the highest post in the organization, if he had the ability.

George Hearst, president and assistant publisher of the San Francisco Examiner, and director of the New York Mirror, attended the conference, which included delegates from the New York American, New York Journal, New York Mirror, Albany Times-Union, Syracuse Journal, Rochester Journal-Post-Express, Boston American and Advertiser, Baltimore American, Washington Herald, Washington Times, Atlanta Georgian, Chicago Herald and Examiner, Chicago American, Milwaukee Wisconsin News, Detroit Times, Seattle Post-Intelligencer, San Francisco Examiner, San Francisco Call and Post, Oakland Post-Enquirer, Los Angeles Examiner, Los Angeles Herald, and the San Antonio Light.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER on April 27 wrote to Mr. Hearst:

"The impression exists in newspaper circles that an important reorganization of your newspaper enterprises is underway at the present time. The belief is being generally circulated that you are concentrating the management of your newspapers in the hands of a smaller group of executives than heretofore.

"The consolidation of the national advertising departments of seven of your newspapers in and east of Chicago is pointed out in support of this current belief.

"The consolidation of the editorial and business direction of the Baltimore and Washington newspapers is likewise cited.

"The resignation of Mr. Joseph A. Moore has been laid to this reorganization plan.

"It is reported that the New York American and the New York Journal will soon be under one editorial management. This is also said of your two Chicago newspapers.

"You are said to be undertaking this reorganization as the first step towards handing over your properties to your sons and as signal of your retirement as active head of the Hearst Publications."

Mr. Hearst was asked to confirm or deny these reports.

Mr. Hearst wrote in reply:

"There is practically nothing in any of the reports in your letter of April 27.

"The Washington papers were under one management when Mr. Payne was in Washington, and are still under one management with Mr. Putnam there. The same thing applies to Baltimore.

"In the national field we are merely changing papers which were represented by an agency to an organization of our own, under the direction of our own tried executives.

"My sons are all under twenty-one, except one, who is twenty-two. The younger sons are too young to take charge of newspapers. The eldest, George Hearst, has the New York Mirror.

"Mr. Joseph A. Moore has retired from my organization to go into business for himself. He was in a business of his own before he came into our organization.

"He spent a number of years with us, greatly to our advantage. I am sincerely sorry to see him go, but I cannot be entirely sorry if he will greatly benefit himself in his new enterprise.

"He is one of the finest men in the world. I admire his abilities and I am very fond of him personally. I wish him every success and what is more, I am certain that he will achieve it.

"Sincerely,
(Signed) W. R. HEARST."

EDITOR & PUBLISHER CALENDAR

May 9-15—School of Journalism, University of Missouri, 17th annual journalism week, Columbia, Mo.
May 10-12—Association of National Advertisers, semi-annual convention, Edgewater Beach Hotel, Chicago.
May 12-14—Missouri Press Assn., annual convention, Columbia, Mo.
May 13—Michigan League of Home Dailies, convention, Ann Arbor, Mich.
May 15-22—California Press Assn., annual meeting, Eureka, Cal.,
May 18-19—Inland Daily Press Assn., annual meeting, Chicago.
May 20—Technical Publicity Assn., annual convention, Chicago.
May 27-29—Arkansas Press Assn., annual meeting, Little Rock, Ark.

Hearst Wire Converted to High Speed

The Chicago-Pacific Coast Hearst wire will be converted to a high-speed printer circuit, May 15. The New York-Washington-Atlanta high-speed wire will be extended through Birmingham to New Orleans about the same time.

Illinois Weekly Moves

Albert S. Hall & Co. last week printed the last edition of the Byron (Ill.) Express, weekly, to be printed in that city. The equipment will be moved to the Berwyn Printing Company plant in Berwyn, where the organization prints a series of country weeklies.

Chicago Agency Man Killed in Fall

Richard Brandon Bullis, of the Blanchard, Nichols & Coleman Agency, publishers' representatives, Los Angeles, and a son of Elmer Bullis, of the Lord & Thomas advertising firm of Chicago, was killed May 2, while climbing Strawberry peak, near Pasadena, Cal. He fell 250 feet to his death. He was 25 years old and unmarried.

HEARST BUSINESS EXECUTIVES AT DETROIT CONVENTION

Rotogravure In Detroit

Means The News

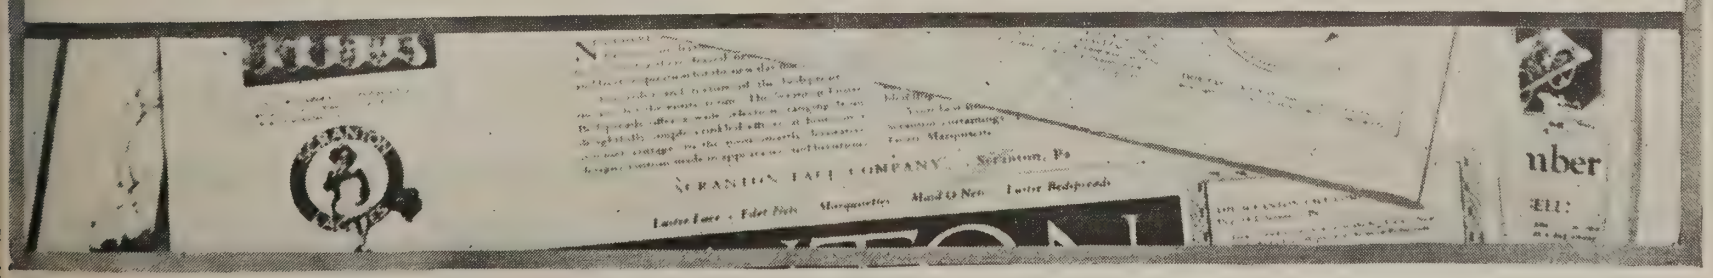
THE double advantage offered by Rotogravure of combining fine printing and portrayal with great and timely circulation is nowhere more apparent than in Detroit.

Here The Detroit Sunday News has a circulation of more than 350,000, more than 80% concentrated in the trading area where distribution and consumption is heaviest. No other medium reaches as many homes as The Detroit Sunday News in this territory and no other medium can compare with it for advertising effectiveness. The Detroit News has for years led the field in every division of advertising.

In Rotogravure, The Detroit News has been a leader since the first section was printed. During the first three months of 1926, The Detroit News published 91,746 lines of Rotogravure advertising, almost twice as much as the only other carrier of Rotogravure advertising. The same proportion holds good for national Rotogravure copy, and indicates the effectiveness of The Detroit News' home concentrated circulation.



The Detroit News

Detroit's HOME Newspaper

VANDERBILT TO STAY IN JOURNALISM REGARDLESS OF PRESENT TROUBLES

Affirms Interest in Profession in Statement to Editor & Publisher—San Francisco News Suspends—Claims 12 Offers of Aid

"I AM going to stay in newspaper work, whether as publisher or reporter; but I will soon again be publisher of my own paper."

From Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., came this laconic statement to EDITOR & PUBLISHER this week. Vanderbilt's enterprise, Vanderbilt Newspapers, Inc., was tottering on the verge of complete financial collapse. One of his chain of three tabloids, the San Francisco Herald, had suspended publication; the Los Angeles Daily News was in receiver's hands; the Miami Tab was continuing, promising support to its bankrupt comrade publication.

Dudley Field Malone, attorney, through whom the statement was made, declared he was still considering proposals for financial aid, for the corporation built up by loans made to the young millionaire by his father, Brig. Gen. Cornelius Vanderbilt, and by stock sales to the public.

Harvey Johnson, Chicago efficiency man, told Vanderbilt all he needed was $300,000 to keep his paper running six months, when, the young publisher was advised, they would be on a paying basis.

Vanderbilt's above statement was as a last defiant gesture, made with the knowledge of the Herald's suspension and the receivership of the News.

"My entire effort now for the corporation is to keep the papers going," he said in an earlier statement, "because as a 'going concern' the papers may be able to meet their own current obligations, and increasingly safeguard the stockholders' holdings, whereas, if the papers are forced into bankruptcy, their only tangible assets, machinery, etc., if sold, would produce nothing adequate to meet the current and accumulated liabilities of the corporation."

A statement by young Vanderbilt, as given to newspapers by Mr. Malone, follows in full:

"One of the leading members of the Los Angeles bar, who has been investigating substantial financial proposals made in California to aid my newspapers, has reported that different men and groups making bona fide offers have been told by their banks, on statements from their New York correspondent banks, that my family is not only unwilling further to aid my enterprises but that my family thinks it best that my corporation should go into bankruptcy. The spread of these discouraging statements, whether true or false, has made it impossible to float the immediate loans necessary to carry the papers during this necessary period of negotiation. This has left the corporation and its stockholders open to threatened attempts by inconspicuous creditors to force the Vanderbilt papers into bankruptcy in order that these creditors may buy our properties at an insignificant price.

"Therefore, to safeguard the corporation and the stockholders against these dangers I today authorized my executive Vice President of The Los Angeles News to petition the Federal Court there for the appointment of a receiver for The Los Angeles News, so that that paper may be protected from the threatened action, and so that the receiver may be able to continue the paper as a going concern on receiver's certificates.

"This step has been adopted merely as a precautionary and protective measure in this emergency, the Miami paper, the Tab, will be able to continue on its income meeting the obligations of its own creditors. The management in Miami acting in complete cooperation, the receiver in Los Angeles will be aided in meeting the corporation's payrolls and obligations in Los Angeles and San Francisco.

"My entire effort now for the corporation is to keep the papers going, because as a 'going concern' the papers may be able to meet their own current obligations and increasingly safeguard the stockholders' holdings, whereas, if the papers are forced into bankruptcy, their only tangible assets, machinery, etc., if sold would produce nothing adequate to meet the current and accumulated liabilities of the corporation. My whole determination, therefore, in purpose and by the logic of the situation, is to bend every effort to keep these newspapers going, and I hope that all our creditors, advertisers, readers and staff of workers will stand by with patience and courage to meet this new crisis."

Vanderbilt observed his 28th birthday April 30. He worked hard that day—a full 12 hours in his suite in Mayfair House, an exclusive Park avenue apartment house. It was on that day that he told newspaper men he intended to suspend the San Francisco Herald.

The Herald, he said, has carried the heaviest losses and has been the greatest burden to the corporation and stockholders.

"This loss in San Francisco", he declared, "represented more than 50 per cent of the monthly losses to the corporation."

Some twelve offers of help, it is claimed, have been received by Vanderbilt and his attorney, since first they announced the corporation's plight last week.

The new proposals included four from groups in New York and in Philadelphia. Another came from Cleveland and another from Detroit, those asking were told; and a telegraphic offer of $300,000 was received from a New Orleans group.

Harry H. Schlacht, who runs a number of community newspapers in New York, sent a telegram to Vanderbilt, offering him the coveted $300,000.

This, among the other proposals, were being considered as EDITOR & PUBLISHER went to press.

RECEIVER NAMED FOR VANDERBILT TABLOID

Former Mayor M. H. Snyder Now Directing Los Angeles Daily News—Assets Placed at $1,043,000, Liabilities at $1,000,000

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 4.—Late yesterday United States District Judge McCormick appointed former Mayor Meredith H. Snyder receiver of the Los Angeles Illustrated Daily News, a Vanderbilt publication, established here in September, 1923, by Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., as the first in his chain of three papers.

The receivership was uncontested. Early in the afternoon attorneys Young and Young, representing the Vanderbilt Newspapers, Inc., filed a bill of complaint in equity with the court, naming the Illustrated Daily News Company, Inc., as defendant.

The court was asked in the complaint to appoint a receiver to save the paper's assets. It listed the publication's assets as $1,043,000 and the liabilities as $1,000,000. The value of the plant at 127 South Los Angeles street was placed at $165,000 and the paper's circulation as 92,000.

The plaintiff corporation further stated in its complaint that it was incorporated in Delaware and had advanced the newspaper approximately $1,000,000, from Nov. 1, 1923, to April 29, 1926, and that no further credit could be obtained for the newspapers. The complaint stated that a $65,000 payment would come due from the paper in 60 days which it was unable to meet at this time.

The complaint requested that a receiver be appointed to take over the paper's plant and other properties, that its assets might be conserved and all parties protected.

Attorneys Dockweiler, Dockweiler & Finch, representing the News, answered the complaint, admitting every statement made in the complaint and joined in the petition for the appointment of a receiver.

Following a brief conference between the court, attorneys and representatives of the paper, the judge signed an order appointing Mr. Snyder receiver for the News. The order stated that the receiver was appointed in order that the "interests of all parties will be conserved," and "to preserve the assets of the corporation."

The receiver's instructions are that the paper be published regularly, but he is given "full authority usually granted a receiver." And it is understood from this phrasing that Snyder can suspend publication and liquidate the assets if he considers it best and the court so approves.

Cornelius Vanderbilt was not present. He is in New York. His representatives momentarily expect a statement from him. Douglas Churchill, vice-president of the corporation, made no statement for publication.

Accounts receivable on the books of the corporation approximate $150,000, of which $90,000 has been pledged for payment on a $60,000 loan from the Bank of the United States at New York. Liabilities include an $18,000 payroll which fell due May 1. Snyder's first act as receiver was to make plans to meet the payroll, following which he began a thorough audit of the books.

The Illustrated Daily News announced May 1, the discontinuance of the Sunday edition, effective immediately. Sunday special sections will be run in various week-day editions. The price was dropped from two cents to one cent.

Druggist Lauds Newspaper Ads

The Decatur (Ill.) Review, April 27, printed a four-page section for the Decatur Drug Company. Leonard F. Kinister, general manager of the Drug Company said: "We believe in newspaper advertising. With the exception of a very few dollars our entire appropriation is invested in newspaper space. Today's section in the Review is an indication of our faith in the pulling power of newspaper advertising. The steady increase in our sales volume is proof that newspaper readers read our store news in the advertising columns."

Henderson Promoted in Houston

Ralph D. Henderson, for the past two years in charge of the Service department of the Houston Press, has been appointed advertising manager. He replaces A. G. Norment, who will take charge of national advertising department. Prior to coming to Houston, Henderson was connected at various times with the Wichita Beacon, Oklahoma City Oklahoman & Times and Hutchinson (Kan.) Gazette.

$74,000 Tax on Lawson Farm

The estate of Victor V. Lawson, late publisher of the Chicago Daily News, must pay a Wisconsin inheritance tax of $74,000. The tax is on the Lawson farm at Green Lake, Wis., which was recently sold by the estate for $510,000.

Steadily Growing

The Florida Times-Union holds its leadership with the largest circulation of any publication in Florida.

Its city circulation offers the advertisers 95% coverage of Jacksonville, the state's largest city.

Jacksonville's Population 135,866

(1925 State Census Figures)

FIRST IN CITY AND STATE CIRCULATION
ON SALE AT ALL NEWS-STANDS

The Florida Times-Union
~ JACKSONVILLE ~

Daily Circulation 53,000
Sunday Circulation 70,000

Superior Selling Power

In the World's Greatest Market

First in Total Advertising

New York Evening Newspapers

THE SUN'S continued leadership in advertising among New York evening newspapers is not due to unusual strength in a few classifications only—but to the fact that advertisers in every classification have found The Sun an exceptionally profitable medium through which to sell their products in New York.

Every month for the last ten months The Sun has published more advertising and has made larger gains in advertising than any other New York evening newspaper.

In April and in the first four months of 1926 The Sun's gain in advertising was larger than the combined gains of all the other New York evening newspapers.

The marked preference advertisers show for The Sun is a striking tribute to the productiveness of its advertising columns. It serves as a guidepost to all concerns who want to develop effectively and economically the unparalleled sales opportunities New York offers.

First in National Advertising

New York Evening Newspapers

TO manufacturers who have new products to introduce and to those who seek increased sales for products already established in New York, The Sun is a powerful selling force in the world's greatest market.

For years National Advertisers have placed more advertising in The Sun than in any other New York evening newspaper. During the first four months of 1926 they used over 350,000 lines more in The Sun than in the next New York evening newspaper.

Because of its superior ability to create and increase consumer demand—to send customers into the local stores to ask for the manufacturer's products—The Sun is recognized as an unusually effective medium in New York through which to secure retail distribution and dealer cooperation for merchandise of good quality. New York dealers readily stock and feature goods advertised in The Sun because they know that Sun advertising brings more sales.

First in Local Advertising

New York Evening Newspapers

LOCAL merchants are in an unusually advantageous position to judge the selling power of local newspapers. They are experienced judges of the buying habits and the newspaper reading habits of the people in the territory which they serve every day. They know New York, New Yorkers and New York newspapers. They depend on their advertising to produce quick, traceable results.

The volume of advertising placed by the local stores in any New York newspaper is a dependable indication of the responsiveness of its readers and the profitableness of its advertising columns.

During the first four months of 1926 The Sun published more Local Advertising than any other New York evening newspaper and made a larger gain than all the other New York evening newspapers combined.

The Department Stores of Manhattan use more space in The Sun month after month and year after year than in any other New York newspaper.

THE SUN is one of the great newspapers of the country. It is a clean, progressive, interesting newspaper—intelligently edited for intelligent men and women. It is free from sensationalism, prejudice and partisanship.

The circulation of THE SUN—already the largest weekday circulation among the better class homes of New York—is going steadily ahead on a sound, healthy basis. THE SUN'S average daily net paid circulation during the six months ended March 31, 1926, was 257,067. This represents an increase of 11,593 copies a day over the corresponding period of 1925—an increase won without the use of prizes, contests or other similar methods of forcing circulation—an increase won purely on the merits of THE SUN as a newspaper.

The Sun

280 BROADWAY NEW YORK

BOSTON Old South Bldg. · CHICAGO 208 So. La Salle St. · SAN FRANCISCO First National Bank Bldg. · WASHINGTON, D. C Munsey Bldg. · LOS ANGELES Van Nuys Bldg. · PARIS 49 Avenue de l'Opera · LONDON 40-43 Fleet St.

EXTRAORDINARY SERVICES GIVEN PUBLIC BY BUENOS AIRES LA PRENSA

Free Medical Legal and Agricultural Advice Offered to All, Whether Subscribers or Not—Owners Limit Profits, Using Surplus for General Good

By Dr. MAXIMO SOTO HALL,
Foreign Editor La Prensa

Dr. Soto Hall, representative of La Prensa, of Buenos Aires, at the recent Pan American Journalists' Congress, is shortly going to make a trip through all of the Latin-American countries for La Prensa, appointing special writers and making other arrangements.

THE progress of La Prensa Buenos Aires is due to two fundamental causes: (1) the solid basis that the founder—Dr. Jose C. Paz—gave to the enterprise; (2) the development by its present director, Senor Ezequiel P. Paz, the son of the former director and heir to his energies and virtues.

MAXIMO SOTO HALL

It is not exactly the material side of the work which is most surprising with regard to La Prensa. It is certain that it counts with the best and most modern in typography, equipment and machinery, which it seeks in the best markets of the world, until it can be said, without fear of error, that its plant is among the best of its kind in any big city of the world; but this is not the feature of La Prensa that most merits praise. That which is most characteristic of it—that which gives it a character of its own and is making it extremely interesting to journalists—rests in those features that are exclusive.

La Prensa was founded in a moment of political and financial crisis. In the midst of bitter partisan struggles and economic difficulties on the part of the country, it emerged pursuing two great ideals: well-considered democratic equilibrium in politics, and a sound financial system.

For this it was necessary for it to develop in the shadow of a program austere and ample at the same time, adhering to the strictest journalistic morality, but always with a conciliating spirit. On these bases it was born. It was developed, and it still stands upholding them as its standard of conduct, to which fact is due the prestige that it enjoys and the weight that its opinion has in all affairs of the day. Once having attained the first object that caused its founding, sustained on a solid basis in a fortunate economic situation, the director desired to do something more still, which was to create an institution beneficial for the country—an organism useful for the Argentine nation.

Out of this desire there grew the idea of the auxiliary services which La Prensa maintains and which produce such great admiration at home and abroad, to such a point that a great newspaper of the United States once sent a special representative to Buenos Aires to study this phase of the organization.

The services of which we speak are: a free medical clinic, where is given to every person requesting it, without asking him whether he is an advertiser or a subscriber to the newspaper, what ideas he professes or what social class he belongs to; a consultation service to aid poor persons in their legal difficulties, giving them advice of the best talent without charge, and even supplying them with stamped paper if necessary; an agricultural consultation service which attends to all questions of those who cultivate the earth in that country which is so eminently an agricultural nation.

The three services are in charge of: (1) a distinguished physician, aided by a staff of specialists; (2) a well-known lawyer, with his staff, and (3) an expert agriculturist.

In addition to these services, La Prensa also maintains others, among which the best known are: the musical conservatory, which gives a complete musical education free of charge to worthy applicants, and the annual course of lectures given by thinkers of world fame.

How can a newspaper do such work? Here is the secret of La Prensa: The two partners who owned the newspaper made a contract with each other some years ago by which they agreed to receive a fixed sum annually, and all the rest of the profits of the newspapers were dedicated, without subtracting a cent, to the betterment of the paper and the service of the public.

It is only thus that one can explain for instance, how it can maintain a magnificent library free to all who desire to frequent it; that it receives more or less 8,000 words of news by cable daily, in addition to the telegraphic, telephonic and other news that it receives; it being thus one of the best informed newspapers of the world.

So complete is its news service that it was able to make known in Buenos Aires, before it should be known in Europe and the United States, the complete text of the Treaty of Versailles. The same thing happened with the report of the Dawes Commission relating to the payment of European debts, which was printed complete in La Prensa twenty minutes after it was made public in Paris. Among many other noteworthy news beats, when La Prensa has printed news before any other newspaper in the world, there was one recently of very great importance for South America—the last decision of President Coolidge on the question of Tacna and Arica, which was printed exclusively in La Prensa before it was made public even in Washington.

Dr. Ezequiel P. Paz

Today, in its desire to draw closer to the newspapers and newspaper men in their American hemisphere, it has arranged for one of its principal writers to make a trip through all the countries of the hemisphere, with instructions to work for closer friendship between the newspapers.

PAN-PRESS GROUP IN TOLEDO

Blade, Times, and News-Bee Welcome Touring South American Editors

The Toledo Blade, Toledo Times and Toledo News-Bee gave columns of space to the visit and entertainment of the Latin-American editors in Toledo on their industrial tour of the eastern half of the United States, Thursday-Friday of last week.

The Toledo Blade welcomed the visiting journalists with a double-column editorial on page one in both English and Spanish.

Grove Patterson, executive editor of the Blade, was the principal speaker at a banquet given by the Chamber of Commerce in honor of the group. Other speakers were the mayor of Toledo, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and Angel Mendez Calzada of La Libertad, Mendoza, Argentina.

Largest Paper Machine Installed

What is claimed to be the world's largest paper machine, with a width of 245 inches, is being put into operation at the mill of the Backus-Brooks Company, Kenora, Ont. In its tuning-up performance recently it ran from 12:30 a. m. to 8 a. m. without a break in the sheet, which is regarded as a splendid showing. The same mill also contains a machine 234 inches wide, which is said to have held the record for size before the new machine was installed. With both machines operating, the mill will have a capacity of 270 tons of newsprint per day or 22½ tons per hour.

"THE SECRET WAY"—By J. S. Fletcher

New Serial in 28 Daily Installments

A thriller describing how a trail of mysterious deaths from "heart failure" led to the final discovery of a murderer.

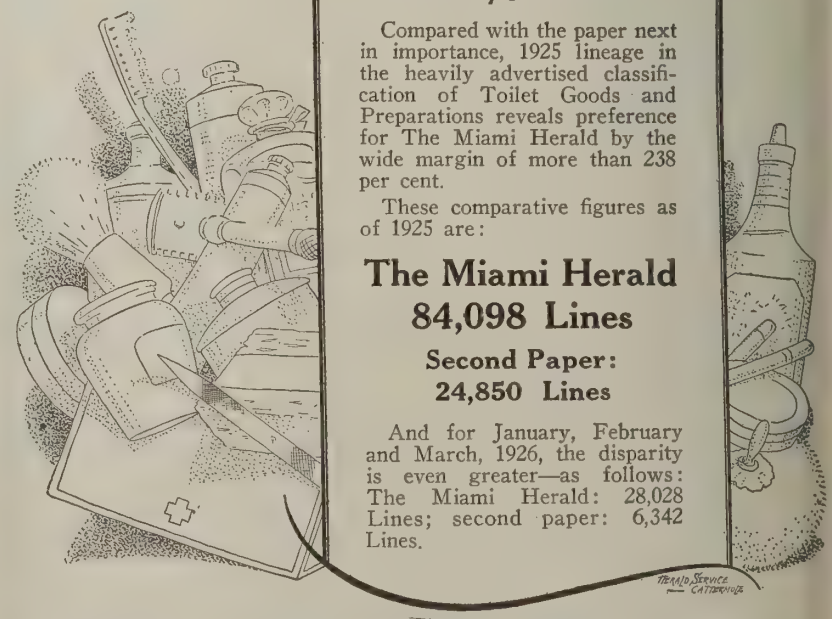
For Terms and Copy Wire

LEDGER SYNDICATE

INDEPENDENT SQUARE PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Toilet goods in the Miami market

238% Plus



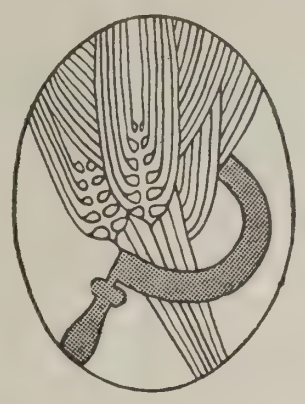
Compared with the paper next in importance, 1925 lineage in the heavily advertised classification of Toilet Goods and Preparations reveals preference for The Miami Herald by the wide margin of more than 238 per cent.

These comparative figures as of 1925 are:

The Miami Herald
84,098 Lines

Second Paper:
24,850 Lines

And for January, February and March, 1926, the disparity is even greater—as follows: The Miami Herald: 28,028 Lines; second paper: 6,342 Lines.



The Miami Herald

"FLORIDA'S MOST IMPORTANT NEWSPAPER"
Frank B. Shutts, Publisher

NATIONAL ADVERTISING REPRESENTATIVES
J. P. McKINNEY & SON
NEW YORK CHICAGO SAN FRANCISCO
GEORGE M. KOHN, 704 Walton Bldg., Atlanta

Good Seed—Productive Soil
BOUNTIFUL HARVEST

Excerpts from Address delivered by Frank H. Cole, Advertising Manager of Peter Henderson & Company, seedsmen and florists, New York

WHEN I became advertising manager of Peter Henderson & Company about 1903, one of the first things that was impressed upon me by those who attempted to pass on the advertising atmosphere of the firm was that newspapers are not good advertising mediums for seedsmen.

After several months, however, I was able to get the old "Associated Sunday Magazines" on our list. It was the first newspaper medium we used and until this publication went out of business we had its columns entirely to ourselves.

Then we used the back cover of The New York Times Sunday Magazine with such excellent results that we have continued to use it each year since.

To give an idea as to the length of the pulling power of the Magazine Section of the Sunday Times I had a computation made of several advertisements, and while we do not care to state the exact number of replies, on the basis that the total number of replies from a certain back cover advertisement was 1,000, I found that these were distributed over the four weeks following publication about as follows:

Number of Replies

FIRST WEEK		SECOND WEEK
Monday,	39	Monday,	59
Tuesday,	198	Tuesday,	39
Wednesday,	137	Wednesday,	35
Thursday,	94	Thursday,	28
Friday,	59	Friday,	26
Saturday,	39	Saturday,	23

During the next fourteen days 157 replies were received. On the basis of 1,000 replies, the first week after publication produced 566, or 56 per cent of the total; the second week 210, or 21 per cent of the total, and the third week produced 99, or approximately 10 per cent of the total; the fourth week produced 58, or nearly 6 per cent of the total. The fifth week brought 25 replies, the sixth week 28 and the seventh week 14 replies.

If national advertisers refuse to use the Magazine Section because of its temporary character, these figures will probably be of interest to them.

We believe in having plenty of white space around our advertising. I have never been partial to the thought that it is absolutely necessary to fill every line of space with ink. We try to have from one-quarter to one-third of our advertisements white space.

We have found that illustrations that are self-explanatory are a proper part of the copy and are of benefit. We have otherwise found that illustrations used just because they were pretty or attractive are of very little value.

I have great faith in the use of coupons where the size of the space will permit, and I find that the inclusion of a coupon materially increases the number of replies.

We do not obtain as satisfactory results from the run-of-paper insertion in the Sunday issue of The Times as from the Magazine Section. I believe that this is because the Magazine Section is a portion of the paper that is kept the longest. First, because the readers' interest is not entirely a timely one, for the contents are generally just as interesting a week later as on the Sunday published. Then again, it is a size and shape which permit it to be kept conveniently, while the full size sheet is thrown away.

I have been a reader of The New York Times for over twenty years, and I feel that it presents the news clearly and impartially. In my estimation it is one of the greatest publications in the country. I have always been partial to advertising in The New York Times, but our advertising has always been cold-blooded and based upon actual results and not upon our liking for any medium. We have found The New York Times one of the most satisfactory mediums that we have ever used. The Times has both quality and quantity.

In four months of this year The New York Times published 10,040,464 agate lines of advertising, a gain of 987,768 lines over the volume printed in the corresponding period of 1925 and an excess over the second New York newspaper of 3,718,306 lines.

Advertisements submitted for publication in The New York Times are subject to censorship. Thousands are declined as fraudulent, misleading or questionable.

THE NET PAID SALE OF THE SUNDAY EDITION OF THE NEW YORK TIMES OF WHICH THE MAGAZINE IS A PART IS 625,000 COPIES.

RECIPROCITY OF INTEREST BETWEEN NORTH AND SOUTH AMERICA

More Latin-American News in U. S. Newspapers Will Serve to Tighten Bonds of Friendship Between Continents, La Razon Executive Declares

A RECIPROCITY of interest in the affairs and problems of the South American peoples by the peoples of North America was urged by Conrado E. Eggers-Lecour, of La Razon of Buenos Aires in an interview with EDITOR & PUBLISHER this week.

The South American newspaper executive who came to the United States to attend the First Pan-American Congress of Journalists held last month in Washington, believes that the publication of more Latin-American news in American newspapers will serve to strengthen the bonds of friendship between the two continents.

"I feel that the benefits resulting from the Pan-American Congress would be greatly increased if the newspapers of the United States endeavor to draw the attention of the American people to the Latin-American affairs." he declared. "I realize of course that Americans are not interested at present in our affairs, and therefore American newspapers publish little or nothing about them, having as they have so many local affairs to deal with. But as soon as they start publishing continuosly Latin-American news, this will become in the long run a necessity, as is the case with several other items of new creation, publication of which would not and cannot be discontinued under any circumstances.

"I feel that this is the most important step to be taken by the American press towards tightening the bonds of friendship between the nations, this being our ultimate purpose. In addition I will say that nearly every newspaper in Latin-America publishes day by day complete cable, radio and mail news matter of the United States, giving it from one to two pages of our daily editions. And last but not least, I believe that the most successful way of attaining a warmer friendship between the nations of the world is the press. This fact was acknowledged recently by intelligent diplomats and rulers shortly after the adjournment of the Pan-American Congress.

Speaking of La Razon, Mr. Eggers-Lecour said:

"I trust that you will be kind enough to excuse my speaking on those matters directly concerned with my affairs, but I feel that each of us should inform the rest of what one knows best.

"La Razón of Buenos Aires, founded only 22 years ago is now one of the most important evening papers published in Spanish. It has 4 editions appearing from 12:30 p. m. to 8 p. m., with a total circulation of 200,000 copies daily and often almost 230,000 containing of from 16 to 32 pages, in which is published the daily events occurring in the whole world.

"La Razon publishes in addition a Sunday edition and a supplement with a literary page and 8 pages more devoted to automobiles, roads and tourists' excursions (our paper was the only one to receive congratulations from the Pan-American Congress of Roads), medical publicity, aviation, modern constructions, real estate, agricultural and cattle raising industries, electricity and mechanics, etc., thus encouraging the national industries. Furthermore, we publish a book every year with 500 pages containing a complete description and narration of the events of the previous year. This book is distributed among our readers and advertisers.

"The new six story building of La Razon was inaugurated last year in one of the principal business locations in the city, namely Avenida de Mayo and Calle Rivadavia. On its two underground floors we have a public library, our file department and 5 'Maroni' presses, two octuplex and three quadruple, a hydraulic matricizer unique of its kind.

In short, we have a modern and suitable equipment which makes us feel proud.

"I want to express my deep and sincere appreciation for the courtesies shown to the Latin-American journalists by your government, your institutions and your people," he said in conclusion.

TO PUBLISH FROM TRAIN

Newspaper Men Aboard Tulsa Educational Special Going to New England

B. A. Bridgewater, managing editor of the Tulsa (Okla.) World, and Marshall Smith, reporter, left Tulsa Sunday on the Tulsa Educational Special that will make a swing through the New England states during the next two weeks.

Baron Creagor, former news editor on the World, is editor of the daily four-page paper that will be published daily on the train. An express car has been equipped with a linotype machine, press and other material and a complete newspaper will be published and handed out at points along the route.

STRESSING "HUMAN TOUCH"

Chicago Advertisers Featuring Personalities in Their Newspaper Copy

A number of advertisers in Chicago newspapers are getting a human touch into their advertising by playing up members of their organization. Marshall Field & Co. conducts a travel bureau and its advertising bears the slogan, "Ask Mr. Foster." Mandel Bros. announce that Dr. M. S. Osborn, a foot specialist, will be glad to give personal attention in advising the proper kind of corrective shoes and arch supports. The Eastgate Hotel advertises that Carl Smith, formerly of Chattanooga, is at the hotel "to help you select a happy home." The Fair store, in its advertising, tells its customers that Miss Earnestine Littlejohn will not only lecture twice daily in its corset department but will be glad to give personal advice on figure correction, weight reduction, etc.

SEEKS FUND TO DRY UP U. S. BY NEWSPAPER ADS

C. A. Birch-Field, New York Agent, Asks Pledges for National Campaign to Be Placed in Dailies—"I'm Not a Fanatic," He Says

C. A. Birch-Field, president of Birch-Field & Co., advertising agency, 110 W. 40th street, New York, in a signed advertisement in a New York newspaper, April 24, suggested an advertising campaign to sell prohibition to the United States. The advertisement was headed "An Open Letter to the Prohibitionists of America." He asked for pledges to finance the drive.

Mr. Birch-Field informed EDITOR & PUBLISHER on May 6, that response to the advertisement was "overwhelming."

"What we have planned," he said, "is to run similar advertisements in newspapers throughout the nation, until a fund is raised to promote the anti-liquor drive in a second campaign using paid space.

"I am not a fanatic. It is my aim simply to create business for standard advertising media and for myself. It is not a get-rich-quick scheme as far as I am concerned personally. All I want is the regular 15 per cent agency commission for the business I place, believeing that a servant is worthy of his hire.

"If we get the same results in other cities we have obtained in New York so far, we will raise a fund that will startle ourselves and the newspapers and the magazines. We are not taking a dollar in cash now; we are simply receiving pledges."

Mr. Birch-Field would not disclose what sum the pledges so far received represented as a possible advertising appropriation.

When discussing the plan with EDITOR & PUBLISHER, the agency man expressed concern regarding an editorial appearing in the New York Daily News, following the appearance of his "Open Letter" advertisement. The News had expressed the opinion that advertising had never sold anything that the people didn't need or want.

"That is absolutely asinine," Mr. Birch-Field declared, referring to the News' opinion. "And if that is the attitude of newspapers generally, I will be forced to invest the money raised for the campaign in the magazines rather than the newspapers as I had intended."

He said he had written to the American Newspaper Publishers Association, complaining about the stand taken by the News, and asking if the newspapers generally held a similar opinion in regard to advertising.

Mr. Birch-Field claimed he had received offers of free space from the magazines but none from the newspapers.

N. Y. Sun Ad Department Moves

The advertising department of the New York Sun has moved to new quarters, in the Sun Building, and recently celebrated the event with a luncheon, served in the Assembly Room of the Sun Club. Heretofore, the department has been on the fifth floor. It is now on the second floor. At the luncheon, members of the advertising staff, presented handsome water carafes to Edwin S. Friendly, business manager, and to Herbert B. Fairchild, advertising manager, both of whom made short speeches of appreciation.

Trade Mark FLEXIDEAL Reg. U S Pat. Off

THE IMPORTED DRY MAT
OF SUPERIOR QUALITY

Write for Free Samples

FLEXIDEAL COMPANY, Inc.
15 WILLIAM STREET NEW YORK CITY

The INDIANAPOLIS NEWS

The Indianapolis News circulates one copy daily for each 4.3 persons in Indianapolis, and one copy daily to each 7.5 persons in the forty-five mile radius. The coverage in the ninety-mile circle is greater than that of the second paper in Indianapolis alone.

Dan A. Carroll
110 E. 42nd
NEW YORK

J. E. Lutz
Tower Bldg.
CHICAGO

Frank T. Carroll,
Advertising Director

Space Buyers Read Trade Paper Advertising

A vast amount of direct-by-mail advertising from publishers could be eliminated to the relief of agencies and advertisers and to the profit of publishers.

Much of it the buyers would prefer to read in publishers' advertisements in the trade papers.

Without disparaging direct-by-mail advertising, the truth is that much of it clutters up a space buyer's desk and is actually a nuisance.

It is equally true that much of the copy in publishers' advertising whether direct-by-mail or in trade papers is not worth a space buyer's attention.

Space buyers with agencies and advertisers read publishers' advertising when intelligently planned and executed. Some material is more effective if mailed, read and filed for reference. Some is better in a combination of mail and trade paper. Other campaigns might better be confined to trade papers alone.

Publishers should buy advertising as they sell it. Don't buy just one advertisement or two, but a planned campaign. And figure on keeping it going year after year—not on the identical scale, necessarily,—but decide that you will advertise over a period of years.

Then fill your space with facts your prospects can use. When you come to a period—stop.

Publishers' advertising in trade papers saves a space buyer's time.

E. Katz Special Advertising Agency

Established 1888

Publishers' Representatives

DETROIT	NEW YORK	KANSAS CITY
ATLANTA	CHICAGO	SAN FRANCISCO

BUSINESS AND NEWS WALK HAND IN HAND IN PRESS ASSOCIATION WORK

Hugh Baillie, New Business Manager, Once News Chief, While Robert J. Bender, Editorial Head, Began in Commercial Office of United Press Associations

BUSINESS and news walk hand in hand in press association work. In support of this assertion, meet Hugh Baillie, recently appointed business manager of the United Press Association, and Robert J. Bender, the new general news manager of the same organization. Baillie began as reporter for U. P. and worked up to a high editorial position before transferring his allegiance to the cash register end of the business. Bender began in the counting house as a salesman for U. P., and now he directs the daily flow of news passing through New York to the association's client newspapers.

"The only difference I notice," Baillie declared this week, "is in my conversation. Where once I talked about beats, takes, and exclusive stories, I find myself discoursing on rates, margins, and contracts.

"A press association sells itself to newspapers on the basis of its news report. A business manager of a news service, must therefore, know above everything else just what is being done in the news room."

Baillie succeeds L. C. Earnist, who resigned; Bender steps into Fred L. Ferguson's shoes. Ferguson is now president of NEA Service, Inc.

In March, 1915, Baillie joined the United Press, being assigned to the San Francisco bureau as a reporter. This followed five years of work as a reporter on Los Angeles newspapers, for which he started writing as a student correspondent while attending the University of Southern California.

After several months in the San Francisco office, Baillie became manager at Los Angeles, and later at Portland, Ore. The first inkling that he might prove successful on the business side came while he was at Portland, where he won first prize in a contest for new contracts, participated in by all U. P. bureau managers. From Portland he was transferred to Chicago, and thence to New York, where he became manager of the New York bureau early in 1918.

Baillie remained in charge of the New York bureau during the final year of the war and during the peace conference, handling the important European cable dispatches which constituted the bulk of the news report during that period. He worked under the immediate direction of W. W. Hawkins, at that time general manager of the United Press, and in close association with Harold D. Jacobs, cable editor, who has since become editor of the Baltimore Daily Post.

After his experience in New York, Baillie was named manager of the Washington bureau, and in September, 1919, he accompanied Woodrow Wilson on his final speaking tour which ended with the collapse of the President.

After covering the national conventions at Chicago and San Francisco in 1920, where he was the first press association man to write the detailed running story of the proceedings on a noiseless typewriter, and keep up with the speakers, Baillie became assistant general news manager, and later, news manager.

In 1924 he left his position as news manager, and went on the road as a business representative traveling the southern states, and later the middle-west. In the autumn of that year he was called back to New York, where he reorganized the sales department of the U. P., with himself as sales manager.

It is a coincidence that Earnist, who Baillie succeeds, was the man who caused him to join the United Press. When W. W. Hawkins was general manager, and on a trip to Los Angeles in 1915, Earnist pointed Baillie out to him as a likely youngster, and Hawkins hired him. Thereafter, Baillie replaced Earnist as Los Angeles manager, and now succeeds him as business manager.

During the interval elapsing since Ferguson's departure, Bender has been actively engaged in organization work preliminary to increasing the speed and scope of the service.

It was in the fall of 1915, after several years work as a reporter that Bender met Karl A. Bickel, then a salesman for the United Press, who offered him a job. Bender jumped at the chance and after a short period during which he was Springfield bureau manager and business representative, he was transferred to the New York staff.

Ferguson, who was then United Press news manager, gave him a tryout and decided to send him to Washington. There Bender became widely known as a political writer during the pre-war days of the Wilson administration, covering the national presidential conventions and the Wilson campaign for re-election in 1916.

When the United States was preparing to enter the war, Bender was elevated to the managership of the Washington bureau of the United Press. He accompanied Wilson to Europe, covering the President's activities there preliminary to and during the peace conference.

After returning to Washington, Bender was transferred to New York to inaugurate the United News service, night service of the United Press. A year later he returned to Washington to direct the Washington report of the United News. It was at this time that he told for the first time the full details of Wilson's illness, how the President looked, how Mrs. Wilson was carrying on the functions of the presidency—and revealed that Wilson would never again be fully capable of discharging the arduous duties of office.

From Washington, Bender was elevated to news manager of the United News when Ferguson left this post to become vice-president in charge of news. When Hugh Baillie entered the business department, Bender succeeded him as news manager of the United Press.

His present appointment as general news manager rounds out his eleventh year with the organization.

Business and news managers of U. P.—Hugh Baillie (sitting) and Robert Bender

FOR PROMPT SERVICE

TYPE

BORDERS - ORNAMENTS - BRASS RULE

Printers' Supplies

KELLY PRESSES - KLYMAX FEEDERS - PAPER CUTTERS
HAMILTON WOOD AND STEEL EQUIPMENT, INCLUDING OUR AMERICAN CUT-COST EQUIPMENT

Carried in stock for prompt shipment at the following Selling Houses of the American Type Founders Company

BOSTON	RICHMOND	DETROIT	MINNEAPOLIS	SAN FRANCISCO
NEW YORK	ATLANTA	CHICAGO	KANSAS CITY	PORTLAND
PHILADELPHIA	BUFFALO	CINCINNATI	DES MOINES	SPOKANE
BALTIMORE	PITTSBURGH	ST. LOUIS	DENVER	WINNIPEG
	CLEVELAND	MILWAUKEE	LOS ANGELES

The Item Company, Ltd.

Publishers of

The New Orleans Item

The Morning Tribune

and

The Sunday Item-Tribune

announces the appointment of

The George A. McDevitt Co.

250 Park Ave., New York — Peoples Gas Bldg., Chicago

National Advertising Representatives

Effective May 1st, 1926

New Orleans Item-Tribune

SEATTLE AUDITS—

Always show the domination of The Times. This newspaper concentrates upon the City of Seattle and the Seattle Trading Zone. Two other Seattle papers have larger total circulation, but The Times leads in the City and its own trading territory. Here is an interesting story of growth:

Seattle Times Circulation

			EVENING	SUNDAY				EVENING	SUNDAY
4th	Quarter	1921	56,555	83,478	2nd	Quarter	1924	66,996	92,971
1st	"	1922	56,939	85,281	3rd	"	1924	69,221	96,798
2nd	"	1922	57,126	83,856	4th	"	1924	70,101	102,793
3rd	"	1922	56,695	83,572	1st	"	1925	70,178	104,345
4th	"	1922	57,151	85,935	2nd	"	1925	70,762	103,157
1st	"	1923	58,650	90,083	3rd	"	1925	70,863	102,545
2nd	"	1923	58,084	88,702	4th	"	1925	74,223	102,551
3rd	"	1923	58,705	87,501	1st	"	1926	79,019*	104,299*
4th	"	1923	61,665	87,232	March, 1926			80,094*	104,677*
1st	"	1924	66,010	90,163	April, 1926			83,767*	103,234*

*Publisher's claim.

De Lisser's Lineage Figures—

Show that The Times domination in advertising is never questioned. Here is the summary for 1925:

	TIMES EVENING DAILY	SUNDAY	TOTAL
Local Display	6,234,071	2,256,629	8,490,700*
National Display	2,065,267	866,895	2,932,162*
Classified	2,338,672	1,629,746	3,968,418*
Totals	10,638,010	4,753,270	15,391,280*

	SECOND PAPER MORNING DAILY	SUNDAY	TOTAL	THIRD PAPER EVENING DAILY
Local Display	2,824,931	1,620,801	4,445,732	4,642,423
National Display	1,466,464	845,906	2,312,370	1,495,647
Classified	1,178,148	618,499	1,796,647	930,757
Totals	5,469,543	3,085,206	8,554,749	7,068,827

461,655 Lines AMERICAN WEEKLY not included in Second Paper's total.
Indicates Lead.*

And for the first quarter of 1926:

	TIMES EVENING DAILY	SUNDAY	TOTAL
Local Display	1,536,559	547,412	2,083,971*
National Display	558,938	267,025	825,963*
Classified	535,873	429,587	965,460*
Totals	2,631,370	1,244,024	3,875,394*

	SECOND PAPER MORNING DAILY	SUNDAY	TOTAL	THIRD PAPER EVENING DAILY
Local Display	746,812	396,429	1,143,241	958,548
National Display	368,522	284,967	653,489	408,153
Classified	310,335	174,153	484,488	258,879
Totals	1,425,669	855,549	2,281,218	1,625,580

117,028 Lines AMERICAN WEEKLY not included in Second Paper's totals.
Indicates Lead.*

There is practically as much advertising in The Seattle Times as there is in the pages of all its competitors combined.

Eastern Representative: The S. C. Beckwith Special Agency
New York, Chicago, Kansas City, Detroit, St. Louis, Atlanta

Pacific Coast Representative, R. J. Bidwell Company, San Francisco and Los Angeles

A. A. C. W. ROUNDING OUT PROGRAM FOR JUNE PHILADELPHIA CONVENTION

Principal Speakers for General Sessions Named—Classified Advertising, Financial, Church, Public Utilities, and Community Departments Announce Schedules

PRINCIPAL speakers have been named and departmental programs are rapidly being put into shape, for the 22nd annual convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World to be held in Philadelphia June 20-24.

Of the departments, the Association of Newspaper Classified Advertising Managers, the Public Utilities Advertising Association, the Financial Advertisers Association, the American Community Advertising Association, and the Church Advertising Departmental, have already drawn up their schedules of convention topics.

The various departments will meet on June 22 and 23.

Meeting in New York, May 4, the Church Advertising Departmental, under the chairmanship of the Rev. C. F. Reisner, New York, adopted its program and arranged to fill all Philadelphia pulpits with visiting clergymen on the Sunday preceeding the convention's opening day.

As the formal opening of the convention, an inspirational address will be delivered on this Sunday in Philadelphia by Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, nationally known speaker on ecclesiastical subjects, whose addresses are broadcast from New York at regular intervals.

Among others who will address the convention are Sir Henry Worth Thornton, president and chairman of the board, Canadian National Railways; Bruce Barton, Barton, Durstine & Osborn; C. Harold Vernon, managing director, C. Vernon & Sons, Ltd.; Edward S. Jordan, president, Jordan Motor Car Company; Dr. Glenn Frank, president, University of Wisconsin; Judge C. E. Lobdell, fiscal agent, Federal Land Banks; and Dr. Julius Klein, director, United States Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

Fundamentals of salesmanship as applied to classified advertising is the keynote of the sessions to be held by the Association of Newspaper Classified Advertising Managers. Discussion will be lead by Walter W. Murdock, of the Detroit Free Press.

Another topic listed by this group is "Developing Voluntary Business." Harry Gwaltney, Milwaukee Journal, will be in the chair to direct this particular round table.

"Promotion," a third subject on the classified program, will be lead off by C. L. Perkins, the Chicago Herald & Examiner, with R. E. Seiler, Los Angeles Examiner, in the chair, when "Service as Applied to Classified Advertising" is discussed.

The matter of "Credits and Collections" is slated for round-table discussion with F. L. Tate, Toronto Star, in charge.

Louis Wiley, business manager of the New York Times, is to be a speaker before the Public Utilities Advertising Association on June 22. Other speakers assigned by this group include, W. N. Teasdale, advertising manager of the London & North Eastern Railway, London, England; and Paul S. Clapp, of the United States Department of Commerce. William H. Hodge is association president.

The meeting of the Financial Advertisers Association will be called to order June 23, by H. Ennis Jones, Franklin Trust Company, Philadelphia, chairman of the program committee. Carroll Ragan, United States Mortgage and Trust Company, New York, and group president, will respond to an address of welcome to be delivered by a Philadelphia banker, not yet named.

Speakers and addresses will include: T. H. Sewell, Ohio Savings Bank & Trust Company, Toledo, "Are Banks Advertising Their Community, or Should They?"; O. Howard Wolfe, Philadelphia Girard National Bank, "Living Up to Your Bank's Advertising"; Charles R. Weirs, National Shawmut Bank, Boston, "An Outsider's Viewpoint on Financial Advertising"; Francis H. Sisson, Guaranty Trust Company, New York, "Selling Trust Service"; and Clinton F. Berry, Union Trust Company, Detroit, "Life Insurance Trusts."

On Tuesday morning, June 22, the American Community Advertising Association will convene, with Charles F. Hatfield, of St. Louis, association president, presiding.

How hotel, banks, and railroads aid in community advertising will be the theme of the morning session; while community research will be taken up in the afternoon.

John C. Burg, of the Hotels Statler Company, Inc., New York, will be the first speaker, after the customary presidential address. His subject will be "The Value of Hotels in Community Advertising." Mr. Burg will be followed by H. B. Dickson, convention manager, The Mayflower, Washington, D. C.; P. G. B. Morriss, director of publicity, the Drake Hotel, Chicago; Martin Keet, secretary of the Sunbury (Pa.) Chamber of Commerce; and C. B. Sudborough, general traffic manager of the Pennsylvania Railroad System.

"Community Research in the Building of An Advertising Program," will be the subject of an address to be delivered at the afternoon meeting by Dr. Leonard P. Fox, of the Pennsylvania State Chamber of Commerce, Harrisburg, Pa. Eugene T. Lies, of the Playground and Recreation Association of America, Chicago, will talk on "Recreation and Community Selling"; and W. Frank McClure, chairman of the National Advertising Commission, and of Albert Frank & Co., Chicago, on "Relation of Advertising Agencies to Community Advertising."

NATIONAL ADVERTISERS SLIGHT SMALL TOWNS

48 Per Cent of Goods Consumed in U. S. Go to Towns of 10,000 and Under, Buckley Tells Illinois Ad Clubs

S. O. Blair, Peoria, was elected president of the Advertising Clubs of Illinois at the second annual convention in the Hotel Jefferson, Peoria, April 27, and other officers were selected as follows: C. H. Fernald, Champaign, vice-president; Ethel May Pierce, Chicago, secretary; C. J. Sheets, Joliet, treasurer. The 1927 meeting will be held in Joliet, the dates to be fixed later by the executive committee.

"The sellers of space often assume possibilities of advertising that do not exist and the graveyard of retail failures is filled with firms that were successful advertisers but deficient merchandisers." Homer J. Buckley, president of the Chicago Advertising Council, told the state ad men in his talk on "Better Retailing." "Advertising is not banking, it is not financing, it is not store management, etc., but all these factors enter into the success or failure of business. Retailers must learn that there is a definite relation between inventory and annual turnover and one of the great causes of retail failures is that dealers carry too big a stock in proportion to the business done; they must either reduce stocks or increase business to avoid failure," he continued.

"Many of the manufacturers and national advertisers make the mistake of overlooking the fact that 48 per cent of the goods consumed in the United States goes to towns of 10,000 population and under and they fail to advertise in the small papers. Another weakness is failure to help the retailer stimulate the sale of products." He quoted results of a questionnaire to 3,000 retail hardware firms handling household furnishings that were extensively nationally advertised. In some lines only two or three per cent of the 1,447 dealers who filed the questionnaires handled the articles nationally advertised—"the manufacturers overlooked the importance of a tie-up with the point of sale by means of local advertising and sales helps," he pointed out.

Prof. C. H. Fernald of the University of Illinois' college of commerce and business administration, discussing "Advertisements that Attract," said: "Most merchants fail to study the papers in which they are to insert their advertising and therefore miss an opportunity to prepare messages which will have the greatest effect. All forms of attention are created through that principle of relativity known as contrast. People notice things that are unusual and out of the ordinary. They compare things with others with which they have come in contact at some time, and their experiences, customary practices and observations form the basis by which they compare all phenomena of life.

"Contrast in advertising can be obtained in a great variety of ways. Terms denoting form, size, speed, brilliance and many others of the descriptive adjectives used in advertising are very general and give the reader nothing concrete or definite with which he can compare, and without definite standards of comparison, the force of the advertising is lost. Contrast of difference can be obtained through the use of unusual type, distinctive borders, illustrations, color and many other devices with which most advertisers are familiar. The key-note of the whole situation is to be found in the study of the newspaper or medium into which the advertisement is to be inserted so as to know how to make the message different from the usual and thereby get contrast and attention. If the advertiser knows what the general trend is in a certain medium he has some basis on which to work out the contrast which he should be so desirous of getting, for without attention his message will not be read—and no person can respond to a message he does not receive."

Miss Helen M. Bennett, managing director of the Women's World Fair, Chicago, spoke of "The Woman Window Shopper" and at the annual banquet discussed women's place in business and industry. R. B. Bradley contributed a characteristically humorous philosophical talk and Mr. Blair, newly elected president, presided. Harry Clatfelter, president of the Peoria Advertising club was toastmaster.

ADDRESS WANTED
Guy Norton
Who wrote the short story, "Flash," for Colliers, Jan. 18, 1919

252,599

was the average net paid daily circulation of The Baltimore Sun (morning and evening issues) for the month of

March, 1926

The average net paid circulation of THE SUNDAY SUN per Sunday for the month of March, 1926, was 190,684.

Everything in Baltimore
Revolves Around
THE SUN
Morning Evening Sunday

Noozie Says:

By Courtesy of International Syndicate, Baltimore, Md.

The Facts About Certifieds—

We make only ONE QUALITY of newspaper dry mat, and that is the best we know how.

Several hundred papers, including the New York Times, Cleveland Plain Dealer, Detroit Times, etc., are now using Certifieds exclusively, having discarded steam tables and mat pasting.

Why not get the facts as they apply to your own paper? Now is a good time to get rid of your steam tables, and install the Certified cold stereotyping process.

CERTIFIED DRY MAT CORPORATION
340 Madison Avenue New York, N. Y
for wet mat printing with DRY MAT facility — use Certifieds
MADE IN THE U. S. A.

THE Washington Daily News now has the largest total circulation and the largest city circulation of any Washington daily newspaper, morning or evening, with one exception.

The Washington Daily News is a Scripps-Howard newspaper. Total circulation 65,008.

CARRELL OF QUEBEC NAMED PRESIDENT OF CANADIAN DAILY NEWSPAPERS

Methods of Curbing Publicity for Professional Sports Considered at One-Day Toronto Meeting—Fortier Urges Tax on U. S. Publications

THE Canadian Daily Newspapers Association concluded its most successful convention in point of attendance and interest in its history in Toronto, April 29. All reports indicated progress with membership at the high water mark.

HON. FRANK CARRELL

Hon. Frank Carrell, Quebec Telegraph-Chronicle was elected president with E. H. Macklin, Winnipeg Free Press, vice-president. The banquet in the evening was attended by Lieutenant Governor Cockshutt of Ontario, E. W. Beatty, president, Canadian Pacific Railway, and J. H. Fortier of Quebec, president, Canadian Manufacturers Association all of whom delivered addresses.

The meeting was held the day following the close of the annual meeting of the Canadian Press, April 28.

The board of directors elected by the Canadian dailies is composed of the following: J. E. Atkinson, Toronto Star: N. T. Bowman, Toronto Telegram; H. B. Burgoyne, St. Catherines (Ont.) Standard; Hon. Frank Carrel, Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph; R. J. Cromie, Vancouver Sun; J. W. Curran, Sault Ste. Marie (Ont.) Star; W. H. Dennis, Halifax (N. S.) Herald and Mail; G. A. Disher, Ottawa Citizen; T. F. Drummie, St. John (N. B.) Telegraph-Journal; Henri Gagnon, Quebec Le Soleil; R. M. Glover, Peterboro (Ont.) Examiner; J. R. Henderson, Montreal Gazette, Burford Hooke, Regina Leader and Post; John M. Imrie, Edmonton (Alta.) Journal; W. G. Jaffray, Toronto Globe; E. H. Macklin, Winnipeg Free Press; W. S. Marson, Montreal Star; Hon. J. S. McLennan, Sydney (N. S.) Post; George M. McTaggart, Toronto Mail and Empire; W. J. Motz, Kitchener (Ont.) Record; R. F. Parkinson, Ottawa Journal; W. B. Preston, Brantford (Ont.) Expositor; P. D. Ross, Ottawa Journal; George E. Scroggie, Toronto Mail and Empire and L. J. Tarte, Montreal La Patrie.

The board then elected Mr. Carrel president, and E. H. Macklin vice-president. Chairman of standing committees are as follows: Advertising, W. B. Preston; Postal and Parliamentary, R. F. Parkinson; Paper, P. D. Ross; Circulation, George M. McTaggart, Labor, J. R. Henderson; Costs and records, G. A. Disher. The treasurer is N. T. Bowman.

A number of interesting discussions took place at the meeting on topics affecting publishers. The question of the rate to be charged on annual reports and statements of financial and other institutions brough out diverse views. Some members contended that, to charge a higher rate than the regular commercial rate would tend to reduce this business and would not be as profitable in the long run. Other members gave it as their experience that a higher rate did not cut down the business and was desirable. No decision was reached as to which was better.

The matter of employing special advertising representatives in New York and Chicago by papers in the smaller Canadian cities brought out spirited discussion. In the end it was agreed that much depended on the quality of the representative as to whether such a service paid.

A vigorous discussion arose when the question of professional sport and the method of its handling in the daily press came up for consideration. Members spoke strongly about the manner in which the promoters obtained valuable publicity and paid practically nothing for it. It was recognized that the reporting of games, which were attended by thousands of people, was legitimate news matter but it was agreed that advance notices and anything tending to advertise the games should be paid for. Action will probably be taken by publishers in the various cities to remedy the present situation.

The influx of United States newspapers and periodicals, a matter which is receiving much attention in Canada at present, was another matter considered. Members exchanged views but there was no formal expression of opinion and no action was taken.

Another topic that provided a theme for an interesting discussion was the circulation of shopping or free circulation publications and their effect on the regular newspapers. It was suggested that members might best meet this competition by impressing on advertisers the service rendered to the community by their publications and the better value that they offered for getting business.

Reports presented by the manager, Arthur Partridge, and the various standing committees, reviewing the work of the past year, all indicated that the association was in good shape and rendering effective service to members. Eighty out of 95 daily newspaper properties in Canada were reported to be members and only one metropolitan daily remained outside. It was gratifying that relations between publishers and advertising agencies were on a good footing, monthly meetings of a joint committee representing the C. D. N. A. and the Advertising Agents Association contributing to this desirable end. The meeting passed a resolution in which it was stated that, "The pleasant relationship existing between the daily newspapers and their recognized agencies, in our opinion, is the result of constantly improving standards of practice in both organizations and cannot fail to add greater strength and stability to national advertising in all its aspects."

The meeting paid a special tribute to the late T. H. Preston, Brantford (Ont.) Expositor, a past president, whose death occurred during the year.

Members of the association were the guests during the noon recess of J. S. Douglas, managing director of the Toronto Mail and Empire, who entertained them at lunch. In the evening the annual banquet took place, with ladies present, the proceedings being broadcast by the Toronto Star's station CFCA. The Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, Hon. Harry Cockshutt, was a guest of honor and in a short speech paid tribute to the high quality of the Canadian press. He felt that the press had a special duty to perform in maintaining the spirit of Canadian nationality in the face of the tremendous influences being exerted by the radio, the movies and the magazines of the United States, which, while not designedly moulding Canadian opinion, were yet having that result.

The president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, E. W. Beatty, who followed, threw out the suggestion to the press that, in discussing the great economic problems that were facing Canada today, writers should be employed who could discuss them with expert knowledge.

A third speaker was J. H. Fortier, who in addition to being president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, is proprietor of Quebec L'Evenement, one of the leading French-Canadian papers. His speech was largely an argument in favor of protection. He referred to the difficulties facing the publisher of a magazine in Canada through the competition of the great United States magazines and using this as a practical example pressed the case for an adequate tariff so that industry in Canada might be built up and the country be made relatively as prosperous as its great neighbor to the south.

George E. Scroggie, Toronto Mail and Empire, the retiring president, presided, and as a last act of the evening, introduced his successor, Hon. Frank Carrel. The latter thanked the members for his election and promised to give his best services to the association. He intimated that the next annual meeting would be held in Quebec.

We welcome

THE CLEVELAND PRESS

and

The New Orleans Item-Tribune

—to our fast growing list of progressive newspapers who have assigned to us the job of solving their checking proof problem—AND WE'RE DOING IT.

The Advertising CHECKING BUREAU Inc.

538 So. Clark St. CHICAGO

79 Madison Avenue NEW YORK

Los Angeles Times

Greatest Gain In Circulation

Of Any Los Angeles Newspaper

As shown by sworn reports filed with the United States Government on April 1, 1926, compared with April 1, 1925

Los Angeles Times—Gain 8,584

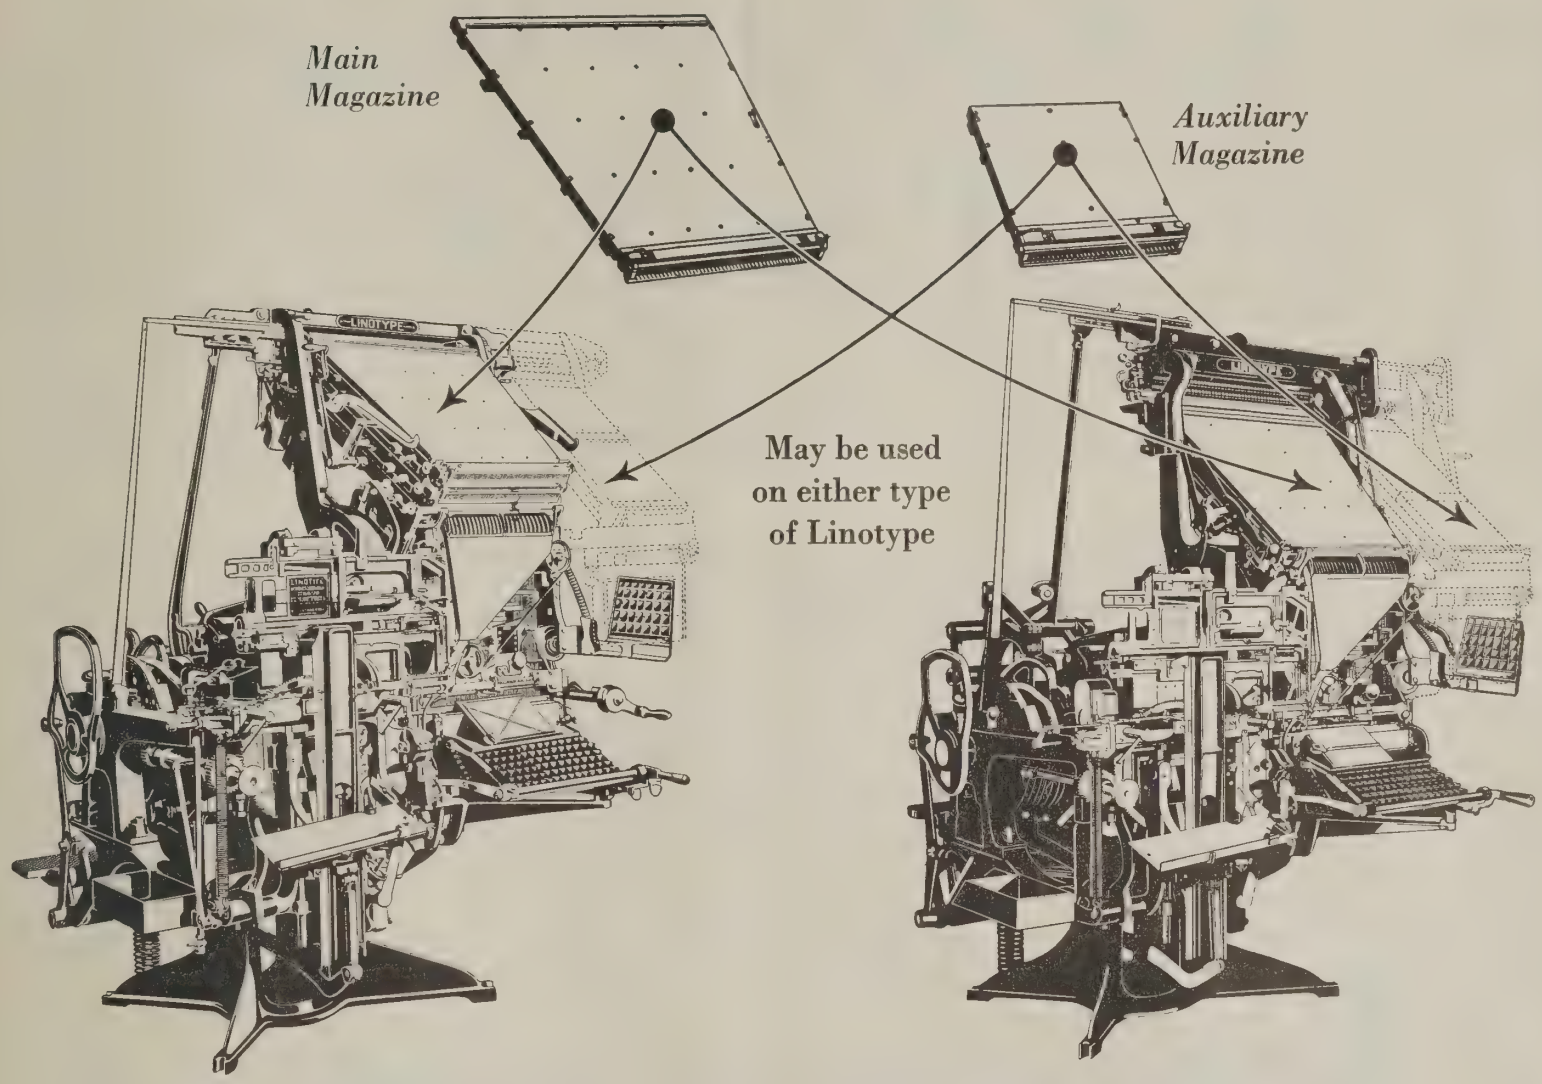
1st Afternoon Paper...Gain 8,077
2nd Afternoon Paper...Gain 5,015
2nd Morning Paper...Gain 4,768
3rd Afternoon Paper...Gain 1,449
3rd Morning Paper.....No Gain

Sunday Circulation Gains

Sunday Times.....Gain 11,774
2nd Sunday Paper.....Gain 9,989

Los Angeles Times circulation is 96% HOME-DELIVERED and 95% CONCENTRATED in the Los Angeles 60-mile radius.

Los Angeles Times



Eastern Representatives:

WILLIAMS, LAWRENCE & CRESMER CO.

CHICAGO 360 N. Michigan Blvd.

NEW YORK 285 Madison Ave.

Interchangeable Magazines

SINGLE DISTRIBUTION TYPE

Model 8

Can be had with one, two or three standard main magazines.

Model 14

Just like the Model 8 with the addition of a standard auxiliary magazine. All magazines operated from a single power-driven keyboard.

MULTIPLE DISTRIBUTION TYPE

Model 25

Continuous composition from two standard main magazines.

Model 26

Just like the Model 25 with the addition of two standard auxiliary magazines. All operated from a single power-driven keyboard. Continuous composition from all magazines.

Can be supplied to cast either 30 or 42 picas, maximum measure

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE COMPANY

SAN FRANCISCO CHICAGO NEW ORLEANS

Brooklyn, New York

CANADIAN LINOTYPE LIMITED TORONTO

REPRESENTATIVES IN THE PRINCIPAL CITIES OF THE WORLD

930.26.E-F

Composed entirely on the LINOTYPE in the Bodoni Series except for the enlarged title line

A Perfectly Printed PAPER requires

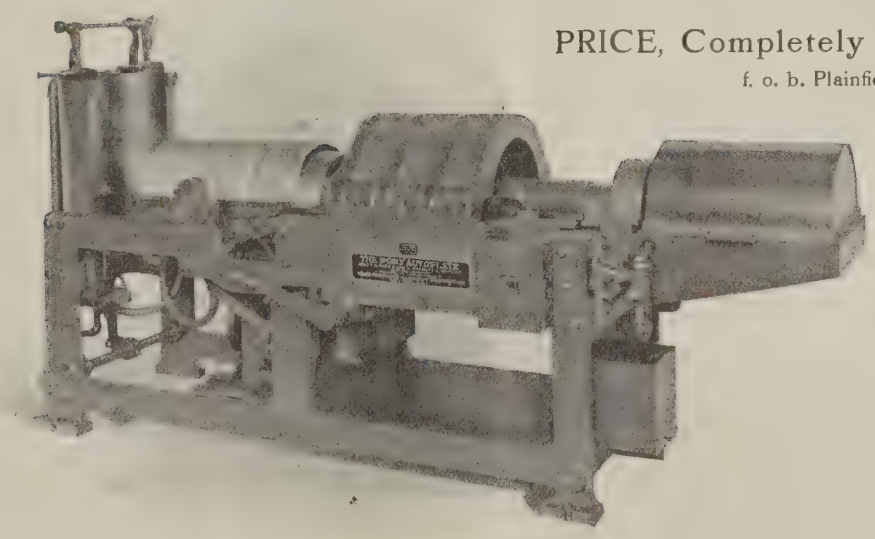
Perfect Printing PLATES

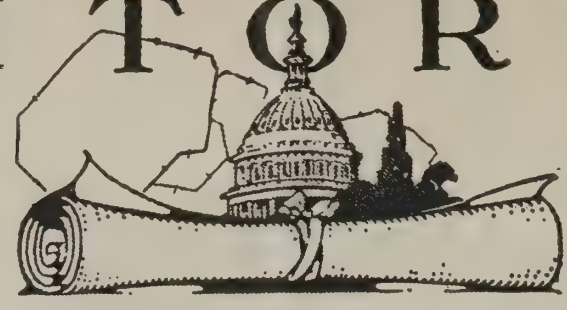
PRESSWORK may be good or otherwise, but every publisher and pressman knows that you can print only what is in the PLATE. A perfectly printed paper must have perfect printing plates.



With the best of hand-casting boxes and the most careful hand-finishing, plates will be untrue in curvature, inaccurate in thickness and out of shape. Such plates are the cause of newsprint waste, press delays and poorly printed papers.

The PONY AUTOPLATE MACHINE produces plates that are uniformly accurate in curvature and thickness and will not spring. PONY AUTOPLATE plates require neither routing, chiseling, planing, filing, dipping nor drying; when they leave the machine they may be clamped instantly upon the press cylinders.

Because they are uniformly accurate, PONY AUTOPLATE plates save time in foundry, press-room, delivery room and — make possible the production of a perfectly printed paper.



The PONY AUTOPLATE Machine is delivered completely assembled and motorized. It may be put to work immediately upon delivery without excessive installation costs and delay You may purchase the Pony Autoplate Machine from the manufacturer or through your own press builder.

PRICE, Completely Motorized, $5.500
f. o. b. Plainfield, N. J.

WOOD NEWSPAPER MACHINERY CORPORATION
501 Fifth Avenue, New York City

EDITORIAL

Blessings are upon the head of the just; but violence covereth the mouth of the wicked.—Proverbs, X; 6.

REVOLUTIONARY CENSORSHIP

AMONG the most startling incidents of the week in the general strike in England was the suppression of the organized newspaper press through amazingly impudent proletarian dictation.

It was the ugliest piece of unwarranted censorship of our times. Ruthlessly, without reason, like mad bulls turned loose in city streets, the least skilled elements of the mechanical departments of the daily newspapers of London, starting in the office of London Daily Mail, proceeded to nullify by brute force an instrument of freedom, a people's right, for which men have patiently contended and fought through the years since the discovery of the printing art made possible a democracy of intelligence.

The following significant facts should be kept in mind by the world's journalism: The "packers," called in the United States flyboys, press-room workers whose duties are to carry bundles of printed papers and do other laborious work around the press-rooms, were the ring leaders, the gentlemen who told the editor of the London Daily Mail to revise his expressed opinions in regard to a general strike as a national menace or, failing, take the consequences in the form of complete suppression of that great and free newspaper. The pressmen and stereotypers also joined in this demand, but the "packers," mere laborers, took the initiative and laid down the amazing dictation. This, by the way, was making good an old boast. The packers had long contended that in the event of a general strike, they could control editorial opinion or suppress the newspapers of London.

It is significant that the Society of Compositors did not join in the censorship conspiracy. Nor did other high skilled unionized newspaper workmen take the initiative in the brutal assault upon the constitutional right of free press, whose roots are sunk centuries deep in English life, its branches interlacing with the daily activities of the reading millions. It was the business of unthinking bullies who, presently, demonstrated a power to silence London's newspapers as effectually as if their plants had been leveled with battering rams.

This censorship was put into motion 24 hours before the call for the general strike.

Thomas Marlowe, editor of London Daily Mail, on Sunday had written as an editorial leader an expression of opinion which he titled "For King and Country," urging against the proposed general strike on patriotic grounds. The editorial was set in type and the page form sent to the stereotyping tables. There, it appears, the editor's views were read by the stereotypers, pressmen and packers. The latter flew into a rage. A committee of these workmen visited Mr. Marlowe's office, demanding that he alter his expressed views to conform to the views of these union men as to what was good policy for the government, people and unions in the strike crisis. The editor refused, although it was made plain to him that these men had possession of the printing tools and would suppress the newspaper. The management of the newspaper kept hands off, permitting the outrage to run its course.

It is equally significant that in the many strikes in newspaper offices that followed this incident the pressmen and packers took the initiative, and did not discriminate between papers that were pro-general strike or avowedly opposed to such violent action. In the case of one newspaper that was pro-strike in its editorial expressions the hot-heads took exception to a piece of news concerning recruiting of citizens and ordered it off page one. When the editor mildly remonstrated the upstart censors suppressed the publication by removing their members from the work rooms.

With no more consideration of justice, legal rights or even self-interest than these incidents indicate these bullies cut off the people of England from news contact with each other and the outside world. Within a few hours the government, which was in possession of radio broadcasting, a line of communication that English officials have carefully kept from private hands, was busy denying a crop of sinister rumors. One of these reports was calculated to do immeasurable harm, perhaps throw the nation into the bloodiest civil strife in history. All over London the people were passing from lip to lip a report that hundreds of British soldiers had been executed by the government for mutiny. There was no word of truth in it, of course, yet it was an event that had long been predicted might follow a general strike and would precipitate a monstrous national disaster. When the rattle brains of the press-room silenced the newspapers of London they unquestionably had no thought that rumor may be as potent as fact in firing hate and fomenting revolution.

In England as elsewhere these tactics are called "red." But they seem to us to be more representative of ignorance and braggart brutality than such clever manipulation as has marked the course of the Russian soviet leaders. Indeed, it is only recently that the newspapers of New York were strike bound through an unwarranted, ill-considered and illegal action starting in the press-rooms, with flyboys as the hotheads. Here, however, there was no question of censorship, but an issue concerning working conditions and pay. There are incidents of record in this country, Canada and Mexico, however, in which mechanical forces have attempted to use their power to dictate editorial or news expression.

Whereas hundreds of thousands of average bystanding English citizens have had deep sympathy for the striking miners, believing that their wage scale is below the standards of decent living, perhaps even bare existence, and that they are a sadly exploited body of men, and whereas a considerable portion of the English population was not unprepared to make sympathetic sacrifices in behalf of the miners, nevertheless the suppression of the press is said, and we believe it to be a fact, to have caused wide-spread revulsion of feeling and indignation. The Neanderthal men, as Mencken describes the type, who set up this dangerous censorship by suppression, cut off voices that were championing their cause. They opened the gateways to irresponsible rumor and thereby created wide-spread fears which might, in instances, if unchecked by the government's radio line to the people, have created a horror unparalleled in history.

Such tyrannical dictation of a free instrument of the people, in such circumstances as those prevailing in English journalism, cannot possibly be defended on any ground of reason. The general English press is not a subsidized, deceitful, false press. These are fair newspapers, responding to the highest journalistic principles of the day. In England the general press seeks to publish the news without fear or favor. Nothing is so safe in constitutionally governed nations as free expression of both majority and minority opinions. In England questions of the day are threshed out in public print. To suppress the nation's open forum is to assault one of the highest principles of modern civilization.

Free press and free speech are English traditions, jealously guarded and upheld. Not even in our own country is the average citizen so independent in thought and action. This week's events were wretched rewards for a people who know how to indulge such tolerance.

The conduct of the workers who silenced the press after they had failed to control its editorial policies challenges the attention of the world's best minds. The power of an irresponsible, unthinking, merely audacious body of roughs and toughs to break down an institution that has been created in behalf of every man's freedom through intellectual process, must be and will be met.

It is the business of the world's journalism to curb this unreasoning monster.

Miss Betty Brainerd discovered that newspapermen's wives love their husbands, despite late dinners, poverty and frenzied rushing, but she was silent when it came to the case of a husband who boasts circulation or linage figures at the dinner table.

IN THIS WIRELESS AGE

WHY use a medieval courier to carry your advertising message in this wireless age? is the impression conveyed by Joseph H. Appel, advertising director of the John Wanamaker stores, on another page of this issue. He was drawing a comparison between newspaper and magazine advertising.

The medieval courier wore fancy clothes, his horse was sleek, but his speed was slow. Magazines offer gay pictures, fine printing on glossy paper. But, as Mr. Appel points out, the selling appeal may have become obsolete by the time the magazine courier reaches the public. Newspapers print advertising while it is news.

Ideal editing segregates from the daily grist of humdrum trivialities significant items that by example show us how to live.

REPORTING PROGRESS

IT is encouraging to hear that the U. S. Forest Service of the Department of Agriculture has decided to make experiments to speed the growth of pulp wood in the United States. It is stated on this authority that by process of breeding and selection woods may be produced which will mature in from 20 to 30 years, instead of 50 to 60 years as now required.

Another recommendation is for the expansion of the investigations carried on at the Forest Products Laboratory at Madison, Wis., with particular reference to the use of different woods for pulp, methods to recover products being lost through waste in pulping process, and ways of preventing stream pollution by the waste.

It is also planned to put experiment stations into action in Pennsylvania and the Ohio Valley forest regions.

This is an application of science to the great, unsolved problem of the newspaper industry.

The Canons of Journalism, adopted by the American Society of Newspaper Editors, have been handsomely printed on a card by the Journalism Department of the University of Kansas and should be posted in every newspaper office.

"UNREWARDED CIRCULATION"

THERE is a line beyond which a newspaper's circulation cannot go without advertising rate readjustment. That boundary line must be located by individual publishers.* These are well established facts, but strangely the dead-line is often wholly disregarded, sometimes with dire results.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER is aware of several instances of sick newspapers at the present time and in each instance the malady might be termed "unrewarded circulation." Distribution has been driven upward while rate adjustment lagged until the balance is completely lost and profit is all but wiped out. The condition, in instances, has become chronic and complicated by contract commitments which make immediate relief impossible.

This week we learned of one newspaper publisher who had ordered a five per cent decrease in circulation to continue over the Summer months, thus to avoid losses on advertising contracts due to expire in the Fall. It is a low-rate paper, whose circulation has rapidly advanced in recent months. The publisher shows good sense to control his outgo. In the Fall he will advance his rate and put new power in his circulation department. His mistake was made when he allowed long-term low-rate advertising contracts with large users in the face of rapidly increasing circulation showings.

Publishers with a fine sense of business promotion keep their advertising rates and circulations balanced. The process is something like driving an automobile. Keep one foot on the circulation accelerator and one foot on the advertising brake and slow down for careful, noiseless shifting of the gears.

Circulation that is not paid for by advertisers is a fool's paradise.

Our Latin-American friends complained that entertainment curtailed discussion of serious business, but they have yet to be introduced to a convention program which includes golf.

PERSONAL

DR. DOUGLAS SOUTHALL FREEMAN, editor of the Richmond (Va.) News-Leader, will deliver the commencement address at the University of North Carolina next month.

Grove Patterson, editor of the Toledo Blade, has been elected president of the Ohio Sons of the American Revolution.

George Fort Milton, editor and publisher of the Chattanooga (Tenn.) News, returned last week from a three-months' pleasure trip through the West.

S. O. Simonson, senior publisher of the Albert Lea (Minn.) Evening Tribune, has been named president of the Business Men's Association.

George M. Shull, publisher of the Mount Morris (N. Y.) Enterprise for more than 40 years, observed his 80th birthday recently.

T. D. Monsen, editor of the Fessenden (N. D.) Farmer, has been elected president of the city council.

E. E. Howard, editor of the Wheaton (Minn.) Gazette and former president of the Seventh District Editorial Association, has filed for the Republican nomination for secretary of state of Minnesota.

Charles A. Jordan, publisher of the Cogswell (N. D.) Enterprise has been named postmaster of Cogswell.

Frederick Sullens, editor of the Jackson (Miss.) Daily News recently sustained two fractured ribs in a fall.

Bert F. Kline editor of the Homestead (Pa.) Messenger, was recently elected president of the Homestead Chamber of Commerce.

IN THE BUSINESS OFFICE

J. H. KUNTZ, circulation manager of the Altoona (Pa.) Tribune, has joined the Lancaster (Pa.) Intelligencer and News Journal in the same capacity.

Martin B. Miller, manager of out-of-town classified advertising for the Chicago Tribune, has just returned from a honeymoon trip to the Bermudas. Mrs. Miller was the former Miss Doris Travers.

Walter Law, advertising manager of the Council Grove (Kan.) Daily Republican, has resigned to become advertising manager of the Goodland (Kan.) Republic.

Guy Cravens succeeds Earle A. Corbin as advertising manager of the Eveleth (Minn.) Clarion. Mr. Corbin has entered the real estate business in Duluth.

Harold F. Cope, formerly with the display advertising department of the New Orleans Times-Picayune, has joined the publicity department of the American Rolling Mill Company, Middletown.

M. J. Misner, for the past year and a half business manager of the Fort Lauderdale (Fla.) Daily News and Morning Sun, has resigned to rejoin the Galvin Brothers dailies in Ohio. Misner will return to Lima, O., where he was on the Lima News before going to Fort Lauderdale.

W. S. Bennett, secretary-treasurer and business manager of the Buffalo Courier, has just completed 30 years of continuous service with that newspaper, with which he started as a bookkeeper.

C. Israel Lutsky, formerly promotion manager of the Philadelphia Daily News, has been appointed business manager of the Philadelphia Jewish Times.

IN THE EDITORIAL ROOMS

HUGH DURIGAN, who was on the New York Herald Tribune copy desk, is now editing the daily picture page, while Morris Gilbert, graphic editor, is devoting himself to the Sunday graphic section.

June Provines of the Chicago Daily News, who has been in Paris for the last month accompanying a group of Chicago and New York buyers and sending a daily fashion cable, will sail for home within the next few days.

Ralph McCanna and Harold Evans are new members of the Chicago Evening Journal staff.

Alfred Dillon is the new city editor of the Brainerd (Minn.) Daily Dispatch.

Arnold Daane, managing editor of the Austin (Minn.) Daily Herald, has left for a three months' trip to the Azores, Spain and Portugal. He will write of his travels for the Herald.

Frank Williard, Chicago Tribune cartoonist, is back at his desk after several months spent in the south for the benefit of his health.

Rudolph Rehbach, who has covered the county building for the Chicago Abendpost for a number of years, has been promoted to city editor.

Arthur Davenport, courthouse reporter, the Tulsa (Okla.) World, has left the paper.

D. A. Hallman, day telegraph editor, Tulsa (Okla.) World and Mrs. Hallman are parents of a daughter, born May 2.

P. M. Girard of the local staff, Columbus (O.) Dispatch, has been appointed editor of the Columbus Motorist.

Kirk E. Latta, political reporter, Tulsa (Okla.) World, is touring the state with Omer K. Benedict, Republican candidate for governor.

C. R. Byland, until recently a special student in the Missouri School of Journalism, has left to become news editor of the Auburn (Neb.) Herald.

Carl Erickson has left the city staff of the Worcester (Mass.) Telegram to enter business with his father.

Thomas Phillips, former Boston College baseball star, has joined the city staff of the Worcester (Mass.) Telegram.

Robert I. Smith, Worcester (Mass.) Gazette, has been made assistant city editor to replace William Holland, who becomes telegraph editor.

Albert O. James, for the past year and a half editor and manager of the Van Dyke-Center Line Press and the Warren-Fraser Herald, has been promoted to managing editor of the nine publications issued by J. E. Nellis & Son Company of Mt. Clemens, Mich. Merton H. Wheeler, for two years editor of the Mt. Clemens Monitor, one of the Nellis group, is now secretary of the Mt. Clemens Chamber of Commerce.

Paul Robarts, Oklahoma City bureau man for the Tulsa (Okla.) World, has been recalled to the office in the capacity of reporter.

John Golobie, editor of the Guthrie Oklahoma State Register, is reported somewhat improved following an operation at Oklahoma City, April 26.

George F. Cochran, Sunday editor of the Lakeland (Fla.) Ledger, is ill in a Salisbury, N. C., hospital.

Ralph N. Swanson has been named news editor of the Lawton (Okla.) Evening Constitution.

Philip B. Ronayne, veteran city hall reporter, Worcester (Mass.) Gazette, is on an extended leave of absence due to ill health.

George Goodale, assistant sports editor of the Tulsa (Okla.) World, who sustained serious acid burns in a fraternity initiation at the University of Tulsa, April 28, has resumed work.

Fred E. Howell, formerly of Peoria, Ill., has been appointed sporting editor of the Springfield (O.) Daily News, vice John E. Reid, resigned.

Herbert Asbury of the night rewrite staff of the New York Herald Tribune returned May 7 from a leave of absence.

FOLKS WORTH KNOWING

FRANK JENKINS, editor and president of the Eugene (Ore.) Register has been actively engaged in the newspaper business since he was 18 years old. He gained his first experience as a printer's devil on the Indianola (Ia.) Advocate Tribune, where he worked for $1.50 a week.

FRANK JENKINS

After being graduated from Simpson College, Indianola, he served as a cub reporter on the Omaha (Neb.) World-Herald staff for a year and in 1906 became manager, editor and general superintendent of a small newspaper published by a syndicate at Hamburg, Ia.

A year later Mr. Jenkins went West, settling in Oregon. For two years he wrote for a syndicate principally on out of door subjects. He often travelled over the Rocky Mountain trails with only a pack horse, obtaining material for his next series.

Mr. Jenkins' desire to get into the daily paper field led him to buy the interest of W. G. Gilstrap in the Morning Register in 1912.

With the growth of Eugene, the Register prospered.

In the next few months the paper will occupy a new building, with new machinery, including presses and linotypes.

HOLDING NEW POSTS

HAILE T. HENDRIX, from art department, Kansas City Journal-Post, to art staff, El Dorado (Ark.) Daily News.

(Continued on next page)

NOW:—

Daily News Photo Matrix Service

• • Direct from New York • •

Our daily newspaper clients, present and prospective, will be interested in the announcement that we have arranged to supply an auxiliary service from New York, daily, at moderate additional cost. Inquiries are solicited.

We are also making important changes in our general features.

You buy with both sides of your dollar when you come to us!

The Central Press Association

V. V. McNITT, President — Central Press Bldg., Cleveland — H. A. McNITT, Editor and Manager

"Nothing Succeeds Like Success."

GAS BUGGIES

or

HEM AND AMY

By FRANK BECK

Runs in

22 One-Paper Cities

You have all been noting the comparative frequency of consolidations and absorbtions. With tens and dozens of comics to choose from, why do so many single paper cities select this particular strip?

"Nothing Succeeds Like Success."

Metropolitan Newspaper Service

Maximilian Elser, Jr., General Manager — Earl J. Hadley, Associate

150 Nassau Street, New York City

(Continued from page 29)

Irma Howorth, from editorial staff, Meridian (Miss.) Star, to Jackson (Miss.) Daily News as a reporter.

Miss Eileen M. Harrison, from reporter and feature writer, Ann Arbor (Mich.) Times-News, to society editor, Jamestown (N. D.) Sun.

Eddie Anderson, from police reporter, Tulsa (Okla.) World, to oil editor, Okmulgee Record.

Walter Biscup, from reporter, Muskogee (Okla.) News to staff, Tulsa World.

WITH THE SPECIALS

C. J. ANDERSON Special Agency Chicago, has moved to new quarters at 35 East Wacker Drive.

George A. McDevitt Company, special representatives, New York, have been appointed to represent the New Orleans Item and Morning Tribune nationally.

Robert S. Farley, Eastern steamship advertising representative has been appointed to represent the Philadelphia Record, in the steamship field.

John J. Flanagan of Pelham Manor, N. Y., is associated with the George B. David Company, on their soliciting staff.

Los Angeles Evening Herald, San Francisco Call Post and San Antonio Light have appointed John H. Lederer their national advertising representative in Chicago, with offices in the Hearst Building. T. C. Duggan will be associated with him in the Chicago office.

NEW PLANTS AND EQUIPMENT

VERDEN (Okla.) NEWS has installed complete electric motor equipment for its mechanical department.

Recent installations of Elrod Lead, Slug and Rule Casters: Elizabeth (N. J.) Times; Kokomo (Ind.) Tribune; Pontiac (Mich.) Press; Danville (Ill.) Commercial News.

Askov (Minn.) American is putting up a new building.

Wabasha (Minn.) Standard has installed a Model C Intertype.

Beresford (S. D.) Republican has installed a three H. P. electric motor.

Battle Creek (Mich.) Moon-Journal, has purchased an 8-page deck which now makes their Duplex Tubular press of 24-page capacity.

Recent shipments from the New York and Dunellen Works of R. Hoe & Co., Inc., included three superspeed units with ink pumps and double folder for the Brooklyn Daily Eagle, an eight page intaglio press with single folder for Diario de la Marina, Havana, Cuba, and a 16-page double-width intaglio press for La Prensa, Buenos Aires.

MARRIED

R. KENNETH RICHARDS, of the classified department, to Miss Kathryn M. Swafford of the circulation department, Springfield (Ill.) State Journal, April 18, in St. Louis.

Clyde B. Davis, telegraph editor of the Denver Rocky Mountain News, to Miss Martha Wirt, society editor, secretly at Greeley, Col., April 20. The marriage was announced last week.

Henry C. Todd, assistant city editor of the Montreal Star, to Miss Jetta Vivian, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Gray of Campellton N. B., in Montreal, April 29.

G. R. Schaeffer, advertising manager of Marshall Field & Co., to Miss Alma Adair, of Sioux City, Ia., in that city, last week. Mr. Schaeffer is vice-chairman of the Chicago association of commerce advertising council.

John Cairns, night editor, San Francisco Examiner, to Miss Grace McTavish of Vancouver, B. C., recently.

SPECIAL EDITIONS

VICTORIA (B. C.) DAILY COLONIST, Rotary Convention issue, April 22.

Watertown (S. D.) Herald, 44-page Industrial and Automobile edition.

St. Paul Daily News, Better Homes number, April 25.

Kerkhoven (Minn.) Banner, Progress edition, April 29, covering 50 years' development in that territory.

Winona (Minn.) Daily Republican-Herald, 14-page "Better Homes" section, April 27.

Murdock (Minn.) Leader, 16-page Progress number, April 29.

Lansing (Mich.) State Journal, Home Complete Show edition, April 24; Children's edition, April 28.

CHANGES OF OWNERSHIP

BROOKFIELD (Mo.) GAZETTE was recently bought by A. H. Fulton, a printer.

J. W. Roberts, of the Roberts Publishing Company, publishers of the Chillicothe (Tex.) Valley News, has purchased the Munday (Tex.) Times.

On May 1, E. R. Childers sold the Columbia (Mo.) Herald-Statesman to a corporation. The officers of the compay buying the paper are: James W. Caudle, president and manager of the job printing department; Frank H. Scott, vice-president and general manager; A. J. Snedeker, secretary-treasurer and manager of the retail department.

PRESS ASSOCIATION NOTES

JAMES M. MILLS, Associated Press correspondent at Moscow, is spending his vacation in London and Paris and will return to Moscow about June 15. Meanwhile he will visit a number of the Balkan countries to which he was assigned before assuming the Moscow bureau. He had expected to come to the United States this summer, but his substitute was not able to serve long enough to make such a trip possible.

Copeland C. Burg has been appointed manager of the Chicago bureau of International News Service, replacing Kenneth Duncan, resigned. He was formerly a member of the I. N. S. Pacific Coast staff in Los Angeles. He has been with the news service about five years, covering important stories in California. Thomas R. Curran, formerly correspondent at Lincoln, Neb., succeeds Burg in Los Angeles.

Louella Parsons, former moving picture editor of the New York American, who has been recuperating from an illness in California, is now covering Hollywood news for Universal Service. A private office has been established for her next to the Los Angeles bureau of Universal.

Otis Peabody Swift, who has been in the business side of the United Press Associations, has returned to editorial work and is now assigned to the New York headquarters cable staff. Mr. Swift before his association with the business department was cable editor of United News in New York, and later manager of the Chicago bureau.

G. Ross Downing has been transferred from the Pittsburgh staff of the International News Service to become manager of the Harrisburg, Pa., bureau. S. Neiman has been transferred from New York to Pittsburgh.

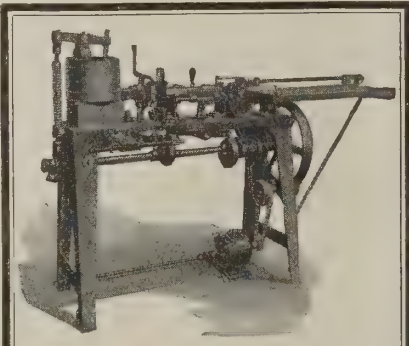
Lester Smith, Cleveland manager of the International News Service, was sent to Cincinnati this week to open a new bureau there. He has been succeeded in Cleveland by Ben Stern.

James B. Nevin, former editor of the Atlanta Georgian, has joined the Washington staff of Universal Service.

Lewis Keemle, recently on the desk of the Philadelphia Public Ledger, has joined the New York staff of the United Press. Mr. Keemle was at one time managing editor of the Baltimore Post.

William Neal has been sent from the New York to the Washington bureau of International News Service, succeeding Wilbur Morse, resigned. E. L. Rawley has been transferred from Albany to New York.

Frederick K. Abbott has returned to his post in charge of the Paris bureau of International News Service.



SCHOOLS

GAMMA CHAPTER of Theta Sigma Phi, honorary journalism sorority, at the University of Missouri, Columbia, Mo., entertained with its first annual Matrix Table banquet the evening of April 16, honoring local authors. Miss Sara L. Lockwood, associate professor of journalism at the university and national president of Theta Sigma Phi was toastmistress.

Byron A. Hayworth, of Burlington, N. C., editor-in-chief of the Guilfordian college weekly, was elected president of the North Carolina College Press Association in the final meeting of that body at Guilford College, N. C. The Technician, of State College, was voted the best college newspaper, and the Archive and Carolina Magazines took first and second place as magazines respectively. The next meeting of the association will be held at Salem College, Winston-Salem, next fall.

Students in journalism from Ohio State University were in charge of the publication of last Saturday's issue of the Columbus Citizen. This is an annual custom.

The man who will not obey the law as it stands isn't likely to comply with it if modified.—Columbus Dispatch.

A Giant for

Producing Leads, Slugs and Plain Rules

CUT your costs on spacing and border material—let the Elrod produce all the leads, slugs and plain rules you can use, cast from standard slug metal and cut to any length.

The Elrod is simple and automatic. It does not require an expert operator and will cast high-grade material that will stand up even under severe stereotyping and press conditions.

Ludlow Typograph Co.
2032 Clybourn Ave., Chicago
San Francisco—New York
Atlanta—Boston

LUDLOW QUALITY COMPOSITION

Century Bold Extended

PUBLISHING Completes the
36 Point

BIG EXTENDED Faces give strong
30 Point

PRINTERS Create then
24 Point

BETTER IN Many folder and in other
14 Point

GET MODERN Machinery this
18 Point

SLUGS PRINT More perfectly because sound
12 Point

(42 and 48 Point Century Bold Extended in Process)

FOR advertising and job composition. The Ludlow system of matrix composition provides new, clear-cut printing faces on slugs for every job. Its speed, versatility, 6 to 60 point range in a wide variety of quality typefaces, including bold and extended, ranks it first for display and job work. Because you set matrices, not type, you secure your slug lines immediately, never running short of sorts for any job.

Ludlow Typograph Co.
2032 Clybourn Avenue, Chicago

San Francisco: 5 Third Street
Atlanta: 41 Marietta Street
New York: 63 Park Row
Boston: 261 Franklin Street

LUDLOW QUALITY COMPOSITION

Deal with these 28 Iowa daily newspapers as with one publication. This is the logical way to reach Iowa's pocketbook, for practically every family in the state reads one of these dailies every day.

How this Iowa Plan sells your goods

IN the first place, you probably know that this Iowa market is very desirable. By far the foremost agricultural state, Iowa's industries also add greatly to her prosperity.

Iowa is 51% above the nation's average in per capita taxable wealth. Better still, her wealth is well divided.

Iowa's standard of living is indicated by these facts: Iowa has the lowest percentage of illiteracy in the United States; there are approximately two bank accounts for every family in the state; more telephones per capita than any other state; largest number of automobiles on farms (one car for every 3.7 persons in the state at large).

Now this wonderfully responsive market should be even more interesting to you, because we have made it easier for you to reach.

These 28 leading Iowa daily newspapers have formed this association, in the interest of more systematic marketing. The circulation of these papers thoroughly covers the state.

Along with any adequate advertising campaign in these daily newspapers you are offered uniform cooperation in every section of the state, in opening, gaining distribution and successfully selling your products.

These 28 publishers are 28 friendly allies for you, each holding the key to the situation in his own locality.

Lists and surveys needed will be prepared for you.

This plan, in fact, helps you in every step,—with jobber, dealer and consumer.

Let us tell you more about this plan—as pertains to your specific problem.

THE IOWA DAILY PRESS ASSOCIATION

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Ames Tribune
Boone News-Republican
Burlington Gazette
Burlington Hawk-Eye
Cedar Falls Record
Cedar Rapids Gazette
Centerville Iowegian & Citizen
Council Bluffs Nonpareil
Davenport Democrat
Davenport Times
Des Moines Capital
Des Moines Register and Tribune
Dubuque Telegraph-Herald
Dubuque Times-Journal
Fort Dodge Messenger
Fort Madison Democrat
Iowa City Press-Citizen
Keokuk Gate-City
Marshalltown Times Republican
Mason City Globe-Gazette
Muscatine Journal
Oelwein Register
Ottumwa Courier
Sioux City Journal
Sioux City Tribune
Washington Journal
Waterloo Evening Courier
Waterloo Tribune

IOWA—WHERE EVERY FAMILY TAKES A DAILY NEWSPAPER

WHAT'S WHAT IN THE FEATURE FIELD

Science Service Elects New Trustees—Sir Philip Gibbs Covering British Strike for United Features—Eleanor Gunn Again With Metropolitan

DR. M. I. PUPIN, who wrote "From Immigrant to Inventor" and who is now retiring president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, has been elected a trustee of Science Service, the institution for the popularization of science, upon nomination of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, it was announced this week. Thomas L. Sidlo of the law firm of Baker, Hostetler & Sidlo, Cleveland, was elected to fill the vacancy in the board of trustees created by the death of E. W. Scripps, founder of Science Service.

The following trustees were re-elected: Dr. R. A. Milliken, director of the Norman Bridge Laboratory of Physics, Pasadena, upon nomination of the National Academy of Science; Dr. Vernon Kellogg, permanent secretary of the National Research Council, upon the nomination of that body; R. P. Scripps, of Scripps-Howard Newspapers, nominated as a representative of the E. W. Scripps estate.

Other members of the board of trustees include Dr. A. A. Noyes, director of the Gates Chemical Laboratory, Pasadena; Dr. John C. Merriam, president, Carnegie Institution; Dr. D. T. MacDougal, director of the Desert Laboratory, Tucson, Ariz.; Dr. J. McKeen Cattell, editor of Science and Scientific Monthly; Dr. C. G. Abbot, director of Astrophysical Observatory of the Smithsonian Institution; Dr. Victor C. Vaughn, chairman of division of medical sciences, National Research Council; Dr. W. E. Ritter, University of California; Frank R. Kent, Baltimore Sun; Dr. John H. Finley, New York Times, and Mark Sullivan of Washington.

Officers of Science Service recently elected are as follows: Dr. W. E. Ritter, president; Dr. J. McKeen Cattell, vice-president; Dr. Vernon Kellogg, treasurer; Watson Davis, secretary.

Sir Philip Gibbs was this week engaged to write articles on the general strike in Great Britain for American newspapers through United Features Syndicate. The same syndicate announced that Lloyd George's weekly cable article would deal with strike conditions while the industrial disturbance continues. Sir Philip will cable stories twice a week.

Eleanor Gunn's fashion articles are again being distributed by the Metropolitan Newspaper Service, New York. For the past few years Miss Gunn has been writing for the Fairchild News Service. Prior to that she was with Metropolitan. She will still have access to news, illustrations, and style reports of the Fairchild Publications which include Women's Wear, a daily, published in New York.

Star Newspaper Service, Toronto, this week announced four new services. They are: a series of weekly illustrated gardening articles, by T. H. Rand-McNally, horticulturist; a weekly house plan service, drawn by a Toronto architect; a symposium by writers, statesmen, scientists, and academicians of the Dominion, entitled "My Religion"; and a series of 48 lessons in lawn tennis by Capt. R. Innes-Taylor, editor of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Magazine. This last named service is being handled in Great Britain by the Newnes Newspaper Services.

Shirley Rodman Williams is writing a daily parent-child feature for the McClure Newspaper Syndicate, New York. The feature is made up of an illustrated verse for the child, and a short paragraph for the parent on child psychology.

Miss Minerva Hunter is author of "Thrift Thought For Today," a new feature added to the blanket service of the Electricaster Service, Inc., Omaha, Neb.

Howard Wheeler, vice-president and general manager of United Features Syndicate, New York, and Mrs. Wheeler are parents of a baby girl born at Lenox Hill hospital, New York, May 4. Mr. Wheeler had hoped for a syndicate salesman but declared himself entirely satisfied with the future "sob-sister." The girl, unnamed yet, is their first baby.

Miss Wilma Eihs, secretary of Christy Walsh, president of the Christy Walsh Syndicate, was married last week to Henry F. Groenert, Woodhaven, N. Y. Mrs. Groenert will continue to work for the syndicate.

Hugo S. Sims, of Orangeburg, S .C., is issuing a weekly clip service for newspapers under the masthead "Editor's Copy." Features for clipping are printed on two pages of newsprint of regular standard newspaper size. In the current number, the features include: editorials; editorial paragraphs; a Sunday school lesson, by Henry Radcliffe; localized stories; a fashion letter; "Farm Gossip," by "L. S. W."; Washington letter; radio program; jokes; moving picture comment; sports column, and news shorts.

The McClure Newspaper Syndicate, New York, has obtained second serial rights to "The Sinister Man," by Edgar Wallace, and "The Black Joker," by Isabel Ostrander.

FLASHES

An inferiority complex is a state of mind that causes a fellow to throw down the best hand in a poker game.—Florence (Ala.) Herald.

As we understand it, the wets are sore because they have no kick coming.—Milwaukee Journal.

What makes the happy ending of some movies is the mere fact that they have ended.—Macon News.

One outstanding feature of the progress of civilization, and all that, is the fact that there were fewer millionaires at large in 1826 than there are in jail in 1926.—Little Rock Arkansas Gazette.

If only the dear things wouldn't get the bloom of youth higher on one cheek than on the other.—El Paso Herald.

Now and then one picks up a magazine on the stands these days that makes one curious to see the stuff the editor rejected.—Detroit News.

Mussolini was accorded an uproarious reception in Africa. Italy doesn't owe any debts there.—Portland Oregonian.

Drys having flatly contradicted everything said by the wets, the hearings should be continued to allow a third set of witnesses to contradict both sides.—Brooklyn Eagle.

The contention of engineering experts that the day of windmills is past would seem to be confirmed by the meager accomplishments of our legislatures.—Norfolk Virginian-Pilot.

Generally speaking, Opportunity knocks; it is only to a woman it comes with a ring.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

If anyone is hopelessly behind with his work it must be the fool-killer.—Florence (Ala.) Herald.

"Second Love"

By

Malcolm Duart

Hitherto advertised for release June 5, is hereby released for publication or any date thereafter at the discretion of editors who purchase it.

May 16

Since "Second Love" is not sold in territories so near together that circulations overlap, this earlier release will have no adverse effect upon publishers who now are running the predecessor of "Second Love" in full and who wish to release Malcolm Duart's new story in June as originally planned.

Proofs of story and mats of illustrations and promotion material are ready and will be forwarded on telegraphic order.

EUGENE MACLEAN

519 California Street

San Francisco California

New Fiction---and New Circulation

THIS is how I KNOW that "Second Love," the serial I am offering for release May 16 or thereafter, at discretion of editors, and those erials I shall offer hereafter, will make circulation for he newspapers that print them.

'or many years, first as editor of the Cleveland (Ohio) 'ress, later as publisher of a San Francisco newspaper, nd finally as president and general manager of NEA ervice, Inc., I studied the effect upon newspaper cir-ulations of second-hand material—reprinted novels—n the fiction department.

'ractically every bit of fiction used by American news-'apers was old—it had passed through magazine and ook publication before it reached the newspaper eader.

nd, it was my own experience that these reprinted ooks, no matter how great the name of the authors or how popular the books themselves, made little or o circulation for the papers in which I was interested.

'he reason did not seem far to seek. These books were ot written for newspaper use; for short installments; or an audience used (in its newspapers) to fast action -to the excitement that lies in every column of news. nd, of course, many of the readers had seen the stories efore.

n San Francisco I began to experiment, in a small way t first, with original fiction—new stories, written for he newspaper public, in a form that the reader could ollow.

'he immediate result was that the newspaper made irculation, with mighty little expenditure of money in romotion.

made mistakes, of course. It takes time and labor to earn. But before I sold my stock in that paper (at ½ times the price at which I purchased it) I had vorked out, as an editor, a pretty close analysis of what he newspaper public wants in fiction.

Later, in the syndicate field, I put to use on a larger cale the things I had learned. Working closely with he writers, day by day, I supervised and edited "The Flapper Wife" (also variously called "Gloria" and "The Jazz Bride"), "Footloose," "Spinsterhood," (also called "The Love Dodger") and "The Yellow Stub," and finally, wanting a certain type of story to balance the program, myself wrote the novel "These Women" under the pen name of Malcolm Duart. This last, I believe, is now enjoying the largest run of any piece of newspaper fiction ever printed.

Each of these stories was successful, in an amazing degree. They all MADE CIRCULATION.

I am now preparing an all-the-year-around fiction program, carefully balanced to meet every shade of reader demand. The public does not want and will not read, any one type of story continuously, whether it is "jazz," mystery, adventure or straight romance. It WILL read, and DOES read, in increasing volume, the paper that offers all these elements in rotation—PROVIDING EACH STORY IN THE PROGRAM IS BUILT FOR NEWSPAPER USE.

It so happens that the first story I offer, as an individual purveyor, is a "jazz" story after a fashion. It is a study of the disastrous effects that follow the marriage of a poor young man to a rich girl. There is a "vamp" in it, of course, some love, some tears, and all that sort of thing.

It is a sequel to "These Women," though it is so constructed that it stands alone. It is not necessary to have printed "These Women" to get full value from its successor.

The succeeding story will be of a different type. I shall announce it in June.

But "Second Love," and the story that follows it, and each of those that come after, WILL MAKE CIRCULATION. Built into a consistent program they will create a permanent following—a following of NEW readers.

The price of a year's service, or of territorial rights to "Second Love," on request.

Eugene MacLean,
519 California Street,
San Francisco, California.

WITH THE GENERAL ADVERTISERS

Rolls Razor, British Product, Is Possible National Account—F. B. Farley Now Directing Fada Radio Advertising—Portland Cement Association in New Home

A NEW national advertising account for American newspapers may develop for promotion of the Rolls Razor, a British product, of which the MM Importing Company, 6 E. 45th street, New York, is the sole agents in the United States.

Pickard, Brander & Brown, New York advertising agency, on May 5 placed a full page advertisement in the New York Times announcing the razor and listing New York dealers.

An agency official informed EDITOR & PUBLISHER this copy was in the nature of a test of newspaper space, and the selling possibilities of the Rolls Razor. Within a month, he said, it will be decided whether or not a national campaign will be started.

Increased production facilities of the manufacturer, Rolls Razor, Limited, of London, have made it possible to introduce the razor in America, the initial advertisement stated.

Francis Brooke Farely has been appointed advertising manager of F. A. D. Andrea, Inc., New York, makers of Fada radios, succeeding K. H. Stark, resigned. Mr. Farely was formerly connected with Charles Freshman Company, Inc., radio manufacturers.

General offices of the Portland Cement Association have been moved from the Conway Building, 111 W. Washington street, Chicago, to the association's new building, 33 W. Grand avenue. The advertising department is now located at this new address.

Pierce Petroleum Corporation, St. Louis, is placing a newspaper campaign in St. Louis territory. The account is handled by the Chappelow Advertising Company, St. Louis.

Viking Pump Company, Cedar Falls, Ia., did a business of $787,000 in its last fiscal year, J. G. Wyth, manager, reported in his annual statement to stockholders. Officers were re-elected as follows: W. L. Hearst, president; Jens Nielsen, vice-president; W. N. Hostrop, secretary; and P. C. Petersen, treasurer.

E. Clarke King, Jr., until recently editor of Detroit Publicity and publicity director for the Detroit Convention and Tourists' Bureau, has joined the advertising department of Kelvinator Corporation at Detroit. He is a former newspaper man, having been branch office manager for the Syracuse Herald at Fulton, N. Y., prior to his going to Detroit. Mr. King covered courts for the Springfield (O.) News before he entered the Air Service during the war.

Pratt & Florea, Inc., of New York, are now placing copy in New York papers for the O. L. Schwencke Land & Investment Company, New York, advertising their Seaford Harbor, Long Island, development.

Harry R. Wellman, professor of marketing, Amos Tuck School of Administration and Finance, Dartmouth College, this week informed EDITOR & PUBLISHER, he would be unable to address the semi-annual convention of the Association of National Advertisers to be held in Chicago, May 10-12. Illness made it necessary for him to cancel the speaking date.

"Senac" is the new name of the product of the Hubbard Automatic Oil Burner, Duluth, Minn. It was chosen as a result of a name contest.

ON "TRICK" ASSIGNMENT

Granville Whittelsey, Jr., Approaches New York Aboard Rotorship

Granville Whittelsey, Jr., formerly on the staff of the Providence Journal, may lay claim to one of the most unique assignments in the current journalistic year. This young newspaper man is now nearing New York harbor, aboard the rotorship, Baden-Baden. He sailed from Hamburg, five weeks ago to cover the journey for members of the North American Newspaper Alliance.

G. WHITTELSEY, JR.

Just prior to leaving Hamburg, Whittlesey learned that German law forbade cargo ships to carry passengers, and, in consequence, he is on the ship's list as a common seaman. Whittlesey was engaged by N. A. N. A. in New York to sail to Germany and come back on the strange craft, invention of the German, Anton Flettner.

The route of the Baden-Baden is the same as that taken in 1492 by Columbus.

The Baden-Baden is expected to dock in New York sometime next week. Mr. Flettner, who crossed on a liner, is already in New York.

ADVERTISING AGENCY AFFAIRS

E. M. Pratt Elected Vice-President of Frank Seaman, Inc.—Lynn A. Gratiot Now Associated With John Ring, Jr.—Three New York Agencies Move Headquarters

EDWARD M. PRATT was this week elected vice-president of Frank Seaman, Inc., New York advertising agency, succeeding F. A. Arnold, resigned. Other officers were re-elected as follows: Frank Seaman, chairman of the board of directors; Walter Hine, president; Julian Seaman, treasurer, and H. V. H. Proskey, secretary. Mr. Pratt came to the company a few months ago from Marschalk & Pratt, Inc., New York agency. He has been acting in a contact capacity for Frank Seaman, Inc.

Lynn A. Gratiot, one of the founders of Yost, Gratiot & Co., from which he recently withdrew, has been made vice-president of the John Ring, Jr., Advertising Company, St. Louis. C. F. Stuhlman, formerly of the advertising department of the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad, St. Louis, has joined the staff of this agency as account executive.

Three New York advertising agencies are now operating from new offices. Frank Kiernan & Co., is at 41 Maiden Lane, opposite the Federal Reserve Bank; the Trans-Pacific Advertising and Service Bureau, Inc., the head office of which is in Tokio, has changed its New York office to the Bowery Savings Bank Building, 110 E. 42nd street; and the G. Lynn Sumner Company has moved to new quarters in the Murray Hill Building, 385 Madison avenue.

The H. W. Kastor & Sons Advertising Company, New York, announces the appointment of Alfred Weeks as production manager. Mr. Weeks was formerly head of the engraving desk in the mechanical production department of the H. K. Mc Cann Company, also New York.

Harry M. Miller, who left the Columbus (O.) Dispatch, several years ago, to form the Herr Miller Advertising Company, at Columbus, has formed a new advertising agency to be known as the Miller-Knopf Company, Inc., with offices at 43 West Long street, Columbus. Incorporators include Sadie L. Miller, Raymond W. Knopf, Mildred C. Knopf and W. B. McLecker.

David M. Cheney, formerly on the faculty of Tufts College at Medford, Mass., has resigned to join the advertising firm of Wood, Putnam & Wood Company of Boston, New York and Baltimore.

Alexander D. Walter, advertising counsel for a number of Pittsburgh, Pa., corporations has joined the staff of the W. S. Hill Company, of Pittsburgh. He is a member of the Pittsburgh Advertising Club and has been prominent in Pittsburgh advertising circles for the past 12 years.

Miss Jane Wood has resigned from the Thelma Gaines Advertising Agency, San Antonio, and has taken charge of the advertising department of the Nieman-Marcus Company, Dallas clothiers. Miss Marion Johnson, former advertising manager of the Vogue Company, San Antonio, has joined the Gaines Agency, as account executive.

The hard part of making good is that you must do it over every day.—Vancouver Sun.

The only males of this era who boss the household are under three years of age.—St. Joseph News-Press.

CIRCULATION BUILDING SUPREMACY

We opened 1926 with the greatest newspaper campaign ever conducted, and secured over $300,000 in prepaid subscriptions for The Cleveland Plain Dealer. We can attain similar success for you!

THOUSANDS OF NEW, PREPAID, BONA-FIDE HOME-DELIVERED SUBSCRIBERS SECURED IN TEN WEEKS' TIME

HOLLISTER'S
Circulation Organization
Wire or Write us at 717-718 Commercial Exchange Bldg., LOS ANGELES

LA PRENSA
of Buenos Aires

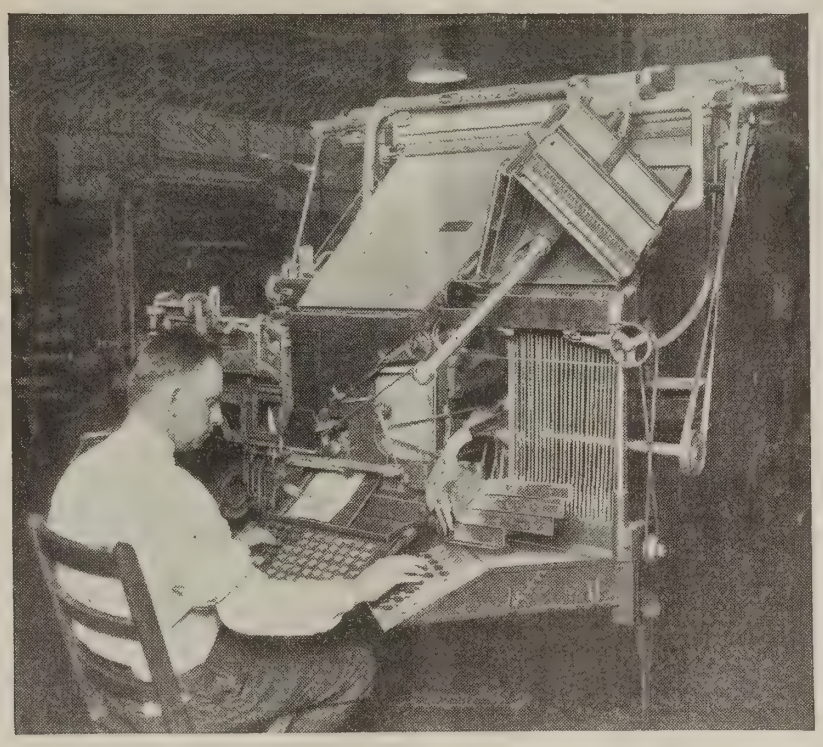
Announces
That It Has Appointed
JOSHUA B. POWERS
Exclusive Advertising
Representative
for North America

Mr. Powers for the past few years has been assistant manager for the UNITED PRESS in South America

250 Park Ave., New York
Vanderbilt 5943

Service



To Classified Manager:

Certainly the Editor & Publisher is a wonderful agency of helpfulness to the great profession and industry it serves. It has brought to me a number of good prospects and given me opportunities that I could not otherwise have obtained. And your own thoughtfulness, courtesy and generous use of your time and experience to be helpful is pleasant to think about and be thankful for.

(Signed) _____

(Writer's name on request)

The Service offered by the Classified Department of EDITOR & PUBLISHER is of value to everyone engaged in any phase of newspaper making; and of equal value to the producers of Equipment, Supplies and Services that are essential factors of the great Newspaper industry.

Standardized Intertype with Power Keyboard Side Unit

"Why should I buy an Intertype?"

Answer: For the same reasons which have prompted the largest newspapers in the country to buy from one to over a hundred Intertypes. Here are some of these reasons:

Non-Obsolescence—Intertype policy and design protect your investment in Intertypes against loss from obsolescence. No Standardized Intertype has ever become obsolete.

Unit Construction—Any kind of Standardized Intertype can be converted into any other—in any composing room by any machinist. The Intertype meets tomorrow's needs as well as today's—another safeguard for your investment.

New Improvements—New Intertype Improvements have always been made applicable to outstanding Standardized Intertypes—still another protection for the Intertype user's investment.

Auxiliary Units—Auxiliary or side magazine units can readily be added to your Intertypes as your requirements demand. Greater range is available whenever you need it.

Interchangeable—Even repair parts are interchangeable on all Standardized Intertypes. It is unnecessary to keep a separate stock for each machine in a large battery. This means less money tied up, less chance of having to wait for shipment of a repair part from the factory.

Simplicity—The Intertype has fewer moving parts. On the three-magazine machine, there are 910 fewer moving parts in the escapement mechanism alone. On the Intertype "Mixer" one spaceband box does the work of three. Parts which do not exist cannot wear out.

Profit Features—The Intertype has many improvements especially designed to give it maximum output at minimum cost. About forty of these features are illustrated in our booklet "Profit-Making Intertype Features"—yours on request.

For still more reasons why you should buy an Intertype, write for Intertype literature. Please wire collect if you wish to see an Intertype representative.

Standardized
INTERTYPE
TRADE MARK

INTERTYPE CORPORATION

1440-A BROADWAY, at 40th Street, NEW YORK

CHICAGO MEMPHIS SAN FRANCISCO BOSTON LOS ANGELES LONDON

INTERTYPE CORPORATION
1440-A Broadway at 40th St.
New York

Please send literature about Standardized Intertypes.

Name.....

Address.....

ST. LOUIS REVIEWS SIX YEARS OF ADVERTISING

63 New Industries Brought to City Through Municipal Campaigns—Plan to Spend $70,000 in Next 12 Months

With six years of successful municipal advertising ended, the St. Louis Municipal Advertising Committee, composed of leading business men and city officials, is in the midst of shaping plans for the new fiscal year. It is proposed to use a fund of $70,000 or more in the next twelve months for advertising the assets of the city.

The advertising campaign is strongly supported by the City, the Board of Aldermen appropriating each year one half of the total fund. The aldermen already have voted a $35,000 appropriation for this year and citizens are being asked to contribute a like amount.

St. Louis, which was a pioneer in municipal advertising, has found it pays excellent dividends. Within the six years the advertising campaign has been in effect, 196 new industries have been brought to the city. Of these, it is known that the coming of at least 63 was traceable directly to the advertising and a number of others were perhaps greatly influenced by it. The new firms which have located there are now paying into the city treasury about $250,000 a year in taxes, according to conservative estimates.

The St. Louis advertising campaign is sponsored by the city, the Chamber of Commerce and the Advertising Club. A committee composed of about 30 business men and city officials supervises the work of preparing the advertising and the selection of publications to be used. The committee is headed this year by C. A. Munroe, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Laclede Gas Light Company. Last year the chairman was Walter B. Weisenburger, vice-president of the National Bank of Commerce. The advertising is placed by the John Ring, Jr., Advertising Company.

The advertising copy is not of the so-called "clever" or "flashy" kind, but is fashioned to tell the simple truths about the basic facts which cause St. Louis to grow. It is directed toward the bringing in of new industries and increasing the population and commerce of the city. The appeal to industry is based on central location, railroad facilities, labor supply and living conditions.

Inquiries in response to the advertisements are classified and followed up by the Industrial Department of the Chamber of Commerce. For the supplying of general information a booklet setting forth the chief assets of the city has been prepared and is mailed out to those asking for it. Requests for specific information are met by special letters handled by the Chamber of Commerce.

As an aid to building up trade, advertising with an appeal to merchants is published each spring and fall in the states within the St. Louis trade territory. This plan has resulted in a remarkable growth of the St. Louis market in various lines.

In the annual report of the Municipal Advertising Committee, just made public, is shown that at least 50 cities have adopted plans for municipal advertising, many of them modeled on the St. Louis method.

SOUTH CAROLINA A. P. MEETING

Plans for Handling Political News Discussed at Columbia

Representatives of virtually all South Carolina newspapers were present at the spring Associated Press meeting in Columbia Tuesday. A luncheon at the Jefferson hotel preceded the business session.

Plans for handling political news in connection with the Democratic campaigns this summer was one of the principal topics for discussion.

Executives of the A. P. Southern Division headquarters and employees of the Columbia bureau attended the meeting. McDavid Horton, managing editor of the Columbia State, is chairman of the group. The association was formed about four years ago.

CANADA PAPER OUTPUT RISES

March Figures Show Newsprint Exports 20 Per Cent Above 1925

Canada's exports of pulp and paper in March were valued at $17,553,179, according to a report just issued by the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association. This total has only been exceeded once before, in August, 1920, when pulp and paper prices were very much higher than they are today. Compared with the February figures there was an increase in the value of these exports of $4,256,-241.

Exports of wood-pulp in March were valued at $5,131,669 and exports of paper at $12,421,510 as compared with $4,123,-171 and $9,173,767 respectively in February.

Comparison with the month of March, 1925, shows that there was an increase in March of this year in exports in practically every grade of pulp and paper. Total pulp shipments amounted to 93,128 tons, an increase of 5,941 tons or 7 per cent above last year's figures. Newsprint exports were the highest ever reported and exceeded those for March, 1925, by 28,760 tons or almost 20 per cent.

MAY RETURNS TO LONDON

Reuters Executive Studied U. S. Handling of Financial News

Fleetwood May, managing editor of Reuters International Commercial Service, with headquarters in London, returned to England last week after a three-week's visit to this country, during which he surveyed financial conditions in New York and went into the details of the existing commercial service that Reuter sends by daily cable to the Far East and Europe. During his visit here he visited all the various exchanges in the financial district, and took back with him to London a number of ideas for the improvement of the service.

Mr. May told of an innovation Reuters has recently introduced into their news service, whereby at different times of the day news bulletins and commercial prices are broadcast from London into Europe, where they are picked up by central receiving stations in every European country, even as far as Constantinople. So accurate has this wireless service proved that it has now been found unnecessary to confirm the wireless news by overhead telegram.

CORRECTION

Quincy (Mass.) Times Suspends Publication, Not Quincy Telegram

A confusion of names on the part of an EDITOR & PUBLISHER correspondent last week caused an item to be printed stating that the Quincy (Mass.) Telegram had suspended publication, instead of the Quincy Times.

The Quincy Telegram is being published by Mrs. W. G. Spargo, widow of the late W. G. Spargo, owner of the Telegram.

The Quincy Times was launched as a daily recently by John Collier and associates, after they had purchased the Quincy Journal-Republican.

Guild A. Copeland Dies

Guild A. Copeland, 54, editorial writer of the Richmond (Ind.) Item is dead of heart disease. He had been engaged in newspaper work since 1889. He was editor of the Boston (Mass.) Daily Advertiser from 1903 to 1917 when he resigned to make a study of agricultural conditions throughout the United States. In 1919 he founded the Kenosha (Wis.) Herald and was its managing editor until he went to Richmond in 1920. He was born in Evansville, Ind.

FAREWELL DINNER FOR HANSEN

Chicago News Critic Joins N. Y. World—Succeeded by Preston

Harry Hansen, who resigned as literary editor of the Chicago Daily News to take a similar position with the New York World, starting this week, was given a farewell dinner by Chicago friends and literati at the Hotel Atlantic, Saturday evening, May 1.

Keith Preston, conductor of the "Hit or Miss" column of the News, succeeds Hansen as literary editor and is spending two weeks in the east before taking up his additional duties.

Preston will be assisted by Robert Ballou, who comes to the News from the University of Chicago Press. Before joining the university press, Ballou was an editorial writer for the Chicago Evening Post and a member of the Chicago Herald & Examiner staff.

KADEL REJOINS U. & U.

Becomes News Picture Division Manager of Picture Service May 10

George J. Kadel has been appointed manager of the news picture division of Underwood & Underwood, Inc., succeeding Frank A. Eaton, who has been elected a vice-president of that corporation.

Mr. Kadel, who has been engaged in news photography for the past 20 years, recently sold out his interest in Kadel & Herbert, a news feature photo service of which he was senior partner. Kadel, who will assume his new duties May 10, was news photo editor of Underwood & Underwood before the firm of Kadel & Herbert was organized ten years ago.

M. E. TRACY HONORED

Associates Tender Farewell Dinner to Houston Post Editorial Writer

Prior to his departure for New York to serve on the editorial board of the Scripps-Howard Newspapers, M. E. Tracy, Houston Press editorial writer, was tendered a banquet by Houston friends. Speakers included R. R. Sterling, chairman of the Post-Dispatch board; C. J. Lilley, editor of the Press; M. E. Foster and C. B. Gillespie, publisher and managing editor, respectively, of the Chronicle, and others. Former Governor W. P. Hobby, president of the Post-Dispatch, read a tribute in verse from Judd Mortimer Lewis, staff poet.

Tracy spent 13 years in Houston editorial service working first on the Chronicle. He is a native of Maine.

IRISH JOINS N. Y. WORLD

Former Rochester Journal and American Man Assistant to Hoover

H. H. Irish has been engaged by N. R. Hoover, circulation director of the New York World and the Evening World in the capacity of general assistant and idea man.

Mr. Irish has been with the Rochester (N. Y.) Journal and American for two and one-half years, with the St. Louis (Mo.) Times, South Bend (Ind.) News-Times and Kalamazoo (Mich.) Gazette.

DURHAM SUN PLANT OPENED

Visitors Watch North Carolina Daily in Full Operation

The formal opening of the modern home of the Durham (N. C.) Sun, afternoon newspaper, at No. 310 and 312 East Main street, took place Thursday evening, May 6. The plant was in full operation, giving the visitors opportunity to see a newspaper in the making.

The building is of steel, concrete and tile construction, fireproof, finished in with cut limestone and cast bronze front. New equipment has been placed in all departments, a compact, high speed Duplex Rotary press being installed.

J. A. Grant is publisher.

AD TIPS

Thomas M. Bowers Advertising Agency, South Wabash avenue, Chicago. Sending orders and contracts on the Republic Paint Varnish Company of Chicago.

Brandt Advertising Company, 431 No Michigan avenue, Chicago. Placing orders newspapers on Curtis Candy Company, Chic (Baby Ruth Candy Bar).

Britt-Schiele Advertising Company, Int national Life Bldg., St. Louis. Planning advertising campaign on Pale Moon, a gr drink, bottled in Fort Dodge, Iowa. Newspap throughout the Central and Southwestern Sta will be used.

Dake-Johanet Company, 1238 So. Hill stre Los Angeles. Sending out copy on the Radi Appliance Company to newspapers in scatte territory.

D'Arcy Advertising Company, Missouri St Life Bldg., St. Louis. Planning an advertisi campaign for Three Minute Cereals Compa Cedar Rapids.

Charles F. Dowd Company, Richardson Bld Toledo. Placing copy in newspapers in sc tered territory on Ed. M. Riddle Company Toledo (lighting fixtures).

John H. Dunham & Co., Tribune Tow Chicago. Placing account of the Art Me Radiator Cover Company, Chicago, manufact ers of radiator covers, bath room tables.

Erwin, Wasey & Co., 844 Rush street, Ch cago. Placing copy and schedules on Chica Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad.

Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company. Pla ning to use newspaper advertising space on g balls which they manufacture. Metropolit papers only will be used.

Charles C. Green Advertising Agency, Est Building, Philadelphia. Has secured account the Sword Burners, Inc., Philadelphia, and t Lehigh & New England Terminal Ware Hou Company, Bethlehem.

Gundlach Advertising Agency, Wrigl Building, Chicago. Placing copy in pape through Middle West on the Wabasha Roll Mills.

Hathaway Advertising Service, Fergus Bldg., Colorado Springs, Colorado. Will pla copy in newspapers in the Middle West Colorado Springs Chamber of Commerce.

Henri, Hurst and McDonald, 58 East Jac son boulevard, Chicago. Placing copy on t Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Company of Buffa N. Y.

H. W. Kastor and Sons, 14 East Jacks boulevard, Chicago. Placing contracts Orange Crush Company.

Kirtland-Engel Company, 646 North Michig avenue, Chicago. Placing copy in a few sc tered newspapers in Middle West on a te campaign for the Mineral Laboratories, In (bath salt). Five thousand line contracts a being used.

Klau-Van Pietersom-Dunlap-Youngreen, 4 Sycamore street, Milwaukee. Now handli accounts of the Moe-Bridges Company, and t Mixermobile Company, Milwaukee.

Lord & Thomas, Chamber of Commer Building, Los Angeles. Placing account of t All-Year Club of Southern California.

Lord & Thomas, 400 North Michigan avenu Chicago. Sending out copy to a list of new papers on Holeproof Hosiery Company of M waukee. Will place account for the Americ Walnut Manufacturers' Association, Chicago, advertise its American Walnut Wood.

Robert M. McMullen Company, 522 5th av nue, New York. Now handling account f H-O Cereal Company, Buffalo, manufacture food products.

George M. Marshall, 5 North La Salle stree Chicago. Placing account of the Modart Co set Company, Saginaw.

Matteson-Fogarty-Jordan, 307 North Mich gan avenue, Chicago. Are handling the adve tising campaign for newspapers being planne for Fitger Company of Duluth, Minn. It reported that they expect to spend in the con ing year about $100,000 in advertising.

Miller Agency Company, 2144 Madison ave nue, Toledo, Ohio. Sending out contracts c Toledo Rex Spray Company of Toledo. The will start May first, and will be used in new papers where they have dealers.

William H. Rankin Company, 435 Nort Michigan avenue, Chicago. Placing copy i Oklahoma newspapers on Kinney Rome Com pany.

MERCHANT & EVANS CO.
PHILADELPHIA
Producers of . .
SPARTAN TYPE METAL
Since 1866
LINO • MONO • STERO
INTERTYPE COMBINATION
Stocks in Principal Cities

OAKLAND-CALIFORNIA
INDUSTRIAL CAPITAL of the WEST

Summary of Industrial Progress

One hundred twenty-two industries located in Oakland's industrial district during 1925. Included in this number are such prominent concerns as Willys-Overland Pacific Company, Glidden Company of California, Julian Oil Corporation, King Folding Boat Company, Laher Auto Spring Company and Morton Salt Company, all large payroll institutions.

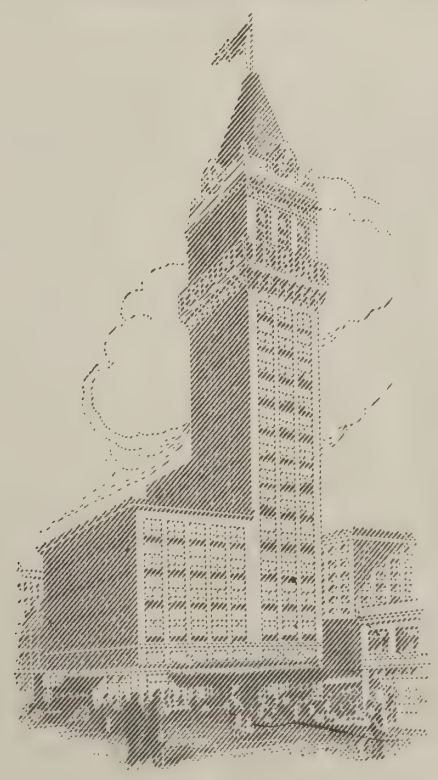
Bank clearings increased 25% during 1925 over the 1924 figures. Clearings for the year 1925 totaled $1,063,291,078, as against $845,144,451 during 1924.

Retail trade for the first 10 months of 1925 increased 8% over the same period in 1924, the greatest increase of any important city in the Twelfth Federal Reserve District. Los Angeles, its nearest rival, showed an increase of 6.6%.

Water services increased from 104,034 to 113,500, an increase of more than 9% for the year 1925 over 1924.

The number of gas meters increased from 74,039 to 78,678, a gain of 6.02%. Electric connections increased from 63,691 to 68,630, an increase of 7.7%.

Telephone connections for the first 10 months of 1925 increased 8.56%, the largest gain of any important Pacific Coast city. This compares with a gain of 5% for Los Angeles; 5.21% for San Francisco; 5.38% for Seattle, and 5.18% for Portland.



The Eastbay Municipal building program, which includes projects under way or in process of completion, totals more than $50,000,000.

Oakland ranks fifth among the leading cities of the United States in point of building activity of 1925 as related to that of 1924. Only three cities in the West, and Boston among Eastern cities, surpassed Oakland's relative increase in building activity of 1925 as compared with that of 1924, as shown by analysis of building permits statistics for 1925.

The OAKLAND TRIBUNE—the foremost newspaper in this great, growing metropolis—meets the demand of every advertiser for the proper medium by which he may reach the 550,000 people in Oakland and trading area.

The average net paid daily and Sunday circulation of The OAKLAND TRIBUNE is more than 75,000—92% City and Suburban circulation, distributed almost wholly by carrier delivery—and 8% Country Circulation.

The OAKLAND TRIBUNE is a charter member of the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

National Representatives

WILLIAMS, LAWRENCE & CRESMER CO.
225 Fifth Avenue, New York City
360 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago

Oakland Tribune

ONE OF THE WEST'S GREAT NEWSPAPERS
The home of Radio Station K L X

HOW LABOR CENSORED AND GAGGED LONDON PRESS

(Continued from page 3)

don newspapers are of small size and tremendous circulation, their production problem centers in the pressroom. The compositors voted Thursday to join the strike. Strike action was voted by only one branch of the National Union of Journalists, the Glasgow branch; the London members were instructed to work in their present capacities and for their present employers. Strike action was repudiated by the Parliamentary Press Gallery branch of this union.

Single-page editions were issued Wednesday morning by the London Times, Daily Mirror, Daily Mail and Daily Express and the government issued with a volunteer staff from the commandeered plant of the Morning Post the ancient official British Gazette in four pages, two of which were blank. The first and fourth pages carried news of the strike, detailed the execution of government plans to combat it and filled up the wide-open spaces with "Zoo Notes," apparently miscellany from the Morning Post bank. Approximately 300,000 copies of the British Gazette were distributed throughout England, a press breakdown preventing further circulation.

Twelve or fifteen provincial newspapers published during the first two days of the strike, two being afternoon papers and the remainder weeklies, according to a dispatch to the New York Sun.

An attempt by the Continental Daily Mail, published in Paris, to print 500,000 copies and rush them to London by airplane Wednesday morning, failed when the French union printers employed in a plant the Mail hoped to use served notice that they would strike if the paper were set or printed there. The Mail's Paris plant, it is stated, has a capacity of only 15,000 copies daily.

Paris editions of the New York Herald and the Chicago Tribune have sent limited editions to London by airplane.

The Edinburgh Scotsman, whose entire force is non-union, appeared without interruption.

In Sheffield, the publishers of the Telegraph promised their workmen who remained on duty that their jobs would be protected even if the strike was successful. The force accepted the promise and the paper is publishing normally.

The Manchester Guardian mailed typewritten news bulletins to all subscribers.

The Nottingham Advertiser is apparently the only newspaper to whom the strike has brought growth. Formerly a weekly, it is now issued daily.

Such are the tangible physical newspaper developments of the strike's opening days. Nothing has yet been written or published about what happens to the mental processes of a people whose daily newspaper ration exceeds 10,000,000 copies when that ration is cut to less than 500,000 copies of dilute, flavorless information.

Rumors fill the city of London, according to the reports reaching the United States. Advertisers are completely cut off from the public contact. The Government's Official Gazette reaches comparatively few of the population in the city and fewer still beyond London. The newspaper single sheets, set by hand in the case of the Express, and by multigraph on other dailies, circulate to the extent of a few thousand copies in London and some of the large provincial cities reached by automobile. The government radio stations broadcast frequent bulletins, subject to the interference of regenerative receiving sets, which, it is reported, have been used to "jam" the government stations by orders of the strike leaders.

Reports that a number of soldiers had been executed for insubordination and mutiny were officially denied by the government radio.

News from provincial cities was especially difficult to obtain, principally because the telegraph wires have been crowded with government messages and communications of the strike leaders with subordinates in other cities. With the suspension of the newspapers the only medium of communication open to the strikers is the telegraph, which is under control of the British Post Office. Both sides to the strike desire that the wires be kept in service and each is reported to fear that the other will shut them down in the stress of the conflict. The only transportation is by private automobile and government vehicles, except for milk and other food necessities which are being moved by trucks under the strikers' agreement not to interfere.

Newspaper stoppage was said to be practically complete in dispatches of May 6. Copies of the British Gazette were selling at $2.50 each. Police entered the plant of the Daily Herald, labor organ, and looked over an edition of the British Worker, strike paper being started by the Trades Union Congress in answer to the government's publication. They allowed it to be distributed.

T. R. Ybarra, New York Times correspondent, in a May 6 dispatch commented on the "uglier temper" of the strikers.

"As I write," his dispatch read, "there is a lively row going on under the windows of the New York Times offices, where the London Times staff is hustling bundles of its second strike-breaking issue into automobiles for distribution.

"The sentence I am writing was interrupted a few minutes ago by the noise of an angry scuffle in the street outside. I reached the window in time to see several bundles of copies of the London Times hurled into the slippery street by the strikers as fast as they were brought out from the presses.

"The assistant foreign editor, Mr. Peterson, objected strenuously and got into a furious fist fight in the middle of the roadway, with three or four strikers sending smashing blows at his face and body. They finally knocked him into the mud, but not before he got home with some savage blows.

"Then the police waded in and automobiles laden with bundles of the London Times dashed away at full speed."

London correspondents of American and other foreign newspapers were deprived of their usual news tip sources when the dailies ceased publication. The Foreign Office was supplanted by the Home Office as the seat of news. Famous correspondents cabled thousands of words to United States newspapers and press associations after a day spent in the streets of the city and at telephones connected with news sources at the great ports and industrial centers. The distinguished foreign correspondent proved himself a great police reporter.

POWERS OPENING N. Y. OFFICE

Former South American U. P. Man to Represent Six Newspapers

J. B. Powers, for the past six years a resident of Buenos Aires and for four years assistant general manager of the Aires, La Nacion and Los Tiempos of United Press in South America, is opening an office at 250 Park Avenue, New York as special representative for six South American newspapers.

J. B. Powers

They are, La Prensa of Buenos Aires; Los Principios of Cordoba, Argentine, La Gazette of Tuvuman, Argentine Editorial Atlantida, Buenos Santiago, Chile; and Jornal do Brazil of Rio de Janeiro.

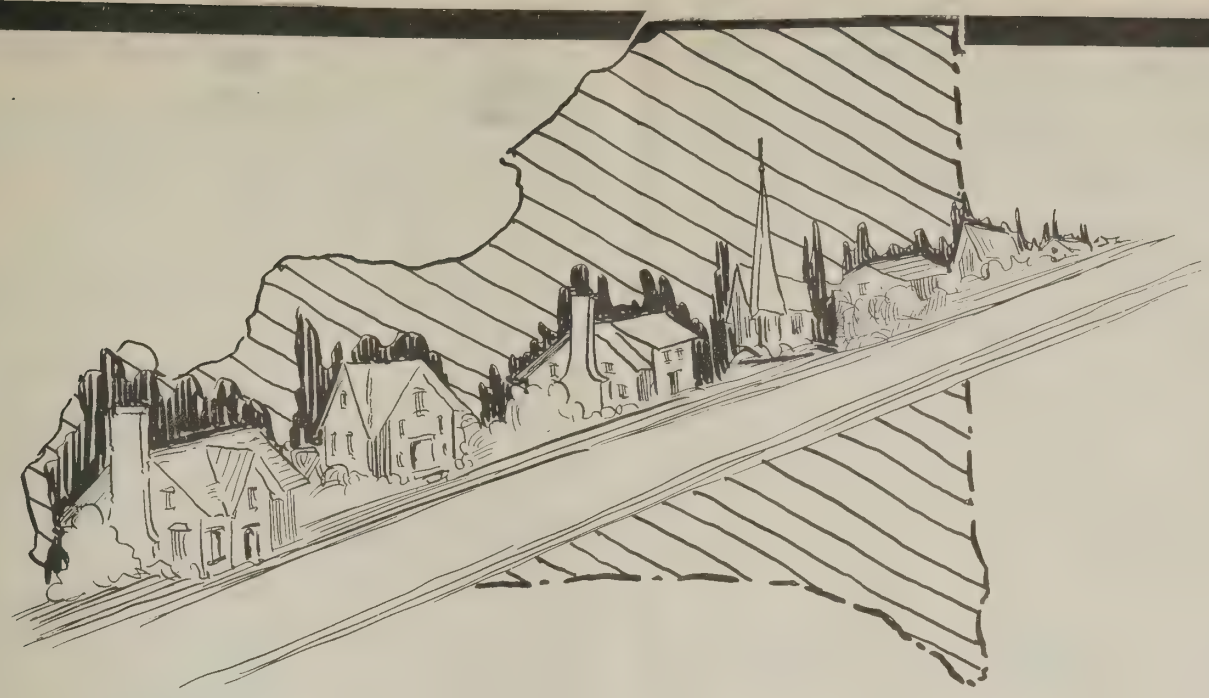
Powers came to New York at the request of Dr. Ezequiel P. Paz, director of La Prensa and Sr. Carlos Davila, director of La Nacion, he stated.

Before going to South America he was connected with various newspapers in this country, among them the Houston Chronicle.

THE supply of our Brochure Reproductions did not meet the demand. We are asked daily for additional copies. ¶ To comply with these requests we now have the second edition on the press and we will gladly send a copy to all desiring one.

Send name and address to



Powers Reproduction Corporation

205 West 39th Street, New York City

Telephone, Penn. 0600

Makers of PRINTING PLATES OF QUALITY

for the Leading Publications and National Advertisers

Start your Campaign where Main street begins

Right at the beginning of Main Street is a lucrative market waiting for the products you make.

New York State is a distinctive market. Its wage earners are better paid, work more steadily than many other States in this country. Its 6000 or more worth-while manufacturing plants produce more products, in value, than any other State.

Start right at the gate-way to the United States. Tell the story of the products you have to sell to these people in the cities, towns and villages. You can reach them through the home papers which influence their buying habits to an enormous extent.

		Circulation	2,500 Lines	10,000 Lines
*Albany Evening News	(E)	30,060	.10	.10
*Albany Knickerbocker Press	(M)	33,635	.11	.11
*Albany Knickerbocker Press	(S)	56,934	.16	.16
Amsterdam Recorder-Democrat	(E)	7,810	.04	.04
††Auburn Citizen	(E)	6,389	.065	.055
Brooklyn Daily Eagle	(E)	73,764	.22	.22
Brooklyn Daily Eagle	(S)	84,997	.22	.22
*Buffalo Star and Enquirer	(E)	30,134	.13	.09
*Buffalo Courier	(M)	58,083	.17	.13
*Buffalo Courier	(S)	104,303	.27	.22
Buffalo Evening News	(E)	138,294	.25	.25
Buffalo Evening Times	(E)	102,562	.21	.21
Buffalo Sunday Times	(S)	108,219	.21	.21
Buffalo Express	(M)	53,254	.14	.12
Buffalo Express	(S)	59,243	.18	.14
††Corning Evening Leader	(E)	9,339	.05	.05
Elmira Star-Gazette Advertiser	(E&M)	33,487	.11	.11
Freeport Daily Review	(E)	7,991	.05	.05
††Geneva Daily Times	(E)	5,040	.04	.04
Gloversville Leader Republican	(E)	7,238	.035	.035
††Ithaca Journal-News	(E)	7,751	.05	.05
*Jamestown Morning Post	(M)	11,636	.04	.035
Middletown Times-Press	(E)	7,127	.04	.04
*Mount Vernon Daily Argus	(E)	9,871	.05	.05
Newburgh Daily News	(E)	12,132	.06	.06
††New Rochelle Standard-Star	(E)	8,598	.04	.04
The Sun, New York	(E)	257,067	.60	.56
*New York Times	(M)	350,406	.80	.784
New York Times	(M)	356,471	.80	.784
New York Times	(S)	610,041	.95	.931
††New York Herald-Tribune	(S)	345,434	.693	.672
††New York World	(M)	287,682	.595	.58
††New York World	(S)	582,929	.595	.58
††New York Evening World	(E)	294,442	.595	.58
Niagara Falls Gazete	(E)	20,629	.06	.06
Port Chester Item	(E)	4,732	.03	.03
*Poughkeepsie Star and Enterprise	(E)	12,429	.06	.06
††Rochester Times-Union	(E)	70,406	.21	.20
††Syracuse Journal	(E)	65,326	.16	.16
Troy Record	(M&E)	22,679	.06	.06
Watertown Times	(E)	17,334	.08	.08

* A. B. C. Statement, Sept. 30, 1925.
† Government Statement, Sept. 30, 1925.
 A. B. C. Statement, March 31, 1926.
††Government Statement, March 31, 1926.

SEVEN LABORATORIES AT OREGON "U" AID IN PUTTING THEORY TO PRACTICE

Instruction Given in News, Industrial Feature, Editorial, and Advertisement Writing—Department Was Organized in 1918

By FRANK L. SNOW
Professor of Industrial Journalism, Oregon Agricultural College

TO make journalistic theory of the greatest possible value, special emphasis is placed by the department of industrial journalism of the Oregon Agriculture College on putting theory into practice. The students actually use their journalism fundamentals in their other college work as well as later in their chosen profession. Seven student publications on which 250 staff members carry out every detail in editing and publishing except typesetting and printing, provide adequate laboratories for gaining practical experience.

Students taking work in the department major in agriculture, commerce, home economics, or in other schools of the college in which they receive thorough technical training. Their work prepares them to enter professional fields in which a knowledge of technical writing is required. Three students, for example, are home economic editors on Portland newspapers. Even those students who elect only a few of the 26 credits offered in industrial journalism find ability to write news helpful in their work as farmers, county agents, engineers, teachers or whatever field they may enter. Of the approximately 350 students who register for courses in industrial journalism each year, 10 or 12 are pledged to the local chapters of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic fraternity, and Theta Sigma Phi, honorary and professional fraternity.

Instruction is given in news writing, industrial feature writing, technical writing, editing, editorial writing, and writing advertisements. Four of these subjects are accompanied by practice courses which give opportunity to put theory into practice.

The students assist in preparation of news and technical material sent out through the department of industrial journalism to newspapers, farm papers, and other periodicals in Oregon and other states. Sigma Delta Chi and Theta Sigma Phi offer silver loving cups to stimulate interest in industrial news and feature writing. Students are encouraged to sell articles written.

Editing, taught by C. J. McIntosh, associate professor of industrial journalism, takes practical rather than theoretical directions with stress on production of small publications. Minimum instruction and maximum training and practice are given in copyreading, proofreading, headline writing and makeup, with grades based largely on the quality of practical work on the student publications. Both the line and the lineless system of locating errors in proof are used, or rather a combination of the two styles. Good English as applied to news, feature, technical and editorial writing is required in copyreading, and precision taught in headline form and substance.

Mechanics of the small publication include cutting the pages from selected stock, selection of type faces and sizes for the different departments, arrangement of all contents including printed matter, photographs reduced to size, headlines and tables, with margin widths and the reason for them, and special treatment of cover. Original rules for computation of amount of printed matter from given copy are taught to the students and used by them in estimating the cost of composition and makeup of their publication. Some of the students have their productions printed as house organs, campus periodicals and other publications, while others stop short of publication with all matter ready for the publisher.

Simplified technic and extended application are the leading characteristics of the work in editorial writing. The classification of editorial writing is adapted to the classifications of English composition as usually taught, to further the policy of co-ordinating industrial journalism writing with instruction and practice in academic English. Practice is had in writing editorials for campus and town periodicals and for special journals.

Writing advertising copy is directed on the theory that it's the way it's written and displayed that makes all the difference between good and poor advertising. The layout is not elevated to the premier position often accorded it in teaching. Study of historical drawn and punched types and modern cut faces is made to enable the students to interpret the potentialities of faces and make use of their force in producing the layout. Practice is had in writing ads for local merchants.

The O. A. C. Daily Barometer, managed by the students with close co-operation with the department of industrial journalism, is one of the seven campus publications which give the students opportunity to put theory of the class room into practice. The staff of 75 or 80 members is organized so that the work on the paper does not interfere with scholastic duties. Competition among groups getting out the paper on each of the five publication days tends towards efficiency. Demand for places on the staff is so keen that 40 or 50 students are "fighting" each term for recognition.

The Beaver, official student body year book, has a staff of 90 members, the work being divided into eight departments, each headed by an associate editor. Other student publications are the Orange Owl—humorous—a Hammer and Coffin production; Oregon Countryman, published monthly by students in agriculture and home economics; Oregon State Technical Record, issued four times a year by students of the school of engineering; the O. A. C. Directory, edited by students in commerce; and the Annual Cruise, a magazine put out by students in forestry.

The department of industrial journalism was organized by the writer in 1918. Other members of the staff are Professor McIntosh and John C. Burtner, instructor. All have had experience in the professional field.

(This is the 17th article in a series obtained by Editor & Publisher, interpreting the work of journalism schools to editors of the nation.)

N. Y. District Reporters to Dine

The New York district reporters will hold their second annual beefsteak dinner on the roof garden of the McAlpin Hotel at 12 o'clock midnight, May 22.

Fairchild Publications Plan Party

The Fairchild Publications, New York, will hold its first annual reception and dance at the Pennsylvania Hotel, Saturday evening, May 22. Coincident with the dinner-dance, a house organ, Fairchild's Jumbled News, will be launched which will contain items from all branches of the Fairchild "family," including the Daily News Record, Women's Wear, Men's Wear, Chicago Apparel Gazette, Women's Wear Magazine, Fairchild's International Magazine, Fairchild's Trade Directories, and Fairchild's Bulletin for London and Paris.

The first issue of "Fairchild's Jumbled News," which is to appear monthly, will come out on May 22. The publication will be edited by Moss Shandel.

Waterloo (Ia.) Tribune Buys Home

The Tribune Publishing Company, publishers of the Waterloo (Ia.) Tribune, this week announced purchase of the St. Mary's parochial school and after 47 years in buildings which have been under lease, the Tribune is soon to have its own home. The former school will be remodeled and converted into a model newspaper plant. Work will start at once and the building is expected to be occupied late in the summer. The building is 60x120 feet, three stories high with a full basement. It is located at Lafayette and East Third streets.

Editor Celebrates 81st Birthday

Sixty-nine children, grand-children and great grand-children gathered in Bellwood, Neb., recently to attend a family reunion in honor of the 81st birthday of W. H. McGaffin, Sr., who is now serving his 41st year as editor of the Bellwood Gazette. Mr. McGaffin is probably the oldest active newspaper editor in Nebraska.

N. D. Daily Starts Motor Delivery

The Jamestown (N. D.) Sun started daily motor delivery to 16 towns and 26 routes in central North Dakota May 1.

EDITORS GO FISHING AS STUDENTS WORK

Kansas Journalism School Furnishing Teams to Publishers Mixing Practice With Theory for Pupils

To give journalism students practical training, many Kansas editors are allowing teams of students to conduct their papers while they either take vacations, or just loaf about the office supervising the "help."

The idea originated with Editor B. P. Weekes of the Marysville Marshall County News, who asked the journalism department of Kansas State Agricultural College, Manhattan, for a team of students to run his paper while he took a vacation. The idea appealed to the school, and since the first trial students have been sent to assist the following editors:

H. E. Peterson, Wathena Times; F. P. Frost, Eskridge Independent; R. G. Hemenway, Minneapolis Messenger; C. M. Manley, Jr., Junction City Republic; F. E. Charles, Belleville Republic County Democrat; and J. B. Lawrence, Council Grove Daily Republican.

Not all of these editors went on vacations. Some of them professed a desire to see what the students could do when confronted with actual problems. Others insisted they could learn something from the students while the students were learning from the paper. One editor, J. B. Lawrence of the Council Grove Republican, had still another idea. He wanted to hire a cub reporter and an advertising man and so asked for a team of students from which he could select the two men he needed.

Whatever the reason for the teams going—all editors reported satisfaction with the arrangements and insist that other teams be sent to them next year, according to Prof. Maynard W. Brown of the journalism school.

Our Customers Write Our Ads

Wooster, Ohio, Daily Record Says—

"Our DUPLEX TUBULAR press is giving us fine satisfaction. We are proud of it."

DUPLEX PRESSES

FOR ALL NEWSPAPERS

Duplex Printing Press Co.
BATTLE CREEK, MICH.

A SINGLE ADVERTISING APPROPRIATION

Will cover the two publications that reach those who control the national advertising of the United States and Great Britain.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER
New York
and
ADVERTISING WORLD
London, Eng.

have entered into an agreement in respect to editorial and advertising representation in their respective fields and thereby afford a single source of information and service for those interested in international marketing and advertising.

Combination Advertising Rates for 12 Insertion Contract

Full Page .....$280.00 per insertion
Half Page ..... 145.00 per insertion
Quarter Page ..... 82.50 per insertion

You are cordially invited to communicate with Editor & Publisher, Suite 1700 Times Building, New York, for further details of circulation, editorial policy and mechanical requirements of Advertising World. This office can be of great assistance to manufacturers who desire information in regard to marketing conditions of Great Britain. Publishers of leading American newspapers will also avail themselves of this opportunity to deliver their messages to the largest advertisers of Great Britain, many of whom are keenly interested in the markets of America.

Editor & Publisher
1700 Times Building
Broadway at 42d St.
New York, N. Y.

Telephones:
Bryant 3052 - 3053 - 3054 - 3055 - 3056
Cable Address: EDPUB, NEW YORK

Advertising World
14 King Street
Covent Garden, W. C. 2
London, England

Telephone: Gerrard 7615
Cable Address:
ECOPUBLISH, RAND, LONDON

VEST VIRGINIA DAILY TO OCCUPY NEW MODERN HOME JUNE 1

ntington Herald-Dispatch to Be Housed in Three-Story Plant—Installation of New Press and Mechanical Equipment Under Way

Architect's drawing of Huntington Herald-Dispatch Building

RESENT indications are that the handsome new home of the Hunting- (W. Va.) Herald-Dispatch will be cupied by that newspaper on or about u: 1.

he building is under roof, the side as are completed, the terra cotta front

Boyd Jarrell

Dave Gideon

ceiving the finishing touches, and only inside work and the installation of machinery, equipment and fixtures ain.

he building is on a lot on Fifth avenue Ninth street, which is at Govern- Square and the central point in the is a brick and concrete structure

Wyatt Smith

W. L. Mengert

stories high with full basement on 60 by 200. The entire lot is oc- pd and the building contains over 30,- 0 square feet of floor space.

Te basement story is on the alley because of the sloping character of the site and this partially under ground story houses all mechanical facilities. This story, of factory construction, houses composing room, stereotype department, and press room, with a spacious mezzanine off the press room floor for mailing and distribution rooms.

Superimposed upon this factory story there rises the three-story administration structure. The first or Fifth avenue ground floor of the administration building contains a general lobby, business office, including bookkeeping department, executive offices of business manager, advertising manager, and classified advertising manager, and large rooms devoted to the activities of the advertising departments.

The Herald-Dispatch recently ordered from the Duplex Printing Press Company an octuple super unit 64-page press. It is now being installed. It will be driven by two 60 horse power drives, Cutler-Hammer, running in parallel for the operation of the entire press when operated as a unit, and each capable of driving a quadruple or sextuple combination.

H. W. Manz

E. A. Bailey

Provision has been made in the press room for two additional Duplex units, bringing the capacity to that of a double sextuple. The Herald-Dispatch is published daily and Sunday morning by the Huntington Herald Company, Inc. The larger interest is held by Dave Gideon, who is president and publisher. Boyd Jarrel is vice-president and editor; W. L. Mengert is business manager; and Wyatt Smith, news editor. The Herald-Dispatch is represented nationally by the Devine-MacQuoid Company, Inc.

Cover this rich territory with the Illinois Daily newspapers

Complete coverage of Illinois is possible through the medium of the daily papers.

Illinois newspapers are ready to give the advertiser all the co-operation possible to reach this wealthy market; a market standing among the first from the standpoint of buying power. Many advertising agencies as well as manufacturers are taking advantage of this service, with profitable results.

Illinois is an ideal state for low cost and efficient distribution of products. Most of the large trunk line railroads terminate in Illinois, 12,030 miles of railroad are ready to deliver your goods to every city, town and hamlet. A most remarkable mileage of rivers further enhance distribution.

Illinois is a rich, profitable territory. The daily papers are ready to aid you in reaching the people.

	Circulation	Rates for 2,500 Lines	Rates for 10,000 Lines
Aurora Beacon-News .....(E)	18,694	.06	.06
†Chicago Herald & Examiner.....(M)	385,276	.55	.55
†Chicago Herald & Examiner.....(S)	1,153,360	1.10	1.10
†Chicago Daily Journal.....(E)	123,771	.26	.24
Evanston News Index.....(E)	6,729	.04	.04
Freeport Journal-Standard .....(E)	9,613	.045	.045
Joliet Herald News.....(E)	19,591	.06	.06
††Mattoon Journal Gazette.....(E)	5,712	.03	.03
Moline Dispatch .....(E)	11,680	.045	.045
Peoria Star .....(S) 22,497..(E)	29,874	.075	.06
Rock Island Argus.....(E)	11,248	.045	.045
Waukegan Daily Sun.....(E)	5,213	.03	.03

*A. B. C. Statement, September 30, 1925
A. B. C. Statement, March 31, 1926
†Government Statement, March 31, 1926
††Government Statement, September 30, 1925

TRADE BOARD HEARS AD TESTIMONY

(Continued from page 7)

discount which influenced Vick's in withdrawing advertising from newspapers, Mr. Chapin said, but also that "we were denied freedom of contract with newspaper publishers."

After a somewhat strenuous debate with Mr. Burr following Mr. Plante's attempt to get the witness to testify as to agency commissions in Canada, the latter said:

"I want to show that the same method of doing business applies in the entire publishing field; that it is the general practice, whether the advertising be done in newspapers or magazines, to pay commission to agents and to refuse to pay them to advertisers who place their business direct."

"We do not contend," Mr. Burr retorted, "that advertisers may not employ agencies and pay them commissions. We are not attacking the agency business, but we do contend that advertisers may do business direct with publishers, if they are able, at a price which may be agreed upon between them. We contend that fixing the agency commission at 15 per cent and penalizing agencies which may charge less, is wrong. You, Mr. Plante, are really saying that a manufacturer may not run his own distribution in any way he sees fit."

Mr. Plante brought out that the Vick Chemical Company was a member of the Association of National Advertisers during a period when John Sullivan was secretary of that organization, and that since Mr. Sullivan had ceased his connection therewith he had been employed by the Vick Company "to do some statistical work."

Mr. Plante then had marked for identification a roster of the A. N. A. and certain letters sent to A. N. A. members in a campaign "to induce publishers to deny commissions to agencies." "I want to show," he said, "that the A. N. A. instituted propaganda to this effect."

When Mr. Finley, for the S. N. P. A., took the witness in hand, he drew the statement that the Vick company used 1,302 daily newspapers in the United States in 1923, 175 in Canada and several hundred weeklies in both countries, receiving the agency commission from nearly all of them. "Their right," volunteered the witness, "is to give the commission to anybody they see fit."

"Name an S. N. P. A. newspaper," Mr. Finley told the witness, "which did not exercise its own free will in giving or withholding commissions."

"But," Mr. Burr objected, "that is the crux of the whole charge made by the Commission. It is not a fair question."

"If he will name one or many," Mr. Finlay rejoined, "I will bring it or them here and ask whether or not this witness is telling the truth."

On the examiner's ruling Mr. Chapin said that the Chattanooga Times did not exercise its own free will, because its representative had told him that he had to cancel the contract with Vick's because the S. N. P. A. was to hold a meeting, that it stood for not granting agency commissions to direct advertisers and he wanted to stand straight with the organization. Mr. Finley closed his cross-examination by getting the witness to admit that Vick's was using practically all the newspapers in the South in localities of importance, supplementing this advertising with "road bulletins" in communities where the large papers had little circulation.

Mr. McKercher, for the A. A. A. A., the last to cross-question the witness, announced that he purposed to show that there was an element of price-fixing in the way that Vick's did business, but the witness denied that the company even attempted to control the retail price of its product. A cardboard container for a Vick's jar and a circular giving directions for the use of the Vapo-Rub, was marked for identification for future reference.

Mr. McKercher got Mr. Chapin to testify that notwithstanding the difficulty about doing business direct with newspapers, the business of the Vick Company showed a steady and satisfactory increase year by year, and that its stock, of which Mr. Chapin's wife owns a block, paid good dividends. He quoted also from a report made by H. S. Richardson, president at the time, stating that the company spent $2,477,000 in advertising during the four years preceding 1923; that $736,000 of it was spent with newspapers, and that the cost was $183,000, or about 25 per cent, whereas the agency commission of 15 per cent would have totalled only about $109,000.

Asked if any agency had refused to handle the Vick account, Mr. Chapin replied that none had, but that many were eager to have it. The Frank Seaman agency, he declared, had told him that it could not care for the business so cheaply as the company did; that the Nelson-Chesman agency had solicited the account but "offered nothing that we could not do for ourselves."

Mark L. Felber, manager of the newspaper department of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Company, was the next witness. He testified that his company spent $2,300,000 for advertising in 1925, of which about $1,000,000 went to newspapers. He said the advertising department of the Firestone company employed from 100 to 125 persons, including 6 copy writers, 2 artists and 4 or 5 lay-out men. Firestone, he said, had no contracts with newspapers, but just sent them copy with insert orders where business is done direct. The Critchfield Agency, of Chicago, he testified, placed the Firestone advertising in metropolitan centers, like New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and some other large cities, but that the company had besides a list of about 3,000 newspapers outside of the list furnished to Critchfield. The agency was used, he testified, because "we felt we could not get the net rate from the newspapers on its list."

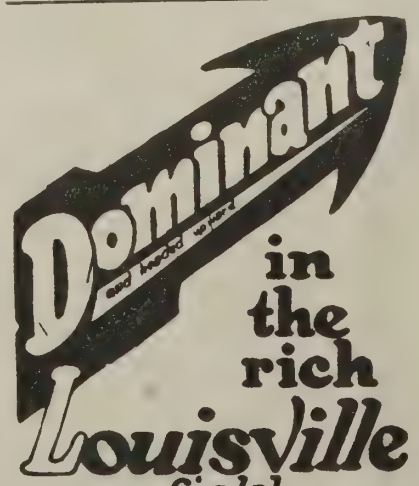
He admitted that in many instances local rates were obtained by having the local dealer place the advertising, the company following with its own advertising about every two weeks. The local rates, he said, varied from 10 per cent to 70 per cent lower than the national rate.

Mr. Felber said the Firestone company used newspapers because newspaper advertising could carry the names of local dealers, go into homes, are read daily, allow the mentions of the merits of the product and enable the announcement of price changes immediately.

Mr. Felber testified that the Firestone company had experienced considerable difficulty with publishers while trying to place advertising without paying agency commissions. His department sent out its first advertising without first arranging for net rates, he said, and received bills at gross rates. He entered into correspondence with publishers, explaining that Firestone prepared the copy, sent the insert orders, mats and stereotypes, checked the advertisement and paid the bills promptly—within from one to three days, he said—and asked the publishers if they did not think that service entitled them to net, or agency, rates. He was not asked to testify as to the replies received, since he did not have them with him. He promised to produce them and take the stand on them as soon as possible.

On the subject of the alleged coercion of publishers by agencies Mr. Felber told of a conversation he had had with the late John Budd, in New York, a newspaper representative, about 1922, during which the latter said "he would be glad to handle our business in all his papers, but felt that agencies were entitled to a commission; and this net rate proposition is a matter which the publishers should settle among themselves in either national or state meetings. He said, 'If I were to give you my entire string of papers I would incur the ill-will of the agencies and lose a lot[business'."

Mr. Felber acknowledged that in stances when he could not get net r the advertising was placed through Critchfield agency. In many local he used only one newspaper instead two or more because he could not net rates in all; that if he paid one lisher the net and another the gross would talk together and the one ma the discount would insist upon having same as his competitor. In many pl he placed advertising through the dealer and so received the local rate, ing with from 150 to 175 newspaper that basis at present.



He said that an increase in busi was always noticed after an adverti campaign began, but "you can not m use the effect of advertising by a stick."

Speaking of the work of his adve ing department, witness said matrices plates were sent by parcel post to c pany branches and by them distrib in the various zones, which was che

IN some cities, the "leading" newspaper may have merely a few hundred more circulation than its competitor. The Press has 40,000 more net paid circulation in Pittsburgh than the other two evening newspapers combined—and 35,000 more net paid circulation in Pittsburgh than the other two Sunday newspapers combined.

THE PITTSBURGH PRESS

A Scripps-Howard Newspaper
Member of the A. B. C.

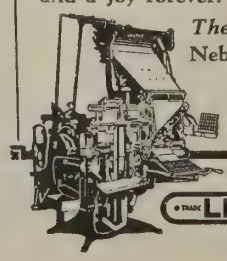
The Courier-Journal
THE LOUISVILLE TIMES
Represented Nationally by
The S. C. BECKWITH Special Agency

From the Linotype Mailbag

MODEL 26

"a wonder in the job department"

"We have been operating a No. 26 Linotype in our newspaper and job shop since April, 1925.



"The writer was never 'sold' on this machine. It was purchased at the behest of our machinist, who had seen the model in operation at Omaha and came home thoroughly enthusiastic over its operation and flexibility.

"After several months of operation, I am now convinced that Model 26 is all the Company and Mr. Scott, our machinist, claim for it. It is giving splendid service at this time, handling all the advertisements in an eight-page country daily, with from 14 to 16 pages on Sunday, and it has never stalled. In addition, it is used for setting straight matter every night. Of course, it is a wonder in the job department."

"We find that the new distributor boxes are giving splendid service. The stops are so infrequent, the operators say, that they are conspicuous by their absence.

"We recommend the machine to country printers. They are likely to find, as we have, that No. 26 is a 'whole print shop in itself,' a trouble-chaser, a thing of beauty and a joy forever."

The Daily News-Press
Nebraska City, Nebr.

in Detroit—

Free Press city circulation reaches 31,000 more than the total number of families owning their own homes.

THE DETROIT "FREE PRESS"

"Starts the day in Detroit"

THE WELFARE COMMITTE
of the
INTERNATIONAL CIRCULATION MANAGER ASSOCIATION

Can supply you with com petent circulation men capacity and ability capab to take entire charge of yo department or to fill impo tant posts in the departmen

Address the Secretar Treasurer please, Mr. Cla ence Eyster, care St Building, Peoria, Ill.

Do you know what pe centage of errors ar made in your Composing Room?

We suggest you go there and t fifty original proofs. Count up number of lines and the number errors. Get the percentage of err to lines.

It takes twice as long to correct error as it does to make it, so multi this percentage by three.

Take this resultant percentage and ap it to your total Composing Room p roll for the year. See how much mo errors are costing you.

When you find out what they c you write and tell us the amou We will show you a source profit you have never heard o

Matrix Contrast Corp
33 W. 42d St., New York C n the agencies could perform the same vice.

I think," he said, "we save about $400 each advertisement on postage alone."
believed the Firestone force of 700 or salesmen, assisted by dealers and nch managers, could give a better sur-of business conditions than an agency vey.
On cross-examination Mr. Felber dered that any consumer had a right to Firestone's for dealer or branch dis-nts, but didn't think they would be en. Dealers, however, might sell at price they chose.
Lincoln B. Palmer, manager of the A.
P. A. occupied the witness chair the re afternoon session. He led Mr.
r a merry dance, interpreting his stions broadly and entering into frank exhaustive details on them. Out-ken and ready, he was prepared with necessary documents pertaining to his imony, or readily volunteered to pro-e them if and whenever they were ted.
Mr. Palmer told the Commission that ry applicant agency for recognition by
A. N. P. A. was thoroughly investi-ed by every means available, through er publishers' associations and by any every legitimate channel, and were nted recognition only when ability, ice and financial responsibility had n established. He admitted, willingly, the information thus gathered was ilable to members or non-members, to er similar organizations and to any n or person entitled to it. He could ll only one agency applicant which refused recognition on account of not g a bona fide agency, but a house ncy.
He told the Commission that many ncies were doing business on a margin profit so small that if they did not e advantage of the cash discounts aled in addition to the agency commisn their ability to do good business uld be greatly impaired.
gainst all the efforts of Mr. Burr,
Palmer insisted that newspapers paid ncy commissions for the development new business and for services rened, that advertising would cost much e than it does today if the relations ween agencies and newspapers were minated.
The Association of National Adver-rs," he declared, "tried to break them and I have always believed that if effort had succeeded the members of organization would have committed ncial suicide because advertising rates ld then have to be made so high that could not afford to use it so freely ey do now, which would injure their ness perhaps irreparably."
They adopted a program calculated wipe out the agency," Mr. Palmer inued, "check up every week the ser-rendered and then pay on the value hat week's service. They wanted to ke the agencies merely clerks."
here was a long wrangle when Mr.
aner insisted that newspapers did not the advertiser a commodity, not even he space, but instead rendered a ser-
c

It is understood that the Commission must prove that newspapers do sell a commodity to the advertiser or its case will fall.

Questioned by Mr. Burr, Mr. Palmer said that an advertising agency, when it received payment from the advertiser, deducted the commission in full and remitted the balance to the publisher of the newspaper or other medium in which the advertisement was placed; that no money passed from the advertiser to the publisher or from the publisher to the advertiser.

Investigation into the provinces of newspaper representatives has been very searching. Asked what a newspaper representative is, the witness said: "They are advertising solicitors for newspapers at points distant from the places of publication. Most major newspapers have them. Small newspapers use the A. P. A."

In response to questioning by Mr. Burr in the matter of agency commissions, Mr. Palmer said:

"I believe the agency commission system is the cheapest and the best method of selling advertising for publications."

He believed that a commission of 17½ per cent, instead of the usual 15 per cent would stimulate agencies to greater efforts to develop business and to create new advertisers.

"My belief," he said, "is that the margin of agency profit should be sufficient to pay overhead and allow for the development of further advertising.

"Agencies have told me that on the present commission system they have been clearing but 1 per cent profit on the gross amounts they have received from advertisers. There are some cases where advertising agencies have cleared 2 per cent or 3 per cent per annum; 5 per cent would be unusual. A reduction from 15 per cent would result in reducing the volume of advertising and necessitate an increase in card rates by publishers."

To show that there was no connection between the A. N. P. A. and the A. A. A. A. in the matter of agencies, Mr. Palmer testified that the A. N. P. A. had on occasion and for cause dropped from its list of recognized agencies certain members of the A. A. A. A.

Mr. Burr put in evidence a page of EDITOR & PUBLISHER from the March 13, 1926 issue entitled "227 National Advertisers spent $70,000,000 in newspapers in 1925," after first calling William A. Thomson, Director of the Bureau of Advertising of the A. N. P. A., to identify it, since it was a report of an interview with him.

There were the objections by opposing counsel which have always followed any attempt on the part of Mr. Burr to introduce documentary evidence or exhibits. This, as well as a bulletin of the A. A. A. A. issued by the Newspaper Committee in November, 1920, was admitted over their objections.

Harry J. Prudden, of Prudden, King & Prudden, special representatives, testified that large papers paid his concern 10 per cent commission and smaller papers paid 15 per cent. He believed that his company was getting the maximum commissions. He said that special representatives get the commission on all business coming from the districts which they cover, whether they solicit the advertising or not, and even if the advertisers deal with the newspapers direct. He identified a report made by the Six Point League to the A. A. A. A. on how his company handles its list.

Frank J. Hermes, secretary-treasurer of the Blackman Company, described in detail the work that an agency does. He said that all the clients of the Blackman Company guarantee to pay a certain minimum amount a year for agency service, and that if the 15 per cent commission from the newspapers does not amount to that guarantee, the advertiser makes up the difference. If commissions amount to more than the guaranteed sum, the agency kept the surplus. He believes the "fee clinches them." It was considered somewhat important, in view of the fact that the commission is contending that advertising is a commodity, that Mr. Hermes said in response to a question by Mr. Burr that an advertising agency "buys a piece of paper for an advertiser."

Floyd Y. Keeler, formerly with Frank Seaman, Inc., but for the last few years a member of a stock brokerage house, defined an advertising agent as "a special pleader before the court of public opinion who places the advertiser's message before the general public." Mr. Keeler also said that an advertising agency served the publisher by being his representative "in many rows," and by making it possible for him to obtain newspaper position naturally on account of size of space used without paying a special rate. An agency also acts as the agent of the publisher, Mr. Keeler said, when he collects for the publisher's account payment for space used. However, he said, "the man who holds the balance of power is the man who pays the bills, and that is the publisher." He insisted that primarily an advertising agent is "A merchant of ideas, and as such represents the advertiser in his campaigns."

As other witnesses have done, Mr. Keeler described the preliminary work of surveying for the advertiser and preparing copy, costly but unavoidable.

Greater Merchandising Service offered, than any other Milwaukee paper.

THE MILWAUKEE LEADER

"Unawed by influence and Unbribed by Gain"

Advertising Representatives

FRALICK & BATES

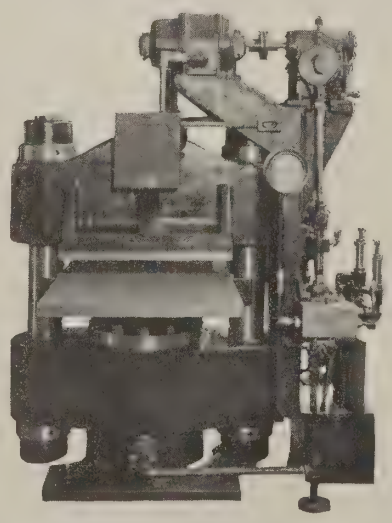
Chicago, New York, Atlanta, Los Angeles

first! in OHIO

5,345,751 Lines

Dispatch advertising record for January, February and March, 1926, exceeding other Columbus newspapers combined by 709,855 lines. In 1925 the Dispatch published 21,544,376 lines exceeding second largest Ohio newspaper by 2,648,383 lines.

NET PAID CIRCULATION



CITY 55,812
SUBURBAN 26,973
COUNTRY 23,666

Total Daily Circulation.....106,451

Columbus Dispatch

OHIO'S GREATEST HOME DAILY

BIROTADRUCK

HYDRAULIC MATRICE PRESS

Direct pressure under complete control. Fast, positive, non-vibrating, hydraulic operation.

The New York Times uses Birotadruck Hydraulic Matrice Moulding Presses exclusively.

For full information and sample pages address

AMERICAN BIROTADRUCK CO., Inc.
120 West 42nd Street
New York

America's most select Circulation
The Palm Beach Times
FRANK P. FILDES PUBLISHER

CLINE SYSTEM

Cline-Westinghouse Double Motor-Drive with full automatic push button control is used by

Springfield Sun
Springfield, Ohio

Ask them about it.

CLINE ELECTRIC MFG. CO.
Chicago: 111 West Washington Street
New York: 47 West 34th Street
San Francisco: First National Bank Building

3 TIMES THE NATIONAL ADVERTISING LINAGE of the SECOND PAPER IN AKRON, OHIO, OR

2,228,232

Lines is the 1925 Record of the

Akron Beacon Journal

Six-Day Evening Newspaper
Figures of Other Paper Include Sunday Edition.

THE BEACON JOURNAL WAS 14TH IN TOTAL LINAGE OF EVENING NEWSPAPERS IN 1925

FOLLOW THE CHOICE OF THE OTHERS

Rock-bottom is a good place to build from. That's where we start to build classified.

THE BASIL L. SMITH SYSTEM, Inc.
International Classified Advertising Counsellors
Packard Building Philadelphia

"SALOME SUN" EDITOR DIES IN LOS ANGELES

"Dick Wick" Hall, Noted Humorist, Published Wickenburg (Ariz.) News-Herald in His Youth—Syndicated to Newspapers

Dick Wick Hall, widely known humorist, died at Los Angeles, April 28, after several weeks illness.

Hall became famous through the publication in the Saturday Evening Post of much of his work, which had originally appeared in his handbill, the Salome Sun, printed in Salome, Ariz., a settlement of a few houses in the desert, 60 miles from a railroad. The Salome Sun was distributed to passing motorists, one of whom, a trade journal editor, recognized Hall's ability, and used some of his writings. Then Tom Masson of the "Short Turns and Encores" department of the Saturday Evening Post prevailed upon Hall to write for that column. Later his work appeared in other national magazines, and was also syndicated to many daily newspapers.

While Hall's Salome (Ariz.) Sun could hardly be considered an orthodox newspaper—it was published in the interests of his gasoline station—he had had previous publishing experience. In 1901, at the age of 23, he and his brother went to Wickenburg, north of Phoenix and established the News-Herald. It was here that he got his name "Dick Wick," his given name being De Forest.

While editor of the News-Herald he attracted wide interest as a humorist. The two brothers having been in at a poker game, where luck was against them, were confronted with the task of getting out the weekly paper, with no money to lif the paper stock still in the freight house. Support of the paper had not been all that might be desired, and though they did get out that edition, Hall sat down and wrote an editorial ending with:

Lives of great men oft remind us
We poor editors don't stand a chance.
The more we work we find behind us
Bigger patches on our pants,
So send in your mite, however small,
Or when the snows of winter strike us.
You'll find Dick Wick with no pants at all.

A two-and-one half column editorial appeared the following week in the Chicago Inter-Ocean which gave national recognition to Hall's editorial. The New York Sun gave it three columns.

In 1904 the brothers sold out the News-Herald and went to Salome, which they opened up and named. Much of the time was spent in prospecting and it was not until 1917 that the Salome Sun made its first appearance.

JOSEPH R. DUNLOP

Stormy Petrel of Old Chicago Journalism Dies at 82

Joseph R. Dunlop, former Chicago newspaper owner and editor, died there last week at the age of 82. He had been retired from active newspaper work for 16 years.

Dunlop was born in County Tyrone, Ireland, and was brought to Canada by his parents as an infant. After learning the printing trade in Canadian newspaper offices, he came to Chicago and attracted the attention of Wilbur F. Storey, publisher of the old Chicago Times.

After Mr. Storey's death, Dunlop became managing editor of the Times under succeeding managements and was also connected with the old Daily Mail and the Inter Ocean.

His connection with the Chicago Dispatch, which he founded and conducted for several years, was what brought him most of his fame. As owner and editor of this paper, Dunlop made vigorous attacks on many well-known Chicagoans and he was almost constantly engaged in litigation.

In 1896, when William Jennings Bryan ran for President on the free silver platform, Dunlop's paper was the only one to support him, a policy which for a time brought about an enormous increase in circulation and a change in the newspaper's name to that of the Democrat.

He later started the Saturday Evening Dispatch, which he conducted for 10 years.

JOHN K. MUMFORD DIES IN SINGAPORE

Former N. Y. Journal Spanish-American War Correspondent Was Gathering Material for Book—Recently Wrote for Herald Tribune

John Kimberly Mumford, 62, widely known newspaperman and magazine writer, contributor recently of a series of biographical sketches to the Sunday edition of the New York Herald Tribune and a leading war correspondent during the Spanish-American War, died April 17 of pneumonia in Singapore, British East India, while collecting material in the Far East for a book on rubber.

Mr. Mumford had rounded out an active life of journalistic effort in many fields. Born in Watkins, N. Y., the son of Prosper D. and Harriet Tanner Mumford, on Nov. 15, 1863, he prepared for a career in writing during his youth. On leaving Princeton University in 1885 he joined the staff of the New York World and the following year became associated with the New York Journal.

That newspaper sent him in 1898 to Cuba as war correspondent, and he headed its force of writers covering that important assignment. At the conclusion of the war he resigned to travel in the Orient, writing special articles for Harper's Weekly. While there he collected material for a book, published by Scribner's on Oriental rugs.

Publication of this book brought him rank as an authority on rugs, and he wrote many articles for leading magazines. He prepared catalogues for rug collections, among them the Marquand and the Yerkes collections. He closed his studio in East Forty-first street at the outbreak of the World War to work in Washington.

There Mr. Mumford helped edit The Red Cross Magazine and directed publicity work for the American Red Cross. At the conclusion of the war he resumed the writing of special articles, and for several years contributed a weekly biographical sketch on finance, industrial and professional leaders of New York City to the Herald Tribune.

Funeral services and burial were held in Singapore in accordance with instructions cabled by his family.

Daboll, Agency Official, Dead

Morgan W. Daboll, 58, treasurer and director of Horatio Camp's Advertising Agency, New York, died in New York, May 2. Mr. Daboll was born in Brooklyn and educated there. As a young man he entered the employ of Holt & Co., flour exporters, with whom he remained 20 years. Subsequently he became associated with the Camp agency.

creating Impression!

nearly half the 2013 national advertisers using the Cleveland Plain Dealer in 1925 used it exclusively.

The Plain Dealer
ONE Medium—ONE Cost ALONE Will sell it

J. B. Woodward 110 E. 42d St. New York
Woodward & Kelly 360 N. Mich. Ave. Chicago

CHARLES F. PAUL

Editor of Toronto Saturday Night Dies at 60—Born in U. S.

Charles F. Paul, one of the best-known newspapermen in Canada and since 1909 editor of Toronto Saturday Night, died suddenly on April 30, aged 60.

He was born at Saratoga, N. Y., the son of a journalist of that city, under whom he learned the newspaper business on the Saratogan. Going to Hazelton, Penn. in 1887 he established and ran for a few years a paper of his own. He then worked for two years as a financial reporter in New York and in 1896 joined the staff of the Montreal Star, of which he became city editor in 1906. He served during the Spanish-American war.

Coming to Toronto in 1909 he soon developed Toronto Saturday Night into a strong publication, devoting special attention to its departments devoted to financial news. It became the recognized enemy of fake promoters and did much to raise the standard of financial dealing in Canada.

Obituary

J. E. ESTLE, who edited the Crookston (Neb.) Enterprise from his bed for four years, is dead at his home in Crookston. He had been stricken with tuberculosis and when the doctor ordered him to bed he continued to direct its publication.

CHARLES S. FULLERTON, 72, founder of the Storm Lake (Ia.) Sentinel and later with the Sioux City Journal, died in Chicago recently.

JACOB W. HIPP, 70, founder of the DeSmet (S. D.) News, the first paper in Kingsbury county, is dead at Bellingham, Wash.

ARCHIBALD P. RAMAGE, 56, treasurer and general manager of the Mississquoi Pulp and Paper Company, of Sheldon, Vt., died at his home in Northampton, Mass., last week after a short illness. Mr. Ramage was the organizer of the Hampton Paper Company at Holyoke, Mass., in 1911. He has spent 36 years in the paper making industry.

THOMAS A. WATERS, who has been editor of the Chillicothe (O.) Advertiser, died this week after an illness of several weeks. He had served as telegraph editor of the Sandusky Register and managing editor of the Galion Leader, and during the war represented a number of papers at Camp Sherman, Chillicothe.

ALEXANDER P. MURGOTTEN, dean of California newspaper men, died in his San Jose home April 28 at the age of 80. At time of his death he was editor and publisher of the San Jose Pioneer.

HORACE D. GRUBE, 52, for nearly 30 years connected with the Associated Press as telegrapher in the offices of the Lancaster (Pa.) Intelligencer and New Era, died in St. Joseph Hospital, Lancaster, April 29.

THEODORE A. FOWLER, 83, veteran Texas printer, died in a Waco sanitarium after several weeks' illness. Fowler was foreman of the Galveston News job printing department in the early days and was a pioneer on the Houston Post. He was a 32d degree Mason, a Confederate veteran and a member of the Houston Typographical Union.

SHAPE IDEALS THROUGH YOUR CHURCH PAGE

Learn how at the Philadelphia Convention

To sell churches on the use of advertising, you, as a representative of their business interests, should be able to tell them what to advertise and how to do it most effectively.

Advertising employed solely to fill pews and collection plates will not do either permanently.

"Church Advertising," says the Classified Manager of the Oakland Tribune, "should suggest thought, form ideals, and guide conduct for hundreds who may never enter the church of its origin, but who become associate members of that church through the bond of the press."

You are invited to participate in the church advertising sessions at Philadelphia. They will be held on June 22nd and 23rd, as a part of the international convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs.

Church Advertising Department
ASSOCIATED ADVERTISING CLUBS,
383 Madison Avenue
New York, N. Y.

INLAND PRESS MEETING IN CHICAGO MAY 18

Louis Wiley to Discuss Waste in Business Offices—Other Speakers Named—Round Table Topics Announced

The Inland Daily Press Association is to meet at the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, Tuesday and Wednesday, May 18 and 19.

After committee reports, the following revised program is planned:

Press Congress of the World—S. G. Goldthwaite, Boone (Ia.) News-Republican, and W. J. Smith, Waukegan (Ill.) Sun; Newspaper Features—William H. Johnson, president, Editors' Feature Service; The Value of High School Pupils in Vacation Time—W. A. Partridge, superintendent of schools, Lyons, Ia.; Advertising Rates—J. M. Stephenson, South Bend (Ind.) News-Times; Newspapers That Get the Business—Marvin Creager, managing editor, Milwaukee Journal; Public Utility Advertising and Publicity—John B. Long, manager of the Northwestern Bell Telephone Company publicity bureau, Omaha; The Value of the Sports Department to the Business Office—Edward W. Cochrane, sports editor, Kansas City Journal-Post; Waste in Newspaper Offices—Louis Wiley, business manager, New York Times.

Subjects for round-table discussions are: What answer do you give to advertisers asking for agent's commission? What did you do with request from Quaker Macaroni to run a line under each grocer ad on making a space contract to begin early in May? Show contract with one Inland paper to run six free; Twenty cents a week subscription by carriers—what do you think of it? The comic strip, the sex strip, the tabloid, illustrated—what of the future?

Wells Succeeds Taylor in Buffalo

John D. Wells, former managing editor of the Buffalo Times, has succeeded David S. Taylor as managing editor of the Buffalo Courier; Mr. Taylor resigning after completing 25 years of service with the newspaper. Mr. Wells is the author of a column, "Grave to Gay," and of a number of volumes of poems. W. N. Wilkinson, who had been city editor of the Times, becomes its managing editor. He formerly was in the newspaper business in Toronto.

LIBEL LURKS IN MAIL OF STATE EDITOR

(Continued from page 11)

seeking $10,000 damages each. So far only the mayor's case has come to trial. He has collected $750.

Mr. Dapping wrote the following for EDITOR & PUBLISHER:

The telephone is a wonderful convenience, and a great time saver in the newspaper office—but there should be an experienced person at the sending end as well as at the receiving end. At the latter terminus, moreover, the most careful checkup of information should be made, and ten minutes cross-examination of the source of information for an item that can be transmitted in one minute may often save embarrassments. For instance, the bell rings.

"City room" says the editor.

A woman's voice stiffly commands: "A rippawtah, please."

The reporter is connected, and the voice continues: "I have a few items for your personal column," and the reporter transcribes these items:

"Mrs. John Smith is spending the day in Syracuse."

"Mr. Gaylord Lothario drove his new Packard to Syracuse today."

Harmless items in appearance, but inquiry must be made as to identity of the informer.

"Oh, why is that necessary?" peevishly inquires the correspondent. Refusal to give further information results in full investigations which shows that Mrs. Smith is reported by gossips to be "running around Syracuse" with Gay Lothario, while her husband blindly struggles on to support her in the style she claims to have been accustomed to. The items may be true. But the informer is a gossip. If they are not true their juxtaposition in the "Personals" column may cause a storm. The gossipy lady thought to use the newspaper to inform an obtuse husband of an impending scandal in his household.

Here is another "comeback" from the telephone item. The managing editor is called up on the long distance from a remote rural town. An indignant man declares: "You people got me in very wrong yesterday in that item you had that was indicted for driving a motor car and saying I was intoxicated. I am prominent in our church affairs, never drink and the item is all wrong. Please correct it at once."

The editor replies: "Well, that is a reasonable demand; of course we'll correct it if we were wrong. What is your name, please?"

"Harold T. Jones of the town of Sterling."

"Thank you, I'll look it up right away."

And here is the story: The court reporter came in with a list of indictments handed up in court when he had to leave for his office. The court clerk promised to call him up and give him additional indictments in time for the afternoon's paper. So in the heat of going to press the clerk calls the reporter who tries to hold a telephone receiver with one hand, to write with another, and to use one of his elbows to keep his sheet of copy paper from crawling over the desk as he scribbles the additional indictments.

He hangs up the receiver to type the story out of the traditional reporter's scrawl, and sure enough, the item reads that "Harold T. Jones of the town of Sterling was indicted for violation of the motor vehicle law, etc."

Then we ask the clerk about it. He says he read the name from the indictment held in hand right before the telephone, and as HE read it it was "Howard J. Jones"; not "Harold T. Jones" as we printed it.

Now the reporter will not contradict his good friend, the clerk, and the latter was probably right. Scribble out the names of Howard J. and Harold T. on a sheet of elusive copy paper and see how much alike they look. It turned out that Howard was the real offender, and he is a brother of Harold, but his cityfied ways led him into indiscretions that resulted in the indictment. So we promptly corrected the item, and Harold soon called us up again to express his thanks for our correction.

"Never again will I take an indictment over the telephone!" swears the reporter, holding up his right hand.

A costly press menace is the chain libel suit. Carelessness on one newspaper spreads libel expense to a dozen or more newspapers in as many different cities. While believing that the rights of individuals should be protected, the newspapers of New York state likewise considered there is a limit to the damage that can be done to a person by a libellous publication, no matter how widely it is disseminated. Two important amendments to New York state law have been passed through the efforts of F. H. Keefe, publisher of the Newburgh (N. Y.) News and chairman of a joint legislative committee representing all New York publishers' associations, and a third amendment for the protection of newspapers against collection of excessive libel damages has been drafted. What these amendments are will be told in the ninth article of this libel series to appear in EDITOR & PUBLISHER next week under the title: "Cash Saving in Chain Libel Defense."

BUILDINGS
PLANT LAYOUTS
PRODUCTION
OPERATION

An organization specializing solely in newspaper building design, manufacturing and production problems.

S. P. WESTON

Newspaper Buildings
Plant Layouts
Production, Operation

120 West 42nd Street New York

Still Gaining!

The net paid average daily circulation for THE BALTIMORE NEWS for April was 124,636—the highest under its present management.

The net paid average for the American was 57,503.

You need these papers to cover Baltimore, they reach more than half the City.

Sold separately or in combination.

THE BALTIMORE NEWS
and
Baltimore American

ANNOUNCEMENT

To National Advertisers and Advertising Agencies

The National Advertising Departments
of
New York Evening Journal
Baltimore Evening News
Baltimore American
Washington Evening Times
Washington Herald
Atlanta Evening Georgian
Atlanta Sunday American are combined with offices in New York—Chicago—Detroit

New York Office:
W. G. HOBSON, Eastern Manager
2 Columbus Circle
Telephone: Circle 5400

Chicago Office: F. E. CRAWFORD, Western Manager, 913 Hearst Bldg.
Detroit Office: FRANKLIN PAYNE, Representative, 1351 Book Bldg.

All under direction of:
JAMES C. DAYTON, Publisher
NEW YORK EVENING JOURNAL

For the First Three Months of 1926
THE TAMPA MORNING TRIBUNE

printed 7,355,276 lines of Advertising, and thus moved up from twelfth to SIXTH place among the newspapers of the United States.

The only newspapers printing a greater volume of advertising during that period than The Tribune were the Miami Herald, the St. Petersburg Times, the Detroit News, the Chicago Tribune and the New York Times.

The Tribune covers the rich South Florida territory of 24 counties and 190 cities and towns, with a population of 713,943.

That's Why Its Advertising Volume Grows

The S. C. Beckwith Special Agency,
National Representatives.

NEW YORK STATE
Westchester County's
Fastest Growing Cities
Mount Vernon and
New Rochelle and
The Vicinity Towns
Are Covered Completely by
THE DAILY ARGUS
of
Mount Vernon
THE STANDARD STAR
of
New Rochelle
Both Members of A. B. C.
Westchester Newspapers, Inc.
Franklin A. Merriam, Pres.
Mount Vernon—New Rochelle

"No. 705"
MAILING MACHINE PASTE

Made especially for the Wing-Horton and Dick Mailing Machines.

Ready for instant use. Absolutely free from lumps. Smooth, easy, uniform flow. Feeds right.

Does not gum up the rollers, rust the fountain nor corrode the machine.

Never fails. Speeds up the mail. No delays because of clogged machine. Made to give dependable service—and does it.

Works equally well on newsprint or enameled paper. Used by many of the best known newspapers and magazines. Grips instantly and holds the label where it is put. No more lost copies due to address slips coming off.

No operator has ever been found who could work a mailing machine too fast for "No. 705."

57-gallon bbls. . . . 35c gal.
30-gallon bbls. . . . 45c "
10-gallon kegs . . . 55c "
5-gallon kits . . . . 60c "
2-gallon kits . . . . 70c "
1-gallon tins (single) . . . . 80c "
1-gallon tins Dozen . . . $9.00 "
f. o. b. Columbus, Ohio

And, by all means—use "QUICK STICK" paste powder for bundle wrapping. And—

"COPASCO" Editorial paste (Semi-liquid) in the office.

Manufactured by
The Commercial Paste Company
COLUMBUS, OHIO

Our Own World of Letters

By JAMES MELVIN LEE

NOBLE T. PRAIGG has done another good piece of editing in "The Advertising Year Book for 1925" (Doubleday Page & Co.) This annual is now acknowledged by all advertising men to be the official Baedeker of the business, so accurately does it trace trends and tendencies. The present volume contains something like one hundred and fifty articles and takes up about 25 special problems in the advertising field. It may be correctly described as the review of reviews in advertising. The authors listed in the volume constitute almost a "Who's Who in Advertising."

The volume for 1925 opens with a discussion of the world influence of advertising. Other chapters discuss advertising as a marketing factor, specialties as symbols of good-will, results from newspaper advertising, community benefits of advertising, selling the church through print, the agricultural press as an advertising channel, service of advertising, advertising public utilities, the feminine influence in advertising, the organization side of advertising, etc.

A feature that deserves special mention is the resumé of chapters printed not at the end but at the opening of each chapter. Such an editorial epitome is a great help to the reader.

The advertising world at large owes a vote of thanks to Mr. Praigg for the conscientious way he has done his work. It has been no easy task to decide just what should be printed from the immense mass of valuable material available for publication. The work must have been a labor of love for the volume sells at the low price of $2.

* * *

ERNEST ELMO CALKINS covers the story, "The Truth About Advertising," in the Atlantic Monthly for May. Currency for the slogan, "It pays to advertise," is given to George M. Cohan who put on the boards a play by that name.

Mr. Calkins, who, by the way, was awarded the 1925 gold medal for "distinguished personal service in advertising" in the annual Harvard Advertising Awards founded by Edward W. Bok, frankly admits that advertising pays the copywriter, the agency, the manufacturer, etc. He then discusses the crucial question, "Does it pay the public?" In answering that question other questions are raised. Are the people as a whole better off for advertising? Is advertising a benefit to mankind? Who pays for the advertising? Is the cost of advertising added to the cost of the goods.

Copy by Calkins is always good. He knows how to put in human interest. For example, he tells how Gilbert Chesterton hearing the slogan, "truth in advertising," went through a copy of Punch in the character of Diogenes searching for an honest advertisement, and found it not. He relates how Gilbert Seldes after examining the advertisements of the Saturday Evening Post reported "the literary style of the advertisements as lacking in a sweet reasonableness." In fact, he mentions a number of surveys of advertising, including that of the Federal Trade Commission and that of the Congressional committee which was able to determine that an advertiser who had left a liberal amount of white space in his advertisement must be trying to evade his excess profits tax.

A very fine tribute is paid to Edward W. Bok for the fight which he put up when editing the Ladies' Home Journal against fraudulent patent medicine advertising. In this movement Mr. Bok was supported, according to Mr. Calkins, by every real advertising man.

Mr. Calkins frankly admits:

> There is still much of such worthless advertising,—patent medicines, cures of all kinds, physical and mental, memory courses, will-power developers, beauty enhancers, all that "you too" stuff,—but the advertising man is not to blame, and the amount of it is negligible besides the body of legitimate advertising. Few reputable mediums are open to it. No advertising agent of standing will accept it. And the forces which are slowly closing in and eliminating it are set in motion by advertising men.

For those who solicit advertising whether for a daily newspaper or for some other medium the following paragraph has a special interest:

> A familiar paradox is the man who tells you with much earnestness that he never reads advertising and does not believe in it. And as he sits there he is dressed from head to foot in advertised goods. His office is equipped and his home is furnished with advertised goods. How did they get there? Because they were the things most accessible, the ones for sale in the stores where he bought, the ones the salesmen showed him, and the ones that most exactly met his needs. It was not necessary for him to read the advertising. The advertising he did not read distributed the goods, brought them within his reach, geographically and financially, and keeps them there for his benefit—better things than he could buy for the same money, but for the tremendous savings that quantity production brings about. And most of them would not exist, to say nothing of being distributed, if there had not been advertising.

Indeed every advertising solicitor ought to study this article for suggestions useful in meeting arguments that daily present themselves in office routine. Its statements of fact cannot be questioned on the ground of accuracy and its deductions from these statements cannot be disputed on logical grounds. Mr. Calkins not only writes with charm but also with logical precision.

* * *

WILLIAM LYON PHELPS in his department, "As I Like It," in Scribner's Magazine for May reprints two striking headlines. One was put over a story about a workman who had been buried in a cave-in:

TON OF SOIL FALLS ON SON OF TOIL

and the other describes a man by the name of Ivory who was on trial in an English court; the evidence told against him and the headline in the newspaper was:

IVORY'S HOPES SINK

Both of these headlines come from Springfield, Mass., newspapers. The first appeared in the Springfield Union and was written by Walter A. Dyer who later became editor of Country Life in America: the second was printed in the Springfield Republican and was composed by William Seaver Woods who now edits The Literary Digest. I know about these headlines because I gave them to Mr. Phelps.

AN editorial for editors may be found in The World's Work for May. Headed "A New Feature for Newspapers," it takes up the halo of romance thrown around crimes of violence by the modern newspaper—to say nothing of the dime novel, Captain Kidd, and Robin Hood.

The editorial frankly agrees with Aristotle that drama purges the emotions and admits that stories of crime may have prevented other crimes "by letting people get their thrills out of books instead of action." The point stressed by the editorial is that the halo of romance thrown around the criminal by the press affects the administration of justice in that it prevents a juryman seeing the defendant in the case as a heartless murderer or an incorrigible criminal.

The headline, "Policeman Slain by Burglar—Leaves Wife and Three Children," is about all the notice the wife and the children receive in the press. The editorial suggests that newspapers should say more about "a happy family suddenly disrupted, a woman bereft of the love and support of her husand; children robbed of the affection and care of their father, all the bright prospects of education and family happiness thrown into confusion, the probability of hardship, poverty, distress." The editorial then concludes that if American newspapers featured this side of every murder the result would tend to quicker and surer justice.

* * *

"A REPUBLICAN President as Seen by a Democratic Editor" might be but isn't the title of an article which Walter Lippmann, chief editorial writer of the New York World, contributes to Vanity Fair for May. The title selected by Mr. Lippmann is "Puritanism De Luxe in the Coolidge Era."

Mr. Lippmann pulls a good one in his comment about the streamer headline he saw in one paper announcing the conclusion of the coal strike, "Coolidge Wins Coal Victory; Denies He Interfered." All through the article Mr. Lippmann uses the rapier—and he uses it well. His fencing is in striking contrast to that of Frank I. Cobb whose only weapon was the broadsword which cut everything in its path.

* * *

THE office copy of the Outlook for May 5, ought to have the following items checked: "The Trouble with Seitz," by O. T. Anderson; the editorial, "Newspapers and Postal Rates" which asserts that one of the inexplicable mysteries about the Post Office Department is its persistent hostility to second-class matter; the editorial "Propaganda and Opinion" which considers a modification of the Volstead Law; the feature article "Some Kind Words for Wood Pulp," by Don C. Seitz, who insists that the query of the Canadian Pulpwood Association, "Why pick on pulpwood?" has sound reason behind it.

The following words of that Association are quoted:

> Under the guise of patriotism and masquerading their clever scheme as an important measure have you been following the remarkable growth of the Detroit Times

MICHIGAN
and the
BOOTH NEWSPAPERS
THE LEADING NEWSPAPER IN GRAND RAPIDS—THE ONLY DAILY IN SEVEN OTHER CITIES
The Grand Rapids Press
The Flint Daily Journal
The Saginaw News Courier
The Kalamazoo Gazette
The Jackson Citizen Patriot
The Bay City Times Tribune
The Muskegon Chronicle
The Ann Arbor Times News
National Advertising Representatives
I. A. KLEIN — 50 East 42nd St. New York City
J. E. LUTZ — Tower Building Chicago, Ill.

The World
These two newspapers offer the most powerful all-day service in New York available as a unit under a single contact. The 600,000 DAILY WORLD — EVENING WORLD readers constitute a highly concentrated force to be reckoned with in any campaign designed to effect distribution in Greater New York.
The Evening World
Pulitzer Building, New York
Tribune Tower, Chicago

The DES MOINES CAPITAL
Completely covers Des Moines' entire trade territory for you at a rate of 14c per line.
It is the best Advertising buy in the mid-west
O'Mara & Ormsbee
Special Representatives
The DES MOINES CAPITAL
Lafayette Young Publisher

DOMINANT!
in Pinellas County, Florida
Daily News
ST. PETERSBURG'S PICTURE PAPER
Owned by Frank Fortune Pulver
Edited by Major Alfred Birdsall
America's Biggest Tabloid
Florida's Fastest Growing Newspaper
To be assured of Complete Coverage—
USE THE NEWS
The only paper in St. Petersburg, Florida, whose application has been accepted by Audit Bureau of Circulations.
Represented by
GEORGE B. DAVID COMPANY
NEW YORK: 110 East 42nd Street
CHICAGO: 1010 Hartford Building

DO YOU NEED A TRAINED MAN?
The Personnel Bureau of Sigma Delta Chi, an organization of college trained newspaper, magazine and advertising men, wants to help you find him. The Bureau puts you in touch with experienced, energetic men—it saves you time by recommending only those who meet your requirements.
If you expect a vacancy, please write Robert B. Tarr, Director, Personnel Bureau of Sigma Delta Chi, P. O. Box 115, Pontiac, Michigan.
NO CHARGE TO EMPLOYERS

of Forest Conservation, the shrewd and wealthy pulp and paper mill owners have secured hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of free publicity from the newspapers and periodicals of the country, whilst the pulpwood owners, engaged in a trade every whit as legitimate and worthy of encouragement as the lumber industry, for example, have had to pay advertising rates in order to even get their side of the story before the public. If the Canadian pulp and paper mills want or require the wood owned by their fellow citizens, that is now being sold to United States mills they can buy it. It is, and always will be, for sale in the open market at a fair price. Government regulation is not required to keep this wood in Canada. All that is necessary is that the Canadian mills pay as good a price as their American competitors.

The last page headed "By the Way" carries several small items that will bring a smile to members of the working press. Howard Brubaker, for example, writes:

What has become of the old-fashioned newspaper which discussed other matters besides the liquor question?

* * *

MOST critics of the modern press regret the so-called passing of personal journalism. Henry Seidel Canby writing in the American Mercury for May takes quite an opposite point of view and thus stresses the personal element in modern journalism:

In literature we always give our masters what they want; and since the crowd, not the patrons, is now master, we give them personal journalism. Watch the girl swaying at the strap in the subway crowd, a mere fibre of the impersonal mass, and see how eagerly she sinks herself in the blazing personalities of the paper she holds, in which everything from the fashions in stockings to international news is told by a Tom, Dick, Harry or Ann speaking intimately, familiarly to her. Or note in an apartment home, as like to ten thousand other apartment homes as one cell is to another, how the magazine on the table with its intensely personal style seems to radiate the familiar and the individual like a new kind of electrical toy. This craving for the friendly, familiar voice is responsible for the success of the column; for the impressionistic personal criticism, where "I like" and "I hate" are dominants.

* * *

A DELIGHTFUL fireside trip may be found in "Around the World" by Thomas Rees, publisher of the Illinois State Register of Springfield, Ill. The trip begins at San Francisco on the Pacific coast and ends at New York on the Atlantic. Between these two ports are many stops described in detail in the volume.

Part of the charm of this fireside trip is the ease with which acquaintance is made with fellow passengers—an interesting lot they are too. An entertaining side trip is by auto in Sumatra with its wonderful wild life. Here Christmas is spent in jungleland and here the Equator is crossed at about nine o'clock on Christmas day.

One wishes that the author-guide had lingered a little longer in the Malay States, especially at Penang, the beautiful; but if he had, possibly he would have had to cut short some of the sights of Siam. While on the road to Mandalay Mr. Rees questions the accuracy of Kipling's story about the flying fishes and the thunderous sunrise—but Kipling was always a better poet than he was a newspaper reporter. Mr. Rees himself tells some pretty big stories about the gulls around Rangoon, as he does about the city at the top of the world, Darjeeling, which means, "The City of the Thunderbolt."

But I am forgetting about fellow passengers. These appear possibly at their best in chapter XXXII, "The Social Side of Travel." In next to his last chapter Mr. Rees recalls the saying that Suez is the wickedest town in the world, and then remarks that he did not go ashore, although his ship dropped anchor at that port. One wonders why—if the author is as good a newspaper man as he is reported to be. Possibly he may have in mind another volume which, starting at Suez and ending at New York will print the contrast of the two cities. "Good copy" is found in "Around the World."

NOTABLES TO SPEAK AT MISSOURI SCHOOL

Prominent Editors Press Service Executives, Fiction Writers and Editorial Workers on Journalism Week Program

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 7.—The list of speakers for Missouri Journalism Week, May 10 to 15, will include E. C. Hopwood, editor of the Cleveland Plain Dealer and president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors. Among the others will be:

Charles G. Ross, chief Washington correspondent of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Dr. James Melvin Lee, director, department of journalism, New York University.

Herbert Bayard Swope, executive editor, of the New York World.

Karl A. Bickel, president of the United Press Associations, New York City.

Don Bridge, Indianapolis, manager of the national advertising and merchandising department of the Indianapolis News and secretary of the Association of Newspaper Advertising Executives.

Gene Fowler, former managing editor of the New York American, editorial director of the King Features Service, Inc.

Ralph Mills, managing editor, Kansas City Journal-Post.

Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, Joplin, article and fiction writer.

C. W. Nax, classified advertising manager, St. Louis Globe-Democrat and president of the Association of Newspaper Classified Advertising Managers.

Frank Ridgway, agricultural editor, Chicago Tribune.

C. K. Berryman, cartoonist, Washington Star.

Jay B. Idean, Kansas City Packer, formerly associate editor of the Country Gentleman.

Dana Gatlin, New York, former literary editor, New York Sun.

Henry J. Haskell, editorial writer, Kansas City Star.

Walter W. Manning, Chicago, editor, Woman's World.

Edgar T. Cutter, Chicago, central division superintendent, Associated Press.

Laura Lou Brookman, Sunday editor, Des Moines Register.

W. C. Jarnagin, publisher, Storm Lake (Ia.) Pilot-Tribune.

Homer Croy, Forest Hills, Long Island, novelist.

Mrs. Bess M. Wilson, Redwood Falls, Minn., editor, Redwood Gazette; member of board of curators, University of Minnesota.

Frank L. Blanchard, New York, advertising counselor, Henry L. Doherty & Co.

Richard L. Jones, editor, Tulsa (Okla,) Tribune.

Among the Missouri newspaper editors who will speak are: John C. Stapel, Rock Port, editor, Atchison County Mail; Mrs. Mary Blake Woodson, Kansas City Star, president, Missouri Writers' Guild; Mrs. Jessie C. Williams, editor-in-charge, Troy Free Press; E. N. Pizer, Jr., associate editor, Tipton Times; Doc Brydon, editor, Bloomfield Vindicator; Edgar White, editor, Macon Republican; F. E. Stubblebaum, editor, Bolivar Herald; Fred R. Kenower, editor, Breckenridge Bulletin; C. W. Green, editor, Brookfield Argus; W. H. Zorn, editor, West Plains Gazette; Sam A. Clark, editor, Carrollton Republican-Record, and E. H. Winter, editor, Warrenton Banner and president of the Missouri Press Association.

The annual journalism banquet, May 14, which is the social feature of Journalism Week, will be "The King Feature Banquet."

An executive session of the National Council of Theta Sigma Phi, journalism sorority, has been called by Miss Sara L. Lockwood, national president of the sorority and assistant professor of journalism in the University of Missouri, to meet at Columbia, Mo., May 15 and 16, in connection with Journalism Week.

"Ghosting" Condemned in England

"Ghosting"—the practice of journalists writing articles on topical subjects, which are published under the signatures of titled people and noted athletes—was condemned at the annual delegate meeting of the National Union of Journalists, at Edinburgh, during Easter. The practice is growing in England, and journalists complain that although the newspapers pay large sums for these articles, the actual writer receives only a small amount.

Munsey Company Buys Another Block

The Frank A. Munsey Company, which recently acquired the Tribune Building at the corner of Park Row and Spruce streets, has added to its holdings in the same block by purchasing the eight story structure at 15 Spruce street, on a lot 25 x 81 feet. The seller was the Publishers Holding Company.

64-Page Regular Edition on Coast

The Los Angeles (Cal.) Herald, April 28, published a 64-page regular edition, claimed to be the largest regular edition ever placed on sale in the city by an evening newspaper. The edition was largely made possible through the appearance of 12 pages from one store conducting a huge May Day Sale.

Lansing Correspondent Starts Weekly

A new weekly state paper, the Michigan State Digest, edited and published by Ed A. Nowack, Lansing correspondent for the Michigan Press Association, made its appearance in Lansing late last week. The paper, it is announced, will be devoted exclusively to state affairs and will be non-partisan in policy.

Leading All Other Daily Newspapers in the Albany Area

1st in Paid Advertising Lineage

Circulation With Complete Coverage

The Times-Union
Albany, N. Y.

CAMDEN COURIER
The Morning Post
CAMDEN, N.J.
Cover South Jersey with 60,000 Circulation At One Rate
National Representatives-
Storey Brooks & Finley—

A paper with the people

The public decides the progress of a newspaper.

The continuous rising circulation of the New York Evening Graphic vividly demonstrates popular acceptance of this newspaper as a medium of unusual reader interest.

Advertisers daily realize the benefit of this power through achieved results from the advertising columns of the New York Evening Graphic.

With a constantly increasing circulation, plus a constant growth in advertising lineage, the New York Evening Graphic offers the advertiser an extremely profitable opportunity.

NEW YORK
EVENING GRAPHIC

Published by BERNARR MACFADDEN
H. A. AHERN, Advertising Mgr.
25 City Hall Place
New York City

EVENING HERALD
Los Angeles, Calif.
Gained 5,015 Daily Average Circulation
Sworn Government Statement, Six Months Ending March 31, 1925, 177,298 Daily. Six Months Ending March 31, 1926, 182,313 Daily. Increase in Daily Average Circulation, 5,015.
IT COVERS THE FIELD COMPLETELY
REPRESENTATIVES:
H. W. Moloney, 604 Times Bldg., New York.
G. Logan Payne Co., 401 Tower Bldg., 6 North Michigan Ave., Chicago.
A. J. Norris Hill, 710 Hearst Bldg., San Francisco, Calif.

ONLY ONE
Manhattan evening newspaper exceeds the DAILY STAR
Queens' Home Newspaper, in volume of paid classified advertising.
A paper strong in Classified Advertising is always strong with its readers.
The Star is the one big medium in Queens. Published at Star Square, Long Island City.

Regional Advertising
at Regional Rates
in
The Christian Science Monitor
An International Daily Newspaper
Publishing SELECTED ADVERTISING
ATLANTIC, CENTRAL and PACIFIC Editions
Rates and Circulation Data Supplied on Request
ADVERTISING OFFICES

Boston	New York	Kansas City
Philadelphia	London	San Francisco
Chicago	Paris	Los Angeles
Cleveland	Florence	Seattle
Detroit		Portland

"Buy What You Can Use"

GRAVURE SECTIONS PRINTED
SPECIAL AND REGULAR EDITIONS, MAGAZINE INSERTS AND COMMERCIAL WORK
Standard Gravure Corporation
LOUISVILLE KY

CAREERS OF PULITZER PRIZE WINNERS

SINCLAIR LEWIS, author of "Arrowsmith," is also the creator of "Main Street" and "Babbitt," novels which created much discussion. "Main Street" was the first of his satirical interpretations of American life, and "Babbitt" gave the world a new word.

SINCLAIR LEWIS

In "Arrowsmith," which the novelist published last year after a three years' silence, he contrasted the life of research workers in the field of medical science with that of those physicians and surgeons who go in solely for commercial success, and in the character of Leora, the wife of Dr. Martin Arrowsmith, he drew what is regarded as a masterly portrait of a woman. Mr. Lewis wrote "Arrowsmith" with the assistance of Dr. Paul H. De Kruif, author of "Microbe Hunters," to whom the novelist gives credit for the accuracy of the technical detail of the medical profession in his novel.

Mr. Lewis was born in 1885 in Sauk Center, Minn., and was graduated from Yale College in 1907. His first job was as a reporter on the New Haven Journal-Courier. He also worked as a reporter for the San Francisco Bulletin, the Associated Press and elsewhere, and was a writer and editor in the magazine field for several years.

GEORGE KELLY, whose "Craig's Wife" won the drama prize, just missed winning the Pulitzer prize for 1924 with his play, "The Show-Off." The play jury, consisting of Professor William Lyon Phelps of Yale, Clayton Hamilton, the playwright, and Owen Johnson, the novelist, recommended "The Show-Off" for the prize, but was overruled by the Advisory Board in favor of "Hell-Bent fer Heaven," a play by Hatcher Hughes, a lecturer on the drama at Columbia.

GEORGE KELLY

The Theatre Club, Inc., recently awarded a gold medal to Mr. Kelly for having written the best American play of 1925 in "Craig's Wife." The play is a study of a married woman to whom the possession of material things seems so vital that she finally wrecks the spiritual happiness of her marriage.

Mr. Kelly was born in Philadelphia thirty-four years ago. Beginning his theatrical career as an actor in juvenile parts in road companies, Mr. Kelly later went into vaudeville, where he began to write his own one-act plays several years ago. One of these sketches was the nucleus of "The Torch-Bearers," his first full-length play, which made a hit on Broadway three years ago.

DR. EDWARD CHANNING, author of the prize-winning volume of history, has for many years been McLean Professor of History at Harvard. He is a member of the Massachusetts Historical Society and the National Institute of Arts and Letters.

DR. ED. CHANNING

He was born in Dorchester, Mass., in 1856. He is the author of "Town and County Government in the English Colonies of North America," "The Narragansett Planters," "The Navigation Laws," "English History for American Readers" (with Thomas Wentworth Higginson), and "The History of the United States," of which the sixth volume is awarded the Pulitzer prize. It is entitled "The War for Southern Independence."

AMY LOWELL, author of the prize-winning verse, "What's O'Clock?" died May 12, 1925, at the age of fifty-one. With her neighbor, Henry Adams, she represented the last of the New England traditions in a sadly changed world.

AMY LOWETT

Her virile critical work outbalanced her poetry. Her two-volume life of John Keats has become his most authoritative biography. Her best known poetry is "A Dome of Many Colored Glass," "Sword Blades and Poppy Seed," "Can Grande's Castle," and "Men, Women and Ghosts."

She lived in seclusion with a woman secretary at Sevenels, Brookline, Mass., where she bred dogs with enthusiasm. At one time or another she traveled in every country in the world except South Africa. She was in the midst of planning a trip when she died.

She liked to work at night, and sleep all day. The mild cigars which she smoked were famous. Her brother is President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard.

"What's O'Clock?" published posthumously, is characteristic of her remarkable feeling for physical imagery and personal idioms of expression.

DR. HARVEY CUSHING, author of the prize winning biography, "The Life of Sir William Osler," is the foremost brain surgeon in the country, if not in the world. To a large extent modern technique is the result of his experiments and studies.

He was born in Cleveland in 1869 and graduated first from Yale in 1891 and then from Harvard Medical School in 1895. He began his work in surgery at Johns Hopkins in Baltimore as one of the famous Dr. Gilman's "brilliant young men." In 1911 he went to Harvard as professor of surgery and surgeon-in-chief of the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital in Boston.

Before the United States entered the war he took a medical unit from Harvard to France, where he was attached to the British Expeditionary Force. In 1917 he was made a Colonel in the American Medical Corps.

He has received many honors in his own country and in Europe. He is a Fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons, Companion of the Bath, Chevalier of the Legion of Honor, and holder of the Distinguished Service Medal.

His biography of the most picturesque and influential figure in the history of American medicine, Sir William Osler, is Dr. Cushing's tribute to their common profession.

SCHOLARSHIP AWARDS

Miss Lucille Crews of Redlands, Cal., who won the musical scholarship, was born in Pueblo, Col., and was graduated from Dana Hall School, Wellesley. She studied music at the New England Conservatory of Music, in Boston, and the Northwestern University School of Music, in Evanston, Ill., as well as with private teachers.

Miss Dorothy Ducas is the youngest girl winner of a traveling scholarship since the prizes were established. She is 20 years old and lives at 536 West 113th street.

Lawrence Hopkins Odell is the son of Isaac Odell, a merchandise broker of 287 South Lexington avenue, White Plains, N. Y. He is 21 years old and received the Bachelor of Arts degree from Columbia in 1924.

Leif Eid is 25 years old and is from Everett, Wash. He came to Columbia from Washington State University, and won the Katherine MacMahon Memorial Scholarship, valued at $150, for the year 1925-26. He also is a member of Sigma Delta Chi.

Newspaper Woman Starts "Chicagoan"

Marie Armstrong Hecht, of the Chicago Evening Post staff, has started a magazine to be known as The Chicagoan, its first issue scheduled for June 1. The first issues will be twice monthly, thereafter weekly. It will be modeled after after weekly.

The real farm problem is how to transfer the surplus from the corn crib to the pocketbook. — Norfolk Virginian-Pilot.

If Quality

of circulation is your first consideration

The Evening Star.

With Sunday Morning Edition

Washington, D. C.

will have your preference—same as it has the preference of practically everyone in the National Capital.

The Star's circulation is home circulation—both quality and quantity—the kind that counts most with advertisers.

New York Office — 110 E. 42nd St.
Dan A. Carroll

Chicago Office — Tower Building
J. E. Lutz

CUMBERLAND

is the second largest city in Maryland and in the past five years has grown in population from 27,000 to 45,000.

Annual industrial payroll is $25.000,000.00; resources of six banks now $19,494,036.51.

Surrounded by a prosperous agricultural territory. One of the most responsive markets in America.

Covered thoroughly by

THE EVENING TIMES
Circulation now over 14,000 daily

Represented nationally by
THE DEVINE-MACQUOID CO., INC.
New York Pittsburgh Chicago

Largest Evening Circulation in Largest Market

For 26 consecutive years the Evening Journal has had the largest evening circulation in America—concentrated in New York and suburbs. More than DOUBLE the circulation of any other New York evening paper.

NEW YORK JOURNAL

America's Largest Evening Circulation and at 3c a copy

Cover Fashions by Printing Fashion News

See samples of Our New Daily Service by wire or mail

FAIRCHILD
Newspaper Services
8 East 13th St. New York

Use the COMBINATION RATE
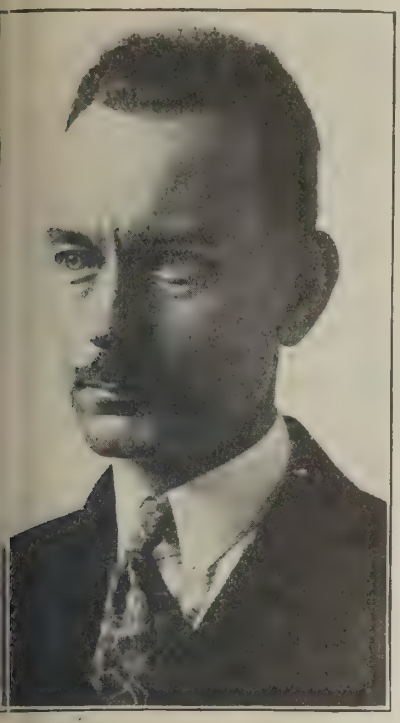
OF
The Gazette Times
(Morning and Sunday)
AND
Chronicle Telegraph
(Evening)
in order to cover Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania thoroughly at the lowest cost.

Member A. B. C.

URBAN E. DICE, Nat. Adv. Mgr.
GAZETTE SQ., PITTSBURGH, PA.
National Representatives:
E. M. BURKE, Inc.
42nd and Broadway, N. Y.
122 S. Michigan Blvd., Chicago.
Constitution Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.
R. J. BIDWELL CO.
742 Market St., San Francisco, Cal.
Times Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

The Morning Telegraph



Is the giant influence on the Turf, in Society, Music, Theatre, Motion Picture and Finance, having the largest circulation of any Daily in the United States at a ten-cent Price.

Circulated in every State in the Union and the principal capitals of Europe. An exclusive market for its advertisers.

The Morning Telegraph
50th St. & 8th Ave., N. Y. City

Peoria
The Try-Out City
THE PEORIA JOURNAL Transcript
Puts Tryouts Over!
CHAS. H. EDDY CO.
New York - Chicago - Boston

Fitzpatrick With St. Louis Daily 13 Years

DANIEL R. FITZPATRICK, whose cartoon of "Laws of Moses and Today" won a Pulitzer prize, is 35 years old and has been staff cartoonist of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch for 13 years. Previously he had done cartoons and comics for the Chicago Daily News for about two and a half years.

He was born in Superior, Wis. His ambition to be a cartoonist dates from high school days. He was 17 when he entered the Art Institute in Chicago, from which he went to the position on the Daily News.

His caricatures, which are done in crayon, have been widely reprinted. He has contributed to Life, and, recently, to Collier's. His work has been entered in two exhibitions, and won prizes in both—the Black-and-White Exhibition last year and the St. Louis Artists' Guild, and last year's exhibition of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, where Fitzpatrick's caricature of Babe Ruth won first prize.

His own opinion of his highest achievement was a score of 90 on 18 holes.

Kingsbury a Veteran of Dana's Sun

EDWARD M. KINGSBURY, author of the editorial, "The House of a Hundred Sorrows," has been a member of the editorial staff of the New York Times since 1915. He was born in 1854, was graduated from Harvard in 1875 and was admitted to the bar in Massachusetts in 1879. In 1881 he became a member of the staff of the New York Sun under Charles A. Dana. In the book, "Dana and His People," Edward P. Mitchell, former editor-in-chief of the Sun, wrote about Mr. Kingsbury as follows:

"For a third of a century Kingsbury was a prime factor in making the paper's editorial page what it was said by the kind-hearted to be. He had most of the talents except that of self-promotion. He caught speedily the inherited characteristics and added to these the rich qualities of a personality almost unique for exquisite humor, fine wit, broad literary appreciation and originality of idea and phrase. From 1881 to 1915 many of the notable articles and casual essays on subjects a little apart from the more obvious actualities were due to that very accomplished and exceedingly modest artist of the pen."

PULITZER HONOR AWARD TO GEORGIA DAILY

(Continued from page 6)

In this fight, in which Julia Collier Harris's articles played a leading part, the Atlanta Constitution and the Macon Telegraph joined wholeheartedly. Believing that religion and the theory of evolution do not conflict, and feeling that a sort of hysteria fostered by uninformed but sincerely religious persons was abroad Julian Harris and Julia Collier Harris saw in the Dayton trial the news story of the year. They covered the trial together, both by mail and by wire; and the Enquirer-Sun was the only Georgia newspaper with special representatives handling the news of the Tennessee heresy trial. Georgia legislators made a feeble flutter in 1925 to bring up the bill to prohibit the teaching of the theory of evolution, but so many Georgia newspapers opened fire on them that the matter was dropped. No word was heard of it in the extra session just ended.

It was the Enquirer-Sun which uncovered the fact that Gov. Clifford Walker, of Georgia, after publicly announcing that he was going to Philadelphia for a rest, had traveled to Kansas City and the National Klan meeting. With him were commissioner of Agriculture Brown and State Game Warden Twitty. The Enquirer-Sun noticed in an AP dispatch which quoted the "governor of great state" as making a speech; and in an excerpt quoted from the speech appeared the phrase "bridging the chasm."

Recognizing this as a favorite locution of Gov. Walker's, the Enquirer-Sun wired its Atlanta correspondent to ask the governor if he had not attended the Klan meeting. Walker refused to say "yes" or "no". The Enquirer-Sun then called on the New York World to aid it in establishing the fact that Gov. Walker had lied about the Philadelphia trip, and had actually gone to Kansas City. The World verified the truth of the Enquirer-Sun's assumption, and the editor of the Enquirer-Sun gave the facts to Clark Howell, editor of the Constitution. The Constitution showed the governor that he had been trapped, and Walker admitted he had lied; further he confessed, as the Enquirer-Sun had been charging for several years, that he was a Klansman. He was joined in his confession by Brown and Twitty.

The Enquirer-Sun has insisted and still insists that the negro must be treated with equal and exact justice. Mr. Harris does not believe that there is any logic in telling outsiders that the Negro has the mind of an adolescent and must be treated like a child; and then lynch the "child" as if his actions had been motivated by the trained brain of a professor. But lynching is in a sense a minor evil, in that it is not only decreasing, but is in itself so horrible, so cowardly and so inhuman that it must eventually disappear from all decent communities.

The Enquirer-Sun has been attacked by other Georgia papers for making public Georgia's weaknesses and for criticizing her defects. One Georgia editor invited Harris to leave the state, but the Enquirer-Sun editor refuses to go. He says that it is because of his love for Georgia that he will not re-echo the wailing cry of "Georgia's no worse than any other state." He contends that he is striving to have it said of his native state—and is devoting all his editorial energies to that end—"Georgia is the best state in the Union."

Mr. Harris has had a distinguished newspaper career. From 1890 to 1907, he was cub reporter, news editor, night editor, city editor, and managing editor of the Atlanta Constitution, with the exception of five months in 1896, when he worked on the Chicago Times-Herald to get a big city slant on journalism. During his Atlanta newspaper experience, he was a trustee of the city's Carnegie Library and also on a committee of five to draw up a charter for a commission form of government.

From 1907 to 1912, he was general manager and then editor of Uncle Remus' Magazine. He spent 1913 abroad and during the next two years served as Sunday editor of the New York Herald. The latter part of 1915 found his as advertising manager of the New York Evening Telegram from which he went in December to become editor of the Herald's Paris edition. When the United States entered the war, Harris was commissioned a captain in the U. S. Army, and after the armistice he returned to the New York Herald as assistant to the managing editor. From April, 1919 to December, 1919, he was the paper's Paris correspondent and from December, 1919 to March, 1920, again editor and general manager of the Paris edition. In November, 1920, he bought a half-interest in the Columbus Enquirer-Sun and took charge of business and advertising. The following January he bought control and in November, 1922, he purchased all outstanding stock and took up the duties of editor, with Julia Collier Harris as associate.

Consistent Builders of Circulation

We do not use just one outstanding success to show you as proof of our ability. Year in and year out, for twenty-two years, we have continued to make each and every campaign a success.

We have proven our methods.

MYERS'

Circulation Organization

415 E. Third St., Waterloo, Iowa

A Fool There Was—

A new 3-a-week cartoon, showing the many fool things which contribute to automobile accidents.

The International Syndicate

Baltimore, Md.

Notice!

"RADIO - BY - THE CLOCK" is a

Registered Trade - Mark

and its use, or use of a similar heading on radio programs is unauthorized and an infringement unless they are the original programs furnished ONLY by

AUDIO SERVICE

326 W. Madison St. Chicago

Write for samples and prices

SHORT STORIES DONE IN PICTURE STRIPS

Famous Stories By

POE, STEVENSON, DUMAS CONAN DOYLE

To Run 10 Days
2 Weeks

Beautifully Drawn, Full of Action, Suspense and Thrills

Write for Rates

WHEELER - NICHOLSON, Inc.

373 4th Ave. New York City

WHAT'S HE DOING NOW?

A New Three Times a Week Sport Feature

by

MAXWELL

Is Being Mailed to You This Week

The story of your favorite Sport Hero of yesteryear and what he is doing now.

Two column mat and proof of copy

COSMOS NEWSPAPER SYNDICATE INC
Covering the World

NINE EAST THIRTY-SEVENTH STREET NEW YORK CITY

Herbert S. Houston, President and Editor-in-Chief

Myles F. Lasker, Vice-President and General Manager

MARKET NEWS Plus TABLES

An unusual financial service that places emphasis on the news that influences the course of security and commodity prices.

COMPLETE OR IN PART BY LEASED WIRE

CENTRAL NEWS of America

ESTABLISHED 1914

42 New St., New York City

A. P. TO STUDY NEEDS OF SMALL DAILIES

N. A. Huse, Former Nebraska Publisher Later with American Press Assn. and U. P., to Investigate Field for Co-operative Agency

Norris A. Huse, former Nebraska publisher, this week became a member of the Associated Press executive staff at New York headquarters. He was invited to join the A. P., Kent Cooper, general manager, announced, to act as liaison officer between the co-operative news agency and the smaller member newspapers.

NORRIS A. HUSE

"The new members of the A. P. must necessarily come from the smaller cities," Mr. Cooper said. "We have, therefore, engaged Mr. Huse to study how he may better serve this type of small daily."

Mr. Cooper also pointed out how members at the annual meeting had commended the extension of the A. P. leased wire service to the smaller cities and towns. He called attention to the election of about a score of small newspapers as A. P. members at the last meeting of the board of directors.

Mr. Huse was at one time publisher of the Norfolk (Neb.) News, now owned and published by his brother. Later he became vice-president of the American Press Association, in which capacity he became widely acquainted among small city publishers. From this position he became general manager of the United Feature Syndicate, subsidiary of the United Press Associations, and subsequently purchased an interest in and was business manager of the New Rochelle (N. Y.) Standard-Star. He sold his interest and for the last few months has been vacationing in Florida.

The following newspapers were elected to Associated Press membership at the last board of directors meeting:

Glendive (Mont.) Free Lance, Melbourne (Fla.) Journal, Wewoka (Okla.) Democrat, Columbus (Miss.) Commercial-Dispatch, Texarkana (Tex.) Evening Texarkana Gazette, Tarpon Springs (Fla.) Leader, McAllen (Tex.) Morning Telegram, and Chickasha (Okla.) Express.

Ten other newspapers were elected to membership at the same meeting of the directorate, but their names will not be made public until wire service actually starts.

NEW OWNERS ELECT

E. C. Rodgers Named President of San Luis Obispo Telegram-Tribune

At a meeting of stockholders of the San Luis Obispo (Cal.) Herald Publishing Company the following directors were elected: B. H. Canfield, E. C. Rodgers, J. W. Curts, G. D. Rodgers and C. M. Ramsey, who elected E. C. Rodgers president, J. W. Curts secretary and treasurer.

The Herald Publishing Company publishes the Daily Telegram, afternoon, and the Morning Tribune, only daily newspapers in San Luis Obispo county. R. C. Hoyt recently sold all the stock in the company to Mrs. Josephine S. Scripps, B. H. Canfield, E. C. Rodgers, Leroy Sanders, J. W. Curts and Neal Hellis, and the two papers now will be associated with others of the James G. Scripps newspapers, which include the Los Angeles Record, Seattle Star, Dallas Dispatch, Portland News, Tacoma Times, and Spokane Press.

Hoyt purchased the Daily Telegram for $75,000 from C. L. Day in 1923, combining that paper with his Morning Herald, with afternoon and morning editions. In October, 1925, Hoyt purchased the Morning Tribune from Benjamin Brooks, a veteran California publisher, for $20,500, and combined that paper with the Morning Herald. It is reported the new stockholders paid in the neighborhood of $150,000 for the properties, which included the newspaper building and other real estate.

E. C. Rodgers, who succeeds J. A. Easton as publisher and manager of the two newspapers, sold the Burlingame Star recently to S. D. Merk, publisher of the Burlingame Advance.

Hanway Buys Laredo Times

The Laredo (Tex.) Times, afternoon publication and only daily in Laredo, has been sold by the Penn Publishing Company to J. E. Hanway of the Casper (Wyo.) Herald and Tribune, who will take charge July 1.

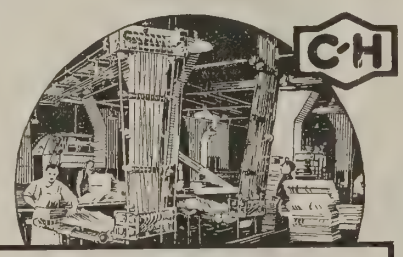
Supplies and Equipment

Don't "Pig" Metal It Wastes Money

Don't melt your metal twice to use it once. Write for trial offer. The Monomelt "Single Melting System." References gladly furnished.

MONOMELT SLUG FEEDER

Eliminates the Metal Furnace



Printers Manufacturing Co.
1109-17 Transportation Bldg.
Chicago Illinois
World Bldg., New York City

Modern Composing Room Furniture

as made by us will speed up production and reduce costs—A real saving in your Pay Roll. Are you interested? If so, consult your regular dealer in printers' supplies or write us direct.

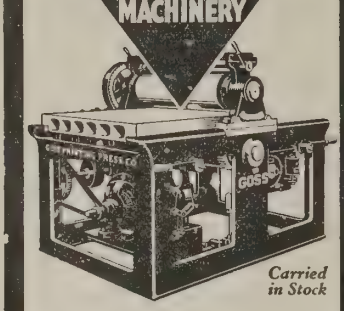
Do it now!

HAMILTON MFG. CO.
TWO RIVERS, WIS.

Newspaper Conveyors

speed up the movement of papers to delivery room—without fuss or waste. Used for years by hundreds of large and small publishers throughout the country. Write for details and typical installation views.

The Cutler-Hammer Mfg. Co.
Works: MILWAUKEE, WISCONSIN



New York	Cleveland	Detroit
Chicago	Cincinnati	St. Louis
Pittsburgh	Boston	Buffalo
Philadelphia		Milwaukee

San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle, H. B. Squires Co.

CUTLER-HAMMER

The Buyers of Equipment and Supplies read
Editor & Publisher

GOSS STEREOTYPING MACHINERY

Carried in Stock

Some outstanding and exclusive features of The Goss Combination Wet and Dry Matrix Roller: Patented stretching roller produces dry mats without a wrinkle. Both ends of cylinder are set at same time. Heavy cast-iron cylinders with forged steel shafts. Extra heavy bed—no racks—large enough to run chase with columns crosswise. Rolls wet mats in 11¼ seconds; dry mats in 22½ seconds. Write for complete catalog of Goss Stereotyping Machinery.

THE GOSS PRINTING PRESS CO., CHICAGO

Fight hot-weather fatigue

Fresh, cool, invigorating air—supplied by Sturtevant Ventilating Fans—would keep your men working at top-notch efficiency during the hot summer months.

B. F. STURTEVANT CO.
Hyde Park, Boston, Mass.
Branch Offices in Principal Cities

Sturtevant REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.
Ventilating Fans

USED NEWSPAPER PRESSES

Scott 16, 24 and 32-Page Presses

GOSS 24 and 28-page presses good for black or color work.

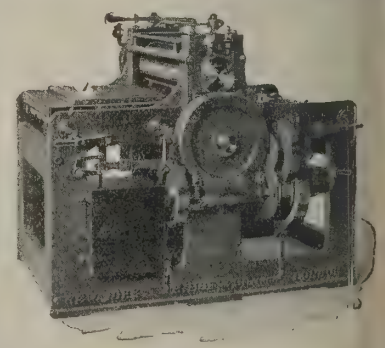
HOE Quadruple, Sextuple, Sextuple color Presses, Octuple and Double Sextuple Presses.

DUPLEX Flat Bed Press—Prints 4, 6 or 8 pages. Also Duplex-Quadruple Stereotype Press, Metropolitan Pattern.

POTTER—16 page stereotype press with stereotype machinery. Very good and very cheap press.

Available For Early Delivery

WALTER SCOTT & COMPANY
Main Office & Factory - - - - Plainfield, N. J.
New York Office - - Brokaw Bldg., 1457 Broadway
Chicago Office - - - - - - - - Monadnock Block



Rebuilt GOSS & HOE PRESS BARGAINS

ALL TYPES
SEND for LIST

THE GOSS PRINTING PRESS CO.
CHICAGO – NEW YORK – LONDON

HOE New-Design Heavy-Duty Matrix Roller

Built especially for heavy-duty work from the best grade of materials. Heavy supporting Frames are cast in one piece and secured by two substantial crossbar castings. Bed, with five second travel in one direction for wet mats and twenty second travel for dry mats, accommodates the largest single and double-page chases in ordinary use.

Designed Especially for Dry Mats

R. HOE & CO., INC. 504-520 Grand St., New York City
7 South Dearborn Street CHICAGO, ILL. also at DUNELLEN, N. J. 7 Water Street BOSTON, MASS.

Employment—Equipment—Services

EDITOR & PUBLISHER
Classified Advertising Information

TRANSIENT RATES

SITUATIONS (Cash with Order)

1 Time — .40 per line
2 Times — .35 per line
3 Times — .30 per line

ALL OTHER CLASSIFICATIONS
(Cash with Order)

1 Time — .60 per line
4 Times — .55 per line

White space charge at same rate per line per insertion as earned by frequency of insertion. Special rates quoted for 13, 26 and 52 insertions. The Editor & Publisher reserves the right to classify, edit or reject any advertisement.

COUNT SIX WORDS TO LINE.

ADVERTISING

General Promotion

Advertising Promotion—If you want more business, communicate with the International Publications Service, Incorporated, Suite 1004, 841 Broadway, New York City.

Classified—I will increase your classified on percentage of increase basis; 62 per cent gain Norristown Register Classified in three months. Also increases on other papers. Write Don C. Wilson, Norristown Register, Norristown, Pa.

Special Editions

Special Edition—I have capable special edition crew now available. Commission basis only. Also have three high-grade men available for special pages. Address B-972, Editor & Publisher.

Special Edition Editor

Special Edition Editor prepares copy for Special Editions, subject to Publisher's approval. On contract or salary basis. B-963, Editor & Publisher.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

Brokers

In the Gulf Coast, only paper in a city of 7,000, no other paper in county. Annual gross business $70,000, net $10,000 to $12,000. $43,000 equipment. Price $45,000, terms on part. Corp. 1331x. The H. F. Henrichs Agency, Litchfield, Ill.

Elmar D. Gray, Field Secretary of the Press Congress of the World, Sturgeon, Mo., is in Des Moines, Iowa, this week meeting Iowa editors. Next week he will be in Columbia, Mo., attending Journalism Week and visiting with Dean Walter Williams, the hardest worker and the best known newspaper man on earth. And the next week Mr. Gray will, upon the command of President Southern, of the Inland Daily Press Association, be in Chicago to meet those fine newspaper men. Gray is hustling to buy and get all the editors on this earth to go to Europe in September to attend the Press Congress. Gray gets no salary or expenses for this work, but he subsists by selling an average of $20,000 worth of newspaper property each month. In a letter received yesterday, Gray says:

"I have a client who makes a lot of money printing several weekly papers up in Iowa. He has been in the game a long time, and he wants to sell all or a part of his property, which is priced at $40,000. He will sell a third or a half interest to one or two young men. A good chance for someone.

"I have a Democratic weekly in an Iowa city of 2,500, which has been owned by the same family for over 40 years, making good money, which I well sell for around $15,000.

"I have more calls for California papers than I can supply. I want to list ten or more for sale in that State.

"To a Republican I can sell two afternoon dailies in a Missouri city of 25,000 for around $90,000, about half cash. And the man who likes this buy will clean up plenty of cash.

"I have a daily in Alabama I can sell for $50,000, in a city of 6,000, making $1,000 a month.

"I am searching for a man with $40,000 or more who will make a live business manager for a prosperous daily priced at a quarter of a million dollars, and would care for such an investment. If you cannot invest at least $50,000 in this business, no need to write.

"Morning daily in Oregon priced at $100,000—$50,000 down. Fine financial showing. Half interest to the right party for $50,000. Price includes building.

"I have a newspaper plant in a small Missouri city, now only doing a job business, but the paper can be resurrected. Payment of less than $500 can take the plant."

Newspapers For Sale

New York State county seat weekly for sale; doing $18,000 annually. Adequate equipment including two linotypes. Prospective field for daily. Price $20,000, half cash. Address B-959, Editor & Publisher.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

Newspapers Wanted

Successful Publisher with $50,000 real money for initial payment, desires to purchase newspaper located in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois or Iowa. Address with general particulars, Purchaser, care of Editor & Publisher.

Two men of excellent character and broad experience on Metropolitan dailies want to take over paper in suitable town of 5,000 or more. Address B-962, Editor & Publisher.

CIRCULATION

Promotion

Again—Solicitors are doing 8-12 orders daily without promotion cost to paper, on two new china offers in Ohio. Write for details. The Albright China Co., Carrollton, Ohio.

Circulation campaigns successfully operated. "Insured Results." Address A. B. Rudolph, Erie Daily Times, Erie, Pa., where a campaign is now in operation.

Circulation—When quick, additional circulation coverage becomes necessary, remember that our twenty years in this one line of endeavor is your proof against experimenting. Write or wire Pacific Coast Circulation Service, Bell Block, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Circulation Builders—Blair & Austin, 1504 Centre Ave., Reading, Penn. Originators of Salesmanship Club Campaigns.

EDITORIAL

Syndicate Features

Times, Atlantic City, N. J., and Boston Telegram are the new customers this week. Write for samples of a live, alert, up-to-date service. The Graphic Syndicate, 25 City Hall Place, New York.

EMPLOYMENT

Help Wanted

Advertising Solicitor—One of the old established and leading special agencies representing only high class newspapers has an opening for a solicitor. One with experience and possibly an acquaintance with New York advertising agencies desired. Salary commensurate with service rendered. Very unusual opportunity for rapid advancement for a live, energetic man, with initiative and ability. State experience, age, references. B-975, Editor & Publisher.

Advertising Man—Must be good salesman and copy writer; important daily newspaper near New York City; must have car; give full particulars and salary expected. Good opportunity. B-956, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Manager for Eastern newspaper of 100,000 daily circulation and 60,000 Sunday. Both daily and Sunday papers dominate a field of 500,000 population within 25 mile radius. Must have had experience in all kinds of circulation work and been used to live competition. A good opportunity for the right man to grow with a rapidly growing newspaper. B-965, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Manager for the leading newspaper in highly competitive field. $90 weekly for top-notcher. In replying give full details of previous experiences and accomplishments. B-948, Editor & Publisher.

City Editor for prosperous small city morning paper in Middle West. One who has made a success in small city work. Good pay and fine opportunity for real live wire. Address B-943, Editor & Publisher.

Editorial Writer on morning daily in Middle West. City of 30,000. Circulation 13,000. Address B-957, Editor & Publisher.

First Class Circulation Man with good references wanted to canvass and organize new territory which old established daily is entering. Wire or write, but do not make application in person to The Daily Sentinel, Grand Junction, Colorado.

Girl Reporter for news bureau; excellent appearance, good writer, varied assignments; start, $25, quick advancement. Paul May, 206 Fendall Building, Washington, D. C.

News Executive, competent, wanted by Southern daily newspaper. Must be capable of assuming full responsibility as Managing Editor. Give comprehensive information as to experience, newspapers by which applicant has been employed, and in what capacity. Salary expected. Age. Personal habits and temperament and other information that should be considered. Address B-969, Editor & Publisher.

Situations Wanted

Advertising Merchandising—Man 24, university grad; majored in adv., marketing, made practical by newspapers and commercial experience. B-953, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation and Promotion Manager seeks interview. City exceeding 100,000. Capable promoter of staple circulation. Can make circulation figure needed for rates or possible leadership at minimum cost. Eliminator of department lost motion in strongly contested fields. Family. Future first thought. B-967, Editor & Publisher.

EMPLOYMENT

Situations Wanted

Circulation Manager—12 years of thorough promotion experience. Producer of country and home delivered circulation through Boy plan. Good reason for changing. First class references. Married. B-971, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Manager, now employed. Married, with family. Sober and steady. Desires change to position of like capacity or as assistant manager on larger paper. Thoroughly conversant with every detail of circulation. Best reason for leaving present position. Can furnish high class references. B-964, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Man with 25 years' experience on evening newspapers in the Middle West, is anxious to locate with an evening paper in East. Partial to home delivered circulation. Prefer city with population of 150,000 or more. Can furnish best of references from paper associated with at present time. B-960, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Manager—I have for sale the services of a thirty-three year old circulation manager. 17 years of circulation experience including 12 years of successful circulation management will make these services highly valuable to any publisher in need of a first class circulation man. Further information gladly furnished on request. Inquiries treated positively confidential. B-944, Editor & Publisher.

Charge of woman's department, book page or combination on daily or magazine wanted by young woman with unusual experience, initiative, enthusiasm, background of study abroad and home. Earned $50 week past four years. Might consider editorial and news end live weekly California or New England. Can write heads, make-up, read proof. B-961, Editor & Publisher.

Desk Man, Reporter, educated, experienced, whose own ideas do not obscure the policy of paper he is serving, desires permanent connection on p. m. daily in eastern city after June 1. B-950, Editor & Publisher.

Dramatic and Motion Picture Critic -Young man, 6 years' newspaper experience. Address B-966, Editor & Publisher.

Editorial Writer, 34, experienced, practical, informed, tolerant, traveled at home and abroad. Asset to paper. Participate in prestige building outside of columns. Forceful public speaker. Knows people. Just returned from tour 11 countries. 3 years present job. Wife trained newspaperwoman. Could come soon, cities 40,000 up. Making $4800. Address B-974, Editor & Publisher.

Editorial writer, managing editor, news editor—Man who can fill any position in editorial department, who has had 18 years' experience, mostly Metropolitan, and who is now holding managing editor position, wants change. Prefer South or Southwest. B-970, Editor & Publisher.

Managing Editor—In some small Eastern city there is a publisher of an evening newspaper who is dissatisfied with his news department. I seek the opportunity to send him my successful record as a news executive on great and small dailies, together with copies of record contracts and recommendations. Salary requirements at least $75 a week. B-968, Editor & Publisher.

Production Manager—Energetic, capable man of 40, with 20 years' experience printing, publishing, electrotyping, desires position. A-1 references. B-954, Editor & Publisher.

Reporter—Young Man, two years reportorial experience, wants job around New York. Night work preferred. B-958, Editor & Publisher.

Sales Executive—An experienced, aggressive, high powered salesman is open for connection on short notice. Big record of success in selling both local and national advertising and also syndicate features. Would make a successful salesman for any allied newspaper work that requires selling. Well recommended and a big producer. At present earning over $7,000 yearly. An interview will not only be interesting but may be profitable to both parties. Interview can be arranged in New York or elsewhere at your convenience. B-939, Editor & Pubisher.

Situation as editor of daily newspaper wanted. Experienced telegraph editor and forceful editorial writer. Republican. Western experience. B-955, Editor & Publisher.

Special Edition—Publisher contemplating special edition or industrial or special pages may obtain organization on fair commission basis. Clean solicitation guaranteed. References Address B-908, Editor & Publisher.

Syndicate Man wants to connect with New York syndicate. Experienced placing shorts, novelettes and serials. Knows the market from Maine to California and is familiar with foreign rights and selling. Has thorough knowledge of rights, from book to second serial. Can select and edit fiction, prepare synopses, make broadsides, correspond and sell. Managed fiction syndicate two years. Before that three years on metropolitan paper. Has had road experience but would rather remain at desk. B-940, Editor & Publsiher.

Young Woman, university graduate, with thorough newspaper and advertising training, wants place as aid to editor or agency head. Not afraid of work. Address B-973, Editor & Publisher.

MECHANICAL

Equipment For Sale

Complete Newspaper Engraving Plant for sale. Ideal for one or two-man shop. Miles Machinery Co., 286 Eighth ave., New York City.

Duplex Newspaper Press, eight-column, eight-page, double drive, angle bars, adjustable former, rebuilt new two years ago. Must make room for larger press. Can be seen in daily operation until June 1st. Will sell cheap. Address Meridian Star, Meridian, Miss.

Goss four deck single width, high speed press for sale at a bargain, with plate finishing machine, casting box, matrix roller, simplex drive, five hundred D. C. motor and control. Press ready for immediate delivery. Can be seen in operation for a few days only. Wire or write W. C. Mayborn, 1413 F. and M. Bank Building, Fort Worth, Texas.

Hoe Jig Saw and Drill for sale. Completely rebuilt. Fine condition. Miles Machinery Co., 286 Eighth ave., New York City.

Printing Press—Two revolution, sheet 28 x 40, in exceptional condition. Can be bought right. Must be disposed of. Cash or time. R. & B., 15 Walker street, New York City.

Printers', Bookbinders' Outfitters—Modern cut-cost equipment, also rebuilt machinery. Conner Fendler Branch, A. T. F. Co., New York City.

Used Goss Mat Roller for wet mats only, for sale cheap. The Goss Printing Press Co., 1535 So. Paulina St., Chicago, Ill.

Used Goss Comet Eight-Page Flat Bed Webb Press, thoroughly factory rebuilt. For quick shipment, price reasonable. Easy terms. Goss Printing Press Company, Chicago.

Service

Erection and Repair Service—Work guaranteed on all makes of presses. For low rate, write or wire Press Erector, 1443 Blake street, Denver, Colorado.

Southern California Daily

Only daily in a growing city of 12,000, in the Orange Empire, far enough from Los Angeles to be a self-contained community. Earning good profits.

Price $150,000

PALMER, DEWITT & PALMER
Newspaper Properties
350 Madison Ave., New York
M. C. MOORE,
Pacific Coast Representative,
515 Canon Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Successful Performance

This firm has a record of almost 15 years of successful performance in the difficult work of

PURCHASE, CONSOLIDATION, SALE AND APPRAISAL

of newspaper and magazine properties throughout the U. S.

HARWELL & CANNON
Times Bldg. New York

WE CONNECT THE WIRES

OVER TWENTY-FIVE YEARS we have conducted a service bureau for employers and position seekers in the Advertising-Publishing field. Our lists include men and women fitted for positions up to the highest responsibility in all departments of newspapers, class journals, advertising agencies and the publicity departments of mercantile and manufacturing concerns. Registration free. No charge to employers.

FERNALD'S EXCHANGE, INC.
THIRD NAT'L B'LD'G., SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

DOLLAR $ $ $ $ PULLERS

ONE DOLLAR WILL BE PAID FOR EACH IDEA PUBLISHED

EACH Sunday on the back page of the real estate section the Lincoln (Neb.) State Journal uses a two-column cut showing the floor plans and exterior view of a house. Below this is placed a detailed description of the house and plans. Around this central figure are grouped advertisements from lumber dealers, plasterers, interior decorators, plumbing shops, paint and roofing companies, etc., and anything and everything pertaining to a home.—A. B. C.

Novel treatment of a full page used car classified advertisement run recently in the Boston Advertiser. Each "Green Tag" carries the description and price of a car.

Some grocer or provision house in your town handles a good bulk coffee. Get him to collect thirty or forty old tin coffee cans and display them in his window, featuring on a placard, "Why pay 5 to 8 cents for worthless tin." You can obtain a large initial ad from him and the business he will do in the future from this idea will make him a consistent advertiser. The Franklin (Ind.) Star worked this stunt with marked success.—Davis O. Vandivier.

A good many concerns want to keep their names before the public by means of newspaper advertisements, but find difficulty in presenting a daily advertising message that will attract the readers. A trust company in Madison, Wis., solved the problem by publishing in a daily 12-inch ad containing paragraphs on constructive news events, some of which by suggestion created a desire to save money or indicated indirectly the advantages of trust funds. A good many readers turn to this column as they do to the news.—Ruben Levin, Madison, Wis.

This is the season to go after jewelry firms for advertisements since weddings and commencements are just ahead. A New Orleans, La., jeweler is attracting unusual attention to his ad and window display by a pearl judging contest which he announces in his advertisement. His window contains one string of real pearls and a number of strings of the best grade imitation pearls. The first person who discovers which necklace is real is to be given a $250 string of the imitation gems and six other prizes of lesser value are offered.—R. T. C.

With home garden planting time at hand, take a page of your paper and lay it out as a garden plot. Where the tomato plants are to be placed, carry the ad of a local grower; sell the lettuce patch to a merchant who deals in that seed, and so on, even to the tool house in the corner of the back yard. The same plan may be adapted to the home flower garden and to the lawn. But have the layout prepared by a practical gardener.—E. R. Lowe, Waltham, Mass.

A. P. WALL ST. BUREAU MOVES

Downtown Financial Office Now in New Evening Post Building

After more than a score of years at 20 Broad street, New York, the Wall street bureau of the Associated Press was moved into new offices this week in the recently completed New York Evening Post Building at 110 Washington street.

The A. P. market and financial division has long maintained three offices; one at general headquarters, which, for the past four years, has been under the supervision of L. S. Curtis, superintendent of markets; the Wall Street bureau, where the financial leads are written daily; and a tabulation bureau, operated in co-operation with the Evening Post.

The present move was made, however, Mr. Curtis said, in order that eventually this bureau may be merged with the tabulation department.

Appointment of L. R. Penn, formerly A. P. correspondent at Oklahoma City, as assistant to Mr. Curtis was announced this week. B. B. Bridges is the new correspondent in Oklahoma City, succeeding Penn.

Church departments may be livened with interviews and pictures of ministers and their churches. Have the preacher tell his most embarrassing moment of life, and if he has ever found it necessary to tell a lie in line of duty.—H. W. Schaefer, Birmingham (Ala.) Age-Herald.

"When is an orphans' home an orphans' home? A paradox in name at least, but a sensible sober question at that," observed the Indianapolis Times in its lead to a first page feature story obtained from the state board of charities when it was learned that of 1690 kiddies in "Homes for Homeless" only 76 were actually orphans. How about the orphans' home in your city, or the condition in your state if you are a state paper. "For the most part it is the unfit home, the incompetent parents, not those who are merely poor, who are keeping the children's homes full" the Times learned. It made an interesting story.—Robert L. Beard, Fort Wayne (Ind.) News-Sentinel.

HUNCHES

ONE DOLLAR WILL BE PAID FOR EACH "HUNCH" PUBLISHED

TO add interest to the weekly food page of the Syracuse Herald a contest is being conducted to pick the ideal "All Syracuse Menu." Suggestions are requested from readers, and at the end of the contest a menu is to be selected by a corps of culinary experts.—Chester B. Bahn.

"My Best Shot" is the title over photo and about two sticks in a popular Northwest paper, which gives the business and professional men of the city a chance to speak on their favorite subject, golf.—C. M. L.

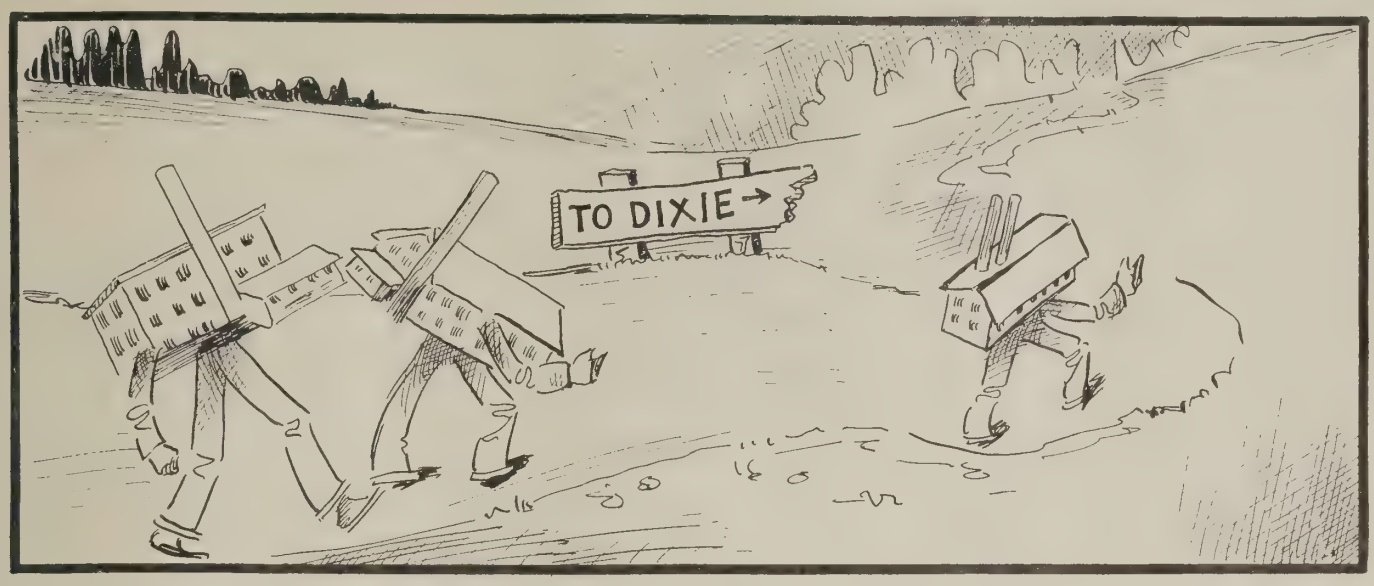
"Along the Street," was the heading of a column in an Illinois daily recently. Peculiar, interesting or funny happenings of minor importance to the city's well known business men were told by a reporter with the ability to write humor. The reports were gathered by all reporters and related to the writer for the next day's filler.—Don Wright, Geneseo, Ill.

An "Encyclopedia For Investors" is proving popular as a short series on the financial pages of one middle western newspaper. One subject of finances is discussed in each article, which is written in plain, everyday English with all technical terms avoided. For instance, common stocks are explained in one issue; preferred in another; selling short in another; gold mortgage bonds in another, etc.—B. A. T.

With the coming of spring come the annual tales of great activity in real estate transactions in the lake and forest sections of each state. Editors, investigating the magnitude of the "boom" in their states, might dig up interesting yarns on the growths of their states as resorts for vacationers and as "playgrounds of the nation."—Ruben Levin, Madison, Wis.

"SKIPPY"
By PERCY CROSBY
The best juvenile comic strip. Combines great humor, excellent drawing and emphatic adult appeal.
A feature you can't afford to miss
JOHNSON FEATURES, Inc.
1819 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

COMPLETE WIRE REPORTS FOR EVENING AND SUNDAY PAPERS
International News Service
"Get It FIRST but First Get It RIGHT"
63 Park Row
NEW YORK CITY



THOS. W. BRIGGS CO.
Columbian Mutual Tower
MEMPHIS, TENN.
CREATORS OF LOCAL DISPLAY FROM A NEW SOURCE
Our Business Review and many other feature pages now running in more than 80 leading American and Canadian newspapers. Write or wire for our representative.

How To Play GOLF
By JOHNNY FARRELL
Famous Teacher of That Game
24 LESSONS
Illustrated
For release daily
KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, Inc.
New York City

THE SEASON'S BIG HIT!
Gentlemen Prefer Blondes
BY ANITA LOOS
is now available in comic strip form—an uproarious parallel of the book, combining a fashion appeal with matchless humor.
The BELL SYNDICATE, Inc.
JOHN N. WHEELER, Pres.
154 Nassau St. New York City

BY UNITED PRESS
AROUND THE WORLD AROUND THE CLOCK
UNITED PRESS ASSOCIATIONS
World Building New York

BRUCE BAIRNSFATHER
is doing a daily cartoon for the newspapers under the captions TROUBLES THEY NEVER HAD
and
CHOOSE YOUR NEAREST EXIT
Supplied in two and three columns
The McClure Newspaper Syndicate
373 Fourth Avenue, New York

INDUSTRY IS GOING SOUTH

—Follow this growing market with your products . . . .

Not only has the South attained the reputation of the Nation's playground, but industry has now realized the South's tremendous natural resources, its labor, contented and unapproachable by labor agitators. Northern Industry is moving South.

And, Commerce has taken rapid strides in the past few years, keeping in step with the industrial advancement.

All manner of products are needed in the South. The people are buying. They have never had such prosperous times.

What are you doing to get your share of this business?

The daily papers listed below reach every important trading area in the South.

Your campaign with the South is your most important market. These papers will give you the service necessary to help in your merchandising and distributing plans.

	Circulation	2,500 Lines	10,000 Lines
ALABAMA
*Mobile News-Item (E)	11,993	.05	.05
*Mobile Register (M)	20,427	.08	.08
*Mobile Register (S)	32,096	.10	.10
FLORIDA
†Daytona Beach News (ES)	5,731	.04	.04
Florida Times-Union (M) 42,376 (S)	54,610	.12(S.15)	.12(S.15)
††Lakeland Ledger (E)	4,283	.03	.03
Miami Herald (M)	31,714	.11	.11
Miami Herald (S)	40,347	.12	.12
*Orlando Reporter-Star (E)	8,502	.06	.06
Orlando Sentinel (M&S)	6,172	.05	.05
Pensacola News and Journal (EM)	8,689	.06	.06
†St. Petersburg Independent (E)	11,917	.055	.055
*Tampa Times (E)	23,325	.08	.08
†Tampa Tribune (M) 34,841 (S)	53,762	.09(.11S)	.09(.11S)
West Palm Beach Post (M)	8,638	.06	.06
GEORGIA
*Augusta Herald (E)	14,246	.05	.05
*Augusta Herald (S)	14,547	.05	.05
*Macon Telegraph (M)	24,035	.08	.08
*Macon Telegraph (S)	24,439	.08	.08
Savannah Morning News (M), 21,015. (S)	22,204	.06(.07S)	.06(.07S)
KENTUCKY
*Lexington Leader (E)	19,640	.06	.06
*Lexington Leader (S)	19,531	.06	.06
Paducah Sun (E)	9,255	.04	.04
NORTH CAROLINA
†Greensboro Daily News (M)	27,485	.08	.07
†Greensboro Daily News (S)	31,505	.09	.08
†Raleigh News and Observer (M)	33,515	.08	.08
†Raleigh News and Observer (S)	36,318	.09	.09
†Winston-Salem Journal (M)	13,702	.05	.05
†Winston-Salem Journal (S)	13,720	.05	.05
*Winston-Salem Sentinel (E)	18,259	.07	.07
SOUTH CAROLINA
Columbia State (M)	23,663	.07	.07
Columbia State (S)	24,838	.07	.07
Greenville News (M)	21,704	.075	.07
*Spartanburg Journal (E)	4,613	.05	.05
*Spartanburg Herald (M) 6,860 (S)	9,856
TENNESSEE
Chattanooga Times (M)	30,203	.10	.10
Chattanooga Times (S)	30,230	.10	.10
*Memphis Commercial Appeal (M)	100,934	.18	.18
*Memphis Commercial Appeal (S)	129,219	.21	.21
*Nashville Banner (E)	54,519	.11	.11
*Nashville Banner (S)	56,007	.12	.12
VIRGINIA
*Danville Register and Bee (M&E)	14,313	.05	.05
*Danville Register (Sunday)	9,065
Newport News Times-Herald (E)	7,791	.05	.05
Newport News Daily Press (S&M)	5,708
Roanoke Times & World News (M&E)	25,658	.08	.08
Roanoke Times (S)	16,672	.07	.07
Staunton News-Leader (M), Leader (E)	6,541	.035	.035

* A. B. C. Statement, March 31, 1926.
 A. B. C. Statement, September 30, 1925.
† Government Statement, March 31, 1926.
†† Government Statement, September 30, 1925.

Mass That Is Class

THE little group of "big investors" who read the conventional and cryptic financial pages of 1914 is still buying bonds and reading newspapers.

But the big issues of today would go a-begging if the "big investor" were the only reader of financial pages.

The great majority of the army of bond-buyers never saw Wall Street.

They live in every hamlet, village and city of America. They are on the payrolls of every store and factory.

Mass has become class.

And this "class" makes up a great, eager, inquisitive reader-group whose increased resources and widened horizons demand more than routine news reports.

They want the news behind the news; the how and the why as well as the what.

This demand is successfully met by those distinctive newspapers which are being served by The Consolidated Press Association whose trained writers tell the news behind the news in sports, politics, business, fashions, human interest and finance.

No wonder The Consolidated Press Association is constantly adding to its member-list of dominant newspapers.

The Consolidated Press Association

Executive Offices, Evening Star Building, Washington, D. C.

New York	Chicago	San Francisco	Paris
Eighth Floor	Third Floor	Third Floor	Fourth Floor
World Building	Daily News Building	Bulletin Building	19 Rue d'Antin

THIS ISSUE:—BRITISH PRESS STRIKE PACT HAILED AS NEW FREEDOM CHARTER.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

1884 The Oldest Publishers' and Advertisers' Journal in America 1926

SUITE 1700 TIMES BUILDING, NEW YORK
42ND STREET AND BROADWAY.

Original second class entry The Journalist, March 24, 1884; Newspaperdom, March, 1892; The Editor & Publisher, December 7, 1901; The Editor & Publisher and Journalist, October 30, 1909; Advertising, February 7, 1925; Revised entry, Editor & Publisher, May 11, 1916, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Vol. 58. No. 52 | NEW YORK, MAY 22, 1926 | By Mail in Advance $4, U. S. A. $4.50, Canada; $5, Foreign | 10c Per Copy

Chicago Tribune
FEATURES

DAILY AND SUNDAY
Comic Strips

The Gumps by Sidney Smith
Gasoline Alley by Frank King
Harold Teen by Carl Ed
Winnie Winkle by Branner
Moon Mullins by Frank Willard
Smitty by Walter Berndt
Little Orphan Annie by Harold Gray
Texas Slim by Ferd Johnson
The above strips in black and white or 8-page color comic section either tabloid or full size.

W. E. HILL
page of comics

DAILY AND SUNDAY
CARTOONS
John T. McCutcheon —Carey Orr — Gaar Williams

BLUE RIBBON FICTION
Daily serial story—Weekly short story and serial.

TRUE LIFE STORIES WEEKLY
Woman's Special Page
Embroidery Page
Sport Page—Science Page

DAILY AND SUNDAY
Doris Blake Articles
Antoinette Donnelly Beauty Articles
Men's Fashions
Women's Fashions

SUNDAY
Paris Fashions

DAILY AND SUNDAY
Dr. W. A. Evans Health Articles

WEEKLY
Burns Mantle Theatrical Letter (New York)
Mencken Literary Review
Movie Letter
N. Y. Society Letter
"About Broadway" by Mark Hellinger

DAILY AND SUNDAY
Woods and Waters by Bob Becker
Walter Eckersall's Football Articles
In Motordom by J. L. Jenkins
Line o' Type by R. H. L.

DAILY
Wake of the News by Harvey T. Woodruff

SUNDAY
The Nickeldicks—Children's Story
The Sporting Goods by Westbrook Pegler

DAILY AND SUNDAY
What's Wrong Here?
Cookery Articles by Jane Eddington
Farm and Garden by Frank Ridgeway

SUNDAY
Practical and Fancy Needlework
Home Harmonious
Club Ethics by Maude Evans

DAILY
The Goops by Gelett Burgess
Sentence Sermons by Rev. Roy L. Smith

WEEKLY
Book Reviews by Fanny Butcher
Confessions of Authors
Justice Series

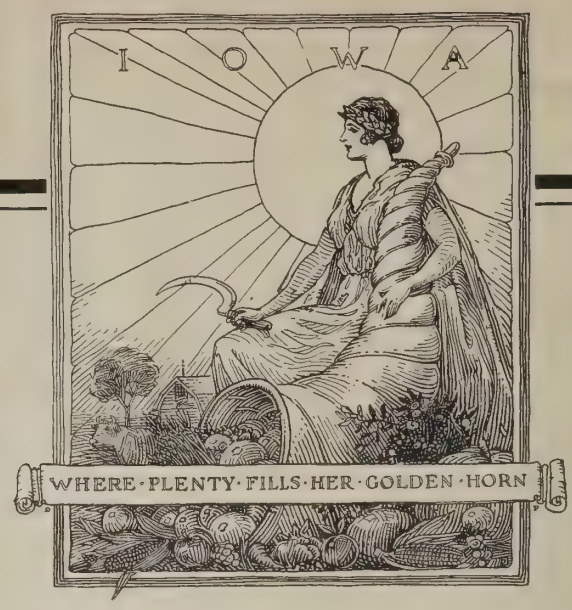
PACIFIC AND ATLANTIC PHOTOS
Organized by The Chicago Tribune and the New York Daily News 25 Park Place, New York

CHICAGO TRIBUNE PRESS SERVICE
Foreign—National—Local

ABOUT BROADWAY

by Mark Hellinger

JOURNALISM LIBRARY
Not to be taken from this room



THOUSANDS of New Yorkers regard Mark Hellinger's "About Broadway" as the latest and spiciest humorous resumé of New York's bright spots. Once a week he writes of night clubs, actresses, prize fighters, song writers, society, nobility, notorious doormen, waiters, prohibition—in short, everything about New York that would interest the pleasure seeker.

He writes with a style that makes the most ordinary topic extraordinarily alive and personal and he has the rare knack of finding those intimate stories of people occupying the spotlight that make for fascinating reading.

So popular have these articles become among the better class of readers in and out of New York that they are being offered to newspapers. Everyone is interested in Broadway. It is the pulse of America's playing and play-going public. "About Broadway" reflects accurately the doings of those in whom the reading public has a personal interest, and gives newspapers a chance to have a correspondent always reporting Broadway for them. Wire for rates and proofs.

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE
Newspapers SYNDICATE
Tribune Square . . . CHICAGO

Deal with these 28 leading Iowa daily newspapers as with one publication. Thorough coverage of the state. Uniform marketing cooperation through our "Iowa Plan."

IOWA Wealth—
51% Above Nation's Average

According to latest financial report of the U. S. Bureau of Census, Iowa's per capita taxable wealth is $4146. That of the nation at large is $2731. Thus Iowa is 51% above the nation's average.

And Iowa people are not only far above average in wealth, but also in education and in standard of living.

Iowa has the lowest percentage of illiteracy of any state in the union.

From any viewpoint, you will find these Iowa people are unusually good prospects for your goods. In fact, they may well be called preferred prospects.

The effective, economical way to talk to Mr. and Mrs. Iowa—and the whole family —is through their daily newspapers, for practically every family in the state reads one of the dailies of this list every day. (Combined circulation—571,151. Families in Iowa—550,000).

Systematic, uniform cooperation in marketing your goods—in every section of the state—is provided by the members of this association, in conjunction with any adequate advertising campaign.

These 28 publishers are 28 friendly allies for you, each holding the key to the situation in his own locality.

This plan, in fact, helps you in every step —with jobber, dealer and consumer.

Write for rates and full particulars about our help in gaining distribution for you.

THE IOWA DAILY PRESS ASSOCIATION

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Ames Tribune
Boone News-Republican
Burlington Gazette
Burlington Hawk-Eye
Cedar Falls Record
Cedar Rapids Gazette
Centerville Iowegian & Citizen
Council Bluffs Nonpareil
Davenport Democrat
Davenport Times
Des Moines Capital
Des Moines Register and Tribune
Dubuque Telegraph-Herald
Dubuque Times-Journal
Fort Dodge Messenger
Fort Madison Democrat
Iowa City Press-Citizen
Keokuk Gate-City
Marshalltown Times Republican
Mason City Globe-Gazette
Muscatine Journal
Oelwein Register
Ottumwa Courier
Sioux City Journal
Sioux City Tribune
Washington Journal
Waterloo Evening Courier
Waterloo Tribune

IOWA—WHERE EVERY FAMILY READS A DAILY NEWSPAPER

FOODS

The New York Herald Tribune dominates the morning field in food advertising in New York, the world's greatest market. Here are the lineage records for 1926, to date as compared with the same period in 1925:

	1926	1925	Gain	Loss
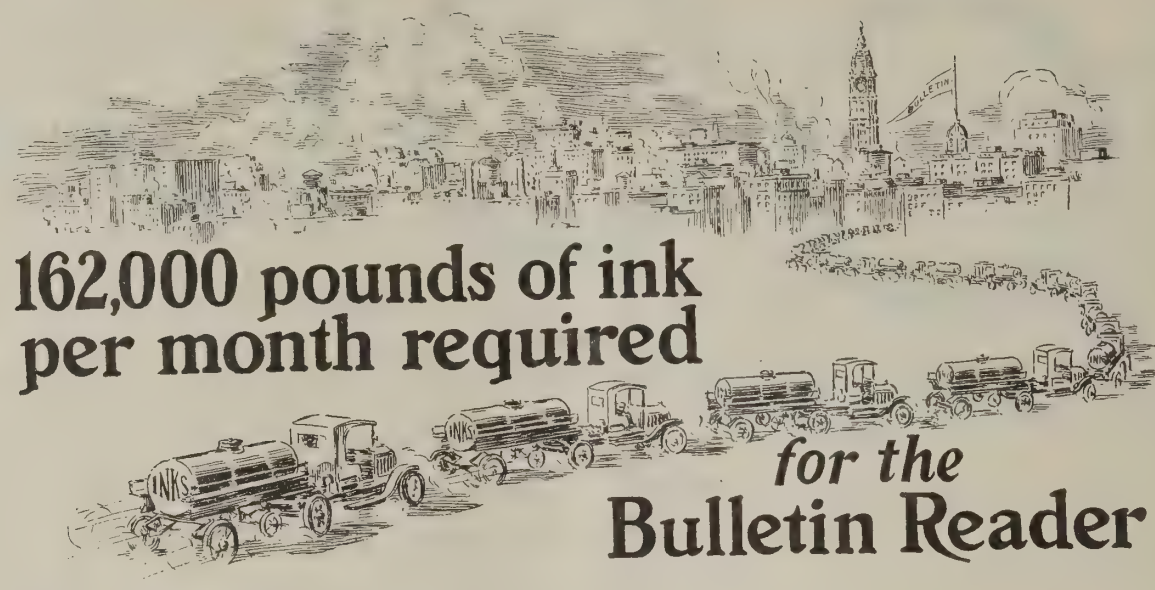
Herald Tribune	100,448	64,608	35,840
Times - - -	59,484	56,546	2,938
World - - -	33,718	43,598		9,880
American - -	46,048	90,356		44,308
News - - -	81,614	85,200		3,586

And here are the advertisers who used the above lineage:



Astor Coffee
Walter Baker & Co.
Bamby Bread
Basy Bread
Bau Olive Oil
Beech-Nut Packing Co.
Benediction Foods
Blue Label Ketchup
Bordens Farm Products
James Butler Stores
*Chocolat-Menier
*Flake
Fleischman Co., The
A. Goodman & Sons, Inc.
Heinz Products
Hydrox Ice Cream
India Tea
Kellogg's Corn Flakes
Kraft Cheese
La Montagne, Inc.
(B. & G. Olive Oil)
Lea & Perrins Sauce
Lester & Toner, Inc.
(Seapure Oysters)
Long Island Ducks
Malt Breakfast Food
*Maxwell House Coffee
Mazola
Mission Garden Tea
*Old Fashioned Millers, Inc.
Phoenix Cheese
*Phinney's Coffee
*Pin Money Pickles
*Post's Bran Flakes
Quaker Oats
Reid Ice Cream Corp.
*Salada Tea
Sanka Coffee
Sunkist California Oranges
Sat-Ten Chocolate
Sheffield Farms
*Shredded Wheat
Swift & Co.
*Triscuit
Virginia Dare Extract Co.
White Rose Bread
Hartley's Marmalade

 The ten advertisers listed above whose names are indicated by an asterisk used the Herald Tribune exclusively in the New York morning field.*

The Herald Tribune is the logical keystone for a successful advertising campaign in the world's greatest market.

New York Herald Tribune

FIRST TO LAST THE TRUTH — NEWS ~ EDITORIALS ~ ADVERTISEMENTS

162,000 pounds of ink per month required for the Bulletin Reader

158 automobiles and 10,000 Bulletin carriers are employed daily in distributing The Evening Bulletin.

104 printing press units (largest newspaper printing plant in the world), using 225 tons of newsprint paper and 6,000 pounds of ink, are used by The Philadelphia Bulletin in printing more than half a million copies of this newspaper daily.

The reader confidence enjoyed by The Evening Bulletin is attested by the fact that The Bulletin's circulation is the largest in Philadelphia and one of the largest in the United States.

The Bulletin goes into practically every home in and around the great city of Philadelphia and makes it possible to reach this huge market of over three million people—third largest in America—through one newspaper at one cost.

With a circulation of over half a million copies daily The Bulletin dominates Philadelphia.

"In Philadelphia nearly everybody reads The Bulletin"

The Evening Bulletin.

PHILADELPHIA'S NEWSPAPER

Net Paid Daily Average for Six Months Ending March 31st, 1926

533,169

(Copyright 1926—Bulletin Company)

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Issued every Saturday, forms closing ten P. M. Thursday preceding Publication by The Editor & Publisher Co., J. W. Brown, Publisher; Marlen E. Pew, Editor; Suite 1700 Times Building, 42nd St. at Broadway, New York. Telephone, Bryant 3052-3053-3054-3055-3056. Charter Member Audit Bureau of Circulations.

Vol. 58 | NEW YORK, MAY 22, 1926 | No. 52

London Proprietors' Pact With Unions Hailed as Charter of Press Freedom

Maintenance of Post-Strike Agreement Made Matter of Honor—Joint Board to Sit Daily on Disputes —Employers Win Right to "Employ, Promote and Discharge" without Strike Danger

By JOSEPH GRIGG
London Correspondent, New York Sun

(Exclusive Cable to Editor & Publisher)

LONDON, May 19.—"A new charter of freedom for the press" is the description given in important quarters of Fleet street to the terms on which London newspapers resumed publication after the strike and which were accepted by the 10 unions involved in the production of newspapers. The formulation of this charter, which contains six clauses absorbed the attention of members of the Newspaper Proprietors' Association exclusively for more than three days and one of its most unique features is the provision that there shall be a joint committee of six, three representing the proprietors and three the union members which shall sit each day at three o'clock to decide any questions which arise out of interpretation of any of the other five clauses.

Observance of agreements in the newspaper trade hereafter shall be regarded as a matter of honor affecting each individual employer or employe, according to the new pact.

In recent years the greatest menace to peace in the various newspaper offices of London came largely from the unskilled workers, many of them hired from day to day and paid daily, who were included in a loose-jointed, but very comprehensive union known as the Natsopa, or National Society of Operative Printers and Assistants.

Northcliffe's beneficence and interest in the lower categories of newspaper workers has been held largely responsible for the formation of this union, which eventually obtained recruits from many quarters, sometimes, it is alleged by considerable pressure and to the discomfort of other unions. As it grew in strength, it reached out even for editorial secretaries and clerks. Among its most unskilled members were machine-minders in the pressroom and packers, who count and tie up bundles of papers, somewhat similar labor to that performed by flyboys and "juniors" in pressrooms of metropolitan American newspapers.

It was in these lower categories that the direct actionists found the best material on which to work. On more than one occasion in recent months objection to editorial policy was taken by this class of employes and such tactics reached their climax with the refusal to print the Daily Mail on the eve of the general strike because of its editorial "For King and Country," an action in defiance of trades union leaders.

The first clause of the "new freedom" provides that "there shall be no interference with the contents of newspapers owned by members of this association." To all intents and purposes this makes impossible any tyrannical action by those who have ridden the high horse in the past.

The second clause provides that there shall be no victimization of any union members who remained at work during the strike in their own or any other office and equally provides against victimization of workmen by employers, which is fully in keeping with the spirit in which Premier Baldwin wants the issues developing out of the strike to be settled.

The third clause provides that there shall be no interference with the management of business or with the right of the management to "employ, promote, or discharge members of their staffs." This hits at the principle of making promotions because of seniority rather than by merit and also gives the employer the right to discharge an employe for cause without the fear of bringing on a "lightning strike." It goes still further in making clear that private secretaries and department managers need not be required in future to be members of the unions. Because they were members of the Natsopa Union, many private secretaries were forced to go out in the recent strike with other workers though reluctant. It was always the objective of the Natsopas to bring in as many secretaries as possible, since the latter were in position to enjoy the editors' complete confidence and know all that was going on regarding management affairs.

Clause four of the charter provides that there shall be no chapel meetings during working hours. Again this is aimed principally at the less skilled workers, for on the slightest provocation, sometimes imaginary, these meetings have been summoned in numerous offices at any stage of publication processes.

The other two clauses, making maintenance of the agreement a matter of personal honor, and providing machinery for adjudication of disputes, were mentioned previously.

The unions involved, besides the Natsopas, are the National Union of Journalists, which includes reporters, copy-readers, and subordinate executive editors; the London Society of Compositors, corresponding to the Typographical Union; Correctors of the Press, which is a separate union of proofreaders and assistants; Machine Managers, who correspond to journeymen pressmen in the United States; Process Workers, whose duties are performed by photo-engravers in America; Paper Workers, whose work is similar in part to that of the paper handlers in large American cities; Stereotypers, Electricians, and Engineers.

No change apparently has been made in the scale and hours of work under the agreement by which London newspaper publication was resumed. The new conditions, which are not unlike a portion of the agreement concluded by the New York City newspaper publishers and the International Printing Pressmens' & Assistants Union after the 1923 snap strike, are intended to prevent interference by irresponsible workmen with the editorial and business management of the newspapers. Attempted interference of this character was also involved in the New York controversy which for more than two years preceded the strike in September, 1923, and the strike itself was precipitated by the vote of junior members of the union, influenced by malcontents among the older members. There has been no trouble in New York pressrooms since the conclusion of the new agreement more than two years ago.

Dispatches from London indicate that the government printing offices have gone further than the publishers in their new relations with the unions. It is reported that the government printing works are no longer "society houses," or in American idiom, "closed shops." The only "open shop" provision in the newspaper contract is that which prevents the unionization of secretaries and department heads.

A graphic picture of the situation at the Daily Mail office, where labor's threatened censorship became a fact, is given in the New York Sun of May 17,

(Continued on page 44)

ZINOVIEFF LETTER INCIDENT BEHIND LABOR MISTRUST OF BRITISH PRESS

That Is What Walter Lippmann Was Told by Strike Leaders Who Agreed Newspaper Suppression Was Wrong in Principle—World Editor Also Visited Geneva

WHY did British labor attempt to muzzle the press during the general strike?

Walter Lippmann, editor of the New York World's editorial page, threw new light on that question on his return to New York from abroad this week. Mr. Lippmann was in London when the general strike started, and remained until just before its close, May 12.

Walter Lippmann

Trade union leaders told him, he said, that the reason for the press gag could be traced back to the widespread publication by British newspapers of the Zinovieff letter just before the last general election when Ramsay MacDonald went down to defeat.

" 'Labor generally was persuaded that the Zinovieff letter was a fraud', strike leaders told me," Mr. Lippmann said. " 'True,' they reasoned,' it was bad to stop the presses; but our newspapers had shown themselves untrustworthy. They had shown themselves to be mischief makers.'

"Thus the first move in the strike came in the press rooms, even though there was a general admission among labor leaders that they were making a mistake to abolish the newspapers. The fear that British papers were all rigged out against them, overruled the belief that censorship was bad in principle."

The alleged letter from Gregory Zinovieff of the Third International, urging revolution in England dominated the British election campaign in 1924. It was given out by the Foreign Office and seemed to link England's labor government with Soviet Russia. While it has been declared a forgery, the whole British press accepted the "Red Plot" as genuine and Premier Ramsay MacDonald went down to defeat. Because of the enormous publicity given the Zinovieff letter, the feeling became general among labor people—and England is 90 per cent industrialized—that the press was biased against trade unions.

"Personally I don't know whether or not the Zinovieff letter was a forgery," Mr. Lippmann continued. "Use of it by the press in the campaign, even though the letter was honest, might, however, be considered fraudulent."

Mr. Lippmann preferred to be reporter rather than editor in discussing the strike with Editor & Publisher.

"How was public opinion formed in England without publication of organs of public opinion?" was a question he said was impossible to answer without being editorial, and he declined to answer it. And in regard to the Zinovieff affair, he was insistent that his word be taken rather as that of a reporter describing British labor psychology as analyzed by the labor leaders, than as an expression of his own belief or opinion.

"I do not want to pass judgment on the British press," he said. "But it is true I did see a great many labor leaders during the strike in London. They told me they did not agree with censorship in principle, but their followers were confident that the press could not be trusted. Conservatives, on the other hand, told me that labor's press gag was the one indefensible move made throughout the strike.

"There were no extremists in control

(Continued on page 44)

APPRAISAL FINISHED, KANSAS CITY STAR TRUSTEES NOW DISCUSS PAPER'S SALE

Valuation of Nelson Estate Reached by Auditors Not Disclosed —Several Prospective Buyers Negotiating, Including Staff Executives

TRUSTEES of the William Rockhill Nelson Trust are now engaged in discussions directed toward a sale of the Kansas City Star and the Kansas City Times, the newspaper properties owned by the Nelson estate. When such sale will take place the trustees say they are unable to state, except that the will of Mr. Nelson directs that the properties shall be sold within two years at the best price and the best terms.

The trustees, known as University Trustees, having been appointed under the direction of the will by the presidents of the universities of Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma, gave out a statement May 14 announcing that they had prepared all necessary information for prospective purchasers. The statement said:

"As trustees of the William Rockhill Nelson Trust, we have completed an inventory and appraisement of the plant and appurtenances of the Kansas City Star and Times and are now in position personally to confer with and supply information to bonafide prospective purchasers with a view to the sale of the properties.

"WILLIAM VOLKER,
"J. C. NICHOLS
"HERBERT V. JONES.
"Secretary,
"Trustees of the William Rockhill Nelson Trust."

Mrs. Laura Nelson Kirkwood, daughter of William R. Nelson, and wife of Irwin Kirkwood, editor of the Star, died Feb. 27. By her death the whole of the Nelson fortune passed from Mrs. Kirkwood to the University Trustees who will administer the estate and invest the income in works and reproductions of works of the fine arts such as paintings, engravings, sculpture, tapestries and rare books, which shall be for the enjoyment of the public.

Mrs. Kirkwood's estate, valued at approximately $2,000,000 has been left to her husband, Irwin Kirkwood, during his life time after which it will go toward a building to house the W. R. Nelson objects of art. A half million dollar estate was left by Mr. Nelson's widow toward the erection of a building for the same purpose.

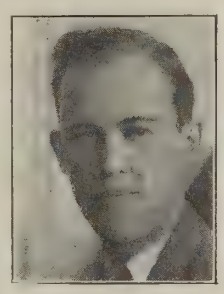
When asked by EDITOR & PUBLISHER when the newspaper properties would be sold, Herbert V. Jones, of the trustees, and secretary of the board, stated that it would be impossible to hazard a guess. He said it would all depend upon the offers themselves and the view of the trustees as to whether the prices offered were in keeping with the value of the property. In the event the trustees should feel that it was desirable, the newspapers might continue to be operated for some time, while the trustees considered various proposals from prospective purchasers.

The information that has been assembled by the trustees contains an appraisal of the real estate upon which the publishing plant is located, the building itself and an inventory and appraisal of the plant equipment.

The trustees said they did not care to make public the names of those interested in considering the property with a view to purchase. They said, however, they were dealing only with principals.

It is known here that one of the prospective purchasers of the property is the present organization, which has operated The Star since the death of Nelson 11 years ago. A member of the Star's staff who is in position to speak for it said:

"The Star's organization headed by Irwin Kirkwood as editor, will offer every dollar the properties are worth and upon which they will pay a fair return".



This organization includes practically all of the department heads of the two newspapers and is headed by the present executives all of whom were trained under the Nelson regime and have been with the Star many years. These executives are: Irwin Kirkwood, editor; A. F. Seested, general manager; Ralph Stout, managing editor; George B. Longan, assistant managing editor; Henry J. Haskell, associate editor.

The value of the Nelson estate and likewise of the two newspapers is problematical. The newspapers represent the larger part of the value of the estate. The trustees have made a visit to Chicago and Eastern cities to obtain first hand information as to newspaper values. These values, the trustees are reported to have found, differed greatly depending on the field, competition, the natural hazard of newspaper operation and the varient views of newspaper owners.

McCANNA PROMOTED

Chicago Tribune's Radio Manager Now Directing Business Survey Dept.

B. T. McCanna, recently manager of radio for the Chicago Tribune, has been named manager of the Tribune's Business Survey Department, effective this week, that newspaper has announced.

B. T. McCANNA

The Business Survey includes, in addition to research work for the national advertising department, the paper's varied promotion activities, the Public Service Office, of which a new branch is being opened in the Union Trust building, and the radio stations, WGN and WLIB.

George Morris, who has been manager of the department, takes the newly-created post of copy-chief, and Arthur Gerken becomes assistant manager.

McCanna has been with the Tribune five years, coming originally to the Business Survey. In 1924 he left to become promotion manager of the new Liberty Weekly. Six months ago, when the executive personnel of Liberty moved to New York, he was made manager of radio for the Tribune.

PLAN TABLOID FOR DETROIT

Tabloid Newspapers, Inc., Incorporated for $100,000 to Print World Graphic

A tabloid "picture newspaper" for Detroit in the near future was indicated with the incorporation in Lansing recently of Tabloid Newspapers, Inc., a company headed by Edward N. Marcus. Although rather meager information was forthcoming as to the details of the enterprise when the articles of incorporation were filed with the secretary of state here, it was definitely stated that the purpose of the corporation is to publish the World Graphic, a tabloid paper.

In addition to Marcus, who is named as president, officers include Robert A. Kerr, secretary, and C. J. Dockarty was named as the third incorporator.

The new company's authorized capitalization is $100,000, of which $10,000 has been subscribed and $1,000 paid in.

McClure's Appears as Hearst Magazine

First number of McClure's Magazine under Hearst ownership appeared last week. Arthur McKeogh, former newspaper man, is editor. A $20,000 novel contest was announced.

FIRST PAGE OF N. Y. WORLD RADIOED TO LONDON

A COPYRIGHTED story to the New York World Thursday told of publication in the London Morning Post of that date a photo-radiogram of the first page of the World of May 7, the object being to show Londoners how the first page of the British Gazette, official government strike paper, was sent to New York and reproduced.

The Post commented that many more New Yorkers than Londoners saw Winston Churchill's initial effort, since copies of the Gazette were practically unprocurable in London, selling at ten shillings each.

"Fleet Street is talking to-day," the story said, "on the basis of the World's radio pictures, of possible four-page editions of the newspapers of New York and other big cities, and of four-page numbers of the London dailies radioed across, brought up to full-size and printed from photographic plates."

FLORIDA DAILY SUSPENDS

Plant City News Had Been in Receiver's Hands for Several Months

PLANT CITY, Fla., May 18—The Plant City (Fla.) Daily News operated locally since June 1, 1925, announced suspension of publication this afternoon. The announcement followed several months of operation under a receivership. It is stated that a commercial printing business operated by the publishers, the Pierce Printing Company, prior to entering the newspaper field, will be continued, so far as now known. The News was published as an afternoon daily, omitting the Saturday issue and publishing a Sunday morning edition. It carried the leased wire report of International News Service.

The suspension of the Daily News leaves the Plant City Courier as the only daily outside of Tampa in Hillsboro County. The Courier, an afternoon six-day paper, was recently elected to membership in the Associated Press. It is published by the Plant City Courier Publishing Company, Inc., with W. K. Zewadski, Jr., of Tampa as president and J. R. Wheeler, formerly of St. Paul as editor and general manager.

MARBLE CONTESTS START

National Champion to Be Picked in Atlantic City Week of June 27

Forty-five dailies in as many cities of the country are selecting local marble champions who will compete in the fourth annual national tournament in Atlantic City the week of June 27. Expenses of the local winners to Atlantic City and return will be defrayed by the newspapers.

On Sunday, June 27, the winners will be given a party in Philadelphia by the Bulletin, which will include a motor trip to Valley Forge.

Many entertainments have been arranged for the boys in Atlantic City during the week of play, according to Harold Place, promotion director for the Ohio Scripps-Howard Newspapers, who has charge of the contest.

Following the tournament the contestants will visit the Sesquicentennial Exposition in Philadelphia.

Daily Planning Byrd Monument

The Richmond (Va.) News-Leader has launched a state-wide campaign for funds to erect a monument to Lieut.-Comm. R. E. Byrd, who recently flew over the North Pole in an airplane. The newspaper opened the subscription list with $1,000. Lieut.-Comm. Byrd is a brother of Gov. H. F. Byrd, of Winchester, owner and publisher of the Harrisonburg News-Record and Winchester Star.

LAWSON WILL PROBLEM IN CHICAGO COURT

Trustee and Beneficiaries Differ Whether Daily News Income Between Death and Sale Belongs to Estate or Publication

Judicial assistance in interpreting certain clauses of the will of Victor F. Lawson, late editor and owner of the Chicago Daily News, has been asked in a suit filed in the Circuit court at Chicago. The suit was filed by the Illinois Merchants Trust Company, executor and trustee of the property, as the result of a dispute between the heirs to Mr. Lawson's $20,300,000 estate and the trustee.

The chief point of difference revolved around the disposition of the profits of the Daily News during the period from Aug. 19, 1925, when Mr. Lawson died, to Jan. 1, 1926, when the paper was sold to a syndicate headed by Walter A. Strong, business manager of the Daily News.

Some of the beneficiaries are of the opinion that the profits during the period in question should be treated as income and not be turned into the body of the estate. The court was asked to answer the question:

"Are the profits of the Daily News between Mr. Lawson's death and the sale of the paper applicable to the payment of income to which the legatees are entitled?"

The bill revealed the exact purchase price of the Daily News as $13,671,704.30, for the newspaper property, including plant and goodwill, but excluding real estate.

Planning Tabloid for Montreal

A charter is being granted to the Montreal World Publishing Company to publish a newspaper in Montreal, with a capitalization of $49,500. It is understood the head of the new company is John H. Roberts, former publisher of the Montreal Morning Sun. The paper will begin publication as a morning tabloid around June 1, with Leslie M. Roberts, the publisher's son, as managing editor.

Chicago-St. Paul Air Mail June 7

Service on contract air mail route No. 9 from Chicago, Ill., by way Milwaukee and La Crosse, Wis., to St. Paul and Minneapolis, will be inaugurated June 7, Postmaster General New has announced. When this route is in operation it will afford a 14 hour service by air mail between New York and St. Paul and Minneapolis.

Paul Block Buys Westchester Estate

Paul Block, owner of the Newark Star-Eagle, Memphis News Scimitar and a number of other newspapers, has purchased Overlook Farm, a country estate situated between Portchester and White Plains, close to the suburban home of Mrs. Whitelaw Reid. It is considered one of the finest estates in Westchester County.

Plans for N. Y. Newspaper Supper

Joseph Mulcahey, managing editor of the New York Evening Journal, and Joseph Canavan, night city editor, New York World, both former district men, will be toastmasters at the second annual beefsteak supper of the New York District Reporters' Association to be held at the Hotel McAlpin Roof Garden, starting at midnight, May 22.

Campbell Joins Chicago Company

W. S. Campbell, manager of classified advertising, Toledo Blade, has become general manager of the Home News Publishing Company, Chicago, operating a chain of 50 weekly newspapers in the Midwest. Mr. Campbell will have charge of advertising. He formerly was classified manager of the Newark Star-Eagle and Detroit Journal.

MILLION FOR POLITICAL ADS IN PENNSYLVANIA

Golden Stream of Dollars Poured Into Newspaper Tills by Candidates in Hot Keystone State Primary Fight—$3,500 Spent in One Small Daily in 30 Days

By ERROL DERBY

(City Editor, Greenburg (Pa.) Review-Tribune)

ONE dollar a vote in newspaper advertising can be conservatively figured as the cost of the sensational Pennsylvania primary election fought out at the polls, May 18.

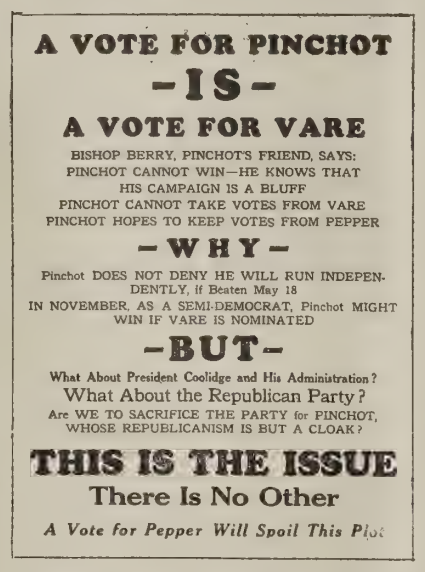
A "Pinchot-for-Senator" ad which ran three columns by 11 inches

When several of the wealthiest men in ıe Keystone state made up their minds) win a political campaign, others be- des the candidates profited.

And so in this Pennsylvania senatorial ıd gubernatorial tangle, newspapers, ıagzines, telegraph and telephone com- ınies and Uncle Sam figured prominently n the money." They corralled probably ıe largest portion of the ducats which ɔured from the pockets of the candidates ıd their backers.

How much money was actually spent to in the senatorial and gubernatorial ɔminations in the Republican and Demo- ·atic parties probably will never be ıown. No federal or state law neces- tates strict checking of accounts.

All sides and all observers have con- ·ded, however, that in no state campaign the history of the United States did ɔllars roll along like waters over the iagara. Certainly never before did ennsylvanians, and any others who kept ·es peeled on the state newspapers fail notice flood of paid advertising which sued from the presses of the state night ıd day weeks before the actual voting ɔurs.



While the Pennsylvania campaign may ıve been slow getting under way, yet ·ice the various organizations started to bor in earnest, there was no let up. Al- ost to the time the earliest riser started r the polls, the radio came into last inute play and the bed time stories of ɔusands of Pennsylvania voters were the ·ices of George Wharton Pepper, John Fisher and William S. Vare coming ·it of the air—not to say anything of ·e final publicity strokes of Governor ifford Pinchot or the Dauphin county ·monstrations for Edward E. Beidle- ɔan.

There are 1,127 periodicals published in ennsylvania according to the latest . W. Ayres & Sons directory and of that ımber 174 are daily newspapers; 606 eekly, 6 tri-weekly, 26 semi-weekly, 4 rtnightly, 11 semi-monthly and the re- ·ainder monthly or scattered mis- llaneously throughout the calender. early every organ, distinctly state in character, shared in the pork barrel of political advertising and publicity.

The big variance in rates, from 10 cents an inch up, makes an absolute accounting of the total advertising sum spent impossible. It would take a Roger Babson days making graphs and diagrams of inches, rates and total spent in each individual publication in the Keystone state, while more hours would be utilized in computing the entire sum.

In one county seat daily newspaper, in what is regarded as the largest "country" county in the state, approximately $3,500 was received for political advertising in 30 days.

With that as an average, and this paper did not come out of the short end of the horn by any means, it may be estimated that if the foregoing volume were placed in every daily newspaper in the state at the same rate the total received was in the neighborhood of $600,000. But remember that is figuring on an average and with a rate which is probably lower than in 50 per cent of the cities in the commonwealth. The $3,500 was spent with a newspaper which has a circulation of about 16,000.

Typical of the Pepper campaign advertisements. This copy ran 11 inches on four columns.

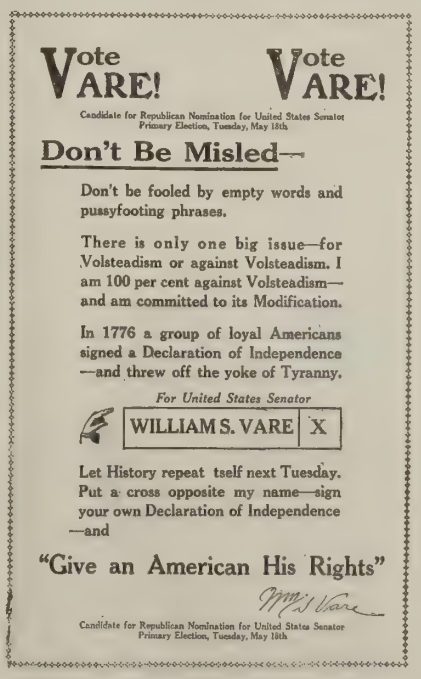
I leave it to the reader what was the price paid for the same amount of space in any of the newspapers which have circulation figures the size of those in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Scranton, Harrisburg, Reading, Erie, Johnstown or Altoona—or of any number of other cities in the state.

To arrive at our estimate of a million dollars spent for advertising we cannot forget the 606 weekly publications whose editors and publishers rubbed their hands in glee when they saw the political plates and mats heading toward their offices—or of the editors and publishers of the dozens of other Pennsylvania publications who had but a twice or thrice a week chance to get their share—and of the Sunday papers which culled many of the full pages.

In other years the strictly rural press had been slighted in state-wide advertising schedules, but they certainly swung along on the "cashing in" this year.

Thus the total sum spent easily hit the million mark. It was estimated also the total vote cast would be about a million —(this being written on election eve)— dollar a head.

Attributes of candidates and the lesser qualities of their brethern in the campaign screamed at one another from the banner heads of the page, double page, half and quarter page advertisements which ran almost incessantly in the larger newspapers once the battle got half under way. And as the advertising increased so did its language.



Charges of falsehood and discrimination floated along on press agent's phraseology as easily as water falls off a duck's back. Platforms and principles vied with one another from saving the Republican and Democratic parties of the nation, to the upholding of President Coolidge and keeping the United States safe for Democracy.

From "Give an American his rights," of Congressman William S. Vare to the pleas to mothers and women of the Pepper-Fisher-Smith-Woodward coherts that "a vote for Pinchot is a vote for Vare" and the Governor's "they won't stand for a Vare or a Straddler," advertisements mounted in intensity as the campaign wore on to the last hours and nerves became frayed from the onslaughts of every hostile organization.

Wherever any campaign committee sensed that the other fellows were cutting swaths on strength previously built up, a full page in the nearest newspaper was nothing. What of the cost?

Newspapers made up special editions, special sections, and almost daily added extra pages to care for the increased advertising. Candidates were solicited in few cases—they didn't have to be.

Daily for about three weeks on nearly every city editor's desk mail matter and telegraph material kept up a constant stream. Half a dozen letters, special delivery, each containing several pages of Pepper-Fisher material, statements, news developments and related campaign propaganda—this was but one day's hand-out. While this publicity organization handled the most material, similar work came in from the Pinchot, Vare, Beidleman,

A Vare broadside which netted the paper running it a total of 1190 lines.

Tener, Phillips and other scattered candidacies in the primary of a century.

So far as is known, or has come to light, there has been but one newspaper in Pennsylvania which refused to accept political advertising in which a candidate, his sponsors or friends was lambasted.

"Candidates may praise themselves," said the Johnstown Tribune, "but may abuse no one—at least not in our advertising columns."

Personally, I would have liked to have had a portion of the money spent for Uncle Sam's stamps; or of the money which poured into the coffers of the telegraph and telephone companies; of the financial gains of the radio broadcasting companies; of the rent spent for handsome office space and equipment; for the tours of candidates; for the direct mail advertising literature; for the banners, signs, cards, emblems, for the watchers' fees at the polls on election day—for this, that and that, and so forth, on and forever more!

One of the unusual publicity stunts in the western Pennsylvania campaign was the organization of the "All-Star" tour, a group of nationally known athletes and prominent collegiate and high school stars who toured for three days in the interest of the Pepper-Fisher ticket. The "All-Stars" were headed by "Jim" Marks, president of the Kiski school for boys at Saltsburg, and was declared a big success.

Advertising for the campaign was placed without regard to editorial convictions of the respective newspapers. Display advertising was handled by the following companies: For Governor Pinchot, The E. S. Edmonson Company, of Philadelphia; for Congressman Vare, Bloomingdale & Weiler, Philadelphia; while the advertising for the Pepper-Fisher ticket was placed by the campaign staffs in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, the latter under the direction of James B. Sansom and the former under Robert M. Vail, both experienced political men. Newspapermen in every county figured prominently in the campaigns in their districts while on the state tours of the more prominent contestants press association and Pittsburgh and Philadelphia newspaper men trailed.

No national campaign was ever more thoroughly covered!

TO CONTINUE LOS ANGELES NEWS

Stockholders Ask Vanderbilt Family to Cancel Interest in Tabloid

Stockholders of the Los Angeles (Cal.) Illustrated Daily News, formerly a Vanderbilt tabloid, meeting in Los Angeles May. 19, voted to continue publication.

A telegram was sent to the Vanderbilt family in New York by the stockholders saying an attempt was being made by "certain forces" to force the immediate sale of the paper at a sacrifice which would mean a total loss. The Vanderbilt family was asked to have all its interests in the paper cancelled so that the stockholders might purchase the paper. The Vanderbilt family made loans to Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr., for his newspapers amounting to about $1,000,000.

In New York, Dudley Field Malone, attorney for Vanderbilt, Jr., said he had no new announcement to make.

Woodbridge Coming Home

C. King Woodbridge, president of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, who has been touring England and France in the interest of the association, is scheduled to leave Southampton for New York on the Berengaria, May 22.

Employes Welcome Publisher Home

Employes of the Moline (Ill.) Dispatch to the number of 125 gathered at the Hotel LeClaire May 14, to welcome Publisher P. S. McGlynn and Mrs. McGlynn home after their three months' tour of the Mediterranean.

Former S. C. Publisher Dies

Funeral services for Thurlow S. Carter, 68, who died at Kingstree, S. C., last Sunday, were held in Lancaster, S. C., Tuesday morning. Mr. Carter was for years owner and publisher of the Lancaster Ledger, until it was merged with the Lancaster News.

MAIL, NEWSPAPER WASTE, ADVERTISING CO-OPERATION, INLAND PRESS TOPICS

Question of Reducing Cost Figures to Dollars and Cents Instead of Percentages Deferred to October Meeting—Wiley, Strong, Johnson Among Speakers

(By Telegraph to Editor & Publisher)

CHICAGO, May 19.—Determination to defer until the October meeting the question whether or not to reduce cost finding system to terms of dollars and cents instead of percentages, the discussion of waste in newspaper production, and a determination to make a concerted effort to obtain relief from excessive war time second class postal rates, were outstanding features of the Inland Daily Press Association meeting held here Tuesday and Wednesday at the Hotel Sherman.

Will H. McConnell, Springfield (Ill.) State Journal, chairman of the Postal Committee of the Inland told of the recent action of the Sub-Committee of the Senate recommending five important postal rate changes. None of these effect the newspaper rate. Mr. McConnell urged Inland members to confer with Congressmen and Senators before the next session of Congress at which time the Senate Sub-Committee promised recommendations looking toward second class rate relief.

Louis Wiley, business manager of the New York Times pointed out wastes in the publication of a newspaper which were avoidable and some which at the present time were unavoidable. His remarks are printed elsewhere in this issue.

Richard Henry Little, conductor of the "Line O' Type" column in the Chicago Tribune, put the editors in good humor with a talk on the beauties of Chicago and the dangers of the neighboring town of Cicero. Betty Walker, of the Chicago Herald and Examiner editorial staff, talked on the kind of news preferred by women. She said the results of a questionnaire, of constant questioning of friends and other women she came in contact with led her to believe that news appeals vary as much with women as men. Mrs. Frank Eastman, "Sara Moore" of the Chicago Tribune Syndicate spoke on the equipment needed by women in the newspaper field.

Walter A. Strong, publisher of the Chicago Daily News, declared that the development of the newspaper business of the last 15 years, particularly within the last five years, has made it possible for the smaller newspapers to make the larger city daily unnecessary to the small town reader, citing in that development the increased advertising, the growth of syndicated services and the methods of communication.

"The newspapers in towns of from 5,000 to 100,000 are rendering a local journalistic and advertising service to their communities much better than a paper from Chicago for instance, can render," Mr. Strong said. "The same appeal that makes a Chicago paper great in its own territory makes a small town paper great in its territory."

Mr. Strong spoke of the growth of newspaper advertising from the days when the nostrum peddler and other charlatans were virtually the only users of space, to the present time when the newspaper allows only trustworthy firms the use of its advertising columns.

Mr. Strong said that while some waste still occurred in advertising, he liked "to think that advertising can finally be dignified to the extent of an exact science."

"All of the indications," he said, "are that we are going in that direction if for no other reason than it is good business. If we expect the newspaper business to continue on its present sound basis, we are compelled to recognize that the interests of the advertiser and the newspaper are mutual and that advertising must pay."

Discussing circulation Mr. Strong declared that the Audit Bureau of Circulations is rapidly approaching the time when it may be able to show not only the methods obtaining circulation but its character also.

"I urge the abandonment of controversial statements in publicity and a greater and more effective use of the demonstrations of character," he said.

Edward W. Cochrane, sports editor, Kansas City Journal-Post, in a talk on the value of the sports department to the business office, declared it was valuable chiefly as a circulation builder, but also was of importance as an advertising medium. As the result of a check kept, he learned that sport page readers were divided approximately 37 per cent women, 8 per cent children, the remainder men. He said that the sport page had gone far since the old days when only professional sports were reported, that the amateur news now outweighs the professional.

He declared the business office was overlooking two valuable advertising fields, first, in that professional baseball, wrestling, etc., were not giving the newspapers the advertising revenue they should, and that it is up to the business office to see that it gets more. The second is, in view of his finding as to the number of women readers, that the section is not used as a medium for advertising women's merchandise.

William H. Johnson, president of Editors Feature Service of New York aroused an animated discussion on the value of news features in discussing the topic of how to use them to best advantage and make them pay. Mr. Johnson was of the firm opinion that unless the editor was completely sold on his feature to the extent that he could exploit it, he should throw it out completely.

He stressed the fundamental necessity of appealing to readers between the ages of 15 and 30 with features which would hold circulation and create additional circulation.

Mr. Johnson criticized allotting increased costs to newspapers of features which have been popularized especially when the circulation of such feature had grown without an increased cost to the syndicate.

Joseph M. Stephenson, of the South Bend (Ind.) News-Times explained a form of "perpetual" advertising contract which he has been using with success, basing his charges to the advertiser exclusively on circulation readjusted semi-annually. His contract calls for three cents per column inch per thousand. As circulation increases or decreases his contract calls for an adjustment of rate automatically.

Mr. Stephenson's plan has been adopted by a number of the members of the Michigan League of Dailies, and the speaker claimed it could be adapted to the use of a newspaper of any sized circulation. Aside from guaranteeing a rate commensurate with increased circulation costs, the speaker declared that the plan created confidence with his advertisers.

Marvin H. Creager, managing editor, Milwaukee Journal, discussing "The Kind of Newspaper That Gets the Business," declared that two main things needed are "horse sense and hard work."

"First of all, of course," Mr. Creager said, "a newspaper must be published entirely for its readers. No other interest save that of the readers should be considered if a newspaper hopes to gain and hold and deserve confidence—and without confidence no paper can hope consistently to get business.

He advocated closer attention to home town news and the use of less syndicated matter. A successful newspaper must engage in campaigns for the betterment of its home city and its citizens, he declared.

The coming years will find more women editors, was predicted by Miss Mary Daugherty of the Chicago Evening American. She compared the work of newspaper women in the past ten years and the more generous appreciation of their newspaper efforts which has led to the widening of the field for women in all branches of newspaper enterprise.

S. G. Goldthwaite, Boone (Ia.) News Republican, spoke on the World Press Congress, of which he is a director, to be held in Geneva, Switzerland, Sept. 14-18.

Secretary Tufford announced that through Editor & Publisher, the Inland can now boast of headquarters in both New York and Chicago, where members are welcome at any time.

For some time, it was stated, the association had been using the Editor & Publisher Chicago office, at 30 North Dearborn street, which is in charge of Lucile Brian Gilmore. With the addition of a number of rooms to its suite in the Times building, New York, one room has been set aside for Inland members. "Inland Daily Press Association," is lettered on the door, with desks, stationery, telephones, etc., available.

NEW YORK CITY EDITOR OFF FOR EUROPE

E. P. Bartnett, city editor of the New York Sun, with Mrs. Bartnett, photographed before sailing on the S.S. President Roosevelt this week, for a month's vacation in England and France.

POSTAL RATE REVISION UNLIKELY THIS YEAR

Canvass by Editor & Publisher Indicates Rejection of McKellar Amendments by House—Coolidge Supporting Post Office

By Bart Campbell
(Washington Correspondent of Editor & Publisher)

Washington, D. C., May 20.—Republican leaders of the House have served notice upon the newspaper publishing interests that any revision downward of second class postal rates at this session of Congress is extremely improbable.

The same Republican spokesmen in the lower chamber have informed representatives of these interests that if the Senate should pass a postal bill before the close of the present session it would be returned immediately to the upper chamber.

The Republican leaders take the ground that postal legislation, involving as it does the revenues of the Post Office Department, should originate with the House.

There is little disposition, however, by the Republican leaders of the Senate to press the desired postal legislation at this session.

They would prefer to permit such legislation to remain on the Senate calendar until the Congress takes a recess, probably the middle of next month, until December.

While Senator McKellar, Democrat, of Tennessee, told Editor & Publisher this week, that he intends to call up his amendments to the pending postal legislation at the earliest opportunity, a canvass made by Editor & Publisher seemed to indicate that even though the Senator should succeed in getting the amendments through the upper chamber they would not be acceptable to the House.

The McKellar amendments provide principally for a restoration of the 1920 rates and for the establishment of special bundle rates as advocated by the American Newspaper Publishers Association and the American Publishers Conference.

The Republican majority, while not actually opposing the two propositions, has taken the stand that this session is not the time to take action upon them. Instead they should be left until December, it is argued, or until the present second class rates have been in operation for at least a year.

Conferences held between spokesmen for the publishing interests and Republican leaders of both Senate and House have offered little or no encouragment to the latest drive of the former to secure some relief from the prevailing second class rates at this session.

Careful inquiries made of Republican leaders of both the Senate and House convinced Editor & Publisher that not until next year need the publishing interests, unless there is a radical and unexpected change in the existing situation, expect any revision of second class postal rates.

The administration is understood to be supporting the Post Office Department and the Republican leaders in their opposition to the demands of the publishing interests for relief.

"I am standing by the President," was the remark made to Editor & Publisher this week by Senator Moses, chairman of the Joint Congressional Committee appointed more than a year ago to investigate postal conditions and bring about an early readjustment of second class and other postal rates.

It may be stated in fairness to the Republican leaders of Congress, as well as to the administration, that the whole postal situation is so controversial that even though the majority did press for action on rates at this session any proposed legislation would probably be tied in knots by protracted debate and endless amendments until Congress recessed for the summer.

NEWSPAPERS AID IN SOLVING PACKERS' PROBLEM

Pacific Salmon Industry Turns to Advertising in Dailies to Clear Shelves of Million Case Annual Surplus —Pleased with Merchandising Co-operation

NEWSPAPERS in 29 cities are assisting in very material fashion to solve a serious surplus problem, faced by salmon packers of the Pacific Northwest.

For many seasons, this $50,000,000 food industry on the Pacific Coast has had to carry a surplus of more than 1,500,000 cases of pink salmon. Red salmon was popular enough, but there was a prejudice against the pink color. What advertising has attempted during the last 15 years has merely "a flash in the pan."

A group of packers got together this year, however, under the advertising guidance of Strang & Prosser, a Seattle agency, and agreed on a $200,000 advertising campaign. More than half of this sum was scheduled for purchase of space in the newspapers. The newspaper campaign started on March 11, with full page space and has continued weekly with smaller copy to the present time, and will come to a conclusion the last of June.

So successful has the drive been so far that the Associated Salmon Packers, the same the group has taken, has decided to make a co-operative advertising appropriation an annual investment. After this year, canned salmon in general will be advertised, it being thought that special promotion is no longer required to obviate the old color prejudice.

Quick sales in 90 days accomplished by newspaper space cleared dealer shelves of more than 1,000,000 cases of the surplus, according to W. T. Prosser, of Strang & Prosser, who was interviewed in New York this week by EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

"It has been an amazing demonstration through the newspapers of how advertising can sell and sell quickly," he declared. "Jobbers and brokers during the last two months are reporting sales increases of from 10 to 25 per cent. In almost all sections of the country salmon is selling briskly today."

Mr. Prosser declared that newspapers were made the backbone of the campaign, with magazines as a supplementary aid, because use of the newspapers could be adapted to market and distribution conditions. He pointed out that the packers by placing their copy in the newspapers were able to take advantage of the Lenten season. He highly praised the merchandising co-operation given by the newspapers in putting the drive across with local dealers.

"It has frequently been said that newspaper merchandising departments will promise almost everything to get business and that then they find it difficult to meet their obligations. The packers believed this to be true.

"The newspapers, however, have fulfilled their agreements in a 100 per cent fashion. They have gone further. It is not to be expected that newspapers actually sell the goods. That certainly is not their function. But the merchandising departments in this salmon campaign provided definite aid in closing the gap between the retailer and the public. They were able to get the dealers to display the goods we wanted to sell, when we wanted to sell them.

"Newspapers in every city have obtained from 50 to 500 dealer windows in their cities to hook-in with the campaign. In every instance they have done more than they were asked to do.

"Because of the assistance of the newspaper merchandising departments we were able to carry out in effect a huge national sale of canned salmon. One newspaper called on 1,000 local dealers and asked them to feature our canned product to synchronize with the advertising copy. A New York newspaper made a total of 5,000 calls for us.

"In similar fashion all the newspaper merchandising departments provided us with an important link with local retail dealers, bringing about quick sales action."

The copy used is of the coupon variety.

Newspaper copy published Thursday means canned salmon for Friday dinner

A $1,000 prize contest was announced, offering 50 prizes for the best pink salmon recipes submitted. The coupon invited readers to ask for a free booklet entitled "Forty Ways to Serve Salmon" and for the United States Department of Commerce Bulletin on the food value of salmon and its "beneficial iodine." The contest is scheduled to close August 31.

"The very speedy coupon response proved a convincing argument to the packers not only of the effectiveness of advertising in general, but also of its immediate value," Mr. Prosser declared.

"Because of this response and the sales increase, very definite plans have been drawn up for the future.

"We want to abolish the peaks and valleys in the sale of salmon. It is an all-year-round industry, but at present the hot weather season is proving the best for sales purposes. The best sales months now are June, July and August, primarily because canned salmon is largely eaten in salad form. To be sure, this is a splendid hot weather dish, but in winter months canned salmon can be used in appetizing ways in combination with other food. We want to even up sales—to place the industry on an evener keel."

This year's appropriation was raised by an assessment of 20 cents a case. It was a demonstration by a few packers of what advertising could accomplish. It is expected many more will now join in the movement.

Following the same assessment plan, Mr. Prosser estimates a fund will be raised insuring $600,000 a year for advertising over a three-year period. Forthcoming campaigns will be devoted entirely to the promotion of salmon as a whole. There is such a potential market for the product, it is felt, that there is no longer any necessity of stressing any particular variety. It was feared that if one brand was stressed more than another the entire market would be needlessly disturbed.

The cities chosen for the drive were selected because of market distribution conditions. The following newspapers are being used:

Atlanta Constitution, Baltimore Sun, Birmingham News, Boston Post, Brooklyn Eagle, Buffalo News, Chicago Daily News, Cincinnati Post, Cleveland Plain Dealer, Columbia State, Dallas News, Detroit News, Forth Worth Star-Telegram, Indinanapolis News, Kansas City Star and Times, Louisville Courier Journal and Times, Milwaukee Journal, Minneapolis Journal, Newark News, New York Journal, New York World, Norfolk Ledger-Dispatch, Oklahoma City Oklahoman and Times, Omaha World-Herald, Pittsburgh Press, Philadelphia Bulletin, Providence Bulletin, St. Louis Post-Dispatch, St. Paul Dispatch and Pioneer Press, and Washington Star.

Circulation of these newspapers totals 5,393,592, Mr. Prosser said. The copy appears each Thursday to take advantage of the Friday fish buying habit.

Mr. Prosser said his agency was sending salmon recipes to the newspapers for use in their household departments.

"But we do not insist that they use them," he declared. "We make no demands for free publicity, believing that paid space accomplishes what we desire."

In addition to the newspapers, nine magazines are being used and ten farm papers. The farm papers are the Philadelphia Farm Journal, Successful Farming, Des Moines; the Farmer's Wife, Minneapolis; Williamsburg (Pa.) Grit; Progressive Farmer, Birmingham, Ala.; Iowa Homestead, Des Moines; Wisconsin Farmer, Madison; Missouri Ruralist; Decorah Posten, Decorah, Ia., and the Chicago Svenska Amerikanaren.

Both partners in the agency of Strang & Prosser, Seattle, are former newspaper men. F. W. Strang was associated with the business departments of newspapers in Minneapolis, Spokane and Seattle. Mr. Prosser was at one time a newspaper editor in Seattle and other Pacific Coast cities.

ELECTRIC CONCERNS USING NEWSPAPERS

Industry Placed More Than 70 Per Cent of 1925 Advertising Appropriation in Papers—Favor Medium For Timelinesss and Economy

The electric light and power industry in the United States placed more than 70 per cent of its 1925 advertising appropriation in the newspapers, according to a report made this week by the advertising committee of the National Electric Light Association, in convention in Atlantic City, N. J., May 17-21. The appropriation totaled many millions of dollars.

Newspapers are favored because of the element of timeliness and ability to reach the largest possible number of readers and customers at a minimum cost, the committee reported.

The manufacturers' committee stated the sum total of national advertising by the manufacturers in the interest of the electric light and power industry was conservatively double the amount of last year, a record.

"Continuing and expanding the program begun a year ago, many manufacturers who cannot devote entire advertisements to the utilities have inserted in their regular advertising phases and paragraphs written to create a favorable attitude toward the utilities," J. C. McQuiston, Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, East Pittsburgh, Pa., and committee chairman, declared.

"Our broad general plan has been supported by one or more of the manufacturers in carrying similar messages to the public in newspaper advertisements. These have been timed with events pertaining to national meetings of the N. E. L. A. so that the advertisements appeared at the time of greatest public interest in the utilities. These advertisements have not been confined to a particular district, but have appeared from coast to coast.

"We are assured of the fullest cooperation of the leading advertising agencies in securing the running of references to the electrical industry in many of their advertisements for other than electrical advertisers."

Press Associations Broadcasting

First of a series of weekly sports talks was given May 20 over station WJZ, New York, by Paul White, of the United Press sports department, New York. White is in charge of U. P. sports during the absence abroad of Henry L. Farrell, who is covering the international tennis and golf matches in England. Howard W. Blakeslee, news editor of the Eastern division of the Associated Press, spoke over WJZ, May 19. Edward McKernon, A. P. eastern division superintendent, will speak from the same station next week.

Tampa Globe Suspends

Tampa (Fla.) Globe, evening tabloid started by John C. Martin, "billboard king" of Florida, suspended publication last week.

Staging "Child Prodigy" Contest

The Rocky Mountain News and Denver Times, are staging a "child prodigy" contest over radio, which is arousing considerable public interest, yielding an abundance of good feature stories.

CENTRAL LEGAL BUREAU FOR A. N. P. A. URGED TO PROTECT FREE PRESS

Would Receive Abstracts of All Libel, Contempt and P. O. Actions Against Publishers, and Furnish Aid Wherever Necessary—Could Promote Maryland Privilege Law

By THOMAS S. RICE
Brooklyn Daily Eagle Staff

IN the May 8 issue of EDITOR & PUBLISHER the present writer discussed the legal consequences that might follow from Editor T. J. Bryson, of the Fort Pierce (Fla.) News-Tribune having paid, without appealing, a fine of $15 for contempt imposed by Judge Liddon in the county court. It was pointed out that Editor Bryson would almost certainly have won if he had appealed. His alleged contempt consisted in having written that sentences by Judge Liddon, which were matters of public record, had been too light and had not deterred criminals in their nefarious pursuits.

Editor Bryson did not take steps to oppose the fine because the amount was small. He thereby allowed Judge Liddon to set up a precedent against comment upon duly recorded sentences, and that precedent may sooner or later react upon every aggressive daily or periodical publication in Florida. Apparently, the Associated Florida Dailies and the American Newspaper Publishers Association left editor Bryson strictly to his own devices and his own financial resources. It is not reported that any person connected with the Florida State Editorial Association, or with the A. N. P. A., officially or unofficially asked the editor to appeal, or that help was promised him if he would go to a higher court. Wherefore I am constrained to ask:

What have the state editorial associations and the A. N. P. A. ever done to protect themselves in the future by going to the front with money and attorneys for the aid of a financially weak brother who may be in legal distress at the present?

From what can be learned the A. N. P. A. has never conceived the idea that it should have a legal information department, well supplied with money and talent, which would go to the rescue not only of members, but of non-members, who were threatened with judicial or bureaucratic injustices which, if not vigorously opposed, might set dangerous precedents against the liberty of the press.

I believe that it would be a progressive step for the A. N. P. A. to establish a central legal office. To that office should be sent copies of all official documents, and whatever unofficial statements that may be worth while, bearing upon actions for criminal or civil libel or contempt of court. Documents and unofficial statements bearing upon rulings against a newspaper or editor by the Postoffice Department also should be forwarded. The material thus furnished should receive immediate attention from skilled counsel, whether or not the publication involved be a member of the A. N. P. A.

Bear in mind that a court decision or ruling, or a Postoffice Department ruling, against a struggling non-member in a town scarcely on the map, may be cited in the future to confound a millionaire daily in a large city, or to send to jail the publisher, editor and a flock of reporters connected with a millionaire paper.

That Postoffice Department rulings are country-wide in their scope, and that the rulings and decisions of the United States District courts, and, in some instances of the state courts, may be accepted as standards for the entire country and its possessions overseas, is a fact that seems to have been neglected by the A. N. P. A.

Without wishing to be presumptuous, here are a few suggestions for the protection of publishers and writers through the instrumentality of the A. N. P. A.

In addition to a law department in the New York office the A. N. P. A. should have an active representative in the form of a member, and counsel specializing in libel law, rulings for contempt, etc., in regional centers such as Boston, Buffalo, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Atlanta, New Orleans, Memphis, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Chicago, Denver, Omaha, Seattle, San Francisco and Los Angeles. That list is purely tentative, and could be increased or decreased. Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippines should have regional representatives and counsel.

Every newspaper and periodical under the American flag should tell its troubles to the principal law office of the A. N. P. A., which should be located in New York or Washington, when the afflicted publisher has time to call for help, and has a meritorious defense. That legal headquarters might be known as the Legal Watch and Ward Division of the A. N. P. A., or the like. All the sad stories should be mailed to that office, which, after examining the documents and other evidence, should determine whether the A. N. P. A. would be justified in taking a hand. If the conclusion was that the litigation had a bearing upon the principle of a free press, headquarters should refer the matter to the regional member and counsel. The theory I am roughly outlining is that it would be the cheapest and most effective way to lend aid if counsel within the geographical area of the court were engaged. In cases of exceptional importance, additional counsel would be called from the sectional area, or from New York.

Contempt proceedings are usually rapid fire. The judge may impose fine or imprisonment, or both, immediately, but ordinarily he will, if asked, allow opportunity for the object of the court's wrath to obtain counsel and enter defense to show cause why he should not be punished. That is another argument for regional suboffices. The attorney for the A. N. P. A. would in most cases be able to reach the ringside before the belligerent, but perhaps groggy, editor had been counted out.

The Watch and Ward Division, or Legal Aid Division, of the A. N. P. A. might be established in Washington. Certainly, the association should have a fully equipped and alert bureau in the national capital to scrutinize every charge against a newspaper or periodical before the Post Office Department. In recent years this department has displayed an inclination to stretch more and more its extraordinary and autocratic power to bar publications arbitrarily from the mails. Frequently the initial move in barring is taken by the postmaster of the city or town where the publication is printed, but on appeal the P. O. D. in Washington has the final say, unless attorneys for the defeated publisher can get the case before an United States court for a thorough airing on the facts, which is not always easy. If the publisher has what the A. N. P. A. attorneys believe is a sound defense, but lacks the money to carry on, help in the way of money and legal talent should be freely extended, for a decision against one is a decision against all.

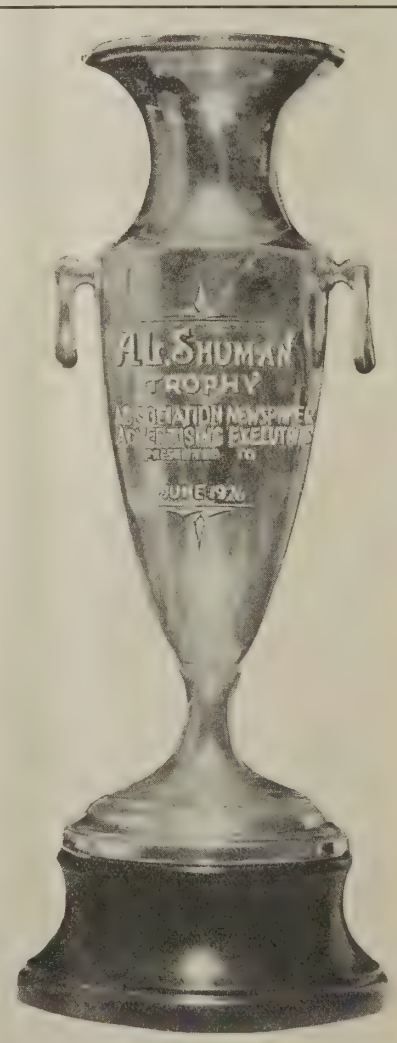
Practice before the Post Office Department is usually simple because most of the complaints have arisen from misunderstanding or honest mistakes by publishers. When matters are explained and the publisher promises to avoid the error in the future, there's an end to it. But, at intervals the P. O. D. may assume an extremely dictatorial attitude and bar a publication because the department has conceived that it contained improper material, or not enough of one sort of material and too much of another. When the department is out to "get" a publication the government's experts can dig up a surprisingly large number of reasons and precedents for depriving it of the mail privilege.

More than once the P. O. D. has been accused of barring a publication as the result of direct or indirect political animus. When that is suspected the A. N. P. A. should be strictly and promptly on the job, as a matter of course, but examination of complaints will sometimes reveal a joker in a ruling. That is, a comparatively insignificant row between a publisher and the department may end in a decision against the party originally involved, and in the decision, or ruling, will be found a general clause which makes the ruling effective against all publishers, and may harass them for years to come. The tendency of bureaucrats to gather into their hands more authority than it was intended they should have, is familiar to the man on the street. Publishers have particularly learned the lesson from painful experience, not alone with the P. O. D. but with municipal, state and national officials. Hence the necessity for keeping tab on all P. O. D. proceedings that relate to the mail privilege.

The function of the legal headquarters should be to determine whether a legal process against a publication touches upon the fundamental rights of a free press, or whether it is just an every day affair in which the publisher has brought sorrow upon himself by mistaken or violent utterance, or by relieving his mind by calling a judge a liar and offering to whip him outside the courtroom. On the one hand would be the tendency of some publishers to take undue advantages of the A. N. P. A. service. On the other hand, experienced newspaper men are aware that many libel suits and some contempt orders are thinly disguised attempts by crooked politicians, crooked financiers, or the like, to blackjack or blackmail an editor into quitting a course he has been following in the public's interest.

Still another activity in which the A. N. P. A. might engage with credit to itself would be a campaign to pass state laws, and possibly a Congressional act, extending to reporters the right of privileged communications. Maryland has such a law, and I have an impression that several states have the same. Many years ago Col. John Morris wrote a news story for the Baltimore Sun which led to his being called as a witness in a criminal trial. When he went on the stand the prosecuting attorney demanded that he reveal the source of information upon which the story was based. Col. Morris had pledged his word not to tell from whom he had received the information and declined to break it on the stand. Thereupon he was sent to jail for contempt of court, which was a perfectly logical step by the judge, as the law then stood.

Col. Morris was in the calaboose several days. As a result the Sun and its Maryland contemporaries put over a law granting to legitimate reporters the right of privileged communication in regard to disclosing the source of information used in a news story. The reporter, the editor and the owner are as open to criminal or civil libel actions in Maryland as they are in other states, but the reporter or editor is not in danger of being sent to the hoosegow in the middle of the baseball season because he will not betray a confidence.



It may seem a far cry from an annual to a daily, but at this very time an annual is involved in litigation that may reach the Supreme Court of the United States and result in a decision that, in one way or another, may affect freedom of expression in every conceivable form of publication in the land.

E. S. Shumaker, superintendent; Jesse E. Martin, attorney and trustee and Ethan A. Miles, attorney, have been ordered to appear in the Supreme Court of Indiana not later than May 18, and show cause why they should not be cited for contempt. They are officials of the Indiana Anti-Saloon League. The burden of the amended complaint filed by Attorney General Arthur L. Gilliom, of Indiana, is that statements made by the Anti-Saloon League officials for publication in the superintendent's report, were "false and contemptuous." The Attorney General dwelt upon decisions by the Supreme Court of Indiana in liquor law violation appeals, to prove that the interpretation by the Anti-Saloon League officials of those decisions, compared with decisions of other courts, was "false and contemptuous."

How true the Attorney General's charges may be, and how much the individual newspaper owner may think that the Anti-Saloon League should be encouraged or curbed, does not matter. On the face of the dispatches, the case is that of a publication in trouble with a court because it commented adversely upon that court's duly recorded decisions. Perhaps the court has the inherent power to punish in this instance by contempt proceedings, and perhaps it has not the power; or it may hold that the evidence does not warrant use of the power, if the power exists.

What is emphasized here is that the A. N. P. A. should have a legal department to follow closely every legal action against a publisher, when a principle of freedom of expression is at stake, even if at first sight the action may appear to have no bearing upon the conduct of a daily newspaper, or most any energetic daily in Indiana or another State, fired by enthusiasm for a cause, might draw the same comparisons alleged to have been drawn by the Indiana Anti-Saloon League between the decisions of the Indiana Supreme Court and those of other courts. In fact, many dailies have done that very thing.

SHUMAN PRESENTS CUP FOR A. N. A. E. PRIZE

SOME newspaper advertising man will carry home from the Philadelphia convention of the Association of Newspaper Advertising Executives the above sterling silver cup offered by A. L. Shuman, vice-president and advertising director of the Ft. Worth Star-Telegram for the best story of a newspaper advertising success presented by a newspaper man at the convention. The award will be for permanent possession.

AN ADVERTISING MAN'S PLACE IN BUSINESS

He Should Not only Influence Consumer Demand, But Also All Other Activities of Firm Engaging Him, Says Shaw—Let Vision Range Beyond Office Walls, He Urges (Excerpts from an address delivered at the semi-annual convention of the Association of National Advertisers in Chicago last week).

By A. W. SHAW
President, A. W. Shaw Company

AN advertising department is not concerned merely with the art of advertising—but with the use of advertising and its effect, not only on influencing the demand of the consuming public, but also on all the other activities of the business—on the motions of the workman, the movements of the salesman and the operations of the typist.

A. C. Robinson, a Pittsburgh bank president, puts it this way:

"The man or men who control advertising appropriations want sales—nothing else matters much. Sales—profitable sales—are intimately connected with the entire warp and woof of the business as a whole—costs, turnover, mark-up, distribution, credit, loss, manufacturing problems, markets, etc., etc. Advertising cannot hope to achieve maximum results without intimate knowledge of these things. It is my opinion that some advertising men do not realize this obvious fact."

To use advertising so as to influence consumption that within his enterprise there can be produced and distributed a maximum of product with a minimum of motion, is not the least of the functions of an advertising manager.

The payroll of the factory can be influenced just as effectively, even if less apparently, by the advertising manager as by the production manager.

A policy of simplification of styles or varieties ordinarily brings about a reduction of unit costs very conspicuous in the cost sheets of the factory. But with products of broad general distribution this is largely a result of that influencing of consumption toward the simplified line that it is within the power of the advertising manager to bring about.

Nor is the influence of the treasurer on finance any more directly effective than that of the advertising manager can be made to be. Assume a growing business needing more floor space, further equipment, larger inventories, more money to carry accounts receivable, and an advertising manager alive to the interdependence of all the activities of the business. When that advertising manager so dextrously uses the force of advertising at his command that there can be no choice of wholesalers and retailers so that good credit and prompt discounting can be insisted upon, or, that the securities of the company can be readily marketed and welcomed by the bankers, doesn't that directly affect the financial affairs of the enterprise?

The interdependence and interplay between the sales manager and advertising manager are, of course, direct and obvious.

I have in my mind an advertising manager who has influenced the entire sales set-up of a large business through awakening pride of the workers in their product.

He got his idea one day after asking a foreman why a certain unit was better than a competing one. That foreman told him why in rather picturesque language.

"What I want you to do, Bill," said the advertising manager, "is to write down just what you've said to me, leaving out only the cuss words. I want to publish it in our paper."

"I can't write articles," Bill of course declared.

"But you can write down what you've just said, can't you?" the advertising manager countered, and finally won his point. The resulting article was just what he wanted. Moreover, it started something, and he obtained similar sales articles from other foremen in the plant.

These articles attracted attention both within and without that organization. Later the chief engineer got some of his ideas about a leading item down on paper, and with slight alteration it made copy for what turned out to be a surprisingly successful advertisement.

The president became interested. "Why not use these men to sell?" he asked himself. Tests were made. They were successful. And so in that organization today the purchasing agent, the foundry superintendent, the engineer, the machine shop superintendent—all take a hand in selling.

My point is that this interesting development, affecting all branches of that business, resulted from the advertising manager going outside the purely intra-departmental aspects of his work and building a close contact with the other departments of the business. Today he sits in the policy-forming conferences of that company, and that, in my opinion, is as it should be.

For all that I have been talking about makes essential for the advertising manager a close and continuing contact with the policy-making heads of a business enterprise.

And, in turn, it demands from the advertising manager something more than a mere familiarity with the language of manufacturing, finance, accounting, transportation. Understanding must be his of the problems of material procurement and the handling of labor; of credits and collections and terms and discounts and their effect upon finance; of accounting and routine and how the overhead is affected by small shipments or excess variety of product.

To the degree that he intelligently uses advertising to make possible lower factory costs, less resistance to sales activities, fewer losses from had accounts, shorter terms, quicker turnover, simplification of routine, pride in plant and workmanship and service—to that degree does he approach a fullness in the performance of his functions.

Nor are the concerns of the advertising department merely intra-institutional.

The problems of business run in recurring cycles just as business itself does. And just as the activities within a business are all interdependent, so are businesses dependent each on the other, even though one may be in Kalamazoo—the other in Adelaide. On Wednesday a steel manufacturer from Australia called to discuss the trend of business in this country. Within an hour a copper producer from Chile was in our offices in the same quest.

These men see the interdependence of all business. Their sales policies—their very advertising actions—may be affected in Chile or Australia by trends they learn of in America.

Nor are all markets equally attractive at any one time. The attitude of labor, the dearth or plenitude of capital, the weather, over or under-production of industry or agriculture, the intensity of current political controversy, may vary with the geography. All have their day by day effect upon the use of advertising.

Then there are those larger economic movements: The accumulation of capital; the tendency to simplification of types and varieties of product; the general trend toward mass production of these simplified lines at lower and lower prices; the development of specialty production—even the custom making—of new types of articles or entirely new products to satisfy the wants and the whims and the fancies of a population growing in affluence.

I have in mind an instance which I hope will illustrate my point. It has to do with a great business which now does a million and more in volume for every thousand dollars available to it when it started about a quarter-century ago. You see its advertising daily. Most of you buy its product, I imagine.

Now last year this business increased its prices. The tonnage went off a bit, but the sales, in dollars, increased materially—the profits, very materially.

The advertising direction of this business, thinking beyond the art and the skill involved in preparing the striking advertising we see daily, is now saying, in effect, to the management of that business: "The underlying trend indicates a day of close margins. Two or three in each line will emerge with large volumes obtained on extremely thin margins. Our business should be one of these dominating factors in our line.

"Therefore we should reverse our position. Instead of building a larger net through wider margins on smaller volumes, our object should be one of cutting the margin and seeking the net through more of the narrower margin on a larger volume. While this is a most fundamental decision to make, it is in line with the underlying trend."

There is significance in that suggestion for any business.

In these United States, daily the fund of capital is increasing. It serves its owners only as it is used, for idle money pays no return. But add initiative to capital and there is the power to summon labor, machinery and management actively to compete in any business of unduly large margins of profit.

An advertising manager watching the trend of business sees this and its relation to the welfare of the concern of which he is a part. One whose vision ranges no farther than the walls of his department does not. He is out of the stream of big things.

DURHAM (N. C.) SUN FORMALLY OPENS HANDSOME NEW PLANT

ENTERTAINING with an informal reception the Durham (N. C.) Sun, afternoon newspaper, last Friday night officially opened its new home on Main street, in the heart of the business district. The entire plant was thrown open to inspection by the public.

Dr. J. M. Manning, mayor of Durham; Burke Hobgood, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and other prominent Durham citizens were in the receiving line. A number of leading newspaper publishers and executives of the state attended. Refreshments were served and souvenirs distributed. The new building has an Indiana limestone front, trimmed in ornamental cast bronze. It is a fireproof structure of steel, tile and concrete, covering two lots to a depth of 117 feet, two stories high, with basement. The main offices, advertising department and editorial rooms are on the first floor. The composing room is also located on the first floor. Press and stereotyping equipment are located in the basement, which extends the full length of the building. Space is also provided in the basement for mailing rooms and paper distribution, heating plant and paper storage.

New furnishings and equipment have been installed in the offices and new machinery and equipment in the mechanical departments, including a new high speed press with a capacity of 30,000 papers per hour.

The Durham Sun is the oldest existing newspaper in Durham City or county, and was founded Feb. 26, 1883.

The Sun was acquired by the present owners in April, 1923. It is now the property of the Durham Sun, Inc., William J. McMurray, New York, president; Mrs. Charlotte Wilson, Fayetteville, vice-president, and Charles R. Wilson, Fayetteville, secretary. They are the sole owners of the property.

Albert Grant is general manager and John R. Barry, editor.

A. P. Has New Foreign News Editor

Meredith N. Stiles, formerly head of the Latin-American department of the Associated Press in New York headquarters, has been appointed foreign news editor, succeeding H. H. Romer, now attached to the A. P. London staff. Arthur Uhl has been transferred from the local news staff to the post of cable editor.

KANSAS CITY KANSAN PLANS NEW HOME

Three Story Gothic Building, Ample for Immediate Future, Has Provision for Two Additional Floors

The Kansas City Kansan established a little more than five years ago by the Arthur Capper Publications has announced a program of development and expansion which includes the erection of a modern newspaper and publishing plant.

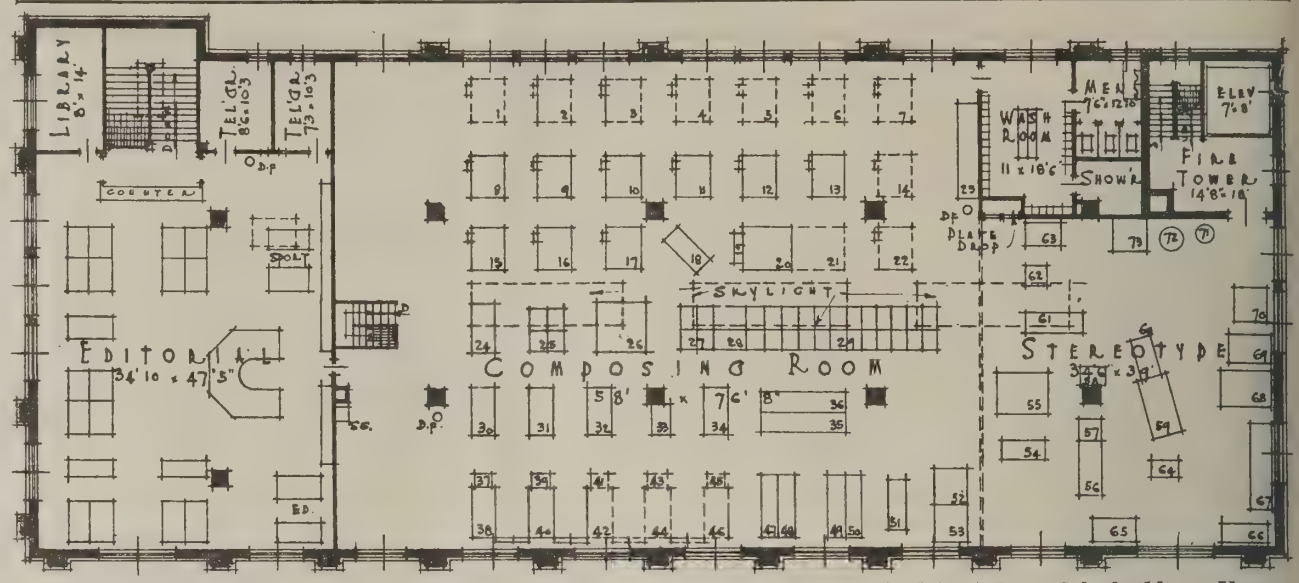
All plans have been made for the building and it is believed it will be completed by Nov. 1.

Publishers and architects who have inspected the plans declare that the new Kansan building will be the most efficient and thoroughly modern small newspaper plant in the middlewest. It is to be a fireproof, brick structure of three floors and basement. Occupying a corner it will have a frontage on one street of 65 feet by 150 feet on the other. It will have exposure from all four sides and will be virtually a sunlit building.

The building is to be Gothic in design, somewhat plain, but with sufficient detail and ornamentation to be architecturally interesting. The main floor will be occupied by the public offices, the business offices, the advertising and circulation departments. In the front of the public office will be a large plate glass display window to be used for displaying the products of foreign manufacturing firms who are Kansan advertisers.

To supply the additional height needed for the press rooms, this department will occupy parts of the basement and of the ground level, or mezzanine, floors. In the basement, in addition to the press department, will be paper storage and other storage rooms, an inclined corridor leading to the storage department, the boiler rooms and the shower baths and lockers for the printers.

Other departments on the ground level floor will be the mailing room, an assembly hall, the newsboys assembly and property rooms and the loading docks.



The editorial and composing rooms, the filing and reference departments, the telegraph offices and the stereotyping department will be on the top floor.

Of paramount importance in the planning are those features which will make the Kansan building outstanding in hygienic detail and in the comfort provided for the persons in every department. Even in the composing room where strong lights are necessary there will be sufficient sunlight to render artificial light unnecessary except on unusually dark days. The artificial lighting system is carefully planned to avoid cross lighting and shadows.

Ventilation is provided by the heating-ventilation plant and by a system of ventilating fans. The four-side exposure of the building with its numerous windows and the minimum of obstructing partitions will assure reasonable comfort for the workers even on hot summer days. A vacuum system for cleaning the building, the linotype machines and the press machinery will be installed. Rest rooms for the women will include a lounging room and a kitchenette, rooms for the men will be equipped with showers. The newsboys' rooms will be provided with tables and kitchen equipment for parties.

Although the new building will admit of expansion to approximately twice the amount of business now being carried by the Kansan, the construction will be such that additional stories may be added as the city grows and further building space becomes necessary.

FLOOR PLANS OF KANSAN'S NEW PRODUCTION ROOMS

Straight-line production is the architect's unmistakable intention in planning the third (top) floor of the building. News moves without an unnecessary step from the horse-shoe copy-desk to the composing machines and make-up tables, whence its path to the moulding and casting apparatus is short and direct. Plates are dropped in a gravity lift to the pressroom in the basement.

Sixty-five feet frontage on one street, 150 feet on another and long wide alleys give the building direct natural light from all sides.

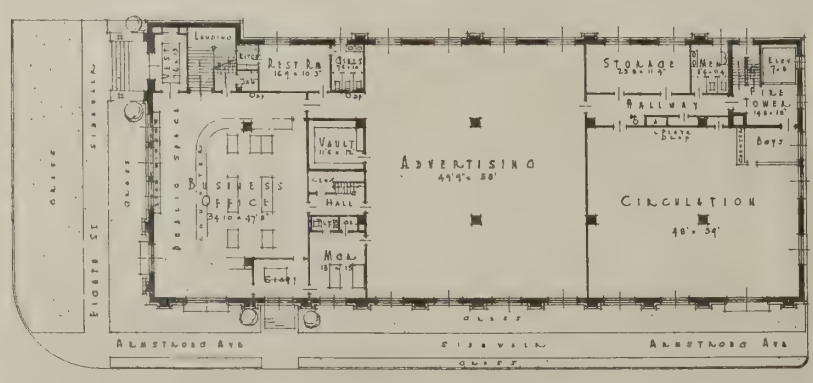
Oakland Times to Build New Home

The Oakland (Cal.) Times, Hearst newspaper now being distributed with the San Francisco Examiner, is soon to have its own building in Oakland. The building has three floors and a mezzanine, giving a floor space of approximately 45,000 feet.

Daily Opens Its Town Hall

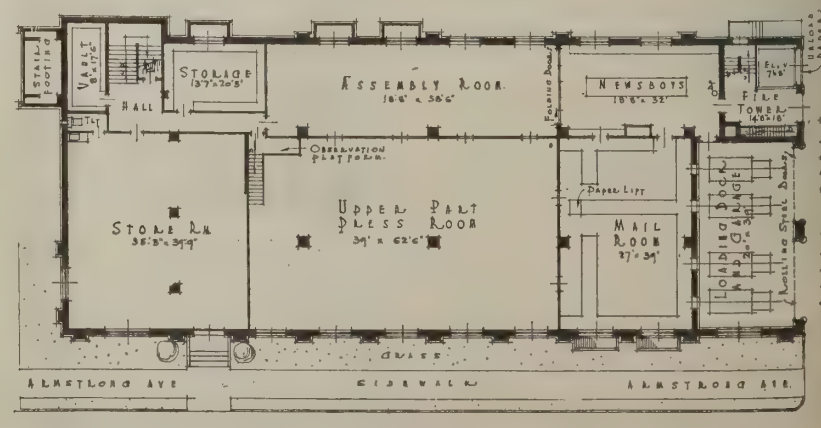
The Town Hall in the new Savannah (Ga.) Morning News building was formally opened, May 11, with ceremonies arranged by a group of local club women. The hall was designed for use of local organizations. F. G. Bell, president of the News, invited club representatives present to make immediate and continuous use of the hall.

Italian Weekly Incorporated



The Abruzzo Molesi, Inc., has been incorporated at Rochester, N. Y., for $25,000 and will publish an Italian weekly in that city. The publication has been circulated from Pueblo, Col., for several years, and will be moved to Rochester. Vincenzo Massari will continue as editor.

MacGowan Middletown Herald M. E.



Horace MacGowan has been made managing editor of the Middletown (N. Y.) Daily Herald. MacGowan was formerly general manager of the Middletown Times Press, and has been active in newspaper work in New York City and Orange county for more than 30 years. Elmer Decker, circulation manager of the Times Press has been named assistant circulation manager of the Herald.

Ample room for future expansion is available in the basement. Four times the present press equipment could be accommodated immediately and more with little inconvenience.

All business departments are housed on the main floor, newsboys having a special room opening on an alley in rear of the building.

A mezzanine floor, opening on the ground level by virtue of sloping streets, permits a high-ceiled pressroom and comfortable circulation quarters.

FIELD MANAGERS RAISE RURAL PRESS STANDARDS

Press Associations in Fifteen States Employ Full-Time Secretaries to Promote Advertising, Obtain Favorable Legislation, and Standardize Prices

By NORMAN J. RADDER
Associate Professor of Journalism, Indiana University

THE telephone rings in the office of Ben Read, managing director of the Southern California Editorial Association, in Los Angeles.

"Hello, Read? This is Westland of the Upland News. Had some hard luck today. Linotype operator is sick and a floorman got hurt in an auto smashup. Can you send me two men right away?"

BEN READ

An emergency call such as this is all part of the day's work for Mr. Read. He goes to his list of applicants for employment, his stenographer does some telephoning, and in a few hours two men are on their way to Upland.

The Southern California Editorial Association is one of the 15 state press associations in the United States employing a man as managing director or field secretary. Other states in which field secretaries are actively on the job are Washington, Colorado, Texas, Nebraska, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Illinois, Michigan, New York, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Minnesota and Florida.

In most of these 15 states, the field secretary represents all papers, weeklies and dailies, and devotes his full time to the job. He is an experienced, practical publisher, trained in every phase of newspaper-making. He is enough of a diplomat to straighten out tangles of price and rate-cutting, he has business ability and can show the weekly publisher how to watch his costs and keep his books, and his experience in journalism has been such that he can tell publishers how to get out better newspapers.

It is not too much to say that the field manager is the most significant influence in country journalism today. Give him time enough and he will make a first-class business man out of nearly every publisher in his association. Give him time enough, and he will see to it that price cutting on job work, rate cutting in advertising, and fictitious circulation claims are reduced to the minimum. He will (and he has already done so in some states) raise the financial and professional standards of journalism.

Take, for instance, the achievements of Fred Kennedy in Washington. Kennedy on the coast, G. L. Caswell in Iowa, and Ole Buck in Nebraska are the Big Three among field managers. They have been at it longest and their achievements show what the field manager can do. All newspapers in the state of Washington are on the 12-em basis, nearly all can use mats, all charge prices that will bring a just profit, all use either the Franklin Price List or base their charges on a cost finding system, and all act as a unit when legislation favorable or unfavorable to newspapers is to be fostered or defeated.

Or take the work of Caswell in Iowa. Mr. Caswell, when he resigned a few weeks ago, was perhaps the oldest of the field men in point of service. He began his job of promoting co-operation and standardization among the small dailies and weeklies of Iowa ten years ago. Today his Blue Ribbon List of members of the Iowa Press Association enables the national advertiser to cover the state with one account. And the country publishers have learned to stick to their rates. Thousands of dollars have been added to the revenue of Iowa newspapers from political advertising because Mr. Caswell has facilitated the placing of this advertising by handling all of it through his office. The same thing is done with reference to state advertising such as that for fairs, public utilities, Iowa manufacturers, etc.

But a statement of two field managers' achievements does not give an adequate picture of the services of the 15 men who have adopted this, the newest of specialties in journalism. Here is a summary of the most important things that field managers are doing to raise the financial and professional standards of journalism:

1. Field managers have succeeded in reducing the evils of price-cutting and ruinous competition in job work. They are endeavoring to standardize prices by price lists and cost-finding systems. Their theory is that once a man knows his costs, he will not cut prices, either of job work or advertising. Field managers are fostering county organizations of publishers and printers as a means to the end of standard prices. Some of these county organizations have been 100 per cent successful in promoting better feeling among publishers and men who have not spoken to each other for years have become convinced that "the fellow across the street isn't such a bad chap after all."

County organizations offer one of the most promising means for improvement in journalism because of the many subjects of mutual interest that can be settled in a small, compact organization. It is through these organizations that field men can take a long step in the direction of substitution co-operation for disastrous competition and in fostering a fraternal and helpful spirit among publishers. In a sense this promotion of better human relations is one of the promising features of the field manager idea.

2. Field managers act as the legislative representatives of newspapers. They keep a weather eye out for bills designed to reduce county or city paid publicity, to lower legal rates, or to put restrictions on the press. Friends of the newspapers are usually sufficiently numerous to defeat such legislation if they are organized. The field manager takes care of the organization. Furthermore, the field manager is constantly active to foster laws that will increase the amount of paid publicity for official proceedings of county and city officials. Thus in Michigan at the last session of the legislature, newspapers succeeded in defeating an attempt to reduce the legal rate to pre-war figures. Several laws were passed that will materially increase the revenue of Michigan papers. Among these was a law making it mandatory for common councils to publish their proceedings and another law requiring the publication of all election notices.

Detailed statements showing the receipts and expenditures of cities and towns of Kansas must be published quarterly under the state law, Attorney-General C. B. Griffith has ruled. The ruling was made at the request of O. W. Little, field secretary of the Kansas Press Association. A statute enacted in 1913 by the legislature made provision for publication of all city financial reports.

Nebraska newspaper publishers are elated over the passage through both houses of the legislature and the signing by the governor of H. R. No. 213, which provides for the publication in each Nebraska newspaper of those initiated laws and acts of the legislature and proposed amendments to the constitution which are to be submitted to the people, together with the publication of arguments in favor of and opposed to initiated measures.

The new law amends section 2285 of the 1922 statutes which provided for publication in pamphlet form and direct mailing to voters. The passage of the bill without opposition is due to the temperate but very efficient work of the newspaper members of the legislature, acting harmoniously with Ole Buck, who is the active representative in the lobby of the Nebraska Press Association.

The law as amended provides that the secretary of state may distribute the advertising through the Nebraska Press Association, probably the first recognition of its kind ever given.

In some states field managers have obtained the co-operation of state officials in the compilation of a pamphlet containing all laws relating to newspapers. When this was done, old laws relating to legal advertising were discovered which in some instances have added thousands of dollars to newspaper revenue.

3. Not only does the field manager represent the newspapers of the state before the legislature, but he also represents them before public utilities, manufacturers, fair officials, etc. In other words, he goes after state advertising. It is with state advertising rather than national advertising that field managers have been most successful. Field managers attend the state conventions of utilities. They talk state advertising, they quote rates, and prove circulation statements. So successful have some of the field managers been that in one state the field manager is always called upon for advice when public utilities prepare their budgets.

The whole question of intra-state advertising opens up a vast field of usefulness for a field manager. Innumerable organizations, some of them worthy, are constantly being started to promote various causes. Just now many states are advertising to counteract Florida's attractive publicity. Too often billboard companies get the cash and newspapers are expected to donate publicity. In such states as Iowa and Nebraska where Caswell and Buck have been on the job for eight or ten years, it is generally understood that such a policy won't work. The newspapers are organized and they refer such questions to their field secretary. He sees to it that paid advertising is placed where it will do the most good, that is, in the newspapers.

G. L. CASWELL

4. Field managers act as a clearing house for the exchange of equipment. Every field manager visits every newspaper plant in his state at least once a year and in most cases, several times a year. If one publisher has a press or a folder for sale, the field managers know who can use this equipment to best advantage. In those states that have field managers it is not necessary to send old equipment half way across the continent to the buyer.

Field managers aid publishers in solving the problem of competent help. The office of the field manager is the headquarters of the country publisher when he visits the city. Some field managers have been successful in functioning as a collection agency. When J. S. Hubbard, field secretary of the Missouri Press Association, calls up an advertiser who has refused to pay an account, and tells him that the Missouri Press Association will take steps to collect if he does not pay, nine times out of ten the advertiser will change his mind and decide that he had better pay up.

Not only does the field manager aid in the collection of bad accounts, but he sees to it that there will be fewer bad accounts on the publisher's books. Virtually every field manager issues a bulletin at regular intervals. He is in close touch with the Better Business Bureaus in his state and when some particular type of fraud is being practiced, he immediately runs a notice in his bulletin. He sends out warnings regarding illegitimate advertising agencies and fake clipping bureaus. Mr. Caswell printed this notice in a recent issue of his bulletin:

"We recently sent out warning to our members about a radio outfit in New York that wanted to advertise mail order sets. Our letters addressed to this outfit have been returned marked 'fictitious address.'

"In Chicago we made three attempts to call at the office of a supposed church publication which sent out orders for big space to a number of papers. The office was not in very pretentious surroundings and was locked each time we called. Our advice on this outfit is to get the cash with the order."

Here is another illustration of how the field manager helps. This is taken from Ben Read's California Bulletin:

"One of our members ran advertisement for a Los Angeles agency on July 3. On August 30 he received a check but 25 per cent commission had been

(Continued on page 53)

NEW HOME FOR GEORGIA JOURNALISM SCHOOL

CONSTRUCTION of the above building on the campus of the University of Georgia to house the Henry W. Brady School of Journalism and the School of Commerce starts in June. The building is to be erected at a cost of $200,000, and is being paid for with funds subscribed to the million dollar War Memorial Fund, which was successfully brought to a close Armistice Day, November 11, 1291.

The new home of the School of Journalism will allow additional space for lecture rooms, offices, library and reading rooms. The building is being so constructed as to accommodate printing equipment which the faculty of the School plans to install for the benefit of those who wish industrial journalistic training.

TEXAN WINS $12,500 LIBEL DAMAGES

Asked $92,350 in Action Growing Out of Hoof and Mouth Disease Story Printed in Houston Chronicle —Both Sides Appeal

Judgment in the sum of $12,500 has been awarded John T. Martin in his suit against the Houston Chronicle Publishing Company. Martin had sued for $92,350. Both plaintiff and defendant asked for new trial.

The suit, alleging libel in a story printed Sept. 27, 1924, was tried in the 73rd district court at San Antonio, where Martin resides. The petitioner claimed to have been damaged by an article which said it was believed an infection of hoof and mouth disease originated in a shipment of cattle imported to Martin's ranch. The same story, as quoted, however, said the source of the infection "has not been definitely established."

W. P. Hobby, president of the Houston Post-Dispatch, and C. J. Lilley, editor of the Press, as well as M. E. Foster, publisher of the Chronicle, and others went to San Antonio for the trial.

PUBLISHERS GOING TO CANADA

Huckle Organizing Tour to Jasper National Park Next Month

T. O. Huckle, business manager of the Ypsilanti (Mich.) Daily Ypsilantian Press, was busily engaged at the Inland Daily Press Association meeting, adding to the forty or more members and their families that are planning to take the association's trip from Illinois and Michigan to Jasper National Park June 5 to June 17. A large delegation of Michigan will also participate in the tour. His pockets bulged with colored literature and he talked enthusiastically of the good time planned and the interest shown by members in the trip to the Canadian Rockies.

The tentative itinerary follows:

June 5	Chicago	Lv. 10.00 P.M.
June 6	Duluth	Ar. 1.15 P.M.
	Duluth	Lv. 7.00 P.M.
June 7	Winnipeg	Ar. 10.10 A.M.
June 8	Winnipeg	Lv. 9.00 P.M.
June 9	Edmonton	Ar. 11.35 P.M.
June 10	In Edmonton.
June 11	Edmonton	Lv. 12.05 A.M.
June 12	Jasper	Ar. 9.20 A.M.
June 13	Jasper	Lv. 9.45 P.M.
June 14	En route.
June 15	Winnipeg	Ar. 10.30 A.M.
	Winnipeg	Lv. 5.00 P.M.
June 16	Duluth	Ar. 8.00 A.M.
	Duluth	Lv. 2.55 P.M.
June 17	Chicago	Ar. 6.55 P.M.

Huber, Inc., Move Chicago Office

The Chicago office of J. M. Huber, Inc., printings inks, is now located at 450 West Superior street. The Chicago branch continues under the local management of John E. Costello and Western district management of Roger S. Gallup.

Advocating New Texas Libel Law

Dan Moody, attorney general of Texas and Democratic candidate for governor, has announced a plank in his platform favoring an amendment to the state libel law making the truth an absolute defense.

Alabama Press Meeting June 2-4

The annual meeting of the Alabama Press Association will be held in Auburn, Ala., June 2-4, at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

Fargo Store Uses 17 Pages

The Fargo (N. D.) Forum on May 12 carried 17 full pages for the Herbst department store of Fargo in connection with its formal opening.

Suit Against Chandler Dismissed

Suit of C. C. Julian, Los Angeles oil promoter and stock broker, against Harry Chandler, owner of the Los Angeles Times, and others for $250,000 damages has been thrown out of court, a demurrer of the defendants being sustained by Superior Judge Doran. The court held that the complaint in the case was ambiguous and unintelligible. Julian was given 15 days in which to amend his complaint. He charged that Chandler and his employes conspired with Corporation Commissioner Daugherty to ruin his mining company.

N. Y. SUN WINS $110,000 LIBEL ACTION

Mrs. Anne McCoy Campbell, Christian Science Practitioner, Has Four More Suits Pending Against New York Dailies

First of a series of five libel suits brought by Mrs. Anne McCoy Campbell, Christian Science practitioner, against that many New York newspapers, ended in favor of the defendant when a jury in Justice Phoenix Ingraham's division of the New York supreme court rendered a verdict, clearing the New York Sun on May 17. The case was tried May 13 and 14 and a sealed verdict opened Monday. MacDonald DeWitt, of the firm of DeWitt & Van Aken, represented the Sun.

Mrs. Campbell was seeking to recover $110,000 damages alleged to have been sustained on account of a story published in the Sun, March 30, 1922. Suits on account of similar publication are pending against the New York Times, New York World, New York Tribune and New York Evening Post.

The story objected to stated that Mrs. Elizabeth S. Nichols, a wealthy patient of the Christian Science practitioner, had brought suit against Mrs. Campbell and Allen A. Canton for $16,000. The Sun's story was largely a re-write of an interview Mrs. Campbell had given to a Times' reporter, explaining her side of the controversy between her and Mrs. Nichols as shown by a complaint which Mrs. Nichols had just filed against Mrs. Campbell in supreme court.

Mr. DeWitt's successful defense of the Sun was based on the following theory:

Assuming that a newspaper does not have the right to publish a fair report of the contents of a complaint or answer merely served and filed in the county clerk's office, nevertheless, when the plaintiff in a resulting libel action has herself made a statement for publication concerning the suit, a newspaper has a right to publish a fair report of the plaintiff's statements and her comments on the contents of the pleading.

The question of fact involved in the case was whether or not a reporter of the Times had interviewed Mrs. Campbell for publication.

The Times reporter testified at the trial that he went to see the plaintiff to get her side of the Nichols case. He talked with her a half an hour, he said, and she understood that what she told him was for publication.

Mrs. Campbell took the stand and testified she had begged the reporter not to publish what she had told him. This statement was contradicted by the newspaper man.

Testimony showed that Mrs. Nichols on Jan. 16, 1924 dropped her suit against Mrs. Campbell, after a full investigation in which she became convinced that Mrs. Campbell, although president of a company formed by Canton, did not get any of the $16,000 which Mrs. Nichols had turned over for stock.

Judge Ingraham charged the jury that if they found from the evidence that the plaintiff had made a statement of her side of the case in the fraud suit to the Times reporter for publication and that the Sun's story was a fair and true report of the statement, with fair comments thereon, then the article was privileged and they should find a verdict for the defendant.

It took the jury less than 30 minutes to reach a verdict.

HITHERTO UNTOLD PULITZER STORY IS REVEALED

H. S. POLLARD, editor of the New York Evening World, revealed a hitherto untold story of the passing of the famous Joseph Pulitzer, founder of the World, at a recent gathering of members of that newspaper's staff.

Joseph Pulitzer was passionately devoted to the World's editorial page, Pollard recalled. When the great editor lay in his casket, one of his sons stepped forward, took a copy of the day's World, and folding it so that the editorial page was outside, slipped it under his father's clasped hands. The coffin was then sealed, and the paper he loved went with Joseph Pulitzer on his last long journey.

Pollard said afterwards the son who performed this act was Ralph Pulitzer, present World editor.

MALICIOUS PRINTING OF TRUTH IS LIBEL

So Oklahoma Supreme Court Holds in Deciding Second Rehearing of Action Involving Two Okeene Editors

Although allegations in a newspaper story may be legal, the publication may be libellous per se if it tends to degrade the person accused, the Oklahoma supreme court has held, passing for the third time on a case growing out of an exchange of comment between two Okeene, Okla., editors.

Andrew C. Martz, editor of the Record, made an allusion, intimating a lack of patriotism on the part of T. J. Lewis, editor of the Leader. Lewis retorted with a statement that Martz had evaded service in the World War until compelled by the draft to serve, that he had married to dodge service and that his membership in the American Legion was for business purposes.

Martz brought suit alleging libel. The editor of the Leader offered the defense that it would have been quite legal for Martz to await the draft, or to marry and that therefore there was nothing libellous in the article.

Twice, the supreme court reviewing the case, held that the article was not libellous per se. Now on the second rehearing it held that the Leader article was a studied effort to hold Martz up to ridicule and contempt and therefore libellous per se. Nominal damages awarded Martz in the lower court were affirmed.

NEW BUILDING IN RACINE

Times-Call Starts First Unit of Five-Story Structure

A building and expansion program that will provide the Racine Times-Call with a $50,000 addition to its present plant, a new 48-page Goss press and other equipment was announced last week.

The new addition will be the first unit of a five-story structure. Excavation will begin immediately in order that the addition may be available for use by Sept. 15. A three-unit, underfeed 48-page Goss press will be installed in October.

New stereotyping machinery also will be installed.

Hearst Daily Starts House Organ

The Chicago Herald & Examiner has started a house organ, so far known as "????" The house organ, pamphlet size, runs 8 pages, the back page containing pictures. C. L. Perkins is managing editor. George E. Pelles, George R. Rogers and Lucille V. Kosinske are associate editors and there is a correspondent for each of the 15 departments.

COLGATE & CO. SUED FOR "FLIPPANT" AD

Niece of Gen. Burnside Seeks to Restrain Firm from Using Uncle's Picture and Asks $150,000 Damages in Court Action

Miss Ella C. Patterson, of Milwaukee, who says she is the only surviving relative of Gen. Ambrose E. Burnside, Civil War commander, has brought suit in New York supreme court against Colgate & Co., seeking to restrain the firm from using her famous uncle's picture as "a sort of springboard from which to jocosely and humorously" launch a sales argument in its advertisements for shaving cream. The plaintiff also asks $150,000 damages for the "malicious and unauthorized" use of the photograph.

A hearing was held May 20. Counsel for the plaintiff requested a trial before a jury.

Miss Patterson alleges that as a result of the advertisement appearing in magazines that circulate in her home town, many persons have spoken to and of her as one who has sold permission to Colgate & Co., to make use of Gen. Burnside's picture.

The complaint filed by Miss Patterson makes specific objection to the manner in which the whiskers of General Burnside are brought to the attention of the public. This is done in an advertisement which appeared in leading magazines under the heading: "When Burnsides Were in Bloom." The printed matter with the advertisement, which carries a picture of the general in all his facial glory, does not neglect to mention the glory that was his on the battlefield, but Miss Patterson alleges it dwarfs her uncle's war record at the expense of his tonsorial peculiarities.

BARS "SENSATIONAL" FROM NEWS STORIES

Swope, Executive Editor of New York World, Tells Reporters World Is Open to Misunderstanding, Declaring It Is Best Avoided

Herbert Bayard Swope, executive editor of the New York World, this week advised World reporters to avoid using the word "sensational" in their news stories.

A notice posted on the newspaper's bulletin board, signed by Mr. Swope, read as follows:

"The word 'sensational' has been used occasionally in the World. That is a word so open to misunderstanding that it is best avoided.

"I certainly do not like it in the World, and least of all do I like it used to characterize material in the World."

KANSANS ELECT HARRISON

Beloit Gazette Editor New President of State Editorial Association

Jack Harrison, editor of the Beloit (Kan.) Gazette, was elected president of the Kansas Editorial Association at the 34th annual meeting in Topeka last week. Will T. Beck of the Holton Recorder, brother of Edward Beck, managing editor of the Chicago Tribune, was named vice-president, and W. E. Blackburn, editor of the Herington Sun, was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Members of the executive board include: First district, T. A. McNeal, Kansas Farmer, Topeka; second district, W. C. Simons, Lawrence Journal-World; third, Arthur S. McNay, Galena Daily Republican; fourth, H. C. Sticher, Osage City Press; fifth, Anna Carlson, Manhattan Daily Mercury; sixth, Rovert Good, Cawker City Ledger; seventh, Leslie E. Wallace, Larned Tiller and Toiler; eighth, J. Byron Caine, Belle Plaine News.

LIBEL SUITS BREED BEST IN TITTLE-TATTLE

Litigation Hovers Over Reporters Covering Clearing Houses of Charges—Few Actions Go Further Than Threat Stage in Real Crusades on Public Service

By PHILIP SCHUYLER

Just look into libel suit records in your local courthouse.

How many of them were brought as a result of real crusades on public service. The stories behind these jury verdicts, representing handsome defense counsel fees, in addition to judgments to plaintiffs, are in the majority of cases the merest tittle-tattle. Newspapers are making themselves trial courts for petty crimes and are muffing the job.

From "clearing houses of unproved charges," unprotected by any privilege, come the police station stories published in newspapers, George Norris, attorney for the New York Times, points out in this the tenth article obtained by Editor & Publisher, stripping the libel law of legal verbiage.

From other sources Editor & Publisher obtained records of suits, which substantiate the lawyer's assertion.

NEWSPAPER crusades, when real sparks fly, are less dangerous than the reporting of trivial routine news, as far as libel is concerned. Libel suits, in fact, breed best in the tittle-tattle of police courts.

In conducting a crusade or an attack on a reprobate public official, a newspaper acts carefully—slowly. The most trusted man on the staff is assigned to the story. He works in painstaking fashion, always with the thought in mind that "this may some day come up in court." For every fact he clicks out on his typewriter, he has reams of evidence in his desk drawer.

The poorly paid police reporters, on the other hand, walk like babes through gloomy libel woods. Desk sergeants at police stations, detectives, prosecuting attorneys—these people are the wholesale dealers in tittle-tattle and libel dynamite. They want to make good their arrests, to get personal publicity, win their cases, prove their charges.

To assert gravely that "the police say," "detectives allege," "it is reported at police headquarters," or "according to the district attorney" doesn't help a newspaper one whit in any resultant libel litigation. This cannot be emphasized too strongly.

Police reporters hear a lot they cannot write, and extreme care must ride the carriage of their typewriters or stand with them in telephone booths to watch over what little information they do give out, unless it is their aim to damage reputations by repeating false charges and claims.

As authority for the assertion that most libel litigation grows out of the reporting of police station tittle-tattle is the word of George Norris, New York attorney, who with Alfred A. Cook, dean of New York libel lawyers, has for many years represented the New York Times in court, and also a survey made by Editor & Publisher of a large number of libel cases.

"Most libel troubles originate with the reporting of court proceedings or proceedings leading up to trial when newspaper privilege has not become absolute," Mr. Norris said. "There is a tendency among newspaper men to take what district attorneys, detectives, or police officials say as court matter and therefore privileged, when as a matter of fact their statements are sometimes the merest back-yard gossip, loaded with libel dynamite.

"Police stations, detective bureaus, and the offices of prosecuting attorneys are clearing houses of charges, which may or may not be proved. Just because I go to a police station and complain that John Smith is a liar and a thief and he stole my cat, my charges are not privileged. Newspapers aren't safe in printing such charges, but they do print them.

"Police court proceedings are in no way privileged. They are analogous to the filing of a complaint; and pleadings do not become privileged until court action is taken on them. Any carelessness in reports from police courts stir up a fine kettle of fish."

Fearful of missing a good story reporters frequently become very courageous and defy the lightning of libel law. The detective who has made an arrest throws out his chest and rids himself of a load of buncombe assertions. The police sergeant knows "what the boys like" and feeds it to them without any basis of truth. The district attorney sincerely believes he has a perfect case against an alleged criminal, makes public some damaging charges, and the indictment he has obtained is later dismissed. Newspapers, in other words, are making themselves trial courts for crime and are muffing the job.

Every newspaper man knows this is true, but the recital of a few actual cases may prove more impressive and educational than mere assertionism.

A 19-year-old girl, for instance, was arrested one March afternoon in New York and locked up at the Third Branch Detective Bureau. The charge on the blotter was "burglary." The blotter entry further accused her of "acting in concert with two others, not arrested, with entering the apartment of complainant by means of false keys and stealing therefrom two suits of gent's clothing valued at $60."

Detectives who made the arrest had left the bureau when a New York district reporter started to get facts for a story to telephone into his office. Perhaps he hadn't handed in a yarn for a few days and didn't realize that silence is sometimes more valuable than a column of libellous type. He talked to a sergeant on desk duty. The sergeant told him that the girl had acted as a lookout for burglars.

"Yeah," yawned the sergeant, "she was tired workin' in a factory and thought that burglary would be an easier way of gettin' money. Confessed to a lot of burglaries, she did."

Fine food for re-write imagination!

And this was the headline of the story as it appeared in the newspaper next day:

"Girl Burglar Confesses Many Burglaries Uptown—Miss ——— ———, 19, Is Locked Up After Recounting How She Kept Watch While Two Men Comrades Looted Flats—It Was Her Role, Too, To Pawn Goods."

What public service did this story perform? As it was written, the 19-year-old girl had been proved guilty by her own confession of many burglaries before her trial on one charge.

And in the actual trial in magistrate's court the girl was discharged, the only evidence against her being that she had pawned some stolen goods, which she proved to the satisfaction of the court, she had done innocently, not knowing they were stolen. Detectives who made the arrest said afterwards that the sergeant had been mistaken in stating the girl had acted as a lookout or had confessed to any wrongdoing.

The girl's father asked for a correction, which was printed, and then brought suit for $50,000 damages. The case was settled for $550.

Here is another headline that caused a two-way laugh:

"Girls With Moles Better Dodge Rye —Man With Gun Up There Is Searching Their Backs To Find The Culprit Who Stole His Apples."

This heading and the story under it cost the paper $257.15. The inferred "man with the gun" had asked for $50,000 in a subsequent libel action.

The story concerned a mysterious well dressed stranger, who on the road between Port Chester, N. Y. and Rye, N. Y., was posing as a detective and was stopping girls, removing some of their clothing, pretending he was looking for moles or marks of that kind. He told the girls he wished to arrest a woman bearing marks of this description for stealing apples.

"Detectives," the story said, after the re-write man's imagination had run dry, "arrested John R. Smith (this is a fictitious name). Two girls made complaints against him . . . He was held in $500 bail for trial by jury next Thursday."

The newspaper omitted to mention the charge on which Smith was held. Then came the notorious nigger in the libel wood pile—this paragraph:

"According to the Porchester police he (John R. Smith) was positively identified by half a dozen girls there as the man who had accosted them within two weeks."

Not content with reporting tittle-tattle, the newspaper had opened up a trial court of its own and was publishing evidence against a man arrested by two detectives.

At the actual trial, the two girls who had made complaints, failed to identify Smith positively and Smith went on the stand and made a broad and positive denial covering his movements at night, during the several days he had been living in Port Chester. He was corroborated by a friend and by members of the friend's family with whom he had been living. The jury acquitted him.

Another tittle-tattle case concerned a woman drug addict arrested in New York and sentenced to the workhouse. She gave the name of an old stage favorite and a newspaper built up a story from its morgue under the heading:

"Old Casino Beauty Now a Drug Addict Is in Workhouse."

It appeared that no attempt at all was made to check up and find out whether or not the drug addict and the former stage favorite were one and the same person. The stage favorite became plaintiff in a libel action for $50,000 damages against the newspaper. She alleged among other things that the newspaper story was "maliciously, wantonly, carelessly and recklessly composed."

It was the second time the newspaper had confused the real stage favorite with another woman who was posing under her name. The first time the daily had her taken a derelict to Bellevue hospital, and had later published a correction. The litigation which followed the second offense resulted in a judgement of $10,000 against the newspaper sustained in appeal.

So much for tittle-tattle and drivel in the news. A newspaper can attack and hit hard and get away with it in the name of public service. Without picking up gossip at any clearing house of charges a newspaper can turn detective itself, do its own investigating, and make its own charges under virtual privilege, when discussing affairs of a candidate for public office or fighting any worthy public issue. To save its neck the newspaper must be certain of one thing—the truth.

Under this virtual privilege, the New York World in 1917 attacked John F. Hylan while he was running for Mayor of New York. "Who is John F. Hylan?", asked the World, in a series of articles handled by William Preston Beazell, now assistant managing editor, and proceeded to tell readers the results of investigations made by members of its staff. Many serious charges were hurled at the candidate in printed word and by cartoon. On the same days that the charges were published, the World was at great pains, however, to give Hylan an opportunity to state his side of the case in its columns.

A week before election day, Hylan filed two libel suits, representing 10 different actions, for a total of $525,000 damages, against the World.

On June 3, 1918, 17 months later, all actions were discontinued. The plaintiff was ordered to pay costs and an extra allowance of $2,000 was given to the World to defray expenses incurred in praparing its defense. In his order forcing Hylan to pay the World $2,000, Justice Cropsey referred to the original charges as "most serious in character." He further stated that an official whose character had been so assailed "should be prepared to meet the charges in much less time" than the 17 months that had elapsed.

Hylan gave as his reason for discontinuing the suits "the great pressure of public business upon me at this time." To this the World retorted editorially:

"The World also has more pressing business, but except in one case, none to which it would have given attention more cheerfully: it is first of all anxious to be true and just, and it never knowingly libels anybody. Appreciating keenly the possibility of error and the fact that hasty judgments may be misjudgments, it is always prompt on proof of its inaccuracy to acknowledge mistakes and correct wrong. If any wrong was done John F. Hylan during the recent campaign, he has presented no evidence of it, and so far as his libel suits are concerned, the World was ready to meet him before an American Jury.

"In public service, the World is not to be intimidated by threats, or terrorized by actual assault, as was shown, we think, when Theodore Roosevelt, then President of the United States, attempted to muzzle it, because it had exposed and criticized his operations at Panama. Mayor Hylan's official duty, now pleaded in explanation of the abandonment of an action never to go to trial, is no more imperative than the World's journalistic duty, which is unceasing."

MacDonald DeWitt, attorney for the New York Daily News, contributes a libel don't-list in the 11th article of this series to appear next week.

Talman Resigns State Post

John Talman of St. Paul, for 18 years newspaper librarian of the Minnesota Historical Society, has resigned and will make his home with his daughter, Mrs. Herbert R. Dewart, of Portland, Ore. He served in various capacities on the Rochester Democrat & Chronicle, Albany Argus, St. Paul Pioneer Press, of which he was managing editor, Minneapolis Journal, St. Paul Globe and St. Paul Dispatch. For more than 30 years he was contributor and correspondent of The Journalist and its successor, Editor & Publisher.

New Ontario Paper Firm Organized

Organization of the Spruce Falls Power and Paper Company, Ltd., of Toronto and Kapuskasing, Ont., was completed late last week. F. J. S. Ensenbecker was elected president; J. H. Black, vice-president and general manager; Ernest Mahler, secretary, and J. C. Kimberly, treasurer. In addition the following directors were elected: Adolph S. Ochs, Julius Ochs Adler, and Arthur Hays Sulzburger.

APRIL LINAGE GAIN IN 30 CITIES AVERAGES 6 PER CENT

LINAGE figures for 134 newspapers in 30 cities of the United States, just issued by the New York Evening Post Statistical Bureau, Inc., show a gain of 6 per cent for April, 1926, over April, 1925. Losses are shown for 6 cities, due in two cases to suspension of newspapers listed last year. Of the newspapers, 102 gained, 28 lost and comparative figures are not available for four. The detailed figures follow:

SUMMARY OF ADVERTISING BY CITIES

30 cities listed 34 papers listed	24 show gain 102 show gain 4 no comparison 1926	 1925	6 show loss 28 show loss
New York	15,904,500	14,484,214	1,420,286	Gain
Chicago	8,392,422	7,827,456	564,966	Gain
†Philadelphia	7,546,630	7,921,626	374,996	Loss
Detroit	5,868,814	5,673,178	195,636	Gain
Cleveland	4,396,350	4,210,725	185,625	Gain
St. Louis	4,689,820	4,751,360	61,540	Loss
Boston	6,987,201	6,431,709	555,492	Gain
Baltimore	4,952,953	4,653,973	298,980	Gain
Los Angeles	7,252,857	7,141,925	110,932	Gain
†Buffalo	4,120,377	4,138,989	18,612	Loss
San Francisco	4,955,773	4,852,730	103,043	Gain
Milwaukee	3,306,255	3,062,321	243,934	Gain
Washington	5,129,882	4,358,080	771,802	Gain
Cincinnati	3,840,300	3,495,600	344,700	Gain
New Orleans	4,351,672	3,844,277	507,395	Gain
Minneapolis	3,464,852	3,120,522	344,330	Gain
Seattle	3,184,216	2,802,058	382,158	Gain
Indianapolis	3,343,650	3,427,305	83,655	Loss
Denver	2,331,868	2,466,660	134,792	Loss
Providence	3,126,638	3,028,332	98,306	Gain
Columbus	3,874,424	3,473,700	400,724	Gain
Louisville	3,637,959	3,296,050	341,909	Gain
St. Paul	2,776,144	2,532,642	243,502	Gain
†Oakland	2,712,766	2,405,018	307,748	Gain
Omaha	2,174,235	2,012,087	162,148	Gain
Birmingham	3,045,182	2,550,240	494,942	Gain
Richmond	1,966,664	1,990,366	23,702	Loss
Dayton	3,195,010	3,159,268	35,742	Gain
Houston	3,040,366	2,585,884	454,482	Gain
†Des Moines	2,176,975	1,998,030	178,945	Gain
Totals	135,746,755	127,696,325	8,050,430	Gain

†Note references under individual newspaper linage of these cities.

NEW YORK

	1926	1925
American	1,090,906	1,172,800	81,894	Loss
Herald Trib.	1,669,612	1,358,718	310,894	Gain
Times	2,557,372	2,347,434	209,938	Gain
World	1,513,710	1,402,098	111,612	Gain
*Mirror (Tab.)	307,744	366,428	58,684	Loss
News (Tab.)	657,596	567,804	89,792	Gain
*Eve. Graph	348,368	149,744	198,624	Gain
*Eve. Journal	1,400,896	1,477,432	76,536	Loss
Eve. Post	432,274	420,174	12,100	Gain
*Eve. World	965,876	820,742	145,134	Gain
*Sun	1,500,242	1,252,174	248,068	Gain
*Telegram	532,572	617,226	84,654	Loss
Brooklyn Eagle	1,717,220	1,478,646	238,574	Gain
Brooklyn Times	678,128	450,252	227,876	Gain
Standard Union	531,984	602,542	70,558	Loss
Totals	15,904,500	14,484,214	1,420,286	Gain

CHICAGO

	1926	1925
*Daily News	2,115,273	1,989,750	125,523	Gain
Tribune	3,002,127	2,774,085	228,042	Gain
Herald Exam.	1,070,643	980,343	90,300	Gain
*Post	543,852	522,273	21,579	Gain
*American	1,253,196	1,153,404	99,792	Gain
*Journal	407,331	407,601	270	Loss
Totals	8,392,422	7,827,456	564,966	Gain

PHILADELPHIA

	1926	1925
Inquirer	1,910,700	1,760,400	150,300	Gain
Record	750,900	752,100	1,200	Loss
Ledger	1,448,752	1,263,086	185,666	Gain
*Eve. Ledger	1,437,378	1,392,040	45,338	Gain
North Amer.	.....	880,800	.....
*Bulletin	1,998,900	1,873,200	125,700	Gain
Totals	7,546,630	7,921,626	374,996	Loss

North American combined with Ledger May 18, 1925.

DETROIT

	1926	1925
News	3,110,324	3,050,530	59,794	Gain
Times	1,204,434	1,123,234	81,200	Gain
Free Press	1,554,056	1,499,414	54,642	Gain
Totals	5,868,814	5,673,178	195,636	Gain

CLEVELAND

	1926	1925
Plain Dealer	1,693,800	1,674,450	19,350	Gain
News Leader	1,215,900	1,215,000	900	Gain
*Press	1,486,650	1,321,275	165,375	Gain
Totals	4,396,350	4,210,725	185,625	Gain

ST. LOUIS

	1926	1925
Post Dispatch	2,374,120	2,243,360	130,760	Gain
Globe-Democrat	1,284,900	1,352,700	67,800	Loss
*Star	639,900	783,900	144,000	Loss
*Times	390,900	371,400	19,500	Gain
Totals	4,689,820	4,751,360	61,540	Loss

*No Sunday edition.

BOSTON

	1926	1925
Herald	1,453,460	1,275,274	178,186	Gain
Globe	1,463,967	1,350,188	113,779	Gain
Post	1,115,975	1,099,085	16,890	Gain
Advertiser	463,027	401,058	61,969	Gain
*American	445,935	428,212	17,723	Gain
*Traveler	1,129,266	984,843	144,423	Gain
*Transcript	682,933	661,637	21,296	Gain
*Telegram	232,638	231,412	1,226	Gain
Totals	6,987,201	6,431,709	555,492	Gain

BALTIMORE

	1926	1925
Sun	1,568,789	1,566,918	1,871	Gain
*Evening Sun	1,715,133	1,616,185	98,948	Gain
American	542,272	464,631	77,641	Gain
*News	724,765	762,039	37,274	Loss
*Post	401,994	244,200	157,794	Gain
Totals	4,952,953	4,653,973	298,980	Gain

LOS ANGELES

	1926	1925
Times	2,184,952	2,166,122	18,830	Gain
Examiner	1,924,737	1,923,887	850	Gain
*Express	813,120	862,498	49,378	Loss
*Herald	1,559,124	1,470,728	88,396	Gain
*Record	464,058	428,092	35,966	Gain
News	306,866	290,598	16,268	Gain
Totals	7,252,857	7,141,925	110,932	Gain

BUFFALO

	1926	1925
Express	531,959	506,639	25,320	Gain
Courier	667,333	698,972	31,639	Loss
Post	.....	109,680	.....
Times	1,217,348	1,182,500	34,848	Gain
*Star	158,140	134,031	24,109	Gain
*News	1,545,597	1,507,167	38,430	Gain
Totals	4,120,377	4,138,989	18,612	Loss

Post discontinued February, 1926.

SAN FRANCISCO

	1926	1925
Chronicle	947,772	934,430	13,342	Gain
Examiner	1,711,973	1,584,220	127,753	Gain
Bulletin	576,394	649,110	72,716	Loss
*Call	895,776	843,766	52,010	Gain
*News	667,576	680,414	12,838	Loss
*Herald	156,282	160,790	4,508	Loss
Totals	4,955,773	4,852,730	103,043	Gain

MILWAUKEE

	1926	1925
Journal	1,788,889	1,580,105	208,784	Gain
S. T. & A. M. Sentinel	601,294	601,290	4	Gain
*Wis. News	662,253	642,044	20,209	Gain
*Leader	253,819	238,882	14,937	Gain
Totals	3,306,255	3,062,321	243,934	Gain

WASHINGTON

	1926	1925
Star	2,525,401	2,223,307	302,094	Gain
Post	955,893	820,379	135,514	Gain
*Eve. Times	752,768	722,382	30,386	Gain
Herald	659,258	429,489	229,769	Gain
*Eve. News	236,562	162,523	74,039	Gain
Totals	5,129,882	4,358,080	771,802	Gain

CINCINNATI

	1926	1925
*Post	954,000	781,800	172,200	Gain
*Times Star	1,434,600	1,315,200	119,400	Gain
Enquirer	1,190,700	1,128,900	61,800	Gain
Tribune	261,000	269,700	8,700	Loss
Totals	3,840,300	3,495,600	344,700	Gain

NEW ORLEANS

	1926	1925
Times Picay	1,713,469	1,548,359	165,110	Gain
Item	1,031,546	1,035,396	3,850	Loss
States	895,084	824,917	70,167	Gain
*Tribune	711,573	435,605	275,968	Gain
Totals	4,351,672	3,844,277	507,395	Gain

MINNEAPOLIS

	1926	1925
Tribune	1,464,325	1,330,028	134,297	Gain
Journal	1,495,235	1,319,791	175,444	Gain
*Star	505,292	470,703	34,589	Gain
Totals	3,464,852	3,120,522	344,330	Gain

SEATTLE

	1926	1925
Times	1,480,136	1,331,260	148,876	Gain
Post Intellig.	954,520	728,812	225,708	Gain
*Star	585,760	621,810	36,050	Loss
*Union-Record	163,800	120,176	43,624	Gain
Totals	3,184,216	2,802,058	382,158	Gain

INDIANAPOLIS

	1926	1925
*News	1,674,180	1,659,360	14,820	Gain
Star	1,130,343	1,187,229	56,886	Loss
*Times	539,127	580,716	41,589	Loss
Totals	3,343,650	3,427,305	83,655	Loss

DENVER

	1926	1925
News	550,060	618,436	68,376	Loss
Post	1,329,944	1,311,212	18,732	Gain
*Times	451,864	537,012	85,148	Loss
Totals	2,331,868	2,466,660	134,792	Loss

PROVIDENCE

	1926	1925
Journal	924,804	910,873	13,931	Gain
*Bulletin	1,357,256	1,276,075	81,181	Gain
Tribune	404,248	389,701	14,547	Gain
*News	440,330	451,683	11,353	Loss
Totals	3,126,638	3,028,332	98,306	Gain

COLUMBUS

	1926	1925
Dispatch	2,128,763	1,955,119	173,644	Gain
Journal	672,993	625,247	47,746	Gain
*Citizen	1,072,668	893,334	179,334	Gain
Totals	3,874,424	3,473,700	400,724	Gain

LOUISVILLE

	1926	1925
Cour. Journal	1,316,250	1,161,328	154,922	Gain
Herald Post	537,957	627,552	89,595	Loss
*Times	1,242,224	1,057,268	184,956	Gain
*Post	541,528	449,902	91,626	Gain
Totals	3,637,959	3,296,050	341,909	Gain

ST. PAUL

	1926	1925
*Dispatch	987,224	898,450	88,774	Gain
Pioneer Press	931,448	869,988	61,460	Gain
News	857,472	764,204	93,268	Gain
Totals	2,776,144	2,532,642	243,502	Gain

OAKLAND

	1926	1925
Tribune	1,700,818	1,604,190	96,628	Gain
*Post-Inquirer	867,076	696,738	170,338	Gain
*Record	.....	104,090	.....
*Times	144,872	.....	.....
Totals	2,712,766	2,405,018	307,748	Gain

Record discontinued October 24, 1925.
Times inaugurated October 23, 1925.

OMAHA

	1926	1925
World-Herald	1,188,446	1,088,164	100,282	Gain
Bee	514,346	458,843	55,503	Gain
News	471,443	465,080	6,363	Gain
Totals	2,174,235	2,012,087	162,148	Gain

BIRMINGHAM

	1926	1925
Age-Herald	797,566	690,004	107,562	Gain
News	1,678,810	1,478,218	200,592	Gain
*Post	568,806	382,018	186,788	Gain
Totals	3,045,182	2,550,240	494,942	Gain

RICHMOND

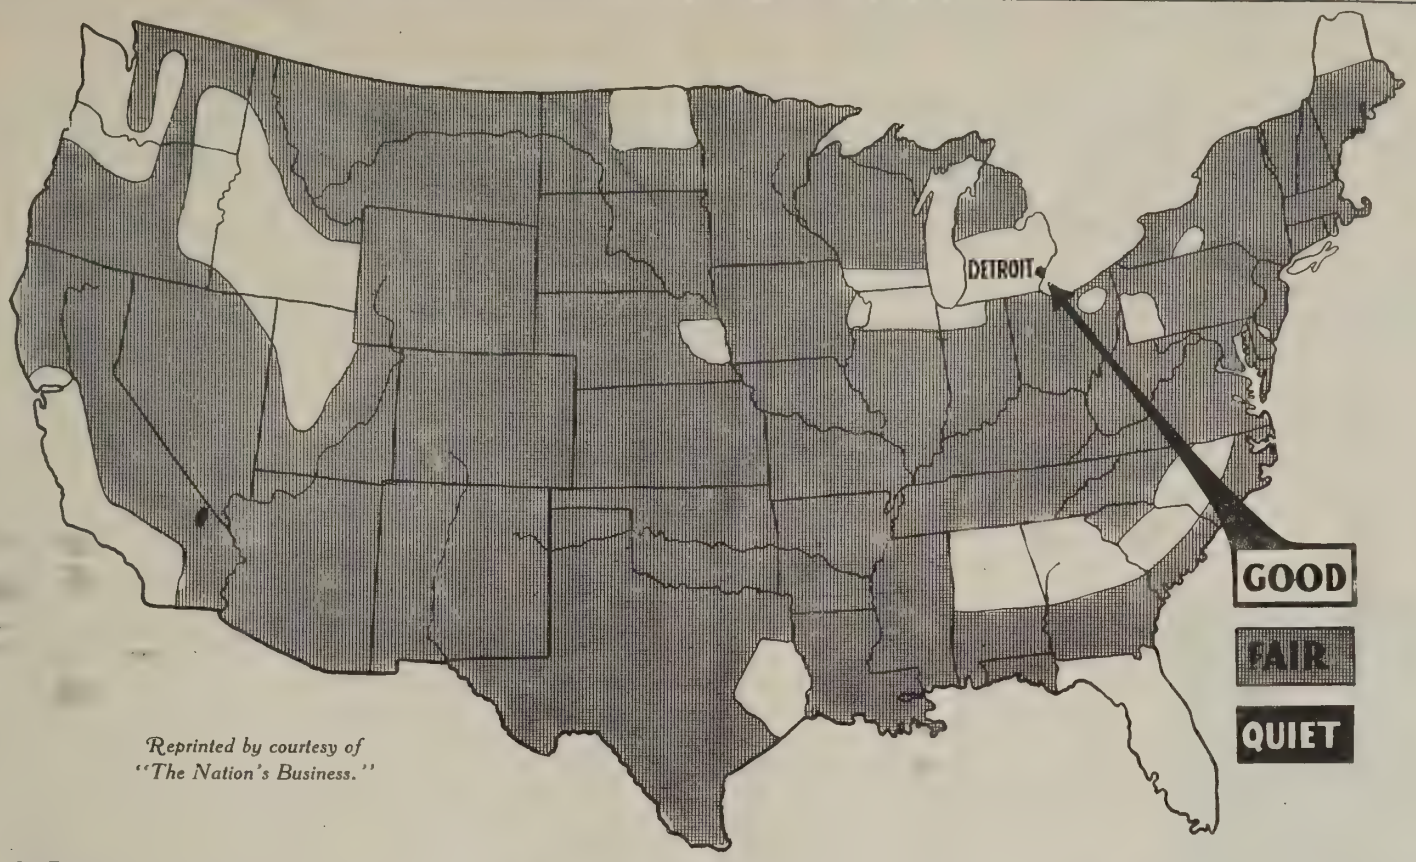
	1926	1925
*News-Leader	1,095,248	1,147,776	52,528	Loss
Times-Dispatch	871,416	842,590	28,826	Gain
Totals	1,966,664	1,990,366	23,702	Loss

DAYTON

	1926	1925
News	1,565,452	1,550,262	15,190	Gain
*Herald	965,608	914,592	51,016	Gain
Journal	663,950	694,414	30,464	Loss
Totals	3,195,010	3,159,268	35,742	Gain

HOUSTON

	1926	1925
Chronicle	1,473,206	1,188,838	284,368	Gain
Post-Dispatch	1,006,208	810,320	195,888	Gain
*Press	560,952	586,726	25,774	Loss
Totals	3,040,366	2,585,884	454,482	Gain



DES MOINES

	1926	1925
Register	722,088	595,744	126,344	Gain
*Tribune	913,440	757,502	155,938	Gain
*Capital	541,447	‡644,784	103,337	Loss
Totals	2,176,975	1,998,030	178,945	Gain

Sunday Capital discontinued February 21, 1926.

*No Sunday edition.

‡ Includes 54,615 lines Sunday issue.

Reprinted by courtesy of "The Nation's Business."

Business is Good in Detroit

Take advantage of Detroit's Prosperity Through Its One Big Medium— The Detroit News

THE map above reprinted from the May issue of Nation's Business depicts the prosperous condition of the Detroit market. What is more striking is the fact that while other sections of the country show variations in color on this map from month to month, the Detroit field was shown in white both a month ago and a year ago indicating a stability of prosperity well worth the attention of the national advertiser.

Peculiarly advantageous is this field for the advertiser, for not only does it have a prosperous population with ample purchasing power, but it also has a unique advantage in its one big medium — The Detroit News. This newspaper with a circulation of more than 320,000 week days and 350,000 Sundays covers the field thoroughly and alone. In fact, no other city of Detroit's size or larger is so thoroughly covered by one newspaper.

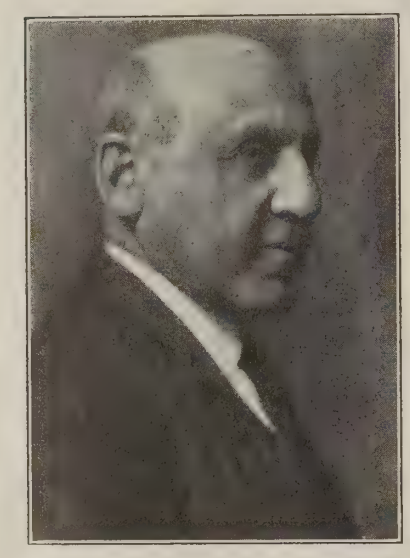
Thus it is easily possible to sell the huge Detroit market at a low, economical advertising cost not attainable in any other market of equal prominence. This is a fact substantiated by the leadership of The Detroit News in advertising of all large metropolitan media during 1925 and thus far during 1926. Select the Detroit market and your sales will amply reward your efforts.

The Detroit New

More Than 320,000 Weekdays, 350,000 Sunday Circulation

Detroit's HOME Newspaper

"BOGUS," LATE COPY, TYPOGRAPHICAL CHANGES, CHIEF NEWSPAPER WASTES



Lack of Standardization in Equipment and Page Sizes Also Important Factors, New York Times Business Manager Tells Inland Publishers

By LOUIS WILEY
Business Manager, New York Times

Excerpts from an address before Inland Daily Press Association, Chicago.

INTELLIGENT management of newspapers has placed publishing on a sounder footing in the last two decades. Even if it is not a highly profitable calling, we are reasonably sure that industry and prudence will bring us fair rewards; and the knowledge that we are engaged at the same time in a work of public service and education multiplies any cash dividends we may receive.

But the fact that we are prospering gives us no license to permit wastes in our offices to continue or to increase. A growing business is naturally likely to suffer from a growing total of wastes in actual money, even if not in percentages of the gross expense. Large wastes may be one of the penalties of large business.

Louis Wiley

Newspaper publishers are fortunate in some respects in their opportunities to control wastes, and unfortunate in others. It is a great advantage to have virtually all of the newspaper's activities housed in one plant, under the eye and control of the manager, and not to be saddled with the wide selling organization of a business of national distribution, not to be continually vexed by problems of changing selling prices and falling markets. Newspaper publishing is primarily a local business, even though its news comes from around the world, and though national advertising comes through agencies and representatives in distant cities. Excessive expenses in these departments can usually be reduced in a short time.

The publisher's handicaps in attaining economical management lie mainly in the fact that at certain hours or minutes of the day the utmost speed must be made with a full force in all departments, with every one carrying a peak load. The force must be maintained at the maximum which can be usefully employed at these periods. The newspaper payroll carries for the full day every person who can assist in making speed at edition times. A newspaper publisher also cannot reduce his force in slack seasons as managers of factories do. A newspaper resembles a railroad and other public services in being obliged to carry on at all times.

But even with these difficulties there are many steps we can take to eliminate waste in our offices.

You have a powerful group of newspapers in the Inland Press Association. Do you know how many different column widths and lengths are represented here and what is the extra cost to you and your advertisers of a lack, not of complete, but of reasonable standardization of sizes?

Publishers pay for this lack of standardization directly and indirectly. It drives national advertising away from newspapers. A committee of the Federated Engineering Societies investigating waste estimated that standardization of newspaper column widths would mean a saving of $3,000,000 to $5,000,000 a year in the United States in composition and plates alone.

Publishers pay, of course, higher prices for machinery and material because of their odd sizes. At the recent convention of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association the mechanical superintendent of the Times, Charles F. Hart, explained attempts to obtain standardization in certain press equipment with the co-operation of the manufacturers. The progressive steps taken to establish a mechanical division and to create a traffic department also will mean elimination of wastes.

It is interesting to note that the engineers' committee found a greater variation in magazine sizes than in newspapers. There were 18 variations in magazine width and 76 in length of page or column Among newspapers there were 16 in width and 64 in length. The variations in all classes of publications were estimated to cost the public not less than $100,000,000 a year.

Publishers would learn of one large waste in newspaper offices if they could chart the actual production in the composing room hour by hour, particularly in the display setting. There is a marked difference between the output of the early hours and the later ones. This is not so much the fault of the mechanical department—the same condition exists in other rooms—as it is of the failure of advertisers and the news department to supply early copy. I believe that the full hook at all times is stimulating to a steady high level of production. A publisher can do a great deal to encourage early copy from his local advertiser.

Advertisers frequently lose circulation by delivering late copy, which cannot be inserted in the early editions. The publisher loses as well, because he must fill this space in the early editions with other matter, only to kill it later. Moreover, the publisher loses in the long run when advertising has not its full productiveness. Stronger efforts of newspaper managers and agencies to obtain more copy earlier in the day would mean a saving. A greater part of composition could be done by men on the day scale instead of the night scale, and a saving could be made in overtime.

Newspapers should keep the most careful records of the reasons for re-runs of advertising due to errors. The responsibility should be traced, and all possible steps taken to correct the source of such errors. The Times has installed in its classified department a battery of typewriters, equipped with a special roll, invented by our own typewriter repair man, to handle advertising blanks. The main reasons behind the decision to have typewritten copy on classified advertising was to eliminate mistakes due to hand written copy and to increase production in the composing room.

I should like to mention here one plan we have in the Times office for detecting objectionable advertising. We pay $1 to any one in the composing room who detects an advertisement which has passed the censorship of the classified department and violates one of the Times censorship rules. While this does not appear to be an elimination of waste, it does operate to make the classified department more careful. Omitted advertisements mean also the expense of refunds. We have found, too, that if the objectionable features of an anouncement are taken up with the advertisers when the copy is submitted it is easy to persuade them to change it, and we can then publish the advertisement. If the advertisement is once left out, it is more difficult to have it ordered in again properly revised.

Publishers of newspapers are subject to one form of waste for which it would be hard to find a parallel in industry. This is the bogus setting rule which is part of the international law of the typographical union and is enforced in varying degrees in offices throughout the country.

For the thirteen weeks ending Nov. 1, 1925, the bogus re-set in the Times composing room was 708 pages, and the cost was estimated to be $33,198.12, or at the rate of $125,000 a year. Some exception has been taken to these figures. It has been said that the Times could not have saved this entire amount if bogus had been abolished. That is true. It is also true that if an advertiser had sent in 708 pages of copy, had it set, and then not used this composition, the Times would have sent him a bill for the $33,198.12. The annual cost on this basis for all New York newspapers is estimated to be $1,000,000 a year.

Whatever the precise irreducible minimum of this waste is, not one penny of it can be defended. It is a tax on industry and society, a tribute levied without justice. I predict that some statesman of labor will arise to abolish this bogus setting in the name of fair play and common sense. It is something of which grown-up men should be ashamed.

The publishers and advertisers should make a resolve to throw into the hell-box along with this bogus the waste habit of excess typographical revision

Newspaper practice varies in charg costs of such revisions. The Ti allows for revisions in advertisements to 25 per cent of the original composit Many newspapers have no such lim tion. A considerable saving can be complished by laying out advertisem right the first time.

The automobile has widened the trad area—the newspaper's trading area—f fold and tenfold. Newspaper publish are wasting opportunities if they are cultivating the wider market which invention has conferred upon them. automobile has given a new meaning the word "local."

Newspaper publishers are resting ur the burden of one waste in the po rates on second-class matter. These inexcusably high—they are the only time rates which have not been redu

The joint Congressional subcommi which has been studying this question the last year has just reported permanent remedial legislation on seco class must go over until the next sess Action has been too long delayed alre

Every newspaper advertising mana is familiar with the waste due to carel ness. The copy and art departments an agency or local firm may turn work of a high order, and the effecti ness of it may be spoiled by sending the newspapers on the schedule mats p in quality, of insufficient depth for g reproduction, or poor cuts. Good ne paper advertising is so powerful that laxity should be permitted to waste effectiveness. Every newspaper adver ing department should do educatio work in preventing this waste.

Jacksonville Post Office

Jacksonville is Second in postal receipts

For the month of March, the Postal Receipts of the United States were larger than any other previous month on record, with the exception of the Christmas rush of December 1924 and 1925.

The Florida Times-Union is serving the city of Jacksonville with 95% coverage and leading all Florida newspapers in circulation.

The Florida Times-Union
~ JACKSONVILLE ~

Daily - - - - 53,000
Sunday - - - 70,000

National Advertisers Choose The State-Tribune

These national advertisers are among those using The State-Tribune, the leading newspaper of Albuquerque, New Mexico:

Good Housekeeping Magazine
Victor Talking Machines
Heinz Products
Certo
Armstrong Linoleum
Fleischmann's Yeast
Royal Baking Powder
Nujol
U. S. Royal Cord Tires
DeForest Radio
Exide Batteries
Ben Gay
Wildroot
Texas Co. (Motor Oils and Gasolines)
Life-Savers
Ladies Home Journal
Hill's Bros. Coffee
Bauer & Black
Cycle Trades of America
Camel Cigarettes
Wesson Oil
Dodge Motor Car
Ford Motor Car
Newbros Herpicide
Lucky Strike Cigarettes
Flit
La Palina Cigars
Kellogg's Pep
Luden's Cough Drops
Blackstone Cigars
Firestone Tires
Post Bran
Literary Digest
B. F. Goodrich Tires, etc.
Ingersoll Watch
Cuticura Remedies
Prince Albert Smoking
Scholl Mfg. Co.
Vick's Vap-o-Rub
E. R. Squibb & Son
Geo. W. Childs Cigar
Cliquot Club Gingerale
Chesterfield Cigarettes
Macfadden Publications
Snowdrift
Quaker Oats
Perfection Stove
San Telmo Cigar Co.
Webster Cigars
Oldsmobile
Anheuser-Busch Products
American Beauty Macaroni
Delicia Sandwich Bread
Calumet Baking Powder
Crane Company
Folger's Coffee
Horlick's Malted Milk
K-C Baking Powder
Putman Dyes
Portland Cement
Pepsodent Toothpaste
Lytona Baking Powder
St. Louis Chamber of Commerce
Swift & Company
Val Blatz Brewing Products
Wrigley's Gum
Black & White Beauty Cream
Kolar-Bak
Palmolive Shaving Cream
Santa Fe Railroad
Studebaker Corporation
Hellman's Mayonnaise
Niagara Wall Paper
Sterling Products
Westinghouse Electric

(Write for information about the Albuquerque market)

THE STATE-TRIBUNE

Albuquerque, · New Mexico

A Scripps-Howard Newspaper

Member of the A. B. C.

Represented in the National Advertising Field By ALLIED NEWSPAPERS, Inc.

NEWSPAPER MAKERS AT WORK

By PHILIP SCHUYLER

He lets news sell the paper—A. R. Michener

ABOUT a month ago the Harrisburg (Pa.) Telegraph cut out all prize competitions and similar circulation promotion stunts, and, according to A. R. Michener, general manager, circulation is continuing to gain.

"We have reached the conclusion that a good city news report and a good carrier system are the best and only necessary circulation builders," Mr. Michener said.

"For promoting circulation, nothing is better than a boy organization, and for maintaining circulation, we find we need look no further than our own news room."

The Telegraph is distributed under what Mr. Michener describes as a "modified independent carrier system." In other words, the Telegraph's carrier organization differs from that of the standard independent system such as that of the Indianapolis News in that the newspaper sells direct to subscribers, the boys merely acting as agents. The Telegraph distributes all but 1200 of its circulation of about 40,000 by carrier. To accomplish this a staff of about 700 boys is required, 150 of this total being necessary to care for city circulation. The newspaper's territory is divided into seven city districts, each with its own branch offices. A branch office manager supervises distribution of an average of 3,000 papers.

"In prayerbook phraseology, when 'two or three are gathered together,' we serve them with a carrier boy," Mr. Michener said. "In outlying districts some carriers have as few as five customers. It is far more expensive than mail distribution, but it is a refinement of reader service, in which we thoroughly believe. A boy with such a small route is only able to make 20 cents a week on commission, but we pay him an extra bonus.

"The best carrier boy, we have found, is 12 years old. At that age he is just becoming interested in earning his own pocket money. He is easily trained, and, if treated right, quickly develops good business qualities. By 16, a boy becomes interested in girls and baseball, and it becomes more difficult to hold him as a carrier."

Mr. Michener attributes the fact that circulation continues to gain without the aid of prize contests and similar stunts to one other fact than a good city news report and efficient carrier system, the fact that the Telegraph has always been a leader in civic progress.

E. J. Stackpole, editor and owner of the Telegraph, at one time at his own expense issued a 48-page "Forward Harrisburg" edition. All improvements considered necessary for the city were listed in this edition, which was solid text, and was published without any advertising support. Mr. Stackpole in 1902 also brought a group of engineering experts to the city, who outlined an extensive park improvement and street paving program, much of which has been carried out since by city authorities.

"Mr. Stackpole is extremely interested in municipal improvements," Mr. Michener continued. "Ever since 1902, when he resigned as an Associated Press correspondent to purchase the Telegraph, he has led the way in Harrisburg's progress."

Mr. Michener himself has had all his newspaper experience on the Telegraph's staff. He started as a road man in the circulation department under Robert McClean, who is now manager of the Consolidated Press. Later he left this end of the business for a short experience in the editorial department. He was appointed circulation manager in 1917 and was promoted to assistant general manager in 1922.

Three years ago he assumed his present position and title.

PUBLISHER PRINTS NEWS OF HIS ARREST

WHEN Judge Robert Worth Bingham, editor and publisher of the Louisville Courier-Journal and Times was arrested a few days ago for speeding, both of his newspapers published the story, although opposition papers did not print the item.

The arresting officer alleged Judge Bingham was driving at 42 miles an hour on the Upper River Road, above Louisville. On a plea of guilty a court assessed a fine of $10 and costs.

In commenting on the fact that Judge Bingham insisted that the item concerning his arrest be used in both of his newspapers one of the news executives in the organization said:

"I am glad Judge Bingham insisted on publishing the item, because it provides me with a good answer when some of our 'first citizens' come into the office and ask us not to use this or that news triviality with which they may happen to be linked up unfavorably. Now they won't have a leg to stand on. It will save a lot of time and conversation."

N. Y. Group on Fishing Trip

A party of New York newspaper men left May 22 for St. Donat Chalet, Lac Archambault, Quebec, Canada, for two weeks of trout fishing. The party consisted of Robert B. Peck, Denis T. Lynch, Dwight S. Perrin and Clare Briggs, of the New York Herald Tribune; Frederick B. Edwards and Herbert Westen, of the New York American; and Frederic F. Van de Water, formerly of the New York Herald Tribune and now with the Curtis Publishing Company.

1926 NEWSPRINT PRODUCTION

Bank Estimates World Will Produce 5,250,000 Tons This Year

Allowing for proposed new mills, world production of newsprint for 1926 is estimated at 5,250,000 tons by the Royal Bank of Canada, in a recently issued statement. Of the total, Canada will produce 33.4 per cent, while her raw material will enter into 45 per cent of the total, the bank believes.

"Canada produced 1,522,000 tons of newsprint in 1925," it is stated. "Canadian pulp and pulpwood were used in 612,000 tons or 40 per cent of the newsprint manufactured in the United States, making a total of 2,134,000 tons, or 42.7 per cent of the world's estimated production coming directly or indirectly from Canadian sources."

The bank believes an even broader market for Canadian paper is promised for the future.

Pearson Addresses Michigan Dailies

The Michigan League of Home Dailies held its regular May meeting at Grand Rapids, May 13 and 14. The 13th was taken up entirely with shop discussions while the 14th was devoted to national advertising. George Pearson, space buyer of the Chicago office of the J. Walter Thompson Company, was the guest of the League and led the discussion on how the small city daily can increase its national advertising and make it more productive to the manufacturer. Twenty of the 22 members were present. The League accepted the joint invitation of Niles and Dowagiac to hold its summer social meeting in these two cities late in July.

New Daily in New York State

The Whitehall (N. Y.) Evening Times started publication last week as an Associated Press member. E. F. Roche is publisher.

A New Hazel Deyo Batchelor Serial

"PALE HANDS"

The problem of the untrained girl suddenly thrust into the world to earn her own living solved in 54 800-word installments.

For Terms and Copy Wire

LEDGER SYNDICATE

INDEPENDENCE SQUARE PHILADELPHIA, PA.

The

INDIANAPOLIS

Based on the daily average circulation for the year, the circulation of The Indianapolis News has increased three times as much as that of the second paper in the last four years, and its margin over the third paper increased more than 16,000.

Dan A. Carroll, 110 E. 42nd, NEW YORK

J. E. Lutz, Tower Bldg., CHICAGO

NEWS

Frank T. Carroll,
Advertising Director

Superiority of morning newspapers as effective mediums for the distribution of merchandise in the New York Market

The advertiser who seeks adequately to merchandise his product in the greatest buying market in the world—the metropolitan section—must use the New York morning newspapers as his spokesmen.

The morning newspapers enter the home where they are consulted by all members of the family, by the men for news of finance and business, by the women who purchase 85 per cent. of all commodities used by the family and by the young people for society and sports news. The average net paid circulation of New York morning newspapers for the six months ended March 31, 1926, and the advertising rates, are as follows:

	Average Daily and Sunday Circulation Six Months Ended March 31, 1926	Gain in Six Months	Loss in Six Months	Advertising Rates per Agate Line
				Daily	Sunday
The New York Times	392,695	10,690	.....	$.80	$.95
New York American	347,771	.....	15,091	.60	1.75
The World	329,860	.....	13,068	.60	.65
New York Herald-Tribune	294,327	6,941	.....	.65	.70
	1,364,653			$2.65	$4.05

The New York morning newspapers are the most effective mediums to reach the people of the metropolitan district. The total average daily and Sunday circulations of the standard size morning newspapers is 1,364,653. The total advertising rate for the daily editions is $2.65 per agate line and the total rate for the Sunday editions is $4.05 a line. This rate is exceedingly low for so large a distribution and so great an opportunity to reach thousands of prospective customers.

While it is true that The New York Times has a greater circulation than any other New York morning newspaper of standard size, recording a greater growth than any other in the past six months, and carrying a larger volume of advertising than any other New York newspaper, each publishes an extensive volume of advertising and brings profitable results to advertisers.

The Times feels that its position in these respects does not detract from the value of other newspapers.

To reach the large select group of men and women who read The New York Times—intelligent, thinking, substantial people—it is necessary, however, to publish advertisements in The Times, for the attention of these most desirable thousands of prospective customers cannot be obtained through any other newspaper.

The New York Times published 10,040,464 agate lines of advertising in the four months of this year—3,718,306 lines more than the second New York newspaper. The New York Times is free from objectionable and questionable "catchpenny" offers. Advertisements are subject to strict censorship to protect the readers of The Times from those who misrepresent, raise false hopes and spread nets to catch the unwary.

MISSOURI PRESS ROUND TABLE CLOSING FEATURE OF JOURNALISM WEEK

209 Editors, Publishers, Advertising Men and Fiction Writers Attend 17th Annual Gathering—Don Bridge Says Merchant Should Spend 3 Per Cent Gross Receipts for Advertising

TWO hundred and nine editors, publishers, advertising specialists, novelists, special writers, and others connected with journalistic enterprise attended all or part of the elaborate series of speeches and social events of the Seventeenth Annual Journalism Week of the University of Missouri, Columbia, Mo., which closed May 15. The final features of the program were a round-table discussion by the Missouri Press Association and another by the National Council of Theta Sigma Phi, professional journalism sorority, Saturday morning.

The feature of the Missouri Press Association session was the presentation by J. H. Casey, assistant professor of journalism at the University of Missouri, of a survey of Missouri rural newspapers. Due to changing conditions in rural districts caused by better roads, the automobile, and farmers moving into the cities, he reported, there is a tendency in Missouri rural weeklies toward consolidation. The editorial page, he said, is not so prominent as it formerly was; and only about one newspaper in 50 is going the necessary space to agricultural news. The editors discussed responsibility in printing primary ballots and a price commensurate with the service; special editions, standard rate cards, how to analyze a printing business, value of attractive headlines, ways to promote community service, and what should constitute a legal newspaper for publication of legal notices.

At the Theta Sigma Phi conference, which met Friday and Saturday, Miss Sara L. Lockwood, president, assistant professor in journalism at the University of Missouri, presided. Miss Katherine Simonds, on Friday reported that 17 groups are petitioning for membership in the sorority. A luncheon Saturday closed the conference.

At the King Features Syndicate Banquet Friday night 500 attended. Comic characters of the syndicate were represented by students of the School of Journalism in four skits. Short talks, chiefly of a humorous nature, were given by Gene Fowler, of the syndicate; Dr. Maximo Soto Hall of La Prensa, Buenos Aires; Homer Croy, New York novelist; Dr. Stratton D. Brooks, president of the University of Missouri; and Dean Walter Williams of the School of Journalism, who was toastmaster.

Speakers at Journalism Week sessions Friday were W. C. Jarnagin, editor and publisher, Storm Lake (Ia.) Pilot-Tribune; Mrs. Jessie Childers Williams, editor-in-charge, Troy (Mo.) Free Press; E. N. Pizer, Jr., associate editor Tipton (Mo.) Times and vice-president of the Central Missouri Press Association; Edgar White, editor, Macon Republican, and vice-president, Northwest Missouri Press Association; Richard Lloyd Jones, editor, Tulsa (Okla.) Tribune; Doc Brydon, editor, Bloomfield (Mo.) Vindicator; president of the Southwest Missouri Press Association; C. W. Green, editor-publisher, Brookfield (Mo.) Daily Argus. John F. Case, editor of the Missouri Ruralist, St. Louis, in the afternoon presented the School of Journalism the Missouri Ruralist Shield, on which each year for ten years the name of the student ranking highest scholastically in agricultural journalism is to be registered.

Thursday afternoon the presentation by the alumni association of a portrait of Dean Walter Williams to the School of Journalism was held. Rex Magee of Jackson, Miss., president of the school alumni association, presented the gift. Hulda Gordon Rhodes, seven-year-old grand-daughter of Dean Williams, unveiled the portrait.

Don Bridge, manager of merchandising and national advertising, Indianapolis News, and secretary of the Association of Newspaper Advertising Executives, was the chief speaker Thursday night at a dinner of the Missouri Associated Dailies. A merchant, he declared, should spend at least three per cent of his gross receipts of the year for advertising, in order to make his business successful. The toastmaster was William C. Van Cleve of the Moberly (Mo.) Monitor-Index, president of the Associated Dailies.

On Thursday, the local chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, national professional journalistic fraternity, initiated the following as associate members: Dr. James Melvin Lee, writer of "Our Own World of Letters" for EDITOR & PUBLISHER, and director of the department of journalism, New York University; Gene Fowler, former editor of the New York American, and now editor of Circulation of King Features Syndicate; Eugene C. Sharp, and T. C. Morelock, instructors in journalism, University of Missouri.

Alpha Delta Sigma, national professional advertising fraternity, elected E. K. Johnston, assistant professor of advertising, University of Missouri, president.

Credit to Mr. Foster

TO EDITOR & PUBLISHER: In your issue of January 30 we ran an advertisement on the Reference Dept. and Library of the Boston Herald-Traveler.

Through an error this advertisement read that Shaw-Walker had planned and installed this particular reference department. It is true that our material was used in this installation, but the job was largely planned by Mr. Paul D. Foster, who was at that time director and librarian of the Boston Herald-Traveler.

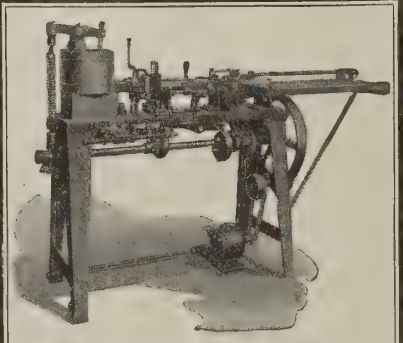
We would appreciate it very much if you could publish a note stating the above facts as we want to see that Mr. Foster gets full credit for the fine work he did on the Boston Herald-Traveler Reference Dept.

Yours very truly, D. POTTER,
SHAW-WALKER COMPANY.

SERVE HUMANITY FIRST, BE A BRILLIANT JOURNALIST NEXT, SAYS RURAL EDITOR

(Excerpts from an address by Mrs. Bess M. Wilson, editor, Redwood Falls (Minn.) Gazette, and member of the Board of Regents, University of Minnesota, at 17th Annual Journalism Week, University of Missouri).

IN justice to the newspaper fraternity, I must say that there is less of this carrying of a multiplicity of burdens than there was even fifteen years ago. Efficiency has become an actual thing instead of something about which to write a caustic two line paragraph. Even the most conservative is learning that the extension of the pay roll very often means the extension of the bank account instead of its depression. The result is we are getting better writing on the small papers, better men are taking hold of them and the public is better served.



It is probable that very few of the young people studying journalism at the present time are looking forward to working on any other organ than a big or medium-sized daily. But many of you will. It is just impossible in accordance with the law of supply and demand, that more than a very small proportion of you will find places in the larger cities. The rest of you will go to work on papers from the size of mine up to the dailies in cities of a hundred thousand and less.

I prophesy that many of you will find your vocation finally in the offices of the really small paper. I have no wish to appear heartless nor to dash your aspirations and yet I hope this is true.

The country newspaper is its own justification and those responsible for it have no occasion to apologize for it. It not only justifies itself, but, like virtue, it constitutes its own and often its only reward. Into its pages go the heart throbs of its community, more or less artistically presented according to the ability of its editor but all there just the same. From these same pages come the impulses which later crystallize into that all-powerful thing, public sentiment and opinion. It has the power to make its readers happy or sad, to assist them in their financial stress occasionally, to help them when friendly sympathy is needed, to foster them all, to serve them all, to educate a little and to entertain much.

Because it is within its scope to cover all these intrinsic things, is my reason for saying a few sentences ago that the hearts of news writers must be educated as well as their heads—and in my opinion hearts are really the more important fountainhead of all really good copy. Suppose you drop with me for a minute into the little circle of readers served by my own paper—a matter of 2,000, with at least 1,500 of them all living in the immediate vicinity of the city in which the paper is published. Not a big nor an exciting field in which to labor, you will say. I have no doubt that many a sprouting newspaper man thinks he could within six months write up everything there worthy of publishing. And yet after years

(Continued on page 43)

Leads - Slugs - Plain Rules

All You Need!

THE Elrod Slug Caster brings to the composing room an inexhaustible source of supply for leads, slugs and plain rules of various point sizes cut to any length.

Practically automatic and extremely simple, it can be operated with minimum attention by almost anyone.

Changes from one size or kind of product to another are made quickly.

Elrod material is solid and stands up under the most severe press and stereotyping conditions.

Ludlow Typograph Co.
2032 Clybourn Ave., Chicago
San Francisco—New York
Atlanta—Boston

LUDLOW QUALITY COMPOSITION

Better Ads and Heads at Less Cost with the Ludlow

USERS rightly expect much when installing a Ludlow: New type on solid sluglines in unlimited quantities. Snappier headings. Brighter pages. Distinctive typefaces. Full-kerning, free-flowing, unbreakable italics. Six to sixty-point sizes, including bold and extended faces. But users often get even more than they expect as is shown by the following recent statements:

The Bend Bulletin, Bend, Oregon: "The Ludlow is giving us excellent results in our advertising and job composition. It does fine ruleform work. In news heads Ludlow slugs are much preferable to handset type. In all this work non-distribution of used forms has proved a time-saver."

Morning Enterprise, Oregon City, Oregon: "We have been issuing an all-slug paper since installing the Ludlow. It has vastly improved the appearance of the paper, as the clean, new type with its splendid assortment of faces, has made a remarkable difference. The machine is working perfectly and with it our men are getting good production."

The Standard-Examiner, Ogden, Utah: "We are greatly pleased with the Ludlow and Elrod equipment. Their use will be of great benefit to our publication, its readers, and advertisers."

Register Publishing Co., Eugene, Oregon: "Our Ludlow installation is mighty satisfactory."

Learn how the Ludlow of today will exceed your expectations by giving you better Ads and Heads at less cost.

Ludlow Typograph Company
2032 Clybourn Avenue, Chicago

San Francisco: 5 Third Street
Atlanta: 41 Marietta Street
New York: 63 Park Row
Boston: 261 Franklin Street

LUDLOW QUALITY COMPOSITION

Linage— An Elusive Rainbow

Many advertisers and agencies place undue importance upon linage figures per se.

The methods of publishing newspaper linage figures are still in embryo.

So the space buyer's microscope should be placed upon revenue, upon rates, when appraising linage.

The truth is that much linage is printed to impress the buyer. Advertising published in "trade," or contingent upon ingenious discounts, or at cut rates, or in spite of poor credit, frequently places the stronger medium at an apparent disadvantage.

Advertising linage is a most important gauge of a periodical's value but means nothing if not paid for at full rates.

E. Katz Special Advertising Agency

Established 1888

Publishers' Representatives

DETROIT	NEW YORK	KANSAS CITY
ATLANTA	CHICAGO	SAN FRANCISCO

PHILLIPS GIVES PRIZES—THOUSANDS CHEER

Paper Which Left Out Rhinelander Case and Browning-Heenan Romance (By Mistake) Wins Grand Prize of Two Pedigreed Belgian Hares

H. I. PHILLIPS, conductor of the "Sun Dial" column in the New York Sun last week made public his own "Awards For the Best Things of The Year" as follows:

(Books)

1—For the book which best presented the spirit of American life and manners and rendered the greatest service to the greatest number: Grand prize of two raccoon coats divided between Luther M. Duckbill's "How to Care for the Motor" (Doubleday-Page; $1.12); Emory T. Zither's "Should She Tell Him Why She Didn't Wish Him to Call Again?" (Sears-Roebuck; three for $1), and "Manhattan and the Bronx," by the New York Telephone Company (A. T. & T. Co.; free to paid up subscribers).

There was quite a battle between the judges over the last named book, some of them holding the action to be much too slow and the episode on getting a policeman badly overdone.

Honorable mention was given, in a decided whisper, to "The Importance of Correct Seeding in the Preparation of Putting Greens," by a fellow whose name slipped the committee, and "100 Suggestions for Form Telegrams," by the Western Union Company.

* * *

Entertainment

2—For the entertainment of the year that did the most to take the mind of the American public off carburetor troubles: First prize of one blue suit with extra trousers to Ringling Brothers Circus; Second prize of sixteen saxophone lessons by mail to the person responsible for the Congressional Prohibition Hearings last month at Washington; third prize, a set of engraved horseshoes to Calvin Coolidge for his efforts to act like a baseball fan at the last World Series.

* * *

(Poetry)

3—For the blankest blank verses produced, with or without the use of drugs, by any person born in two family house: First prize, a correct circulation statement of the Shrevesport Blade, to Olga Petruska Koskovitch, America's blankest blank poetess, for her effusion entitled "There Are Cold Nights in North Dakota, but Violets Won't Tell." It took the board so long to wade through this poem and get its meaning, if any, that there was no time to read any others. In the reading of this unusual work three of the judges were disfigured for life and one has been acting very queerly ever since.

(Biography.)

4—For that biography written since the last eclipse that got almost as much space in the newspapers as the crime news and that best reflected the native modesty of the author: First prize, four $3.85 pink tunics and a glass of water to Col. House, author of "Ten Recipes for Making a President" and "War Is War, but Not Necessarily." Second prize, a handsome hall runner 15 yards by 2½ feet to Joe Humphries, famous fight referee, for his "Life and Works of Joseph Humphries, B. V. D." Honorable mention, a handsome inner tube of the finest rubber, went to John F. Hylan for his "Things of Which I Am Almost Positive."

* * *

(Newspapers.)

5—For the most conspicuous service rendered by any American newspaper in any language (in the final twelve star sporting final): First prize, a set of thoroughbred Belgian hares to the Sniderville Scandalizer and Item, which didn't print a line about the Rhinelander case or the Browning-Heenan romance. (Note: Since awarding the prize it has developed that the paper had the matter in type and left it out by mistake. It is too late, however, for the judges to do anything about it.)

Second and third prizes, an aluminum egg beater and four yards of toweling, went to the Stony Creek Gazette, which really changed the weather prediction every day and never once published a photograph of an obscure actress sitting on the Olympic with her dresses above her knees.

N. C. Sport Writers Elect Wade

Sport writers from leading North Carolina newspapers gathered at Chapel Hill, May 14, and organized the North Carolina Sport Writers' Association. Jake Wade, of the Charlotte Observer, was elected president; Jim McDaniel, Winston-Salem Journal, vice-president, and W. S. Christian, Twin City Sentinel, secretary-treasurer.

A.A.C.W. Invites Dailies to Run Ads

Advertisements promoting the forthcoming convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World has been sent out to newspapers for free publication.

Ohio A.P. Group Reelects Payne

George M. Payne, telegraph editor, Cincinnati Times Star was re-elected president of the Ohio Associated Press Editors at the annual meeting last week.

PULITZER JOURNALISM AWARDS "GLORIFY SWEET INANITIES" WRITER CHARGES

SHARP criticism of the Pulitzer prizes in journalism was contained in a letter from Richard C. Bland to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and printed by that newspaper on the editorial page May 6.

Mr. Bland, who stated he was a former newspaper man, wrote as follows:

The Pulitzer Prize Awards.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

As an ex-member of the editorial profession, I rise to inquire why that profession is being degraded by the Pulitzer Prize Committee? The awards in literature and the non-journalistic arts, while possibly not above criticism, appear to be based on intrinsic merit. The awards in journalism I know to be anything but stimulating or encouraging to the profession.

The award this year to Fitzpatrick was well deserved though belated. But it is not, by any means, "Fitz's" best. There is hardly a week in the year when he does not "ring the bell" with a cartoon of more "color," pungency and caricaturization than the fine but inanimate illustration of the multiplicity of laws. Possibly this explains the long delay in recognizing a truly great cartoonist. His thrusts were not innocuous enough to pass the tests of a committee whose first requirement seems to be toothlessness.

The reportorial prize was awarded to a youth of 22 who wants to be a singer and has dropped newspaper work as being no longer of interest to him. Meritorious as may have been his work on the Floyd Collins assignment I fail to discern how it passed the test of "accomplishing some public good." This was purely a human interest story concerning the attempted rescue of a man of no public consequence whatever young Miller may be entitled to a Carnegie medal for heroism but as to journalistic merit I am sure your own reporters produced numerous stories which on all points would have put young Miller's work in the infant class, but, in the phrases of Joseph Pulitzer as quot in your masthead, "attacked wrong fought "demagogues" and fought "f progress and reform." Hence the tab of the jury of sweetness and banality.

Capping the climax is the prize-winnir editorial. Here is a touching wo picture of undoubted clearness of styl with the moral purpose chiefly of adve tising the New York Times' Christm charity stunt, with no reasoning at all a with no power to influence public opinic because it is on a subject which admi of no opinion. Over it we may all we happily because it does not pretend to anything but fiction. As to the causes poverty and measures for extirpating there was not a breath. That would touching matters close to the heart of t man who founded this journalistic awar It would be opposing injustice and priv leged classes. It might be displeasing "predatory plutocracy."

For three times running now, to n personal recollection, the prize-winnir editorial has not touched upon a subje that raised a single issue, much less a serted a thesis which, because of notab opposition, could be declared a convictio Old timers complain that the editori page does not ring and thunder as it on did but surely, in this great land of hos of newspapers, it rings and thunders du ing the year more than is ever discover by the Pulitzer jury. One cannot b wonder what the tireless controversiali and champion of issues who founded t Post-Dispatch and New York Wor would think of the enterprise bearing h name which, by the inference of i awards. teaches and glorifies sweet inan ties as the goal of editorial achievemer

RICHARD C. BLAND.

Brisbane to Referee Auto Races

Arthur Brisbane, Hearst editor, h been named referee of the 14th annu international 500-mile automobile rac in Indianapolis, May 31.

"Second Love"

by MALCOLM DUART

The year's serial sensation—a story of married life and the modern free-thinking girl—written and edited for newspaper use, with superb photographic illustrations.

Write or telegraph to

Eugene MacLean
Office and Production Plant
827 Folsom street
San Francisco, California

The DAILY OKLAHOMAN
OKLAHOMA CITY TIMES

A Gain of 181,104

Lines of Advertising in April, brings total Oklahoman and Times gains during the first four months of 1926 to 627,536 lines.

Local, National and classified advertisers agree that these newspapers, thoroughly and alone cover the entire Oklahoma City market at one low cost.

Represented by E. KATZ Special Advertising Agency
New York Chicago Kansas City Detroit Atlanta San Francisco

After several years of investigation and experimentation, the Mergenthaler Linotype Company announces the introduction of a new newspaper body face. This new Ionic is an exceptionally readable face. The openness of the rounded letters—the height and width of lowercase—the clearcut capitals—the size and fullness of the figures—the absence of marked contrast between thick and thin strokes—the well-fitted units—the maximum letter-count—all of these things go to make this new type a most desirable newspaper face. There are no "pin holes" or sharp corners to fill up with ink; no fine lines to break down in stereotyping. The even color of the characters is particularly adapted to the "roughness" of newspaper stock. The outstanding advantage of the new face is its conservation of vision. The even tone throughout is restful to the eyes without being monotonous. There is enough variation to avoid tiresomeness, yet not enough to be disconcerting. A happy medium has been effected. It is easier to read than seven point faces, yet gives the same word-count to the column as six point. Various degrees of leading can be used to advantage, or the lines may be cast on a solid six and a half point body. The comparative shortness of the ascenders and descenders gives good legibility even when set solid. Cast on seven point body, the 6½ Point Ionic gives the effect of being well leaded—and with a decided gain in word-count over seven point faces. The first paper to adopt the new face was the Evening News, of Newark, N. J. After a trial of several weeks, the management of the paper is more enthusiastic than ever about it, and readers continue to send in words of commendation daily. One of the most appreciative is Dr. Joseph H. Salov, a leading optometrist, and past president of the New Jersey Optometric Association. Says Dr. Salov, addressing the editor of the Newark Evening News: "It would be unfair for me or any one else who realizes the amount of good that will result from your recent change in the style of type you use in the makeup of the News if this was not recognized, appreciated and so acknowledged by every one interested in the conservation of vision; for it is the accumulated unnecessary strain on the eyes, due to the extremely small and poor type used in many newspapers, that hastens the day when artificial aid must be sought. Although not versed in the nomenclature of the type you have been using for the last few days, it is of a style and character that immediately makes itself felt, and is far more readable and comfortable than the former style. I am sure that there are many thousands of readers who, possibly unknowingly, feel the added comfort." After several years of investigation and experimentation, the Mergenthaler Linotype Company announces the introduction of a new newspaper body face. This new Ionic is an exceptionally readable face. The openness of the rounded letters—the height and width of lowercase—the clearcut capitals—the size and fullness of the figures—the absence of marked contrast between thick and thin strokes—the well-fitted units—the maximum letter-count—all of these things go to make this new type a most desirable newspaper face. There are no "pin holes" or sharp corners to fill up with ink; no fine lines to break down in stereotyping. The even color of the characters is particularly adapted to the "roughness" of newspaper stock. The outstanding advantage of the new face is its conservation of vision. The even tone throughout is restful to the eyes without being monotonous. There is enough variation to avoid tiresomeness, yet not enough to be disconcerting. A happy medium has been effected. It is easier to read than seven point faces, yet gives the same word-count to the column as six point. Various degrees of leading can be used to advantage, or the lines may be cast on a solid six and a half point body. The comparative shortness of the ascenders and descenders gives good legibility even when set solid. Cast on seven point body, the 6½ Point Ionic gives the effect of being well leaded—and with a decided gain in word-count over seven point faces. The first paper to adopt the new face was the Evening News, of Newark, N. J. After a trial of several weeks, the management of the paper is more enthusiastic than ever about it, and readers continue to send in words of commendation daily. One of the most appreciative is Dr. Joseph H. Salov, a leading optometrist, and past president of the New Jersey Optometric Association. Says Dr. Salov, addressing the editor of the Newark Evening News: "It would be unfair for me or any one else who realizes the amount of good that will result from your recent change in the style of type you use in the makeup of the News if this was not recognized, appreciated and so acknowledged by every one interested in the conservation of vision; for it is the accumulated unnecessary strain on the eyes, due to the extremely small and poor type used in many newspapers, that hastens the day when artificial aid must be sought. Although not versed in the nomenclature of the type you have been using for the last few days, it is of a style and character that immediately makes itself felt, and is far more readable and comfortable than the former style. I am sure that there are many thousands of readers who, possibly unknowingly, feel the added comfort." After several years of investigation and experimentation, the Mergenthaler Linotype Company announces the introduction of a new newspaper body face. This new Ionic is an exceptionally readable face. The openness of the rounded letters—the height and width of lowercase—the clearcut capitals—the size and fullness of the figures—the absence of marked contrast between thick and thin strokes—the well-fitted units—the maximum letter-count—all of these things go to make this new type a most desirable newspaper face. There are no "pin holes" or sharp corners to fill up with ink; no fine lines to break down in stereotyping. The even color of the characters is particularly adapted to the "roughness" of newspaper stock. The outstanding advantage of the new face is its conservation of vision. The even tone throughout is restful to the eyes without being monotonous. There is enough variation to avoid tiresomeness, yet not enough to be disconcerting. A happy medium has been effected. It is easier to read than seven point faces, yet gives the same word-count to the column as six point. Various degrees of leading can be used to advantage, or the lines may be cast on a solid six and a half point body. The comparative shortness of the ascenders and descenders gives good legibility even when set solid. Cast on seven point body, the 6½ Point Ionic gives the effect of being well leaded—and with a decided gain in word-count over seven point faces. The first paper to adopt the new face was the Evening News, of Newark, N. J. After a trial of several weeks, the management of the paper is more enthusiastic than ever about it, and readers continue to send in words of commendation daily. One of the most appreciative is Dr. Joseph H. Salov, a leading optometrist, and past president of the New Jersey Optometric Association. Says Dr. Salov, addressing the editor of the Newark Evening News: "It would be unfair for me or any one else who realizes the amount of good that will result from your recent change in the style of type you use in the makeup of the News if this was not recognized, appreciated and so acknowledged by every one interested in the conservation of vision; for it is the accumulated unnecessary strain on the eyes, due to the extremely small and poor type used in many newspapers, that hastens the day when artificial aid must be sought. Although not versed in the nomenclature of the type you have been using for the last few days, it is of a style and character that immediately makes itself felt, and is far more readable and comfortable than the former style. I am sure that there are many thousands of readers who, possibly unknowingly, feel the added comfort." After several years of investigation and experimentation, the Mergenthaler Linotype Company announces the introduction of a new newspaper body face. This new Ionic is an exceptionally readable face. The openness of the rounded letters—the height and width of lowercase—the clearcut capitals—the size and fullness of the figures—the absence of marked contrast between thick and thin strokes—the well-fitted units—the maximum letter-count—all of these things go to make this new type a most desirable newspaper face. There are no "pin holes" or sharp corners to fill up with ink; no fine lines to break down in stereotyping. The even color of the characters is particularly adapted to the "roughness" of newspaper stock. The outstanding advantage of the new face is its conservation of vision. The even tone throughout is restful to the eyes without being monotonous. There is enough variation to avoid tiresomeness, yet not enough to be disconcerting. A happy medium has been effected. It is easier to read than seven point faces, yet gives the same word-count to the column as six point. Various degrees of leading can be used to advantage, or the lines may be cast on a solid six and a half point body. The comparative shortness of the ascenders and descenders gives good legibility even when set solid. Cast on seven point body, the 6½ Point Ionic gives the effect of being well leaded—and with a decided gain in word-count over seven point faces. The first paper to adopt the new face was the Evening News, of Newark, N. J. After a trial of several weeks, the management of the paper is more enthusiastic than ever about it, and readers continue to send in words of commendation daily. One of the most appreciative is Dr. Joseph H. Salov, a leading optometrist, and past president of the New Jersey Optometric Association. Says Dr. Salov, addressing the editor of the Newark Evening News: "It would be maximum le… things go to mak… desirable newspaper … "pin holes" or sharp c… with ink; no fine lines … in stereotyping. The ev… aracters is particularly … oughness" of newspap… tstanding advantage … s conservation of … throughout is …

LINOTYPE MARK

Study the design of this NEW face

Linotype 6½ Point Ionic No. 5

See how perfectly it meets the difficult requirements of modern newspaper printing conditions. Notice the full, round contours of the letters; no "pin holes" or sharp corners to fill up with ink; no fine lines to break down in stereotyping.

Ask the nearest Linotype Agency for copies of newspaper set in this face and compare it with the body type you are now using both for legibility and word count. You will find it easier to read than 7 point faces and that it gives the same word count as a 6 point.

The 6½ Point Ionic is made with italic and small caps and also in combination with Bold Face No. 2.

MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE COMPANY

BROOKLYN, NEW YORK

SAN FRANCISCO CHICAGO NEW ORLEANS

CANADIAN LINOTYPE LIMITED. TORONTO

Representatives in the Principal Cities of the World

AROUND WORLD RACER STARTS FROM N. Y.

Goldstrom, Aviation Writer, Hopes to Lower 35-Day Record for N. A. N. A.—Using Planes for Crossing Continents

John Goldstrom, formerly aviation reporter on the New York Evening World, sailed from New York May 19 on the S. S. "Mauretania" on a round-the-world race, hoping to beat the record set in 1913 by John Henry Mears, a New York Sun reporter, who circled the globe in

John Goldstrom

35 days, 21 hours, 35 minutes and four-fifths seconds. Goldstrom will write his adventures for members of the North American Newspaper Alliance.

Last year Goldstrom flew more than 5,000 miles in Europe, writing a series of articles for the Evening World. During the past year he has mapped out an itinerary, in which the airplane figures as a means of travel over more than half of the route.

The newspaper adventurer must return to a North River dock in New York before June 23, to beat Mears' mark. If all goes as planned, he may return days before that time, but even rail and steamer travel do not guarantee the perfect execution of a schedule calling for 18,500 miles of virtually uninterrupted movement.

Goldstrom's dispatches as he races will be flashed from steamers, planes, and transmitting officers to the North American Newspaper Alliance. From New York to Plymouth, 3,200 miles, Goldstrom intends to travel by steamer. He is almost certain to reach the English port by May 25.

At Plymouth the race against minutes begins. An airplane will meet him and carry him to Berlin, with good luck, the same afternoon. Early the next morning he will leave Berlin for Moscow by plane.

From Moscow on the route is not fully determined. Arrangements are possible to obtain air transportation, the journey to Yokohama. If it proves impossible to obtain air transportation, the aviator will start for Vladivostok on the Trans-Siberian railroad, to be met somewhere in the interior by Japanese army aviators. It is his hope to catch the liner "President Madison" in Yokahama on June 7, which will carry them in 10 days to Victoria, B. C.

Victoria to Seattle, Seattle to Elko, Nev., Elko to Chicago, and Chicago to New York by airplane call for only three or four days at the most.

Goldstrom has been a writer on aviation for more than 16 years, during which time he has served on the staffs of the World, the Pittsburgh Post, the Pittsburgh Dispatch, and other newspapers and syndicates. His first airplane flight was made with Glenn Curtis in 1909. Since then he has flown more than 40,000 miles.

Interest in records for circumnavigation began with Jules Verne and his novel "Around the World in Eighty Days" Seventeen years after this novel was published, Nellie Bly a reporter for the New York World, made the trip in 72 days, six hours and 11 minutes.

RETAINS CROSSWORD TITLE

Mrs. Von Phul Again Wins N. Y. Herald Tribune Contest

Ruth Von Phul, of Syracuse, N. Y., champion crossword puzzler since 1924, retained her title at the New York Herald Tribune Crossword Puzzle Championship Contest in Wanamaker's Auditorium, New York, May 15.

The victory was accomplished in 5 minutes, 34½ seconds. C. F. Hunter of Sound Beach, Conn., was the runner up. Mrs. Von Phul guessed 64 words correctly in the given time. This is the second time Mrs. Von Phul has won the Herald Tribune's Championship Cup. Another win will give her permanent possession.

Clare Briggs, Herald Tribune cartoonist was chairman of the contest.

Details were arranged by Porter Caruthers, assistant business manager of the Herald Tribune; Finney Donaldson, assistant to Mr. Caruthers, and Henley Hill, assistant night editor.

Gardner News Incorporated

A charter of incorporation was granted the Gardner (Mass.) News, last week to do a publishing business, with a capital of $100,000. The incorporators are Walter E. Hubbard, editor and publisher; S. Walter Rogers, business manager; Patrick H. Murray and Germaine L. Hubbard, all of Gardner.

CHANGES ON WORLD STAFF

J. H. Gavin Made Sports Assignment Editor of New York Daily

John H. Gavin has been appointed sports assignment editor of the New York World. He will have charge of executive details of the World's sporting page, working in co-operation with George Daley, sports editor.

Gavin was formerly in charge of the World's picture page and has been succeeded in that capacity by James S. Collins, formerly assistant city editor. Thomas B. Hanly, special writer and assistant editor of the Sunday department, replaces Collins at the city desk. Hanly is an old-time New York newspaper man, who had long experience on the old New York Sun. For a time he was feature writer for the New York Morning Telegraph. He has been connected with the World for the last half-year.

Beatrice Blackmar, formerly of the Des Moines (Ia.) Tribune has joined the Sunday staff of the World.

Raleigh Daily Incorporated

The Raleigh (N. C.) News and Observer has been granted a certificate of incorporation to edit a newspaper and do a general printing business. The authorized capital is $100,000, with $23,000 subscribed by Josephus Daniels, Mrs. Addie Worth Bagley Daniels and Josephus Daniels, Jr., all of Raleigh. The News and Observer has been in existence many years. Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy during the Wilson administration, is editor and publisher.

LACK OF ADVERTISING CITED AS FAILURE CAUSE

Inability to advertise sufficiently, caused by lack of funds, was given as one of the reasons for a voluntary petition in bankruptcy filed May 8, in federal court, Cleveland, by C. B. Kurtz, president of the Kurtz Motor Car Company, which built an automobile featuring an automatic gear shift control invented by Kurtz.

Kurtz listed his assets at $60,447 and liabilities at $29,525.

OFFERS TRAFFIC SOLUTION

Chicago Tribune Urges Four Lan Highway with 30-60 Mile Speed Limit

The Chicago Tribune, which has long advocated the doubling in width of presen paved highways, is now urging a fou lane highway to be built near all larg cities. In a signed article by J. L. Jenkins automobile editor, the Tribune outlines it plan. The two outside lanes are to b used for one way local traffic in eac direction, the speed limit on which is to b 30 miles per hour. The two center lane are for through and fast traffic, with speed limit of 60 miles per hour. Th outside lanes are to be separated fron the center lanes by a high curbing, witl spaces at regular intervals to allow trans fer from one to the other.

The two center lanes are not to b separated.

FOR PROMPT SERVICE

TYPE

BORDERS ~ ORNAMENTS ~ BRASS RULE

Printers' Supplies

KELLY PRESSES ~ KLYMAX FEEDERS ~ PAPER CUTTERS
HAMILTON WOOD AND STEEL EQUIPMENT, INCLUDING OUR AMERICAN CUT-COST EQUIPMENT

Carried in stock for prompt shipment at the following Selling Houses of the American Type Founders Company

BOSTON	RICHMOND	DETROIT	MINNEAPOLIS	SAN FRANCISCO
NEW YORK	ATLANTA	CHICAGO	KANSAS CITY	PORTLAND
PHILADELPHIA	BUFFALO	CINCINNATI	DES MOINES	SPOKANE
BALTIMORE	PITTSBURGH	ST. LOUIS	DENVER	WINNIPEG
	CLEVELAND	MILWAUKEE	LOS ANGELES

SPEAKING OF THRIFTY PEOPLE

50.7 percent of the people in Rhode Island are bank depositors.

In 1925 these people had $267,154,595 in savings banks, trust companies, and State banks. (National Bank figures on savings accounts not available.)

This represents a gain of $14,859,239 over 1924.

This rich and responsive market offers excellent sales opportunities to advertisers who use

The Providence Journal
and
The Evening Bulletin

Circulation 105,000 Net paid

PROVIDENCE JOURNAL CO.
Providence, R. I.

Representatives

CHAS. H. EDDY CO. — Boston, New York, Chicago

R. J. BIDWELL CO. — San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle

Melt Your Stereotype Metal with Electric Heat

As high as 32% saving in cost!
Less wear and tear on the pot!
Uniformity of metal temperature never before securable!
All regulation and close attention eliminated!

THE progressive Waterbury Republican American, Waterbury, Conn., has installed a standard 5-ton stereotype pot, electrically heated by 9 G-E cast-in immersion units. Plates are cast for two issues daily and one issue on Sunday. The casting temperature of the metal is automatically kept at 620° F. Between castings the metal is automatically maintained at a temperature of 450° F.

Seldom has such an improvement been introduced in the casting room. This electrically heated pot is operated at a saving of 32% over the cost of operation of the previously used fuel-fired pot. Uncomfortable heat radiation and gaseous odors are absent from the room. As control is completely automatic, the pot requires practically no attention.

Everyone connected with the paper is enthusiastic. Mr. Dubuy, foreman of the plant, states that the excellent temperature control of the pot relieves him of the responsibility of making sure the temperature is right when his men want to begin casting. Mr. W. J. Pape, publisher, considers the installation as most satisfactory.

Although electric heat will not supplant all other forms of heat for industrial purposes, there are processes in every industry where it is the ideal heat—the most economical heat—the heat that ultimately will be used.

ULTIMATELY ELECTRIC HEAT
IN EVERY INDUSTRY

Phone or write to your nearest G-E office for complete information

570-9

GENERAL ELECTRIC

GENERAL ELECTRIC COMPANY, SCHENECTADY, N. Y., SALES OFFICES IN ALL PRINCIPAL CITIES

NEW YORK TIMES MEN AT PT. BARROW

W. C. Lyon (left) and Leo. Bundy, who mushed from Fairbanks to Pt. Barrow, Alaska, to report the arrival of Capt. Amundson's dirigible Norge. Lyon is the Time's special correspondent, while Bundy is his radio operator.

N.A.N.A. SCORES BEAT ON NORGE STORY

Receives First Message of Dirigible's Landing in Teller, Alaska, May 15 —Correspondents at Point Barrow Also Sighted Ship First

Correspondents of the North American Newspaper Alliance were first to pierce the cloud of mystery which surrounded the Amundsen dirigible Norge, after it passed over the North Pole, first by sighting the ship at Point Barrow, Alaska, and then reporting its landing at Teller in a dispatch received in New York, May 15.

The coded flash that announced the location of the Norge at Teller was sent by Frederick Lewis Earp, N. A. N. A. correspondent at Fairbanks, Alaska. He received it from Howard Mason, N. A. N. A. operator at Point Barrow. Mason was listening for signals from Robert Waskey, N. A. N. A. operator at Point Barrow and for signals from the Norge.

This necessitated using two receivers, one a short wave set, for Waskey, the other a long wave one, for the Norge. Local interference from electric pumps and the Army Station drove Mason thirteen miles out of town. He has been hooked up with Earp by telephone.

Friday at 5:59 A. M., New York time, or 11:59 P. M. Thursday, Fairbanks time, he reported that he thought he heard the Norge reporting that she was out of gas, but he could get no location.

The North American Newspaper Alliance held this up because of its doubtful character. On May 15 at 9:35, New York time, or 3:35 Fairbanks time, the coded flash that the Norge was at Teller, Alaska, was received.

Earp is a Seattle Times man who succeeded the late Palmer Hutchinson, first N. A. N. A. correspondent with Wilkins, who was killed by the propellor of one of the planes. Howard Mason is also a Seattle man, one of the foremost radio amateurs in the country and at one time technical editor of QST, the Radio Relay League magazine. He designed the little portable set now being used by Waskey at Barrow, which reported the first definite news of the Norge's arrival.

From Nome to Rome and Back

Col. Umberto Nobile's story of the Norge flight across the North Pole had to go from Nome to Rome and back, before it could be published in the Nome Nuggett, four-page daily, published by Charles S. Maynard. Nobile radioed his account of the adventure to Premier Mussolini of Italy. Mussolini received the narrative in Rome and the Associated Press telegraphed, cabled and radioed it back to the Nugget. Nobile's lips were sealed by contract from telling the story first-hand to Nome newspaper men.

Calls "Big Business Control" Bunk

Don Marquis, formerly columnist for the New York Herald Tribune, addressing students at Yale University May 18, declared the assertion often made that newspaper policies are controlled by big business was "all bunk." He said that in his 13 years as a columnist he had never been told what to write so long as he kept within the limits of sanity and decency. He said reporting was good preparation for any kind of work.

N. H. to Entertain Newspapermen

Gov. John G. Winant of New Hampshire has sent out invitations to prominent journalists and publishers in all parts of the United States to be the guests of the State of New Hampshire for the week of July 12. They will be taken in motor cars from Boston for a week's tour of New Hampshire. Thirty acceptances have been received.

City Editor in Suburban Politics

James W. Barrett, city editor of the New York World, was this week endorsed by the executive committee of the Democratic party in Cranford, N. J. for election as township committeeman.

Illinois Daily Elected to A. P.

The Freeport (Ill.) Journal-Standard has been elected to membership in the Associated Press. J. R. Cowley is publisher.

A.P. EXTENDS PRINTER SERVICE

High Speed Circuit Between New York and Kansas City Opened May 16

Associated Press on May 16 started operation of a new high-speed printer service from New York to Kansas City, linking 34 member newspapers. News quantity, it is estimated, has been increased on this circuit 20 per cent.

The new printer wire supplants one of two Morse wires previously maintained. On June 1 the Washington to Atlanta A. P. trunk wire will be printerized. After that date all A. P. trunk lines will be operated on a half-Morse half-printer basis.

Atlanta Invites I. C. M. A. to City

John D. Simmons, circulation manager of the Atlanta (Ga.) Journal, has sent an invitation to members of the International Circulation Managers Association in behalf of the city and state requesting that they designate Atlanta as the city for their 1927 annual convention. He is a past president of the organization. The I. C. M. A. will meet in Philadelphia in June during the annual A. A. C. W. convention.

Priest to Report Catholic Congress

The Chicago Evening American has engaged the Rev. Father Claude J. Pernin, S. J., to "cover" the story of the party of clergymen coming from Rome to attend the 28th International Eucharistic congress to be held in Chicago June 20-24. While abroad, Father Pernin will interview a number of Catholic prelates for the American.

CIRCULATION BUILDING SUPREMACY

We opened 1926 with the greatest newspaper campaign ever conducted, and secured over $300,000 in prepaid subscriptions for The Cleveland Plain Dealer. We can attain similar success for you!

THOUSANDS OF NEW, PREPAID, BONA-FIDE HOME-DELIVERED SUBSCRIBERS SECURED IN TEN WEEKS' TIME

HOLLISTER'S
Circulation Organization
Wire or Write us at 717-718 Commercial Exchange Bldg., LOS ANGELES

253,638

was the average net paid daily circulation of The Baltimore Sun (morning and evening issues) for the month of

April, 1926

The average net paid circulation of The Sunday Sun per Sunday for the month of April, 1926, was 191,255.

Everything in Baltimore Revolves Around

THE SUN

Morning Evening Sunday

NOOZIE SAYS:

By courtesy of The International Syndicate Baltimore, Md.

What's So Perishable As News?

A minute may mean the difference between making or missing a train for a mail edition.

A minute may be the difference between a "scoop" or being "scooped".

A MINUTE is only 60 seconds, but in getting to press there's no telling when 60 SECONDS may loom very LARGE.

Certified Dry Mat Cold stereotyping saves from 240 to 420 SECONDS in getting an edition to press by entirely eliminating steam table operation.

Let us tell you how others are saving time and money—there's no obligation on your part.

CERTIFIED DRY MAT CORPORATION

340 Madison Avenue New York, N. Y.

for wet mat printing with DRY MAT facility—use Certifieds

MADE IN U. S. A.

SIR PHILIP GIBBS
A Reporter Again

World War Premier Correspondent is Following His Vivid English Strike Dispatches with a Thousand-Word Cabled Article Each Week on the Big News of Troubled Europe.

He Will Cover the International Conference at Geneva in the Fall.

Sir Philip Gibbs' Dispatches Have Already Been Contracted for by Such Papers As:

New York Herald Tribune	Boston Globe
Cleveland Press	San Francisco Examiner
Philadelphia Bulletin	Vancouver Province
Pittsburgh Press	Winnipeg Tribune
Columbus Citizen	Youngstown Telegram
Washington Star	Akron Times Press
Toledo News Bee	Cincinnati Post

United Feature Syndicate
World Building New York

WESTERN UNION SEEKS FREE SPACE IN VAIN

New England Dailies Expose Calumet Wire Tie-Up — Kelly Talks on I. T. U.—Pape Elected President

William J. Pape, publisher of the Waterbury (Conn.) American and Republican, was elected president of the New England Daily Newspaper Association at its annual meeting held May 18 at the Copley-Plaza Hotel, Boston

W. J. Pape

Other officers chosen were: vice president, Robert L. Wright, publisher, Haverhill (Mass.) Gazette; treasurer, Charles L. Fuller, publisher, Brockton (Mass.) Enterprise; secretary, James M. Langley, publisher, Concord (N. H.) Monitor-Patriot (re-elected). Frank E. Phillips was re-elected as manager of the association.

More than 50 members of the association attended the meeting which was an all day affair. The business session was held in the morning. The Manchester (Conn.) Herald was elected to membership. Luncheon was served at noon, followed by a round table discussion of publishing problems.

Harvey J. Kelly, of Indianapolis, chairman of the special standing committee of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, was the speaker at the afternoon session, giving a brief talk on labor matters.

Another speaker was Frederick M. Snyder, of New York, special commissioner of the Press Congress of the World, who extended an invitation to members to attend the third Press Congress to be held at Geneva and Lausanne in September. Registration already has been received from publishers in 50 countries, Mr. Snyder stated.

Principal business discussed by members was of a confidential nature.

Mr. Kelly pointed out that the International Typographical Union has at Indianapolis several trained men who are skilled negotiators and are expert in composing room practices and contracts. "They can outmaneuver the average newspaper publisher, who is apt to meet them individually and begin studying up his case the day before the meeting," he said. "The union lays great stress on secret instructions to scale committees on United States Bureau of Labor cost of living index figures.

"Publishers should know this, because scale committees frequently reject this very evidence confidentially recommended to them by their own organization, claiming that the index is unreliable or does not apply to their locality, when it suits their purpose to do so."

Mr. Kelly advised publishers to keep in touch with the special standing committee.

Arthur S. Barnes, of the Bristol (Conn.) Press told members he had recently received from the local manager of the Western Union a piece of publicity on the Calumet Baking Powder, "Radio Night." Prizes were offered listeners sending telegrams to the Calumet Baking Company. Every sender of a telegram would stand a chance of winning a prize and would get a fifty cent souvenir, provided he mentioned the word Calumet in the telegram.

The Western Union wanted newspapers to tell readers about this offer and to make it plain that the telegrams must be sent prepaid.

Members were asked if they knew of any newspaper which had fallen for this publicity. The secretary was instructed to write a letter to the Western Union pointing out that the newspapers were large cash customers of the Western Union and inquiring when the Western Union was going "to begin to give free service as well as ask for it."

David B. Howe of the Burlington Free Press pointed out that owing to train withdrawals New England newspapers may have to rely more heavily in the future on motor transportation for distribution purposes. He suggested that the members be asked to report quarterly changes in their costs for delivery by motor bus, by automobile under private contract, and automobiles owned by the newspaper, and that a steady record be kept of delivery costs in all of these ways to help committee in determining the best method of delivery.

AFTER THE BATTLE DINNER

William P. Beazell and Dwight Perrin Honored by N. Y. Newspaper Club

William Preston Beazell, assistant managing editor of the New York World, and Dwight Perrin, city editor of the New York Herald Tribune, president-elect and retiring president respectively of the New York Newspaper Club, were guests of honor at a dinner at the club, May 17.

Mr. Beazell in a speech predicted the club would go forward slowly but surely.

Among old-timers who returned for the jollification were James Blaine Walker, Eddie Anker, Jack Mason, Edward Staats Luther, Bob Morris, William W. Willis, Bill Guard, Kenneth Lord, Al. Pierce, H. W. Carlisle, W. L. Curtin, Patrick E. McEvoy, Jacob Magidoff, Wells Hawks, W. G. Henderson, Ivy Lee,—and among "others present" were the younger regulars: Ben Deacon, E. N. Jackson, A. E. Baerman, J. D. Gordon, Jack Allen, G. F. Tanner, Al. Selig, J. E. Kelly, Michael F. Haggerty, Louis Weitzenkorn, H. D. Kingsbury, A. H. Folwell, H. L. Malkenson, Pearley Boone, H. H. Klein, Joe Van Raalte, Jack Francis, "Charlie" Pemburn, Bryce Oliver, and C. L. Lightenhome.

BEGIN ON A SMALL PAPER, EDITOR ADVISES

Louis Graves of Chapel Hill, N. C., Tells Students Starting of Big City Daily Is Learning Newspaper Work Backwards

Louis Graves, editor of the Chapel Hill (N. C.) Weekly, believes that he is well-qualified to tell the wrong way in which to get a newspaper training.

In the current number of The Archive, a monthly literary magazine published as a venture by Duke University undergraduates, the Chapel Hill editor draws from his own experiences as a journalist, and states that he is himself the perfect example of the man who got a wrong start. His method of gaining newspaper experience was exactly the reverse of the usual way: he began on a big paper and worked down, rather than on a small paper, to work up.

"I played the newspaper game backwards," Graves states. "It was about as sensible as it would be to start in to learn to play bridge before learning the difference between the ace of hearts and the deuce of clubs. Scores of young men are making the same mistake. Impatient to become Irvin Cobbs and Sam Blythes and Frank Sullivans, they want to leap at once into metropolitan newspaper work without learning the physical rudiments of newspaper publishing. They are in a hurry—they don't realize how much they would profit in the end if they would spend a year with types and presses and slug-cutters and line-gauges and all other paraphernalia of printing."

Mr. Graves began his career with the New York Times, and when he finally settled down in Chapel Hill to edit his weekly newspaper he found himself handicapped because of lack of technical knowledge of a newspaper plant. "I like it far better than the city newspaper work I used to do," he writes, "and have never regretted the change. But in these last two or three years there has not been a day when I have not realized how much better off I would be, and how much more competently I could conduct my present business, if 25 years ago I had gone through my apprenticeship as the underling of some small-town editor-printer."

No school of journalism should graduate a man without having given him a thorough grounding in the mechanical side of the work, Editor Graves believes. He does not agree with some of the old-timers who scoff at schools of journalism, but he believes that practical knowledge of printing is essential.

Holds "Model" House Show

The Ypsilanti (Mich.) Daily Ypsilantian Press erected a "model home" which was open to the public the first two weeks of May. Descriptive stories were carried daily on the first page of the paper, with the result that nearly 10,000 people of the "Ypsilanti trading valley" visited the home. In connection with the display, the Press carried extra advertising of all products, furniture and appliances used in the home.

Trade Mark FLEXIDEAL Reg. U S Pat. Off

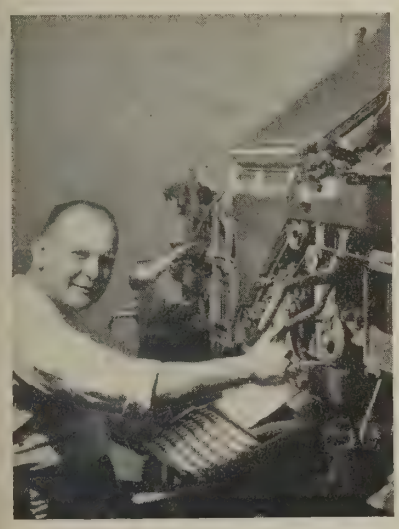
THE IMPORTED DRY MAT
OF SUPERIOR QUALITY

Write for Free Samples

FLEXIDEAL COMPANY, Inc.

15 WILLIAM STREET NEW YORK CITY



THE OPERATOR SAYS—

"THEY ARE GREAT MACHINES"

These CONTINUOUS COMPOSITION Linotypes

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

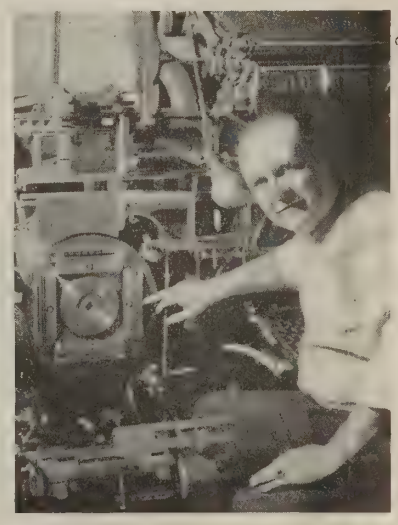
"CHANGE from body matter to agate? Sure! Takes about a second. Just lift this lever. It's as light as a feather—the magazines are counterbalanced."

"NOW FOR SOME HEADS! They're in the two auxiliary magazines. A touch on this button makes the shift. Same keyboard operates the auxiliaries."

"THESE TWO AUXILIARY MAGAZINES are mighty handy. Wide enough to set good-sized heads. And interchangeable with the other Linotypes, too."

"CORRECTIONS is it you want? You can have them in a jiffy. We don't even have to wait for the other mats to distribute. Here you are!"



"THE BOSS WANTS me to set some ads, so I'm changing all the magazines. That won't take long because they lift right off from the front."

"HERE'S THE WAY we keep our type faces, in interchangeable magazines. Any magazine goes on any Linotype and are easier to handle than type cases."

"NOW FOR THE ADS. Bold face for the side heads in one main magazine. Roman and Italic body matter in the other. Display type in the auxiliaries."

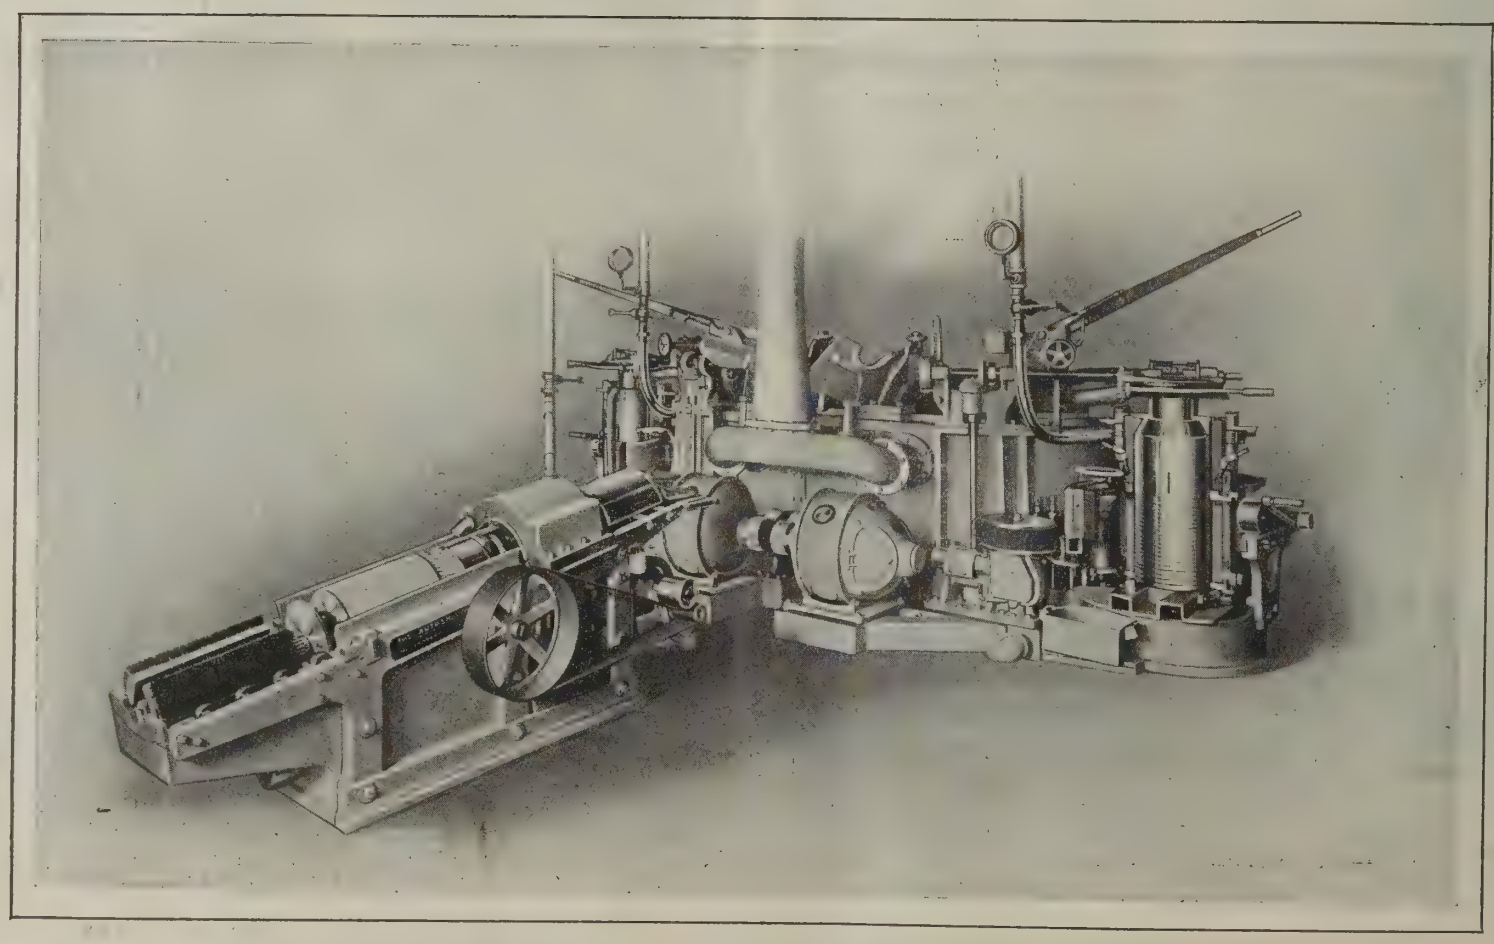
"OH YES! Of course there is the water-cooled mold disk, the universal knife block, and the universal ejector—they're on all Linotypes."

MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE COMPANY

Brooklyn, New York

SAN FRANCISCO CHICAGO NEW ORLEANS

CANADIAN LINOTYPE LIMITED, TORONTO



Representatives in the Principal Cities of the World

532.26.2-F

Composed entirely on the LINOTYPE in the Caslon Old Face Series

Unless a Newspaper Plan

It is not on a MODERN

THE DOUBLE JUNIOR AUTOPLATE-AUTOSHAVER UNIT

Built for heavy production and capable of enduring long periods of hard work at high speed.

WOOD NEWSPAPER MACHINERY CORP s on an AUTOPLATE Basis

sis—

ELIMINATION of delays and paper waste due to paper breakage; maximum production from presses and men; definite schedules with late closings, late starts and quick finishes—

These are the aspirations of every publisher. And they can be realized only through the AUTOPLATE'S aid.

There is an AUTOPLATE Machine to suit the requirements of every daily office, large or small. Are you still paying the high costs of antiquated methods?

ATION, 501 Fifth Avenue, New York

EDITORIAL

Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whither thou goest.—Ecclesiastes, XI; 10.

THE NEW FREEDOM

LONDON newspaper proprietors are entitled to the gratitude of newspaper men in all civilized countries for the speed and certainty with which they found a way to resume publication after the general strike, freed from the dictation of business and editorial policies by the most irresponsible and unlearned class of their employes.

Their new agreement with the ten unions engaged in newspaper publication delineates in clear, sure words the right of the editor and the publisher to conduct their duties as their will and their conscience dictate. It denies by the same terms the right of the unionized employes to interfere with the editorial or advertising contents of the newspaper, to coerce into membership employes whose duties are outside union jurisdiction, or to interfere with the employment, promotion or discharge of men on their merits rather than on the serial number of their union card. It places proprietor and workman equally on their personal honor to carry out the details of the agreement and it provides a quick and sure method of adjudicating the differences that arise daily.

It gives to the proprietor that which he should have for the safety of his enterprise, and nothing more. It takes from the union man nothing which any sane union man desires to retain. The old and well-established London union membership did not attempt to censor the newspapers by threats of suspension if their wishes as to editorial expression were not met. They have not been parties to the numerous encroachments of the past few years upon the direct province of management. These hostile acts were directed and executed by a body organized so loosely as to be unable to deliver to the proprietor what its executives promised, and whose members in general were so unskilled as to be hardly eligible for the title of trade unionists.

It is this group which is to be kept in bounds by the new agreement, and the assumption is warranted that the members of other newspaper unions have had enough of strike and strike talk to stand with the proprietors in seeing that newspaper publication resumes and maintains its orderly course without further trouble.

"Giving something for nothing or accepting something for nothing, constitute high crimes in economics," E. W. Scripps once said.

A CONVENTION SUGGESTION

BECAUSE early April weeks are among the busiest of the year for many publishers in the South and West the suggestion has been made by several publishers that the dates of the annual meetings of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association and of the Associated Press be changed to a week when there is less pressure on members at home, thereby assuring larger attendance and less inconvenience.

One publisher of the South, addressing EDITOR & PUBLISHER on the subject this week, said: "The matter is not important, of course, to Eastern publishers, who can dash in and out of New York on short notice, but those of us who live in the far South or West must take considerable time to prepare for the trip. The end of May would be a better date for us. Many publishers take vacations in the East starting in June or July and they would be accommodated, the New York trip answering two purposes. On the other hand, it might meet with the approval of the majority of the publishers to have the annual meetings switched to the first or second week in September. Perhaps it is not a very important question, but I would appreciate it if EDITOR & PUBLISHER would sound sentiment."

This EDITOR & PUBLISHER is glad to do. The suggestion is not new. If a changed date would accommodate the distant membership the Eastern members would probably happily join the movement.

Whether the A. N. P. A. convention occurs in the Spring, Fall or dead of Winter, however, sufficient time should be allowed to warrant ample consideration of such an important recommendation as an investigation of the press agent leak, "overlooked" in the rush at the Waldorf this Spring. That matter surely deserves an extra day, if need be.

THE INSURANCE PARADOX

LIFE insurance is an interesting topic in the United States. As a people we are heavily committed to this form of investment for protection. Thanks to explosions that followed exposure in the newspapers of fraudulent insurance practices, a few years ago, our people are now well protected by insurance laws and the business is thriving as never before. Insurance interests that violently opposed the Hughes investigation have richly profited from it. It was a badly needed purgative, bitter to take, but the patient has been restored to sound health.

It is a curious fact that insurance companies, with few exceptions, continue to take a small or twisted view of advertising. Some of the larger insurance companies continue to employ press agents to panhandle publicity in the newspapers and it is only occasionally that advertising on its true merits is legitimately employed, despite an opportunity to develop new business without a parallel, in our opinion, in the whole realm of commerce. It must be obvious that, whereas insurance is a commodity which naturally lends itself to advertising, this convenient and economical selling method has long been neglected.

Recently we were delighted to learn that a schedule of newspaper advertising was to be put out by Olmstead, Perrin and Leffingwell to promote public understanding of the principles that underlie life insurance. It was to be a co-operative, educational campaign and represented an original idea.

However, as we now understand it, even this encouraging evidence of an awakening among insurance men is not without strings to the old false notion that advertising cannot stand on its own merits. EDITOR & PUBLISHER is informed that in making contracts with a considerable group of influential newspapers the advertising agents demanded, in behalf of their insurance clients, that an allotment of editorial space be given with each insertion of display advertising. In fact, the advertising is now being offered with the understanding that the newspapers will publish a "question and answer" insurance feature in editorial columns at least once weekly, preferably on the day the advertising appears. EDITOR & PUBLISHER is led to believe that more than two score newspapers have accepted the "question and answer" press agent scheme in order to obtain the paid space.

Admitting that there is need of life insurance information among the people, the average citizen now buying this commodity more or less blindly on high-power salesmen's representations, EDITOR & PUBLISHER does not believe that the insurance companies have ethical right to operate a "question and answer" department in editorial columns where the people look for wholly independent and disinterested information. No doubt the insurance companies, and their advertising agents, will assert that they can conduct such a department in good faith with the reading public. Their plan is to present a reader's question to a local insurance committee for reply. Whether these names are to be used as insurance prospects, we do not know. That, of course, would be a serious breach of confidence. Even if the names of inquiring readers are kept inviolate by the editor, still there is ethical objection to the scheme. The newspaper itself must control answers to letters from readers. Editorial material cannot form a part of an advertising contract. The plan deceives the reader in as much as questions addressed to the editor are answered upon the anonymous authority of an interest which proposes to profit therefrom. When will insurance wake up?

SHORT CUTS TO PROFITS

A SEVERE arraignment of wasteful newspaper practices was made this week by Louis Wiley in an address before the Inland Daily Press Association. It is doubtful if so many charges of business neglect and lack of system could be laid at the door of any other great American industry, despite our notorious wastefulness as a people.

Out of the dismal array we were attracted by what Mr. Wiley said of the needless week-end advertising traffic jam. Speaking of the fact that many newspapers, particularly those in the afternoon field, carry their heaviest volume on Fridays, with Saturday issues the thinnest of the week, he said: "I have always believed that the Saturday editions could be built up with appropriate advertising. I have noticed in a number of cities a large volume of market and food advertising on Saturdays. An energetic attempt to develop certain classifications of advertising which could most profitably use the Saturday edition would be constructively an elimination of waste."

All true, and demonstrated by newspapers in a dozen cities. Newspapers that formerly allowed Saturday to go deeply into the red, dragging down earnings of the week, today find Saturday among the most profitable of the week's days. Real estate, building materials, general publicity, food, classified advertising and special drives today swell the linage totals for Saturday. And the experience of such newspapers, as reflected by their managements, has been that it is not a difficult task when undertaken with determination and vigorously prosecuted.

Week-end traffic jams and the free publicity leak are two wasteful practices that any publisher can tackle immediately, as the line of least resistance, if increased operating profits are desired.

It becomes painfully obvious that the wretchedly unequal postal situation will have to wag along until the next session of Congress—last of all post-war readjustment considerations.

THEATRE DICTATION

PRAISE our shows—or get no advertising!

This point of view by a theatrical management is not uncommon. It is not to be wondered at, since many newspapers for years have fed on outrageously false and misleading press agent hand-outs, giving managements a justified belief in their power to dictate editorial expression regarding amusements.

Last week a theatre manager ran up against the wrong editor. The Consolidated Amusement Company, which operates five of the six theatres of Wichita, Kan., proposed to dictate what the Wichita Daily Eagle should tell the public about the company's local offerings. It cracked the whip by withdrawing its display advertising from the Eagle, worth $18,000 per year.

Marcellus M. Murdock, the publisher, and Victor Murdock, the editor, served notice on the Consolidated that it might or might not advertise in the Eagle, but there was no price on the newspaper's editorial independence. They called the dictation bluff in plain terms in the columns of their newspaper. They have been telling their readers the truth, as they see it, concerning local amusements and propose to continue to do so. They are not to be intimidated by an advertising contract when a matter of principle is involved.

The public looks to the newspaper to publish honest criticisms and actual news of theatrical performances, and if it is true, as alleged, that the Consolidated Amusement Company, by reason of its almost complete dominance of Wichita, has given the community poor shows, the Eagle is in an excellent position to win the fight. Indeed, no newspaper that has ever seriously tackled a fight of this kind has failed to bring obstinate theatrical managements to their senses. The Consolidated Amusement Company is destined to learn a lesson at Wichita. The Murdocks are not men to join in a little advertising conspiracy to keep the readers of the Eagle contented with unsatisfactory theatrical performances.

Appeal to the American public in direct terms! Snare advertising is "old stuff" among discriminating people who now form the bulk of our English-reading population.

PERSONAL

HOWARD DAVIS, business manager of the New York Herald Tribune, with Mrs. Davis and their daughter, Helen, is sailing May 29, for Europe. Mr. Davis will visit his paper's bureaus abroad and give considerable attention to the Paris Herald, European edition of the Herald Tribune.

Charles S. Young, publisher of the San Francisco Call, was recently tendered a luncheon by more than a score of city's prominent business men.

Herman Alexander, editor of the New Yorker Staats-Herold, sailed for abroad this week on the S. S. Reliance.

John Thompson, publisher of the Minneapolis Star, visited New York this week on business.

Henry J. Allen, editor of the Wichita Beacon and former governor of Kansas, will be the principal speaker at the Kansas Authors Club meeting in Wichita, May 25.

Stuart S. Schuyler, president of Allied Newspapers, Inc., will return from the Pacific Coast, May 24, where he visited the Los Angeles and San Francisco offices.

Frank A. Bayrd, editor of the Malden (Mass.) News, and Mrs. Bayrd sailed this week from New York on the liner France, for Europe.

Eugene Lorton, publisher of the Tulsa (Okla.) World, and Mrs. Lorton, have returned from a round-the-world tour on which they set out six months ago.

Marshall N. Dana, associate editor of the Portland Oregon Journal, will deliver the graduation address at Albany College, June 15.

Emil Maurice Scholz, president of the World Wide Advertising Corporation, New York, sailed for Havana, May 15.

Grove Patterson, executive editor of the Toledo Blade, has been elected president of the Toledo Y. M. C. A. by the trustees.

Howard Kahn, editor of the St. Paul Daily News, is in hospital for a minor operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Huse, Norfolk, Neb., have returned from a tour of England, France, Belgium, Holland, Germany and Italy. Mr. Huse is publisher of the Norfolk (Neb.) Daily News.

G. M. Kumler, editor and publisher of the Lewisburg (O.) Leader, is a candidate to succeed himself in the state senate.

Fred Schilplin, publisher, St. Cloud (Minn.) Times nominated for democratic candidate for governor, has announced that because of his newspaper duties he will be unable to accept the nomination.

Crombie Allen, editor of the Ontario (Cal.) Daily Report, former president of the Southern California Associated Editors, has been named as Commissioner from California by Governor Richardson to the Sesquicentennial in Philadelphia. Mr. Allen was formerly editor of the Greensburg (Pa.) Daily Tribune, and president of the Pennsylvania Editorial Association.

IN THE BUSINESS OFFICE

M. HORTON, formerly with the Gruehl Advertising Agency, Albuquerque, N. M., has succeeded Q. Landis Olson as advertising manager of the Albuquerque Herald.

P. J. Gray, formerly with the Colorado Springs Telegraph Gazette, has been made advertising manager of the Broadmoor Hotel, Colorado Springs.

C. I. Dawdy has joined the advertising staff of the Galesburg (Ill.) Evening Mail.

H. E. Gibson, business manager of the Ogden (Utah) Standard-Examiner, and Mrs. Gibson are parents of a son.

Miss Esther Stearn, of the Trenton Times business office, has been promoted to credit manager.

Lehmann Hisey has joined the advertising staff of the Paris office of the Christian Science Monitor. He is a native of Pasadena, Cal., and at one time was with the Standard Oil Company, in California.

C. G. Perry, for ten years circulation manager of the Pittsburgh Press, resigned May 3, 1926.

IN THE EDITORIAL ROOMS

CLIFTON B. CARBERRY, managing editor of the Boston Post, and Mrs. Carberry, sailed from Boston May 16, on a vacation trip to England.

Will J. Orange, city editor of the Pueblo (Col.) Chieftain, has been named editor succeeding Walter Wilder, resigned. Pierce Egan, formerly city editor of the Loveland Reporter, succeeds Orange.

Edward G. Connelly has joined the financial staff of the New York Herald Tribune.

Leland Bell has resigned from the Toledo Blade copy desk.

T. Walter Williams, New York Times ship news reporter, has returned from a trip through the Near East.

William G. Hershey has joined the sporting department of the New York Herald Tribune.

William C. Lake has assumed editorial direction of the Hendersonville (N. C.) Times, succeeding James W. Benton, resigned.

Miss Eva Kildow, editor of the Roseville (O.) Leader, was seriously injured a few days ago when an automobile which she was driving went over a creek bank.

Miss Dorothy Armstrong, a graduate of the University of Missouri School of Journalism, has joined the Huntsville (Tex.) Item as assistant editor.

John Fretz South, suburban editor of the Trenton Times, and Mrs. South, have returned from a two weeks' vacation at Asbury Park, N. J., and Washington, D. C.

S. Carlyle Adams, staff member of the United States Daily at Washington, has been spending a few days in Columbus, where he formerly was employed on the Dispatch.

Richard Simpson is now manager and editor of the Taylorville (Ill.) Breeze, succeeding C. J. Hannon, who retired a week ago.

S. R. Robertson of the Tampa (Fla.) Telegram, has become news editor of the Cushing (Okla.) Daily Citizen, succeeding Joseph Priestley, resigned.

Lawrence J. Collins, city editor of the Dayton (O.) Journal for the past three years has been named secretary of the Dayton Builders' Exchange.

John Parker, ship news reporter for the New York World, and Carl B. Allen, World aviation writer, sailed last week for abroad.

FOLKS WORTH KNOWING

FIFTY years in the newspaper harness and still pulling his fair share of the load.

That is the unusual record of George W. Scotford, managing editor of the Jackson (Mich.) Citizen Patriot, one of the Booth syndicate's eight newspapers in Michigan. Scotford, who was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 20, 1860, entered the office of the old Jackson Citizen, April 28, 1876. The late James O'Donnell was the editor and owner. Mr. Scotford worked as office boy at first, rose to compositor, then became foreman. He turned to the editorial end and after that was made telegraph editor, state editor, reporter and city editor. He became managing editor of the Jackson Citizen Press and remained in that capacity when that paper was merged with the Morning Patriot. He has been at the M. E.'s desk 21 years in all.

GEORGE W. SCOTFORD

On April 28, the occasion of his 50th anniversary, executives of the Booth Publishing Company, his co-workers in the Jackson Citizen Patriot office, prominent citizens and others joined in a testimonial banquet to Mr. Scotford. In addition to his newspaper work Mr. Scotford has found time for varied civic and social activities. He has been a member of the board of education for 16 years and is president of that body now. He was a member of the old common council for a number years and also served on the public library commission.

Richard La Brecque, formerly on the Quincy (Mass.) Times, has joined the Southbridge (Mass.) News as reporter.

T. G. A. Goldsmith of the New York Herald Tribune staff, covered the annual Bach festival at Bethlehem, Pa., last week.

Chester L. Smith, sports editor, Pittsburgh Gazette-Times, will deliver the commencement address for the Salem, O., high school graduating class, June 11.

Fletcher Wilson of the Sunday department, Minneapolis Tribune has transferred to the reportorial staff, day side.

W. Clark Harrington, recently a student at Dartmouth College, has joined the city staff of the Springfield (Mass.) Union.

(Continued on next page)

DURING the first two weeks in May the following newspapers signed contracts ranging in duration from one to four years for the complete general illustrated service of the Central Press Association:

Dubuque Telegraph-Herald
*Glendale, Calif., Press
*Jackson, Mich., Morning Tribune
South Bend Tribune
*Detroit World-Graphic (new tabloid)
Casper, Wyo., Tribune-Herald
*Texarkana Interstate Journal
Oshkosh Northwestern
*Moline Dispatch
Pottsville, Pa., Republican
*Davenport Democrat
Holyoke, Mass., Telegram
*Burlington Hawk-Eye
*Mankato Evening Herald
*Wilmington, Del., News
Rockford, Ill., Register-Gazette

*Indicates new clients.

The Central Press Association

V. V. McNITT, President — Central Press Bldg., Cleveland — H. A. McNITT, Editor and Manager

P. S. We produce the World's Best Picture Page.

Invite Readers for

"A Joy Ride on a Rainbow" with

A. A. MILNE

Author of "When We Were Very Young," etc., Whose Weekly Nonsense That Curls Around the Heart, in Verse and Prose, Is Now Being Syndicated by

Metropolitan Newspaper Service

150 Nassau St., New York

Send for circular and then wire your order, or read a Milne release in another paper — and wire your order.

A dozen of the papers, in various sections, which have already taken Milne, (the feature started only last Sunday) are:

BOSTON GLOBE
NEW YORK HERALD-TRIBUNE
BALTIMORE SUN
BUFFALO NEWS
TORONTO STAR WEEKLY
CHICAGO DAILY NEWS
ST. PAUL DISPATCH & PIONEER PRESS
OMAHA NEWS
OHIO STATE JOURNAL
HOUSTON POST-DISPATCH
CHARLESTON JOURNAL & COURIER
ALBANY KNICKERBOCKER PRESS

(Continued from page 33)

Bill Cole has resigned as reporter on the Minneapolis (Minn.) Tribune.

Earl Arnold has resigned from the day copy desk, Minneapolis (Minn.) Tribune to become an automobile salesman.

Virgil Fulling, formerly of the Hutchinson (Kan.) Herald, is now traveling in the orient.

Edward G. Connelly has joined the financial staff of the New York Herald Tribune.

E. Lawson May, for the last year on the New York staff of the Associated Press, has become telegraph editor of the Hutchinson (Kan.) Herald.

J. Edgar March was presented with a club bag on May 7 by his fellow members of the Parliamentary Press Gallery on his retiring as representative of the Montreal Star to become newspaper representative in Western Canada for the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Charles Blake has resigned from the Chicago Herald and Examiner to become press agent for "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes."

Harry Ross has sold his printing business and returned to the Chicago Herald and Examiner copy desk.

R. L. Bennett, for several years sports editor of the San Antonio Evening News, has resigned to become editor of the Kerrville (Tex.) Sun.

Jack Stenbuck, assistant city editor of the Milwaukee Wisconsin News, has transferred to the circulation department. William Curley is now assistant city editor.

MARRIED

OLAND D. RUSSELL, former assistant sports editor of the New York Evening Post and now Tokio correspondent of the New York World and on the staff of the Japan Advertiser, in Tokio, to Miss Margaret Madeline Kavanaugh, formerly assistant director of the Department of Public Information of Columbia University, New York.

Everette Smart, police reporter, Joplin (Mo.) News Herald, to Miss Juel Patton, April 11 at Pittsburg, Kan. The wedding was announced only last week.

Arthur A. Peterson of the Toledo Blade staff, to Thelma Louise Woodward, recently.

Ralph Clements, court house reporter, Cedar Rapids (Ia.) Gazette to Miss Marie Davis, in Cedar Rapids, May 13.

WITH THE SPECIALS

ROBERT S. FARLEY, eastern financial advertising representative, has been appointed to represent the United States Daily, Washington, D. C., and the New Orleans Item-Tribune.

Prudden, King and Prudden, special advertising representatives, New York, have been appointed to represent the Middletown (N. Y.) Daily Herald, effective June 1.

Charles Flanagan for eight years with I. A. Klein, New York special representative has resigned and will join the national advertising department of the New York Journal, June 1.

Salisbury (N. C.) Post has appointed Bryant, Griffith & Brunson, Inc., New York, national advertising representatives.

HOLDING NEW POSTS

N. C. MARON, from Miami (Fla.) Daily News, to copy desk, Minneapolis Tribune.

CHANGES OF OWNERSHIP

W. L. BAKER, owner of the Clifton Hill (Mo.) Rustler, has leased the paper to Carl Davis, formerly connected with the Rustler before going to Iowa several years ago.

O. E. Butler has sold the Tahlequah (Okla.) Arrow-Democrat to Clyde B. Pool, formerly of the Tulsa (Okla.) World.

John Scott, publisher of the Prior Lake (Minn.) News, has sold the paper to Leo McDonald of Minneapolis and John Duffy of Savage.

Richmond (Ill.) Gazette and Genoa City (Ill.) Broadcaster appeared last week under publication of Albert L. Johnson of Harvard, Ill., who has succeeded H. B. Gaston, who has been publishing the papers eight years.

Leo H. Bowen has succeeded H. J. Holmes as owner and editor of the Glenwood Springs (Col.) Avalanche Echo.

Harold W. Bruce of Palmer, Mass., formerly a foreman in the plant of the Palmer Journal before its incorporation with the Palmer Register, purchased the interest of Herbert L. Rickard in the Stafford Springs (Conn.) Press.

Leslie Davies of Sacramento has leased from Howard Waite the Rio Vista (Cal.) Banner.

A half interest in the Lankersheim (Cal.) Press has been purchased by James Wilson, retired banker.

W. L. Kirk, former editor of the Spencer (Neb.) Advocate purchased the Fort Lupton (Col.) Booster May 1 from Fred Walling.

Wiggins (Col.) Courier was recently sold to C. A. Brown, formerly of Denver.

Consolidation of the Hotchkiss (Col.) Herald and the North Fork (Col.) Times has been effected under the editorship of A. L. Perry, who purchased the North Fork paper recently from Tom Blackwell.

Lucien P. Arant and Bernard Wainwaring are now sole owners of the Baker (Ore.) Herald. They bought a controlling interest in the Herald nine months ago. Since then they have bought the holdings of all the minority stockholders.

NEW PUBLICATIONS

TRYON (OKLA.) LINCOLN COUNTY LEADER has started publication with E. O. O'Bleness, editor.

Ryan Printing Company has begun publication of the Moberly (Mo.) Home Press, a Sunday morning paper of 12 pages.

William Parsons has started the publication of a weekly, the Dunsmuir (Cal.) Tribune.

Mount Airy (N. C.) Star, weekly, made its first appearance last week. The Star is published by T. J. Westmoreland, who recently came to Mount Airy from Thomasville, where he was former owner and publisher of the Thomasville Times.

NEW PLANTS AND EQUIPMENT

GREELEY (COL.) TRIBUNE has purchased a site for a new building which it is expected will be erected within the next two years.

Milo Bennett, publisher of the Maumee (O.) Valley News, weekly, has installed a cylinder press.

Hagerstown (Md.) Herald and Mail will soon be printed on a Hoe Unit-Type Quadruple Press which is now being erected. A complete set of stereotype machinery was purchased of R. Hoe & Co., Inc., with the press.

Longmont (Col.) Times has ordered a new Linotype.

Stacy Brewer, publisher of the Vass (N. C.) Pilot, is completing an addition to his plant which will double its capacity.

PRESS ASSOCIATION NOTES

WEBB MILLER, general European news manager of the United Press Associations, who makes his headquarters in London arrived in New York this week, following an extensive tour through South America, visiting U. P. client newspapers.

William P. Flythe, formerly Mexico City correspondent of the International News Service, has been transferred to the I. N. S. Washington bureau. His successor has not been named.

Harold Horan, of the Paris office of International News Service, has been temporarily assigned to Geneva.

Barry Faris, associate editor of International News Service, is spending his vacation in his home town, St. Joseph, Mo. He will be away from New York headquarters until June 1. J. L. Kilgallen is in charge.

T. T. Topping, Associated Press correspondent who has been in Morocco, was last week ordered to return to the A. P. Paris office.

R. A. Byron, formerly managing editor, and Bruce M. Lockwood, reporter of the Pittsburgh (Pa.) Gazette-Times, and John F. Koine, former city editor of the Buffalo Express, have joined the New York news staff of the Associated Press.

John F. Koine has resigned as news editor of the Buffalo Express to join the Associated Press staff at New York.

SPECIAL EDITIONS

ST. AUGUSTINE (Fla.) Record, 10-page tabloid supplement celebrating installation of a new Duplex rotary press.

St. Paul Sunday Pioneer Press, 1926 Spring Home Builders edition, May 9.

Boston Sunday Herald, 104-page annual Real Estate number, May 16.

Colorado Spring (Col.) Gazette, 176-page annual edition.

Price Company to Increase Capacity

Addressing the shareholders of Price Bros. & Co., Limited, at the annual meeting on May 12, the president, John H. Price, announced that the directors were planning to increase the capacity of the Riverbend Mill from 200 to 400 tons daily capacity. With this enlargement the company's capacity would be 950 tons per day or 290,000 tons per annum.

FLASHES

It was a late spring, and it looks like a late summer. At the coolish moment of going to press, thousands of bathing-suit rotogravure editors are going mad.—F. P. A. in New York World.

It is evident from the way the number of bootleggers is increasing that they never drink their own stuff.—New York Herald Tribune.

Prices are like teetotalers, because they never take a drop.—Florence (Ala.) Herald.

How different a silk stocking looks when it is not in use.—Kansas City Star.

Too many Chicago gangsters are at the wrong end of the machine gun.—Weston (Ore.) Leader.

The objection to gardening is that by the time your back gets used to it your enthusiasm is gone.—Baltimore Sun.

That Harvard student who disposed of 48 hard boiled eggs in 45 minutes is our first choice for chief of police of Herrin.—Little Rock Arkansas Gazette.

One disadvantage that an editor has is that he says his say in a permanent form, and when an argument comes he can't laugh or lie off what he wrote.—Newark (Del.) Ledger.

The Oriental custom of drowning girl babies is suggested to those who would abolish petting parties.—Florence (Ala.) Herald.

In looking over a photo of those in control in Italy it is no longer necessary to read from left to right.—Detroit News.

The FALL RIVER (MASS.) HERALD

ANNOUNCES
the appointment as national advertising representatives in Chicago—New York Boston—Effective May 1st, 1926
of the

CHAS. H. EDDY COMPANY

Park Lexington Bldg. New York — Wrigley Bldg. Chicago — Old South Bldg. Boston

Fall River has an industrial pay-roll of over $30,000,000 per year. It is the greatest textile center in the world. It is a city of home owners and home lovers. You can thoroughly cover this great market at one cost by using the dominant evening paper—

The FALL RIVER HERALD

18,000 Daily Average

ROSS F. WALKER, Publisher

SEATTLE AUDITS—

Always show the domination of The Times. This newspaper concentrates upon the City of Seattle and the Seattle Trading Zone. Two other Seattle papers have larger total circulation, but The Times leads in the City and its own trading territory. Here is an interesting story of growth:

Seattle Times Circulation

			EVENING	SUNDAY				EVENING	SUNDAY
4th	Quarter	1921.....	56,555	83,478	2nd	Quarter	1924.....	66,996	92,971
1st	"	1922.....	56,939	85,281	3rd	"	1924.....	69,221	96,798
2nd	"	1922.....	57,126	83,856	4th	"	1924.....	70,101	102,793
3rd	"	1922.....	56,695	83,572	1st	"	1925.....	70,178	104,345
4th	"	1922.....	57,151	85,935	2nd	"	1925.....	70,762	103,157
1st	"	1923.....	58,650	90,083	3rd	"	1925.....	70,863	102,545
2nd	"	1923.....	58,084	88,702	4th	"	1925.....	74,223	102,551
3rd	"	1923.....	58,705	87,501	1st	"	1926.....	79,019*	104,299*
4th	"	1923.....	61,665	87,232	March, 1926.....			80,094*	104,677*
1st	"	1924.....	66,010	90,163	April, 1926.....			83,767*	103,234*

*Publisher's claim.

De Lisser's Lineage Figures—

Show that The Times domination in advertising is never questioned. Here is the summary for 1925 :

	TIMES EVENING DAILY	SUNDAY	TOTAL
Local Display	6,234,071	2,256,629	8,490,700*
National Display	2,065,267	866,895	2,932,162*
Classified	2,338,672	1,629,746	3,968,418*
Totals	10,638,010	4,753,270	15,391,280*

	SECOND PAPER			THIRD PAPER
	MORNING DAILY	SUNDAY	TOTAL	EVENING DAILY
Local Display	2,824,931	1,620,801	4,445,732	4,642,423
National Display	1,466,464	845,906	2,312,370	1,495,647
Classified	1,178,148	618,499	1,796,647	930,757
Totals	5,469,543	3,085,206	8,554,749	7,068,827

461,655 Lines AMERICAN WEEKLY not included in Second Paper's total.
Indicates Lead.*

And for the first quarter of 1926 :

	TIMES EVENING DAILY	SUNDAY	TOTAL
Local Display	1,536,559	547,412	2,083,971*
National Display	558,938	267,025	825,963*
Classified	535,873	429,587	965,460*
Totals	2,631,370	1,244,024	3,875,394*

	SECOND PAPER			THIRD PAPER
	MORNING DAILY	SUNDAY	TOTAL	EVENING DAILY
Local Display	746,812	396,429	1,143,241	958,548
National Display	368,522	284,967	653,489	408,153
Classified	310,335	174,153	484,488	258,879
Totals	1,425,669	855,549	2,281,218	1,625,580

117,028 Lines AMERICAN WEEKLY not included in Second Paper's totals.
Indicates Lead.*

There is practically as much advertising in The Seattle Times as there is in the pages of all its competitors combined.

Eastern Representative: The S. C. Beckwith Special Agency
New York, Chicago, Kansas City, Detroit, St. Louis, Atlanta
Pacific Coast Representative: R. J. Bidwell Company, San Francisco and Los Angeles

ASSOCIATIONS

ARIZONA PRESS CLUB members met May 9 at Naco, Mexico, as banquet guests of Sarkis Jose Dominguez, "Prince of Naco," who was elected to honorary membership in the club. H. H. Fries, general manager of the Phoenix Gazette, and Mrs. Fries were among those attending the banquet.

Harry Van Horn, formerly of Los Angeles, has been appointed manager of the COLUMBUS (O.) BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU.

A. Boon McCallum, president of the ADVERTISING CLUB OF DENVER, has been appointed chairman of the educational committee, Eleventh district, Associated Advertising Clubs of the World.

During a membership campaign just completed the DULUTH (Minn.) ADVERTISING CLUB added 30 members.

Stephen Shannon has been elected president of the ADVERTISING CLUB OF MINNEAPOLIS, effective July 1. C. F. Hooper has been named first vice-president, J. C. Mosher, second vice-president, and Truman G. Brooke, secretary-treasurer.

Charles H. Hastings, publisher of the Lynn (Mass.) Daily Item, will entertain the NEW ENGLAND NEWSPAPER ALLIANCE at its next meeting June 8 at the Tedesco Club, Swampscott.

GOOD FELLOWSHIP CLUB of Kentucky of Associated Press Traffic Men at its annual meeting held Sunday, May 9, elected James G. Babb, of Louisville, president. Frank L. Parsons, Louisville, was named vice-president and Dan F. Moss, also of Louisville, secretary-treasurer. Traffic service matters were discussed.

NEWSPAPERMEN'S GOLF ASSOCIATION OF BOSTON, held its first tournament of the year last week at the Pine Brook Valley Golf Club at Weston. A. M. Hoxie of the Post was low gross winner in Class A with an 82. Burt Whitman of the Herald was winner of the low net prize same class with an 84-10-74. William Mullins of the Herald with 101-98 was winner of Class B low gross prize, while J. Stewart of the Post, with 111-97 captured the low net prize.

NEW YORK LEAGUE OF ADVERTISING WOMEN held its monthly meeting May 18 at the New York Advertising Club. The guest of honor was C. C. Green, recently re-elected president of the New York Advertising Club, and speakers were Arthur Freeman, vice-president of the Manna Corporation and Peter Sommers of Butler Brothers, who discussed the retail and wholesale fields of advertising.

SAN FRANCISCO CREDIT MEN'S ASSOCIATION is collecting the San Francisco quota of $75,000 of a $1,750,000 national fund to combat fraudulent bankrupts and commercial tricksters. The national convention will be held in New York, May 24-28.

James M. Gould, president of the BASEBALL WRITERS' ASSOCIATION, has named the following committee to make the $1,000 award for the most valuable player in the National League for this season: Nick Flatley, Boston American; Abe Yager, Brooklyn Eagle; William H. Becker, Chicago Daily News; Robert Newhall, Cincinnati Commercial-Tribune; Stoney McLinn, Philadelphia Evening Public Ledger; Ed Ballinger, Pittsburgh Post; George W. Daley, New York World; J. Roy Stockton, St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The annual convention of the TEXAS WOMAN'S PRESS ASSOCIATION ended in San Antonio, May 14, with election of Mrs. W. R. Potter of Bowie as president to succeed Mrs. J. M. F. Gill of Burkburnett. Other officers elected were: Mrs. Emma Cobb Evans, Dallas, Mrs. Fred J. Maurer, San Antonio, and Decca Lamar West, vice-presidents; Madeline McBurnett, Dallas, recording secretary; Mrs. Kate Makemson, Georgetown, corresponding secretary; Mrs. W. B. Hamilton, Alpine, treasurer.

ADVERTISING CLUB OF JOHNSTOWN, PA., recently elected John Sheridan president. Thomas Dixon, author, playwright and lecturer, will address the NORTH CAROLINA PRESS ASSOCIATION at a banquet on Thursday, July 22, at Hickory, during the annual convention of the association. Gov. Henry Flood Byrd, of Virginia, has also been invited to speak.

SCHOOLS

JOURNALISM students of the University of Texas edited editions of the Austin American and Statesman on May 12 and again on May 19.

Students of the University of Colorado department of journalism recently edited an issue of the Littleton (Col.) Independent.

Charles Raymond, assistant professor of English has been named to the position of associate professor of journalism, University of California.

Last week's issue of the Willmar (Minn.) Tribune, a 16-page edition, was edited and published by the 24 members of the class in journalism of the Willmar high school.

Anderson College girls edited the Anderson (S. C.) Independent, May 14. Sixteen members of the class of journalism at the college, with Professor T. C. Johnson as director, had full charge of the publication for the issue.

New England Inter-collegiate Newspaper Association held its annual meeting and election of officers at the University of New Hampshire at Durham recently. Eugene A. Tetzlaff, University of New Hampshire, was elected president; Thomas C. Heffernan, Boston College, vice-president; Harold Hilton, Norwich University, secretary and treasurer.

A group of alumni of the School of Journalism, University of Montana, Missoula, held a meeting recently for the purpose of forming a club to commemorate Dean A. L. Stone, who has been the dean of the school since its organization more than ten years ago.

WOMAN PRESIDENT APPOINTS

Mrs. Rountree Names Texas Editorial Association Committees

Mrs. Lee J. Rountree, editor of the Bryan (Tex.) Daily Eagle, and first woman president of the Texas Editorial Association, has announced her committees for the year. The association comprises men and women who have engaged in Texas newspaper work 25 years or more.

Headed by Mrs. Rountree as president, her official staff includes: Arthur Lefevre Jr., assistant to president; Hamp Cook, recording secretary; Austin Callan, corresponding secretary; George H. Boynton and Benjamin F. Harrigal, vice-presidents.

Executive committee: O. P. Greshman, chairman; Will H. Mays, Tom Lusk, Tom Finty, Jr., Frank Cates, R. H. McCarthy, J. L. Martin, N. P. Houx.

Committee on history: Eli T. Merriman, chairman; Preston Ivy, Chat E. McLaughlin, R. E. Yantis, Mrs. Mary Hunt Affleck, E. F. Jones, Dabney White.

Program and entertainment: Sam E. Miller, chairman; P. L. Downs, George A. T. Neu.

Transportation: C. E. Gilmore, chairman; Homer D. Wade, June P. Miller.

Advisory: Frank P. Holland, chairman; W. A. Holford, Louis Blaylock, John H. Lunsford, Frank E. Shoup, George M. Bailey, George B. Dealey, C. M. Meadows, Jr.

Classified Staff Holds Frolic

The classified advertising department of the New York Herald Tribune gave a dance at the Hotel Majestic on Saturday night, May 15. Principals from several Broadway musical shows supplied entertainment. The committee in charge was headed by Mrs. Margaret Stoke, chairman; Lou L. Heaton, treasurer; Miss Miriam Lee and Irving I. Silbert, entertainment committee. All the departments of the Herald Tribune were represented.

THE WOOD "SPEEDMAT"

As a result of experiments covering a period of years, we have developed and perfected a Wood dry mat from the make-up of which have been eliminated the inherent and irritating defects of other dry mats.

THE "SPEEDMAT"

For six or eight plates does not have to be oiled or chalked to prevent peeling. After molding, packing and scorching it is at once ready to be cast from.

Has iron-like stayback and requires little or no packing, thus saving precious time and much work.

Has a beautiful printing surface. The plates cast from it print sharp and clean, and the solids are black.

Molds like wax to the full depth of the form and holds its depth. The impression does not spring out and make a shallow mold as it does with many other dry mats.

Conditions and molds readily and is easy on type.

Does not stick to the cast and tear and peel—falls off the plate.

In its combination of soft plasticity, wonderful stayback, splendid printing quality and rugged constitution, we claim for the "SPEEDMAT" that it is the speediest and most satisfactory dry mat for the use of medium size newspaper plants.

WOOD FLONG CORPORATION

501 Fifth Avenue New York City

Mighty Trading Empire of New York State

More large trading areas than any other state in the Union—and reached Economically

!

New York State contains 25 good trading areas. Each one draws hundreds and thousands of shoppers to its center.

Yet to the national advertiser the problem of covering these various areas is not a complicated one. The daily papers listed below reach the people who buy in every one of these cities.

This group of daily papers gives you economical coverage of the largest industrial, commercial and most populated area in the United States.

The service they are able to render will help you in reaching your prospective buyers. They are at your service.

		Circulation	2,500 Lines	10,000 Lines
Albany Evening News	(E)	34,444	.10	.10
Albany Knickerbocker Press	(M)	34,018	.11	.11
Albany Knickerbocker Press	(S)	56,924	.16	.16
Amsterdam Recorder-Democrat	(E)	7,810	.04	.04
††Auburn Citizen	(E)	6,389	.055	.055
Brooklyn Daily Eagle	(E)	73,764	.22	.22
Brooklyn Daily Eagle	(S)	84,997	.22	.22
*Buffalo Star and Enquirer	(E)	30,134	.13	.09
*Buffalo Courier	(M)	58,083	.17	.13
*Buffalo Courier	(S)	104,303	.27	.22
Buffalo Evening News	(E)	138,294	.25	.25
Buffalo Evening Times	(E)	102,562	.21	.21
Buffalo Sunday Times	(S)	108,219	.21	.21
Buffalo Express	(M)	53,254	.14	.12
Buffalo Express	(S)	59,243	.18	.14
††Corning Evening Leader	(E)	9,339	.05	.05
Elmira Star-Gazette Advertiser	(E&M)	33,487	.11	.11
Freeport Daily Review	(E)	7,991	.05	.05
††Geneva Daily Times	(E)	5,040	.04	.04
Gloversville Leader Republican	(E)	7,238	.035	.035
††Ithaca Journal-News	(E)	7,751	.05	.05
*Jamestown Morning Post	(M)	11,636	.04	.035
Middletown Times-Press	(E)	7,127	.04	.04
*Mount Vernon Daily Argus	(E)	9,871	.05	.05
Newburgh Daily News	(E)	12,132	.06	.06
††New Rochelle Standard-Star	(E)	8,598	.04	.04
The Sun, New York	(E)	257,067	.60	.56
*New York Times	(M)	350,406	.80	.784
New York Times	(M)	356,471	.80	.784
New York Times	(S)	610,041	.95	.931
††New York Herald-Tribune	(S)	345,484	.693	.672
††New York World	(M)	287,682	.595	.58
††New York World	(S)	582,929	.595	.58
††New York Evening World	(E)	294,442	.595	.58
Niagara Falls Gazette	(E)	20,629	.06	.06
Port Chester Item	(E)	4,732	.03	.03
Poughkeepsie Star and Enterprise	(E)	12,824	.06	.06
††Rochester Times-Union	(E)	70,406	.21	.20
††Syracuse Journal	(E)	65,326	.16	.16
Troy Record	(M&E)	22,679	.06	.06
Watertown Times	(E)	17,334	.08	.08

* A. B. C. Statement, Sept. 30, 1925.
† Government Statement, Sept. 30, 1925.
 A. B. C. Statement, March 31, 1926.
†† Government Statement, March 31, 1926.

WITH THE GENERAL ADVERTISERS

$1,000,000 Advertising Fund to Introduce Half & Half—Kelly-Springfield to Start Special Newspaper Drive This Month—Red Book Using Dailies

A FUND said to be $1,000,000, will be spent in newspapers to introduce "Half & Half," new smoking tobacco, product of the American Tobacco Company, New York. The newspaper schedule is being drawn up by H. E. Fengel, of Dorrance, Sullivan & Co., New York advertising agency. The list is not yet complete, Mr. Fengel informed EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

Frank Harwood, the American Tobacco Company's advertising manager, told EDITOR & PUBLISHER the initial schedule called for use of between 375 and 400 daily and Sunday newspapers with 10,000 to 12,000 line space.

Half & Half is being advertised as the first new smoking tobacco of a generation. It is a blend of Lucky Strike and Buckingham tobaccos.

Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, through the Gardner Well Advertising Agency, New York, will start a special newspaper campaign to the end of this month to continue from six to 10 weeks. J. H. Weinberg, of the agency staff handling the account, said the newspaper appropriation this year was slightly larger than last. A list of 120 dailies would be used, he said, with 4,000-line contracts.

Rotogravure sections of 33 newspapers are being used to promote Azurea and Featiche, perfumes manufactured by L. T. Piver, Inc. The account is handled by Dorrance, Sullivan & Co., New York advertising agency. The campaign will continue through July.

Red Book, fiction magazine, has launched a new advertising campaign in principal newspapers of the country. The drive was planned by R. K. Strassman, vice-president of the magazine, and placed by William H. Rankin Company, New York advertising agency. Pen and ink drawings for the series were done by Franklin Booth.

Jackson Brewing Company, New Orleans, is running a newspaper campaign, advertising "Jax." The account is placed by the Reese Advertising Agency, New Orleans.

The Del-Mar-Va Eastern Shore Association, recently organized to promote and advertise that section of the country lying between Chesapeake Bay and the Atlantic, has placed its advertising campaign with the H. E. Lesan Advertising Agency, New York. The Wilmington Chamber of Commerce has also chosen the same agency to conduct an industrial campaign for Wilmington, Del. Three advertising appeals will be made: one for farm settlers, one for home and estate builders, and a third for people seeking recreation and vacation. The campaign will start in newspapers within a radius of 300 miles of Wilmington and will be supported by space in magazines and agricultural papers.

Nestle Laboratory of Hair Research, New York, has started a series of newspaper advertisements in full single column space. The copy is in the form of articles on caring for and beautifying the hair and carry the by line of Charles Nessler, originator of permanent waving. The account is being handled by Foote & Morgan, 247 Park avenue, New York. Louis B. Allen was this week named director of publicity for the laboratory. A national campaign using paid space in newspapers is planned.

Thirty candy manufacturers and jobbers of the Northwest have pledged their support of a $1,000,000 nationwide advertising campaign planned by the National Confectioners' Association. The campaign was explained at a meeting last week at Minneapolis, Minn., by Harry R. Wilson of St. Louis, Mo., vice-president and treasurer of the Fisher-Brown Advertising Agency who will direct the campaign.

"The purpose of the national campaign is to present our facts to the public," Mr. Wilson said. "Candy manufacturers and wholesalers in every section of the country have signed pledges of national support. Leaders in allied trades such as box manufacturers and sugar refiners have been asked to help and most of them have agreed."

John R. Lee has been appointed general sales manager of Dodge Brothers, Inc. Mr. Lee has been assistant sales manager since last December, prior to that having served several years as assistant to the president.

John J. Cuddy, formerly director of advertising for the Standard Oil Company of California, has been made assistant to the president of the Yellow-Checker Cab Company, in charge of advertising and sales.

Representatives of 20 vacuum cleaner manufacturers and their agencies met with the National Better Business Bureau in New York last week and accepted eight of 10 recommendations for standardizing copy in their industry suggested by N.B.B.B. The recommendations are subject to approval of the manufacturers' co-operate officers. They concerned; the accuracy of list prices and value claims; avoidance of superlative claims; proof of technical claims; use of word "complete" as meaning nothing more to purchase; accurate description of guarantees; bona fide endorsements and testimonials; elimination of disparaging copy, and the naming of the rebuilder in "factory rebuilt" offers.

Manufacturers and agencies representing manufacturers participating were: Thomas F. Logan, Inc., representing the Edison Electric Appliance Company and the Electric Vacuum Cleaner Company; Air-Way Electrical Appliance Company; Barrows, Richardson & Alley, representing the M. S. Wright Company; Graybar Electric Company; Electrolux, Inc.; Lord & Thomas, representing B. F. Sturtevant Company; Eureka Vacuum Cleaner Company; the Regina Corporation, Clements Manufacturing Company, Scott & Fetzer Company, and the Hoover Company.

Other advertising agencies with vacuum cleaner clients participating, were: Picard, Bradner & Brown, Inc., Newell-Emmett Company, Inc., the Sweeney & James Company, and Brooke, Smith & French, Inc. This is the first of several group conferences with manufacturers in the electrical household appliance field.

No dull Summer IN Los Angeles!

Keep your schedules active - in June, July, and August!

Los Angeles Examiner

ADVERTISING AGENCY AFFAIRS

Ingham Named Vice-President of H. E. Lesan Advertising Agency—Cecil Named President of New Corporation to Take Over Fruit Juice Concern—Bell With N. W. Ayer & Son

GEORGE E. INGHAM has been appointed vice-president and manager of the H. E. Lesan Advertising Agency's Chicago office, effective June 1. For several years Mr. Ingham has been vice-president of the Caples Company, Chicago and New York. He has been in agency work for the last 16 years as secretary and manager of Woodwards, Inc., secretary of the Johnson Advertising corporation, and manager of the service department of Lord & Thomas.

James M. Cecil, former Richmond newspaper man and now member of the advertising agency of Cecil, Barreto & Cecil, of Richmond and New York, is president of a new corporation just organized to take over the General Packing Company, of Cranford, N. J., manufacturers of concentrated fruit juices. A charter, just granted in Richmond calls for $250,000 in preferred stock and 100,000 shares of common stock. Cecil said it was the plan of the new corporation eventually to bring the plant to Richmond. John A. Cecil, brother of James M. Cecil, and a member of Cecil, Barreto & Cecil, is secretary of the new corporation. The Cecils, with others, were identified with the recent purchase of the Pin Money Pickle Company, of Richmond.

Franklin A. Bell has joined the Philadelphia office of N. W. Ayer & Son as contact man. For several years Mr. Bell was advertising manager of the Sun-Maid Raisin Growers, Inc., Fresno, Cal. More recently he was co-manager of the San Francisco office of Lord & Thomas.

Floyd E. Matson has started his own advertising agency business in Honolulu, Hawaii. For the last 10 years he has been associated with the Charles R. Frazier Company, Honolulu agency, five years as space buyer.

Irwin B. Tolins has been appointed general manager of the Arthur Rosenberg Company, Inc., New York advertising agency, having resigned from the Walkley Company, also of New York.

The Bertram May Advertising Agency, Philadelphia, has changed its name to May Advertising, Inc.

Blackett & Sample, Inc., Chicago advertising agency, announces the appointment of H. P. Withers as space buyer.

The name of Cole-MacDonald-Wood, Inc., Detroit agency, has been changed to MacDonald-Ramsdell-Wood, Inc. The officers and directors remain the same.

John A. Cleary has been appointed manager of a new branch office opened by the Dorland Advertising Agency, Atlantic City, in Miami, Fla. During the past year Mr. Cleary has conducted his own advertising business in Miami. He was formerly director of advertising and sales promotion of the Cadillac Motor Car Company, Detroit.

Spencer A. Jones, who was recently with the P. F. O'Keefe Advertising Agency, Inc., Boston, has joined the Botsford-Constantine Company, Seattle, Wash., advertising agency.

Garrit DeHeus, formerly with the Sterling Motor Truck Company, Milwaukee, is now vice-president of the Koch Company, Milwaukee advertising agency.

THE BUTTE MINER

"Montana's Greatest Newspaper!"

IT DOMINATES ITS FIELD

An advertising medium which stands alone in circulation, reader interest and prestige in a trade territory that is remarkable for richness and for compactness—a real medium for the advertiser seeking to create buyer demand as well as for the national and local advertiser—

Leads its nearest competitor 92 per cent Daily

129 per cent Sunday in City Circulation

Create maximum impression at one cost by concentrating your Montana advertising in the paper everybody reads,

THE BUTTE MINER

BUTTE, MONTANA

THE RICHEST HILL ON EARTH!

PROF. M. M. FOGG

Director of U. of Nebraska School of Journalism Dies Suddenly

LINCOLN, Neb., May 19.—Prof. M. M. Fogg, organizer and director of the University of Nebraska School of Journalism and a member of the University faculty for 25 years, died here Tuesday, May 18.

PROF. M. M. FOGG

Apparently on his way to recovery from a six-weeks' illness caused by an infection, Prof. Fogg suffered a sudden relapse Tuesday and death resulted.

Prof. Fogg was made director of the School of Journalism when it was established in 1923. Prior to that time he had conducted a number of classes in journalism at the requests of students who desired the work.

Prior to coming to the University of Nebraska he had a half-dozen years of practical experience on newspapers in the Eastern states. He was a graduate of the Petty Institute, New Jersey, and Brown University. He received Master of Arts degrees from Brown and Harvard Universities in 1895 and 1901. The World War Council of the Y. M. C. A. sent him to France in 1918 and while there he was appointed director of the College of Journalism, A. E. F., University of Baune, France. In recognition of his work there, the French government conferred the Palmes Academique decoration.

The death of Prof. Fogg was so unexpected that no arrangements have been thought of as yet by University officials for filling his place as head of the Journalism School. During his illness the work has been supervised by his assistant Gayle Walker. Mr. Walker will continue in charge during the remaining two weeks of the present semester.

News Man Killed by Train

Frederick F. Foster, of the editorial staff of the Lyons (N. Y.) Republican, was killed when he was struck by a train while stooping to pick up his hat which had blown in front of the locomotive. Mr. Foster formerly was editor of the Lockport (N. Y.) Union Sun and Journal. George E. Fitzsimmons, secretary of the latter newspaper, died in a Lockport hospital the same day Mr. Foster was killed. They were close friends.

Frank Blighton, Writer, Dies

Frank Blighton, 51, newspaper man and magazine writer, died in New Rochelle (N. Y.) hospital, May 19. For the last 10 years Mr. Blighton had written almost exclusively for the various Munsey publications. Under several pen names he had won considerable distinction, particularly in the detective story field.

Edward A. Bowen Is Dead

Edward A. Bowen, 79, who died May 14 at Woodstock, Conn., retired from Wall Street at an early age and became part owner of the old Brooklyn Union. He was later associated with his father, Henry C. Bowen, when the latter was editor and publisher of the New York Independent.

Obituary

THOMAS DUFFIN, for more than 40 years a composing room employe of the Boston Herald and Traveler, died at his home in South Boston May 9.

EDGAR L. RICHTER, 64, former publisher of the Larimore (N. D.) Pioneer and once president of the North Dakota Press Association, died at Fargo, N. D., May 10.

WILLIAM HAYES MICHENER, 59, assistant night foreman of the composing room of the New York Times, died at his Garden City home, May 14.

MRS. BLANCHE M. SULLIVAN, wife of Henry A. Sullivan, sporting editor of the Salem (Mass.) News, died at her home in that city May 17, aged 26.

LELAND MASON, widely known in Boston newspaper circles, died at his home in Los Angeles on May 9. He began as a reporter on the Boston Globe in 1886. He later became news editor and from 1897 to 1906 was night city editor. From 1906 on he was an editorial writer. In 1916 he left for California where he has lived since.

MRS. ELMIRA E. MORRIS, wife of Newton C. Morris, golf editor of the Rocky Mountain News and Denver Times, and herself former women's state golf champion of Colorado, died May 10, at her home in Denver.

GEORGE DUREN, real estate editor of the Newark News, died recently.

EDWARD MILLER, 70, veteran Chicago newspaper man, died last week. He retired from active newspaper work several years ago. A widow survives.

JOSEPH F. SLOCOMB, 40, for many years Harvard University correspondent for Boston and New York papers and for the Associated Press, died suddenly May 18 at his home in Cambridge.

HOWARD EDWARD WOOD, 52, member of the typographical union at San Antonio and employee of the San Antonio Light, died recently at his home.

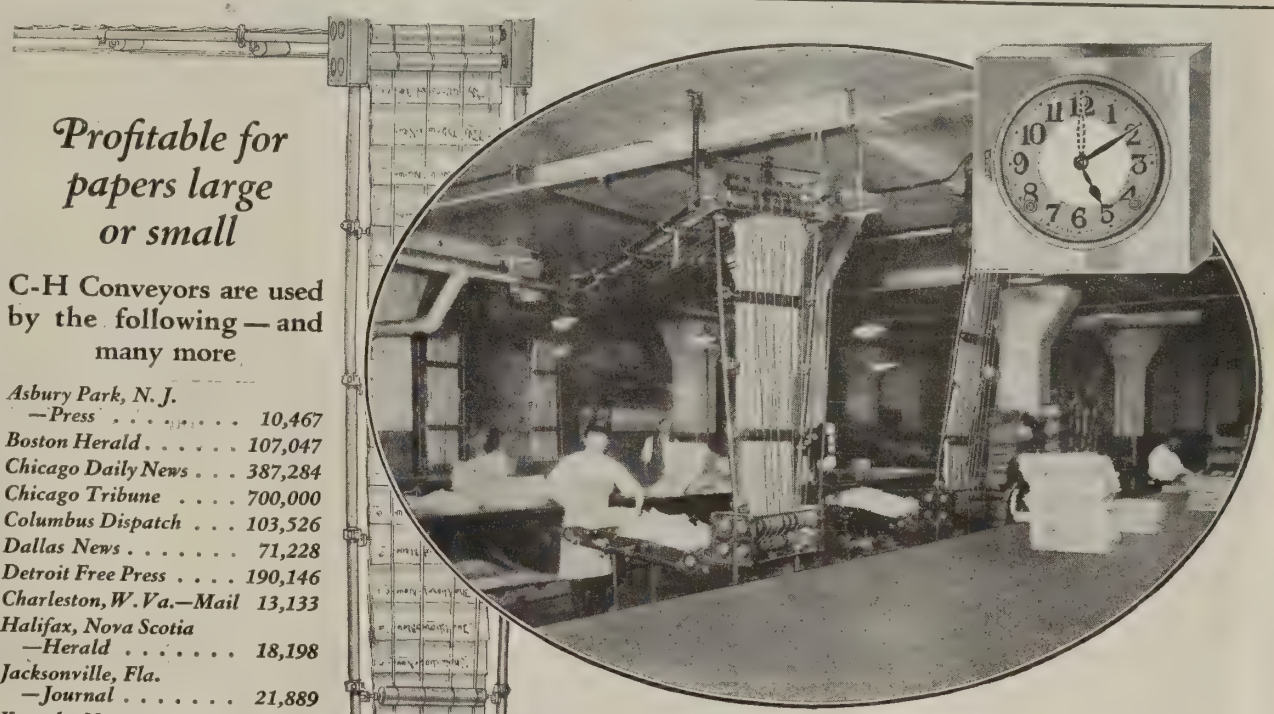
James Putnam Heaton

James Putnam Heaton, 42, son of John L. Heaton, an editor of the New York World, died suddenly May 17, at his home in Brooklyn. He was formerly associated with the Survey Magazine and was secretary of the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

Soft Drink Firms Take 6 Pages

The Kansas City Post, Thursday, May 13, carried a six page section devoted to soft drink advertising, sponsored by the Nu-Grape Company of America, the Orange Squeeze Company and the Nu-Grape Bottling Company.

Profitable for papers large or small



C-H Conveyors are used by the following — and many more

Asbury Park, N. J. —Press	10,467
Boston Herald	107,047
Chicago Daily News	387,284
Chicago Tribune	700,000
Columbus Dispatch	103,526
Dallas News	71,228
Detroit Free Press	190,146
Charleston, W. Va.—Mail	13,133
Halifax, Nova Scotia —Herald	18,198
Jacksonville, Fla. —Journal	21,889
Kenosha News	9,450
London, Eng., Daily Mail
Los Angeles Herald	181,785
Miami, Fla.—News	25,300
Montreal Gazette	31,798
New York World	309,386
Palm Beach, Fla. Post	8,519
Philadelphia Inquirer	287,157
Sydney, Australia —Bulletin
Tokio, Japan, Asahi.
Washington, D. C. Star	93,456
Wilmington Journal	3,403
Womens World Mag. Co., Chicago	1,052,592

and hundreds of others

Circulation based on Jan. 1926 Standard Rate and Data

A total of more than 18,000,000 papers are handled every day by C-H Conveyors

Pushing the deadline ahead

FIVE MINUTES—ten minutes—a long time in the newspaper plant! Push your editorial deadline ahead only that much—what does it mean? Later news in every edition—scooped competition—reputation—bigger circulation—more advertising.

C-H Conveyors cut to a certainty and to an absolute minimum the time required to get the papers from the presses to the street. As fast as the presses can deliver them, C-H Conveyors carry the papers to the delivery or mailing tables with neatness and dispatch—uncertainty at the mechanical end is eliminated—later editorial deadlines become a reality.

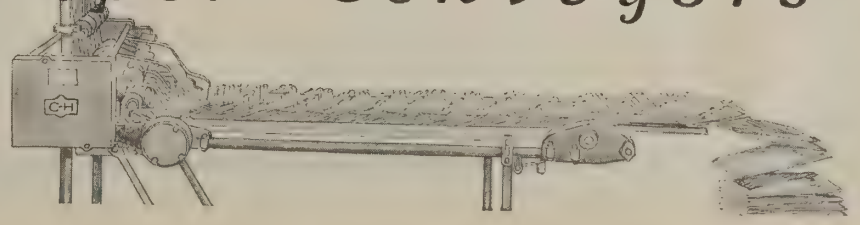
"Keeping Pace in the Newspaper Plant" will prove interesting and profitable reading. Send for your copy.

The CUTLER-HAMMER Mfg. Co.

Pioneer Manufacturers of Electric Control Apparatus

1203 St. Paul Avenue

MILWAUKEE, WISCONSIN



CUTLER HAMMER

Newspaper Conveyors

Descriptive literature on Cutler-Hammer equipment for the newspaper and printing plant will be gladly sent upon request.

Besides C-H Conveyors—Cutler-Hammer automatic control for newspaper presses, small and large, control for flat bed, offset and job presses of every description, and for all motor-driven auxiliary equipment of the printing newspaper plant. Also heaters for linotype pots.

"Keeping Pace in the Newspaper Plant" will be found especially interesting. Let us send a copy.

WHAT'S WHAT IN THE FEATURE FIELD

Gus Mager Doing New Strip for McNaught—Sir Philip Gibbs Signs Contract with United Features—Hugh Fullerton Writes Series for McClure

Harry Hershfield (right) who draws "Abie, the Agent," drew Mayor Walker, of New York, to a Cheese Club dinner not overly long ago; and therefore, draws the right of appearing above. The Mayor is slicing the club's notorious cheese. Press agents, comic artists, and writers belong to the society.

GUS MAGER, creater of "Hawkshaw the Detective" and the "Fifty-Fifty Family," is now drawing a new comic strip for the McNaught Syndicate, Inc., New York, entitled "Oliver's Adventures."

The strip is announced as a serial story in comic strip form. The story concerns Oliver Owens, orphan, adopted by a villain, who plans to use the innocent boy as catspaw for his crimes.

Sir Philip Gibbs, noted British war correspondent, has signed a contract with United Features Syndicate, New York, calling for a weekly dispatch on British and European news. As part of the service, he will report the League of Nations meeting at Geneva in September.

Hugh S. Fullerton, member of the staff of Liberty, has written a series of five Sunday race track features for the McClure Newspaper Syndicate, New York.

C. Edgar Brown has been appointed secretary of the Cosmos Newspaper Syndicate, New York. Myles Lasker, general manager of the syndicate, is now on a business trip to the Pacific Coast.

George Matthew Adams Service, Inc., New York, announces a new daily golf strip by "Farr," entitled "The Minnehaha Golf Club."

"Said by Mark Twain," is the title of a new short daily feature now being distributed to newspapers by the McNaught Syndicate, Inc., New York. It represents the first authorized newspaper publication of material written by Samuel Clemens, and is copyrighted by his daughter Clara Clemens Gabrilowitsch.

A series of weekly humorous articles in Hebrew dialect written by J. J. Lerbson is being offered newspapers by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate, New York, under the title "Mrs. Lefkowitz and Mrs. Pashinsky." Illustrations are by Albert Levering. Lerbson was formerly a member of the New York American staff.

William Ullman, head of the Ullman Feature Service, Washington, D. C., accompanied the Latin-American journalists on their recent tour of inspection of American automotive plants, handling personally, for his organization, news and features of the trip. Mr. Ullman also had a special assignment from the Washington Star.

"The Half-Naked Truth," a comedy by N. Brewster Morse, formerly editorial director of the Wheeler-Nicholson Newspaper Syndicate, has been put in rehearsal by Mable Ryan, who will produce it the first week in June at the Mayfair Theatre, New York. Douglas Wood is directing the production. This is Mr. Morse's first play.

Metropolitan Newspaper Service, New York, announces for June the following articles in its "Pre-Eminent Article Service": "If Not Dollar Mad, Are We Success-Mad?" by Mary Roberts Rinehart; "The Happiest People I Know and Their Secret," by Zona Gale; "Old-Fashioned Virtues and Immoral Geniuses," by Albert Edward Wiggam; and "What Women Like Least in Men, and Men Least in Women," by Mrs. Wilson Woodrow.

Will Rogers is abroad writing the funny side of foreign affairs for McNaught Syndicate.

Sanford J. Greenburger, for two years editor of Continental Features, New York, has resigned, having sold his interest in the syndicate to George Halase, manager.

GOLF TOURNAMENT JULY 7

Walter Savory in Charge of S. N. P. A.'s Annual Affair

Walter H. Savory, vice-president of the Mergenthaler Linotype Company, New York, has been appointed chairman in charge of the annual golf tournament of the Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association to be held at Asheville, N. C., July 7, second day of S. N. P. A.'s convention.

Other members of the golf committee are Elmer E. Clark, Little Rock Arkansas Democrat, and Richard Wasson, sporting editor, Asheville Citizen.

Mr. Savory is asking friends of the association to donate prizes.

Printing machine composition instruction is given in 264 schools in the United States.

Am. Soc. C.E. Boston Soc. C.E.

EDWIN S. PARKER

15 EXCHANGE STREET
BOSTON, MASS.

Structural Engineer

Specializing in Newspaper Plants

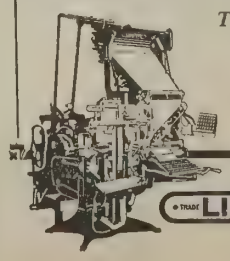
Eight years with the Boston Post in their progressive development.

Let us help you with your problems.

From the Linotype Mailbag

MODEL 26

"a demon at eating up copy"



"We installed a Model 26 Linotype in September 1925. The difference was immediately apparent. We were able to do more work and do it more satisfactorily.

"Our operator is proud of the machine and loves to work with it. We do not have more than one or two distributor stops in a week. The machine is easier to take care of than the older models. The keyboard action is so smooth that a fairly good operator can hang every line, leading him at first to believe that the machine is slow, whereas it is a demon at eating up copy.

"The quick change of type faces without interference with the distribution and the wide range of type faces that can be used is a very special feature that we appreciate.

"The machine is more than paying for itself because of its efficiency in setting ads and job work as well as straight matter."

The Salida Mail
Salida, Colo.

A Proposal To Dismember Texas

In the national scheme of things Texas occasionally suffers from her own great size. Agricultural leadership is discounted. Buying-power is considered per square mile, and the Great Open Spaces are counted in. Only occasionally, of course.

Occasionally somebody forgets that Texas is not only the state of greatest farm income but the state of greatest income per acre of cultivated land. That for economy of merchandising, the open spaces can be passed up. That certain parts of Texas are as closely-knit and as rich as any in America.

If Texas is too big, cut it up. Single out, for instance, the Dallas area —Prosperity Zone—where in a brief hundred-mile circle one-third of all the Texans live, and nearly one-half the state's vast wealth is created.

* * *

Prosperity Zone is not idly named. It has perhaps the highest average of increased business, during the last few years, of any American market except Florida. Clean, substantial development that continues unabated today.

A State in itself, this Zone, with a larger population than all Kansas and as valuable crops as all New York or Pennsylvania. A scene of huge oil development. A well-railroaded and well-roaded community, with a city at its center whose population has doubled in the last ten years.

There have been some remarkable sales records written in the Dallas market, but none more remarkable than those being written by many sales organizations right now.

* * *

There is only one newspaper by which Prosperity Zone can be thoroughly covered. It is a paper of outstanding character and influence.

A conservative, temperate, yet vigorous and progressive paper.

A paper grown old in leadership, yet never more impressively a leader than today.

Dallas is the door to Texas
The News is the key to Dallas

The Dallas Morning News

Texas' oldest business institution

WEEKLY EDITOR'S HOAX STILL HAUNTS HIM

lle of Mummified Man Found in Tree Trunk Printed Over Nation—Its Creator Says Publicity Has Been Profitable

.s it profitable for a newspaper to play noax on its readers? Is the loss of ufidence in a journal's news columns re than compensated by the publicity t follows a cleverly manufactured yarn pl by the compliments of those who ap-ciate its ingenuity?

The Ladysmith (Wis.) Rusk County rnal answers both questions in the rmative.

he story of the Rusk County Jour-'s fabrication of the now famous trified man" tale was published in TOR & PUBLISHER, Feb. 27. But only raction of the narrative was printed. e subsequent events are even more in-sting.

t was late in January of this year that ward Richardson, editor of the Jour-eager to liven up his columns, spun amazing canard of the discovery of a ified man, 300 years old, in the hollow k of a tree, in the woods near Lady-ith.

erhaps it was a jab of the conscience, haps a desire to increase the skepti-n of his readers, perhaps an additional t of humor, that caused Richardson to lit the story to the Rusk County Lyre, aper created for the occasion.

ince then the story has virtually trav-around the world and back to Lady-h. Gullible newspapers and unsus-ing newspapermen reprinted and gar-ed the tale with more pungent details. paper "lifted" it from another, until ad gone through linotypes in every ter of this nation and beyond.

mong the first reprints was that of Muscoda (Wis.) Progressive on 11. On the first page, beneath a k spreadhead, the Progressive pro-ned the tale. And where had it got-the story? Read this in the first graph:

The Courier, of Prairie du Chien, in ast week's edition, tells a weird tale erning the discovery of a petrified near Ladysmith. . . ."

nd the editor of the Progressive even further. He consulted sev-history books and added a half-lmn on the travels of Joliet and Mar-te in the northwest and of the dis-arance of Capt. D'Artagnan, a mem-of that French party of exploration ral hundred years ago, who was cred-by the Rusk County Lyre as being petrified man.

litor Richardson received his first rk when this telegram from Indiana received by him on Feb. 10:

"ditor, Rusk County Lyre:—Have petrified body. Can you verify? n reply collect, with disposition of and pictures available. Rush to-t. Liberal check. Evansville Cou-"

"reat heavens!" gasped Richardson, h must believe it."

lt scarcely had he recovered from first shock, when along came this ram the following day from the th (Minn.) Herald:

"s there anything to the story of find-petrified body of early explorer? If a hoax we could use story. Notify lvance. Duluth Herald."

few days later the mayor of Lady-n rushed into the office of the Jour-l with this letter:

"o the mayor, Ladysmith, Wis.:

"ecently my attention has been called article in one of our local Nebraska s in regard to a petrified man which found in or near your city. For the nit of our students who have taken his discussion in current events, will nform me whether or not this story edible?—Dewey A. Grange, Albion, " tters, in the meantime, continued to up on Richardson's desk. Editors ed more stories. They demanded res. They kept up a barrage of tele-s. The editor was kept busy day and night answering his many inquiries.

But the story, now having gone around the circle, started returning to Wisconsin. On Feb. 27, the Eau Claire (Wis.) Leader ran a story to the effect that the State Journal at Madison had run a story taken from a Marshall, Minn., paper concerning the finding of the petrified Frenchman.

Papers in the West and papers in the East, however, continued to republish the story as they chanced to encounter it.

Morning and evening newspapers of the United States provide 1 1/3 newspapers for every family in the country.

Tacoma B. B. B. Uses Dailies

The Tacoma (Wash.) Better Business Bureau has been using paid space in Tacoma dailies to warn the public against chain selling schemes. Copy size was 12 inches by five columns, three insertions in the Tacoma News Tribune, Ledger and Times, April 29, 30 and May 1. The copy attacked a scheme to sell "$10 worth of hosiery for $1."

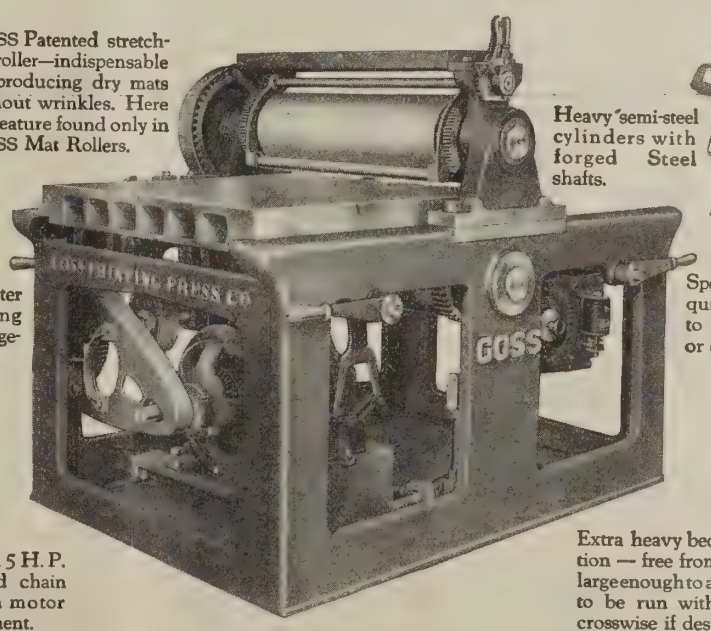
Editors Going to Canada

The annual summer outing of Minnesota editors will be held at Winnipeg, Canada, June 24 to 27, according to an announcement by A. G. Rutledge of Bemidji, secretary and treasurer of the Northern Minnesota Editorial Association. The last visit of Minnesota editors to Manitoba was in 1913.

Iowa Removing Road Signs

The Iowa state highway commission this week announced that removal of all advertising signs on primary roads in Iowa will begin at once. The order for the removal was issued several weeks ago upon authority of a recently adopted statute. Signs inside the line fence, not obstructing vision, will not be molested, the commission has announced.

GOSS



STRAIGHT LINE

Combination Wet and Dry
MATRIX ROLLER
No. 45 C
$1575
Complete with 5 H.P. Two Speed Motor. F.O.B. Chicago

Impression set and adjusted through eccentric bushings which adjust both ends of cylinder at same time.

GOSS Patented stretching roller—indispensable for producing dry mats without wrinkles. Here is a feature found only in GOSS Mat Rollers.

Heavy semi-steel cylinders with forged Steel shafts.

Large Diameter double acting brake arrangement.

Speed of machine quickly changed to roll either wet or dry mats.

Special 5 H. P. 2 speed chain driven motor equipment.

Extra heavy bed construction — free from racks — large enough to allow chase to be run with columns crosswise if desired.

Seven Outstanding Features!

BELOW them all in price, above them all in quality, it is not surprising that there are more Goss Combination Wet and Dry Matrix Rolling Machines in use than all the other makes combined. It will pay you to investigate why Goss Machinery is preferred by leading stereotypers everywhere. Catalog on request.

Goss Stereotyping Machinery Carried in Stock: Flat Casting Boxes, Friction-Driven Curved Routers, Automatic Gas Fired Steam Generators, Combination Jig Saws and Drills, Radial Arm Flat Routers, Ball Bearing Form Tables, Combination Wet and Dry Mat Rollers, Motor-Driven Steam Tables.

Fully descriptive literature, prices and terms on request.

THE GOSS PRINTING PRESS COMPANY • CHICAGO

The Goss Printing Press Company of England, Ltd., London

Messers. Edwards Dunlop Company, Ltd., Sydney, Sole Australian Agent

A.A.C.W.'S 'TRUTH' PLEA CALLED SHOPWORN

"Let's Drop It for a While," Suggests Blanchard, and Tell Public Economic Value of Advertising Instead

(Following are excerpts from an address by Frank LeRoy Blanchard, advertising director, Henry L. Doherty Company, New York, delivered at the 17th Annual Journalism Week, University of Missouri).

William C. Crawford, of London, one of England's foremost advertising agents, in an address before the Advertising Club of New York a few months ago, said that inasmuch as most advertising is now truthful, would it not be well to concentrate our efforts upon some other topic connected with the business that needs discussion? In other words, Mr. Crawford was of the opinion that continual harping, year after year, upon truth in advertising might give rise to the impression that most advertising is untruthful, and that the agitation begun in Baltimore by the A. A. C. W. in 1913 has been continued until the present time for that reason.

Why would it not be a good idea for us to drop for awhile, at least, our exploitation of the subject and devote our attention to the development of a better understanding on the part of the public of the economical advantages they derive from advertising? I think Mr. Crawford's suggestion has real merit and is worth adopting. If you agree with me you will ask, "How can the education of the public be best accomplished?" Advertising agents in their quest for new business have had something, but not very much, to say about advertising as a marketing force. Their chief aim has been, of course, to convince their prospects and clients that advertising will render them an invaluable service. But only one association, or other advertising organization, so far as I know, has planned and executed a campaign the purpose of which was to correct the popular misconceptions regarding advertising to which I have referred. The American Association of Advertising Agencies in co-operation with the newspaper publishers a few years ago put on a twelve months' campaign to advertise advertising.

It may be argued that advertisers of experience need little or no instruction upon the subject. Undoubtedly this is true, but it should be remembered that it is not these we ought to instruct but the great consuming public to which national and retail advertisers are constantly directing their sales messages. Advertising agents must give their clients the kind of advertising that will present their merchandise or service in such an attractive and convincing manner that it will produce a satisfactory volume of business. They cannot devote any part of the advertising appropriations to educational matter that does not directly relate to sales or to the promotion of public good will.

The creation of a better understanding of the underlying principles of advertising and its benefits to the consumer must rest upon the advertising agents, and the newspaper and periodical publishers. You may suggest that national and retail advertisers should shoulder some part of the responsibility. To this I cannot agree. The advertisers are our customers. We have assured them that publicity pays and pays well, and it is our privilege and duty to show them how to use it to their advantage. If, by any act of ours, we can make the response to their advertising messages more effective, it is good business on our part to do so, for not only shall we be able to sell a greater volume of space to manufacturers and merchants, but the number of our clients will increase to a marked degree.

Nearly 100 syndicates supply daily and weekly newspapers with regular features.

CALIFORNIA EDITORS IN "STRIPES"

Frank M. Keffer, president of the Southern California Editorial Association and J. R. Hinman, vice-president of the Central California Newspaper Association, resting on the rock pile where the Chief of Police of Inglewood entertained them when they visited his city. He put them to work on the roads

THE ASHEVILLE CITIZEN

"Gets There First"

First In News
First In Features
First In Circulation
First In Display Advertising
First In National Advertising
First In Classified Advertising

THE ASHEVILLE CITIZEN carried more advertising during the first four months of 1926 than any other daily newspaper in North Carolina. It led its nearest competitor in its territory by 669,382 lines. This record of lineage is one of which we are proud and it shows the esteem that advertisers hold for the CITIZEN. The lineage for this period was:

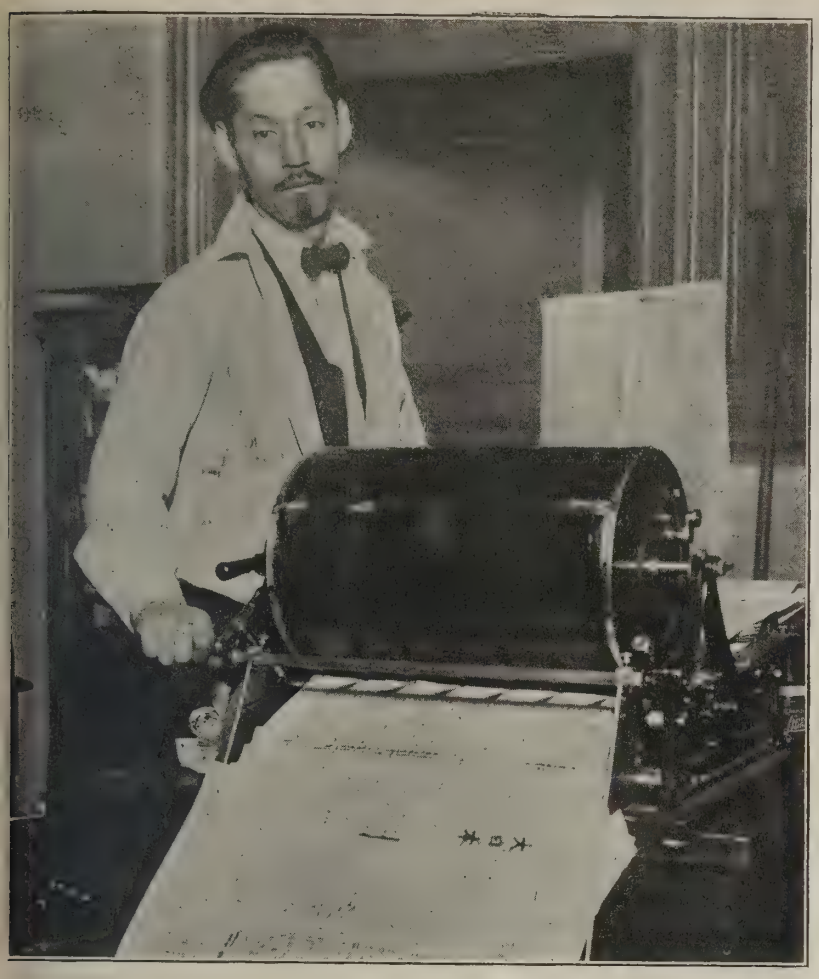
	National	Local	Classified	Total
January 1926	97,146	562,856	159,628	819,630
February 1926	112,896	675,500	210,924	999,320
March 1926	124,376	942,270	227,472	1,294,118
April 1926	131,180	951,510	209,020	1,291,710
Totals	465,598	3,132,136	807,044	4,404,778

A Gain of 1,379,696 lines over same months of 1925

The above figures are by actual measurement and they show the prosperity and general business conditions of Western North Carolina. This was our normal growth and following our established policy no special editions were necessary to make this remarkable gain.

For Good Results Advertisers Use

THE ASHEVILLE CITIZEN



(Daily and Sunday)

E. Katz Special Advertising Agency—National Representatives

Established 1888

DETROIT NEW YORK KANSAS CITY ATLANTA CHICAGO SAN FRANCISCO

PRINTS JAPANESE PAPER BY HAND

Seiji Tachibana, editor and publisher of Chicago's first Japanese daily newspaper, the Dai Nippon, running off his day's circulation by mimeograph, the stencils for which are cut by hand by the editor-publisher. The Dai Nippon is a four-page paper.

ROUND TABLE CLOSES JOURNALISM WEEK

(Continued from page 20)

work there I feel that I have only atched the surface.

Getting out this paper has become much le writing a letter to a large and much erested family. For instance the boy l girl whose marriage we are announc- this week were high school students terday or the year before that, and we re writing of their commencement and ir class play. Within a year or two will be making the birth announcerat that so thrills the hearts of proud ndparents and to us we have seen anher generation of Americans start on its r. We may send this same bridegroom today into Congress in the next ten or lve years, we may see tragedy stalk ough that home, separating its mems, we may see, as I saw the other , a friend of my own son sent to our e institution of reform because of one l evening with bad companions. ple little items in many ways and they never fail to register pain and sure, expectation or disappointment in hearts of the editor and the majority his readers. The city journalist sees ll value in such trivial and personal gs. The country editor knows that the least of these things contain at heart interest for his particular lity and plays it up accordingly.

Ty own aim has been, and I am not e in it by any means, that there shall othing go into the paper which is not for every member of the family to el, from the youngest and most imsionistic to the oldest and most astute. et us write from our hearts, with our els keeping us from being too altoer dull, and with humor leading both. other words, let's be servants of anity first and journalists after.

NO FEAR OF NEWSPRINT OVERPRODUCTION

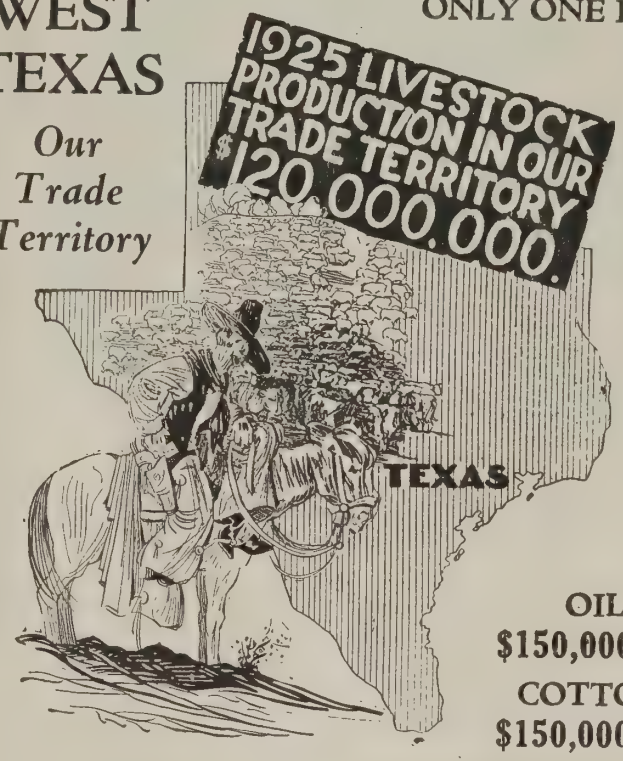
International Paper Company Expert Says Demand Is Increasing and Mills Are Barely Ahead of Orders

Overproduction of newsprint paper in North America is a very remote contingency, declared H. C. Scott, head of the Statistical Research Department of the International Paper Company, addressing the Canadian Statistical Society in Montreal, May 10. He stated that consumption was increasing faster than production and that, if there was overproduction, it would more likely be in the fine paper field. Stocks of newsprint on hand at mills are very low, he said, amounting to only a few days ahead of demand. In the United States not a single new machine was put in operation in 1925; in fact there had been a tendency to convert newsprint machines into producers of fine paper.

The chief factor in the increasing demand for newsprint had been the steady growth in the size of newspapers, of which there were now more than 32,000 on the continent. Not a year passed but some new popular article appeared which called for more advertising space. The rise, growth and popularity of the automobile, moving pictures and the radio had added enormously to the advertising space in the newspapers.

The speaker was of the opinion that the North American market for newsprint was still far from saturation. In Germany and other European countries newsprint consumption per capita was very small as compared with the United States and Canada and with the return of more normal conditions there would follow a growth in the size, circulation and number of newspapers, which would mean a considerably increased demand.

LIVESTOCK 1925



$120,000,000

in

WEST TEXAS

Our Trade Territory

—AND THAT'S ONLY ONE ITEM

OIL $150,000,000

COTTON $150,000,000

A Billion Dollar Territory

Covered

—with ONE Medium

THE STAR-TELEGRAM & RECORD-TELEGRAM

More circulation in this territory than any three other mediums combined

DAILY Net Paid Over 115,000

NO PREMIUMS NO CONTESTS

SUNDAY Net Paid Over 120,000

FORT WORTH STAR-TELEGRAM

(EVENING)

Fort Worth Record-Telegram

(MORNING)

FORT WORTH STAR-TELEGRAM and Sunday Record

Charter Member Audit Bureau of Circulations

AMON G. CARTER, President and Publisher

A. L. SHUMAN, Vice-Pres. and Adv. Director

ZINOVIEFF LETTER BEHIND MISTRUST OF PRESS

(Continued from page 3)

of either side. One common purpose was held between them; they did not want the labor dispute to get outside of bounds and become actual civil war.

"Censorship, it was thought, provided one means of obtaining this common purpose and the absence of newspapers was in effect equivalent to censorship. Censorship stops all news except what officials in power choose to give out. The government gave its news out over the radio and through the British Gazette, and the trade unionists used the British Worker.

"I must say the British Gazette was very unfair and was thought to be considerably a joke, even in conservative circles. It was felt a great mistake was made in the first place, when the plant of the London Morning Post was taken over by the government, since the Post is the ultra-conservative newspaper."

Mr. Lippmann by reporting the distrust of the press on the part of labor had plainly given the impression that the newspapers were not missed very much during the strike and he was asked if he thought the situation would be different in this country if a similar gag was imposed.

"That is not a question a newspaper man can answer," he replied. "Naturally, being a newspaper man, I have to make myself believe that the press is essential to the future of the nation; whether newspaper readers think so or no, I don't know."

Mr. Lippmann was in Paris until April 30 the Friday before the strike started. There, he said, no one was paying any attention to England's threatened labor difficulties. Even the British papers he read on the Dover train en route to London were quiet, but he was able to see serious trouble was ahead.

"I went immediately to the London office of the World on my arrival," he said. "There was a general feeling among newspaper men, I found, that the world was collapsing around them. London papers are what they live on, and they didn't know what they would do without them. Talk was on the possible organization of reportorial staffs, and a great deal of improvising had to be done."

Mr. Lippman was at the home of the American Ambassador to England on Sunday night when he learned that the general strike was inevitable. On Monday, May 3, he went to the House of Commons, where he listened to the entire strike debate, which continued from 3 o'clock in the afternoon until midnight.

"During the strike, there were some wild rumors, caused by the lack of newspapers, but the people were never really excited," he continued. "There was nothing that resembled a panic.

"One of the best strike stories I heard and one that was typical of the spirit of the British people, was about a group of special constables, some mounted young bloods, sent down to patrol the east end of London. Becoming tired, they stopped at a public house to get a drink and asked some strike pickets to hold their horses for them. The strikers acquiesced willingly.

"Police organized picnics and games for the strikers on the theory that this was the best way to keep them out of mischief. An incident that was recommended as a good example to the people was told by the government announcer over the radio. The police and strikers had opposed each other in a football game. The wife of the town's chief constable had kicked off the ball, and the strikers had won two goals to one.

"The truth of the matter was that no one believed in the general strike, and everyone agreed with the miners."

Mr. Lippmann has been away from New York since March 20. After a two weeks' motor trip through the South of France, he went to Geneva mainly to study two questions: whether the United States would be admitted to the World Court and the forthcoming disarmament conference. He was in Paris during the debt settlement.

"Unless the United States finds some way to explain what we mean by the fifth reservation, we will not be admitted to the court," Mr. Lippmann said he had concluded. The fifth reservation provides that the court cannot hand down an opinion on any matter in which the United States may have interest or claim to have an interest.

"If this reservation means what it seems to mean, Europeans believe it is too high a price to pay to have the United States in the World Court. The feeling is becoming widespread in Europe that the time has come to quit making concessions to the United States in order to gain U. S. aid."

In regard to the disarmament conference, Mr. Lippmann said a long job lay ahead of statesmen of the world, and it was foolish for editors to expect immediate results and clamor for them.

"If nations do not disarm as a result of the first session, newspapers will make a mistake to cry failure," the World's editor declared. "There is no such thing as failure in it. Of course it may not move ahead for a long time. Dealing with disarmament is like dealing with a disease. Science, in attacking germs, may not make any progress over a long period, and then suddenly accomplish what seems at the moment to be a miracle."

In Paris Mr. Lippmann addressed members of the Anglo-American Press Association at one of their weekly luncheons. He chose to try to answer for them a question which has been put many times to American newspaper correspondents in Europe: Why the United States has no definite European policy.

In his opinion, the United States could have no definite foreign policy unless its home politics were on a sound basis. And because they were not on a sound basis was the reason why America was presenting to the Old World the curious spectacle of a great, competent people, with apparently no connected foreign policy.

The old order in the United States, according to Mr. Lippmann was changing. By an amusing but very apt illustration he showed how little difference there was really between the Democrats and the Republicans. For him, the sharp party line has already begun to disappear, and the United States is, politically, showing signs of breaking up into new groups. Being already in this period of change, how could the United States have any definite foreign policy?

Some of the British correspondents present were anxious to have Mr. Lippmann's opinion on Prohibition.

The speaker did not believe there would be any repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

He felt that it had already grown apparent that prohibition could not be enforced.

The Eighteenth Amendment would merely become a dead letter, just as the Fifteenth Amendment had never been repealed but had simply lapsed.

Our Customers Write Our Ads

Abilene, Texas, Daily Reporter Says—

"The DUPLEX TUBULAR has answered our every requirement in a most satisfactory and economical way."

DUPLEX PRESSES

FOR ALL NEWSPAPERS

Duplex Printing Press Co.
BATTLE CREEK, MICH.

LONDON NEWSPAPER POST NEW FREEDOM CHARTER

(Continued from page 3)

by Roderick Morison, editor of the Daily Mail's Atlantic Edition. His account in part follows:

"We who were in the thick of it from the start, who gathered in little knots in a newspaper building where the hum of the presses was strangely stilled, who watched the tape machines with more silent excitement, more trepidation, than on any election night, we have met with an experience that for all the heaviness of the sword of Damocles we shall remember for the sheer thrill of it.

"Sunday dawned the loveliest day of the year. All was normal. Birds sang. Buses ran. True, there was a coal strike (or lockout, according to your sympathies), but one day of a coal strike does not disturb the normality of things.

"Also the threat of a general strike hung over the country; but as I have said, few cared about such an improbable threat. No one guessed that the bomb was to explode that night in a little room in a great building, where a great newspaper prepared in its usual way to go to press.

"As the world knows now, it was in the offices of the Daily Mail, in Carmelite House itself, that the hour of the 'bloodless revolution' struck.

"Paradoxically it was the leading article for Monday's paper which caused the trouble, with its heading 'For King and Country.'

"'That is nonsense!' said the Daily Mail printers. 'We are for king and country, too! That must be withdrawn.'

"So a deputation waited on the editor to tell him gently but firmly that 'For King and Country' must be trimmed considerably or there would be no Monday's Daily Mail. To which the editor replied, firmly but gently, 'No!' and had the deputation ushered out.

"In the newsroom at Carmelite Hous the sub-editors (copy readers) sifted t copy as it came from the clicking m chines, calmly editing the newspaper th was destined never to be printed.

"No London edition of the Daily Ma therefore appeared on Monday mornin and the general strike was for that ve reason rendered inevitable. The Cabin would give no more ground in the endeavors to mediate. For all practic purposes the issue was joined.

"Coming back from lunch I saw son copies of the Star on sale, but none the Evening News, the Daily Mai satellite newspaper, nor of the Evenin Standard, the other of London's thr evening journals.

"I learned that the Evening Nev editor, like his colleague of the Dai Mail, had been told to 'trim' a leadi article. He had refused, and the Ev ning News had forthwith been suspende The Evening Standard had suffered t same fate. Later that evening the St followed suit. And all this before t general strike was in operation.

"I need not recapitulate the events Tuesday, the first day of the gener strike—the thrills and the rumors. On my teeth were nearly shaken loose I sat on the haystrewn floor of a pr war lorry and jolted my way from n suburb into the heart of London.

"The metropolis was one big famil in these times. Even more than Derby Day, men talked to their neig bors, discarding the traditional Engli reserve.

"Into the suburbs, whence the offic bound workers had long since limp their way, drifted the breath of gre happenings, and people cried out f trains. There was only one place to in at that time, and that was the hea of London, Picadilly Circus, Trafalg square, Whitehall, Fleet street, whe the 'pirate' buses swayed dizzily und their topheavy complement of wonde ing, excited citizens; and Hyde Par where bizarre yellow huts sprang hourly like so many mushrooms, as t

Progress . . .

It is with real pleasure that we announce the following NEW subscribers to our Complete Checking Proof Service . . .

Ashland, Ky. . . . . Independent
El Paso, Texas . . . . . Herald & Times
Fairmont, W. Va. . . . Times
Fairmont, W. Va. . . . W. Virginian
Gadsden, Ala. . . . . Times-News
Hagerstown, Md. . . . Herald-News
Huntington, Md. . . . Advertiser
Indianapolis, Ind. . . . News
Lexington, Ky. . . . . Herald
Parkersburg, W. Va. . News
Parkersburg, W. Va. . Sentinel
Roanoke, Va. . . . . Times
Roanoke, Va. . . . . World-News

The Advertising CHECKING BUREAU Inc.

538 So. Clark St.
CHICAGO

79 Madison Avenue
NEW YORK

organization of the nation's gigantic food depot began,

"On Tuesday night the Daily Mail hit back once more. A single typewritten sheet, a poor, flimsy thing, but still a newspaper, was produced and circulated in the streets before 11 o'clock on Wednesday morning.

"There was not a soul in Carmelite House that Wednesday who did not feel a thrill, not merely of excitement, but of pride.

"Pickets held the entrance of 'The House,' great burly fellows from the striking staff. I think I was the last member of the editorial section to enter the building unmolested.

"Slowly they pressed up the steps, two or three of the burliest leading them, and there they stayed.

"Three policemen, all huge men, meanwhile maintained a so-called cordon around the entrance. The face of the hugest of them was a study. I appreciated then the tact of the London 'bobby.' It was monumental. These men were powerless, and yet powerful, keeping the peace by the sheer force of example.

"But that could not last forever. A tape room employee, not a striker, attempted to come in, and was pulled back roughly by a bully of a picket. A fracas ensued, and the murmurs of the dense crowd swelled to a roar. Desperately the three policemen forced their way up the steps, and still, by a seeming miracle, they managed to hold the situation.

"Just then a director ran down stairs, his face set. The telephone staff had struck. 'The House' [Carmelite House, address of the Daily Mail] was cut off, a beleaguered city. Hurried consultation followed. A member of the staff slipped out and was lost in the crowd.

"Less than ten minutes later police reenforcements arrived and the thin line of three became a real cordon drawn round the two vulnerable sides of the building.

"A moment after they had taken their stand mounted police dashed up with a roar and a clatter, and, keeping their prancing horses on a tight rein, gradually forced the unwilling mass of strikers back, back to the Daily Herald corner, and formed up there on front of them, holding them in leash as a slipper holds the greyhounds.

"The situation was saved and the directors in the council room upstairs plunged anew into their life sustaining sandwiches and beer. 'P. W. D. I.,' who writes the 'Countryman's Diary' daily in the Mail, himself smuggled one pound's worth of sandwiches into the office for the use of beleaguered directors and staff.

"A short while afterwards two long-limbed men, with sad eyes surmounting heavily pouched cheeks, appeared and took up a stand inside the swinging door, one on each side. These, obviously, were Scotland Yard detectives, I had not survived my reporting days in the London area without learning what a 'Yard' man looks like."

Bellows Falls Mill Suspends

The Fall Mountain mill of the International Paper Company at Bellows Falls, Vt., ceased operation permanently early this month, with the exception of one-paper making machine and the core plant which are housed in one building. Fifty men have been retained to run the core plant for an indefinite period. The company recently sold most of its property to the New England Power Company, which will install a 45,000 horse power electric plant. The power station will run with water taken from the Connecticut River by the old paper company canal.

Potter Launches Rochester Weekly

The East Rochester (N. Y.) Realties is a new weekly just beginning publication. M. Bruce Potter, formerly president and general manager of the Rochester (N. Y.) Herald, is owner and publisher and John E. Roger, also formerly of the Herald, is editor.

THREE PRIZES PLANNED FOR BUSINESS PAPERS

Organization Decides to Offer Awards for Editorial Achievement for Year Beginning June 1 — Special Committee Named

Members of the Associated Business Papers, Inc., meeting at Absecon, N. J., recently, decided to award three prizes for editorial achievement during the year beginning June 1, 1926, and annually thereafter. Jesse H. Neal, executive secretary, announced the prizes as follows:

"An award of $500 to the writer on an ABP publication for the best editorial or article of an editorial nature, to be judged for clearness of style, sound reasoning, and power to influence.

"An award of $500 to the regular member of the editorial staff of an ABP publication for the best article or series of articles or news reports, judged broadly upon the basis of timeliness, accuracy, thoroughness, originality, clearness of expression and usefulness.

"An award of a suitable trophy to the ABP publication contributing the most definite and outstanding service to the field with which the publication is connected."

The report of the committee included provisions for the nature of the exhibits to be submitted and the method of selecting the judges. The meeting, however, in accepting the proposal for the awards, provided for a special committee to work out all the details and conditions to govern the competition and the selection of the judges.

The members of the committee are: M. C. Robbins, Gas Age-Record, chairman; James H. Stone, Shoe Retailer; Willard Chevalier, Engineering News Record; John H. Van Deventer, Industrial Management; H. J. Wright, Dry Goods Reporter.

Those on the editors' committee are: W. V. Morrow, Furniture Manufacturer & Artisan; E. T. Howson, Railway Age; F. C. Wright, Engineering News Record; G. D. Crain, Jr., Class; Douglas G. Wolf, Textile World.

The meeting reaffirmed the standard page sizes previously adopted by the ABP—namely, 7 x 10 inches, 3¾ x 7 inches, 8¼ x 11½ inches. In addition they adopted another type size commonly known as the standard magazine page, namely 5½ x 8 inches. The three type page sizes first named were agreed upon after a conference with representatives of various advertising associations and the paper manufacturers.

O'KEEFE WINS ELECTION

Agency Man Boston Ad Club President —Admit Women as Members

Maj. Patrick F. O'Keefe, president of the P. F. O'Keefe Advertising Agency, Boston, was elected president of the Advertising Club of Boston this week. He served as president in 1914 when the club was known as the Pilgrim Publicity Association. Other officers chosen were: Vice-president, Arthur J. Crockett; secretary, Herbert Stephens; treasurer, George V. Moulton. Directors: Watson M. Gordon, Harry L. Harding, Clifford A. Buttelman, Earle J. Manning and Fred J. Brown; nominating committee for 1927, Aubrey C. MacEarey, Jasper R. Swain, George A. Hayes, Sherman Smith and Raymond E. Huntington.

After a spirited debate it was voted to admit women to membership in the club.

Lives After 200-Foot Fall

A. O. Loomis, former advertising manager of the Portland (Ore.) Telegram, had a remarkable escape from death when his automobile plunged down 200 feet from the Columbia River highway. It left the pavement near the top of Bridal Veil Falls and was smashed to pieces in a pool at the bottom of the falls. Mr. Loomis was seriously injured but is recovering.

Imperial METAL

Talk It Over

With an Imperial Representative

THE Imperial Representative who calls on you is a man well worth knowing. We want to suggest that you get acquainted with him. If you are having any metal trouble he's the man who can give you help. By all means get him to tell you how you can make your type metal operations more economical.

An Imperial Representative can show you how to get a cleaner, brighter looking page, with sharp halftones and uniformity without gray spots. He knows how to prevent a great deal of machine and stereotyping trouble.

Get him to explain the Imperial Plus Metal Plan in detail. Find out why thousands of publishers use this dependable and economical method for taking care of their metal. Ask him how the Plus Plan can add years of working life to your metal, thereby cutting down metal costs.

We believe you'll find a few moments with an Imperial Representative well worth while. Please remember that he is backed by a concern whose only product is type metal and whose entire efforts are devoted to making that product the best.

IMPERIAL TYPE METAL CO.

Manufacturing the following metals:

LINOTYPE MONOTYPE INTERTYPE STEREOTYPE
ELROD LUDLOW LINOGRAPH THOMPSON

Philadelphia Cleveland New York Chicago

MOVIE CONCERN WRITES OWN EDITORIAL

Timely Films, Inc., Praises Itself in Requested Free Publication—New York Newspapers Refuse to Be "Boosters"

Timely Films, Inc., producers of "Topics of the Day," selected from the press of the world, has written its own laudatory editorial and is peddling it to newspapers, confidently expecting free publicity.

"We feel sure," a letter to editors reads, "you will find space in the ..... for the enclosed Topics Of The Day editorial, or news feature or both."

New York editors, so far as EDITOR & PUBLISHER could learn, did not feel so sure.

The occasion for this movie confidence that newspapers would be willing to barter their editorial page and news column space for mention they have received in the reels put out by Timely Films, Inc., is the seventh birthday of the corporation celebrated May 15.

Charles McDonald signed the letter sent out to editors, which compliments the various newspapers on the fact they were quoted several times during the past year in Topics of the Day.

"We waited to compliment you until our Seventh Birthday when felicitations are being showered on us."

The praise which the movie concern expects the newspaper will give out to the public as the expression of the editor's own opinion, is worded by the press agent in choice phrases, such as the following:

"The .... (name of newspaper).... considers that the seventh anniversary of TOPICS OF THE DAY is a fitting opportunity to congratulate the reel of real laughs on the service it is rendering to the all-too gloomy public."

And again:

"During 1925, the .... (name of newspaper) .... was quoted several times in Topics Of The Day and we consider 'tis a mark of distinction to have the editors of Topics select paragraphs from our publication and show them to their fifteen million readers over our credit line."

And yet again (the italics are EDITOR & PUBLISHER'S):

". . . We offer them (Timely Films, Inc.) our sincere congratulations on this brief constitution, which explains why TOPICS OF THE DAY has grown so rapidly and is still going strong."

N. Y. NEWSPAPER WOMEN DINE

Arthur Draper and Louis Wiley Speakers at Annual Banquet

The New York Newspaper Women's Club held its annual dinner on May 16, at the Hotel Vanderbilt.

Arthur S. Draper, foreign editor of the New York Herald Tribune, spoke describing the work of women journalists in Europe. He said that the society editors in London are women and that their positions are important because of the political significance of society news. Louis Wiley, business manager of the New York Times also addressed the club. Miss Dorothy Ducas, Columbia University correspondent of the New York Herald Tribune was introduced to the members. She recently won a Pulitzer traveling scholarship for her work in the Columbia School of Journalism.

ADVERTISERS DONATE A "SURPRISE EDITION"

THE Fort Worth (Tex.) Press is believed to be the only newspaper to publish a special edition donated by its advertisers.

The Press recently completed a new plant but announced it would not publish a special edition to celebrate the occasion.

Without the knowledge of Peter Hamilton, business manager, or I. W. Brown, advertising manager, about 24 advertisers sent 800 inches of copy to the Press office May 10, with a letter stating it had been "self-solicited" for a surprise "New Home Edition."

Bert Barber, local copy writer, and formerly advertising manager of Meecham's, a local store, acted as spokesman for the advertisers in presenting the prepared copy.

Daily Operating Tourist Bureau

A joint touring bureau has been established by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and the Automobile Club of Missouri. It is an outgrowth of the free road information service organized by the newspaper last May. The bureau occupies quarters on the first floor of the Post-Dispatch building with the paper's resort and travel bureau.

CAPITAL WRITERS ELECT TUCKER TO COMMITTEE

Washington Correspondent for Curtis Newspapers Named to Standing Committee of Senate and House Press Galleries

Ray Thomas Tucker, staff correspondent for the New York Evening Post connected with the Washington bureau of the Cyrus H. K. Curtis newspapers, was elected Saturday a member of the Standing Committee of the U. S. Senate and House Press Galleries.

Tucker replaces Grafton S. Wilcox, who withdrew from Washington newspaper circles recently to become assistant managing editor of the New York Herald Tribune.

The almost solid support of the members of the House Press Gallery put Mr. Tucker over in the face of the opposition of many correspondents identified with the Senate Press Gallery. The Senate group backed Robert B. Choate, Washington correspondent for the Boston Herald who finished second. Paul J. McGahan, of the Washington bureau of the Philadelphia Inquirer, trailed the leaders.

Tucker started his newspaper career on the Springfield (Mass.) Republican in 1915, after being gradauted from Yale. From there he went to the Elizabeth (N. J.) Journal, and then became Sunday editor of the Waterbury (Conn.) Republican. The World War interrupted his newspaper work and sent him overseas with the Seventy-Sixth Division. Upon his return he became Sunday editor of the Hartford (Conn.) Courant, which he had represented previously at Camp Devens, Mass., when in the army.

In 1920 he joined the New York Evening Post and four years later was sent to Washington to represent that newspaper there.

STORES MUST BACK THEIR ADS

Good Copy Worthless if Sales Force Falls Down, Chicago Man Says

Faith without good works is the description J. R. Ozanne, advertising manager of Carson Pirie Scott & Co., gave of the merchant who fails to back up his advertising by having his sales force tuned to the highest efficiency.

Speaking before the Advertising Council of the Association of Commerce, Mr. Ozanne cited several instances where retailers had spent large sums for advertising campaigns only to have the effects of them lessened because of the indifferent or uninformed sales help.

"Many retailers make the serious mistake of advertising certain goods without informing the department for those particular goods that the buying public will be in to see the merchandise advertised.

Spokane Dailies Aid Advertisers

Late authentic information of value in planning sales and advertising campaigns is contained in the 1926 edition of "Market Facts About The Spokane Country," issued by the national advertising bureau of the Spokane Spokesman-Review and Spokane Daily Chronicle. Tom J. Turner is manager of the bureau.

MERCHANT & EVANS CO.
PHILADELPHIA
Producers of
SPARTAN TYPE METAL
Since 1866
LINO • MONO • STERO
INTERTYPE COMBINATION
Stocks in Principal Cities

Time-Saver!
Intertype Font Distinguisher
Saves money by saving steps; changes made from front.
Scale easily read from operator's seat at keyboard.
Stops wrong-fonts where easy to remove.
One reversible wearing part; double service.
INTERTYPE CORPORATION
1440-A Broadway, New York
Standardized INTERTYPE TRADE MARK
Profit-Making Features—No. 13

Our national fire loss is at the rate of $16 every second

Time's Hand Rests Lightly on the Concrete Masonry Home

Concrete building units such as concrete block or concrete building tile put the masonry house within the reach of everyone.

Reasonable first cost, freedom from upkeep, and depreciation, great stability, maximum firesafety, are outstanding advantages secured with concrete masonry units. Speed of construction is another.

In whatever form concrete is used, it stands alone as the one structural material that grows stronger with age.

While concrete block and tile are particularly adaptable to residence construction, they are equally suitable for schools and industrial buildings.

Before you build, investigate concrete masonry. Remember that the utmost of quality and value follows the use of concrete buildng units.

Ask for your free copy of "A Book of Beautiful Homes"

PORTLAND CEMENT ASSOCIATION
33 W. Grand Ave., Chicago
A National Organization to Improve and extend the uses of Concrete Offices in 31 Cities

More than 5,000 individuals take a hand in compiling every year

Editor & Publisher's

Annual Space Buyers' Guide

Trained survey investigators—city officials—secretaries of Chambers of Commerce—bank and trust company officials—business men's association heads—newspaper executives—all the facts submitted being carefully sifted, checked and re-checked by experts.

WITH THE COOPERATION OF THESE MEN WE PRESENT IN EACH ISSUE

A Vast Amount of Data

Original — Fresh — Authentic — Exclusive

Giving an accurate, vivid picture of trading conditions in cities and towns where daily newspapers are published

1257

Although only three years old Editor & Publisher's Space Buyers' Guide is universally recognized as the standard reference book for sellers of merchandise and buyers of advertising ∴

Go into almost any Advertising Agency office—peek over the shoulders of the advertising manager of almost any national advertiser—and you'll see a copy of the Space Buyers' Guide always at hand for quick reference ∴

It is one book that is never shelved—never misplaced—always prized—daily used ∴ ∴ ∴

IT TAKES THE GUESS OUT OF ADVERTISING—REDUCES THE HAZARDS—GIVES ALL THE ESSENTIAL FACTS—IS AN INDISPENSABLE FACTOR IN THE PLANS AND OPERATIONS OF THOUSANDS OF SALES EXECUTIVES

Naturally, a book so constantly thumbed by space buyers is of incalculable service to the DAILY NEWSPAPER PUBLISHER. For when a man is studying his market, that moment is the time to present to him the story of the medium he can use to the best advantage in reaching that market. Close to TWO HUNDRED Daily Newspapers utilized this tremendously effective opportunity in the 1925 Space Buyers' Guide—and are getting business from it right along.

The 1926 Space Buyers' Guide comes out in November—it's time for you to be thinking what use you are going to make of it in increasing your linage next year, don't you think? All the necessary particulars are yours for the asking—and no obligations.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

SUITE 1700, TIMES BUILDING, NEW YORK, N. Y.

EDITOR BELIEVES IN AIDING MERCHANTS

Should Be Qualified to Give Advertising Counsel in Small Cities, Valparaiso, Ind., Man Declares

J. Earle Mavity, editor of the Valparaiso (Ind.) Daily Vidette, believes it is the duty of the small city editor to serve his merchant advertisers in the role of advertising counsel. In this role, Mavity has made a study of the small town merchant, his problems and his opportunities.

Here are some of the observations of Mavity on the merchants of Valparaiso, a city of 6,518 people, 50 miles from Chicago.

"I believe that the advertising man (usually the editor of the small city paper isn't bound by the limits of the editorial department) of any paper should have a confidential, intimate knowledge of his advertisers' business. I try to keep in constant touch with my merchants, analyzing conditions, striving to aid them to meet their problems.

"The average merchant in this city is doing as much gross business as he ever did—but his extremely high overhead is eating his profit.

"The average merchant handles too many brands instead of a large assortment of one or two brands," is one of Mavity's conclusions. "The merchant ties up his capital in brands instead of concentrating on one or two that he can push, and in such size assortments as will enable him to serve his customers properly.

"The average merchant is not a judicious advertiser. He may spend all the money his business warrants, but if he would map out a program, plan it carefully with certain definite objectives in view, he would find it a profitable investment instead of the expense it often is.

"The average merchant knows surprisingly little about his own business, about his stock, about what is selling well today, what will sell well tomorrow.

"This merchant depends entirely too much on sales and bargain events to move his stock. Instead of advertising merchandise when it arrives, he often waits until his capital has been tied up too long before starting to advertise it strenuously.

"Through his advertising method, coupled with the grocery advertising for Saturday, the small city merchant, in many instances, make a weekly newspaper of their daily, and a trade day of their week.

"The small town merchant does not pay enough atttention to his cash customers," Mavity finds. "Even the greatest risks among credit customers often get more attention than the buyer who comes in and puts up his cash. Too much hammering away on the idea that the man who buys on a charge account, on a 10-pay plan, or even lengthier installments, pays no more than the cash customer drives the latter into big city markets where cash buys bigger values.

"The churches, the lodges and other organizations get too much from the small town merchant each year," Mavity believes. "The merchant seldom gets a nickel's worth of return from contributions of this kind.

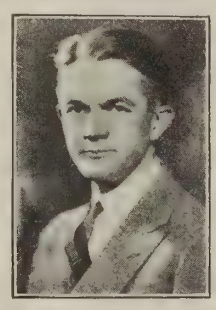
"Don't worry about your competitors," Mavity tells his merchants. "No two merchants in the same line in the same town are actual competitors. The moment they learn that, their business gets better.

"Don't buy from too many wholesalers and manufacturers," is another bit of Mavity advice. "Too many creditors have often spelled bankruptcy where concentrated debts would not have been pressed."

"And don't worry," he concludes. "The condition of business is apt to be in most instances the reflection of the condition of the business man's mind."

INK COMPANY IN DALLAS

Local Business Men Plan to Engage in Its Manufacture



The industrial department of the Dallas Chamber of Commerce has announced that the Southwest's first printing ink factory will be in operation at Dallas within 60 days.

Local business men are behind the project and an experienced ink manufacturing chemist, E. H. Koontz, has been employed to take charge. Officers of the company include: Herman Rosenthal, president; Jerome A. Flexner, secretary-treasurer; Harry Sigel, Leslie Jacobs, E. D. Broadhead, Fred Appel, Julius and George Schepps, Dave Elsas, William Doran and Henri L. Bromberg, directors.

DURSTINE TO DISCUSS AD AGENCY WORK

President of Four A's Heads Association's Program for Convention in Philadelphia June 22-23—Lesan Announces Other Speakers

Roy S. Durstine, of Barton, Durstine & Osborn, Inc., and president of the American Association of Advertising Agencies, heads the program of the meeting to be held by the association in Philadelphia June 22-23, the week of the 22nd annual international convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World.

ROY S. DURSTINE

The program was made public this week by H. E. Lesan, president of H. E. Lesan Advertising Agency, New York and program committee chairman. He will preside at the Philadelphia sessions. Mr. Durstine will speak on "The Scope of the Advertising Agency."

Other speakers include: R. S. Simpers, McLain-Simpers Organization, Philadelphia, on "Developing New Accounts"; Paul T. Cherington, J. Walter Thompson Company, "Getting the Facts Through a Survey"; Milton Towne, Joseph Richards Company, "Using Facts to Build the Advertising Campaign"; W. H. Beatty, Newell-Emmett Company, Inc., New York, "Advertising Art", and Harrison Atwood, H. K. McCann Company, New York, "The Business End of an Advertising Agency."

James O'Shaughnessy, executive secretary of A. A. A. A., will address the departmental session of the Agricultural Publishers' Association in Philadelphia June 22 on the subject "Advertising to Farmers."

DISPLAY OF HOME TOWN PAPERS PLEASES PUBLIC

Long Beach (Cal.) Sun Gives Exhibit Visitors "Back Home" Dailies to Read at Industrial Show—Plan a Success, Lawson Says

By Harold J. Ashe

When the executives of the Long Beach (Cal.) Morning Sun decided to enter an exhibit in the Sixth Annual Harbor Industrial Exposition, held April 21 to 28, they cast about for some original manner in which to make their booth an outstanding feature of the show.

Installing a job printing plant in the booth, or some similar plan was too old. Finally, D. W. Lawson, general manager of the newspaper, stuck upon the idea of having a representative group of newspapers at the booth, to be given away to all who called at the exhibit.

Long Beach is full of tourists, and even old residents have been in the state but a few years in most instances. Nearly all living in southern California are keenly interested in their old home town or state. The majority come from the middle west.

With this idea in mind Lawson addressed a letter to about 100 publishers in the ten middle western states, and because the letter, in a measure, explains the exhibit plan, it is reproduced herewith:

Dear Sir:

From April 21 to 28, Long Beach, California, is holding its Sixth Annual Harbor Industrial Exposition. Elaborate preparations have been made and the show will be attended by approximately 100,000 people.

The Morning Sun is one of the sponsors of the Exposition and will be represented with a booth. Among the various features to be utilized, we are desirous of having "Your Home Paper" on display. We are arranging with about one hundred publications in the te midwest states to send us from three to si copies of their paper, daily, April 21 to 2 inclusive, to be handed out on application t former residents of your town, county state.

Will you wish to be the publication fro your town? These papers will be tastefull arranged for display during the entire wee and will be given freely to the applicants. you care to extend the courtesy kindly advis us at once and put us on the list for one wee with a half dozen copies and we will includ your paper in our advertisements of the fe ture. To be of service we should have th issues starting with April 18 and continuin for eight days.

Thanking you in advance for your courtes and co-operation, we are

Yours cordially,

"Practically every publisher responde to the letter," said Mr. Lawson to Editor & Publisher. "Ours proved to be on of the most popular booths at the show It was a real joy to see the happy loo that came to many of the old folks, wh have been transplanted here, when the saw the type-face of their home paper."

From three to ten papers were receive daily from each publisher, and it is esti mated that about 2,500 copies were give out during the seven days of the show.

In considering the feature of particula interest to Editor & Publisher reader Mr. Lawson pointed out that, while th plan perhaps was ideally suited in par ticular to southern California, it coul with certain modifications, be used in a most any territory.

"Florida could readily make use of th plan," said Mr. Lawson. "State fair such as those at Des Moines and St. Pa would readily approve of it. At almo any such affair, where large crowd congregate, will be found people in lar numbers that are far from their 'Hom Town,' and the 'home town paper.'"

Maybe this is the first time lately that you have seen a copy of

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Or, perhaps, the copy you have been reading all along has not been your own personal copy?

In either case, don't you think it would be a mighty fine thing to have it come to you from now on?

So many and varied are the practical uses to which you can put it; so complete, so interesting, so human, so full of helpful ideas, is the news it brings you each week of all that is going on in the publishing and advertising field—that it won't be long until you will be wondering how you ever got along without it.

Fill in, tear out and mail this coupon—this will start the service at once.

Editor & Publisher,
Suite 1700, Times Bldg.,
Broadway at 42nd St.,
New York, N. Y.

Yes, indeed, I do want my own personal copy of EDITOR & PUBLISHER. Send it to me every week for { 1 year / 6 mos., beginning with the next issue, and including with my subscription, at no additional cost, the 1926 International Year Book and the 1926 Space Buyers' Guide, when it comes out in November. I shall remit the price on receipt of your bill—in the next 10 days or so.

Name .....

Address .....

Business connection .....Title.....
(Important confidential information for our own files only)

Annual Subscription Price

Domestic, $4 Canada, $4.50 Foreign, $5
(6 mos., $2, Domestic; $2.25, Canada; $2.50, Foreign)

WHAT THEY ARE SAYING

NEWS FACTS DICTATE READERS' OPINIONS

"FREQUENTLY you hear that the editorial influence of newspapers has declined in recent years. There is some foundation for this comment. But I believe that this is simply evidence of more independence of thought and higher intelligence on the part of newspaper readers. I do not think that this is such a bad symptom after all. What the public wants most of all is facts, impartially and clearly presented. When the facts are known, we need have no fear as to the decision of the public on any questions at issue. It is certainly most heartening, therefore, to realize that never before in history have both news and advertising in our newspapers been more accurate and more dependable than they are today."—William T. Delaplaine, Co-publisher Frederick (Md.) News and Post, to Hood College Journalism Students.

* * *

LET EDITORIAL MERIT SELL PAPERS

"THEN again with this new 'premium to boy' idea you are spending tremendous amounts, as much as publishers will allow, for a heavy continuous turnover which much be kept up by more and larger expense. Why not sample your merchandise, make it saleable and sell it on its merits, wholly as a newspaper and make smaller gains, 'tis true, but more substantial and a better and more valuable reader. In my opinion extensive use of premiums is either a confession of weakness or a poor product so why not improve and keep up your product and then sell it. I hope the day is not far distant when all of us, as sales managers, will sell our product and not give it away or bait it to cover some deficiency or shortcoming."—David H. Smith, Circulation Manager, Portland (Ore.) Journal, Before Pacific Northwest Circulation Managers' Association.

* * *

NEWSPAPERS MUST REPORT CRIME

"YOU might just as well pretend to write a history of the Civil War and leave out Bull Run as to assume to reflect society and omit crime from the daily record. It is the function of a newspaper to report what is. If society does not like its reflection in the journalistic mirror that is up to society. It is no concern of the editor."—Edward McKernon, Eastern Superintendent, Associated Press.

* * *

"THIS MECHANICAL AND LITERARY MARVEL"

"THE newspaper is one of the most marvelous products of civilization . . . . When we consider that this mechanical and literary marvel reaches practically everybody, we can readily see that it is not idle, but entirely appropriate, to speak of it as an educator. Think of buying a history of yesterday's doings and sayings in all the world, political, personal, musical, naval, military —a history as large as an ordinary book, for two, three, or four cents!"—Rev. Dr. Frank Warfield Crowder, Rector, St. James Episcopal Church, New York.

HARRIMAN TO START PAPER

Son of Railroad Magnate to Control Newburgh Sunday Herald

W. Averill Harriman will control a new Sunday newspaper, the Newburgh N. Y.) Sunday Herald, scheduled to take its first appearance May 23. Mr. Harriman is son of the late railroad magnate, E. H. Harriman. He is also owner of the Middletown (N. Y.) Herald. Young Harriman and his mother, Mrs. E. H. Harriman, who live at Arden in Orange County, have for years been much interested in the development of Orange County. They financed and put through the big project of erecting the new Peekskill-Bear Mountain Hudson River bridge. Averill Harriman's sister, Mrs. C. C. Dumsey, has an interest in Johnson Features Syndicate, Inc., New York.

Italian Weekly Buys Building

United America, weekly newspaper devoted to Italian interests, published in New York, has purchased its own building at 241 Lafayette street, where it has installed a printing plant. The paper was founded July 4, 1925, by Amos Bertalini.

McIntyre Buys Into Printing Firm

E. F. McIntyre, business manager of the Syracuse Herald, has purchased a half interest in the Syracuse Printing and Publishing Company. Mr. McIntyre will leave the Herald to take over the active direction of the company.

Newspaper Files as History Sources

The Newspaper Division of the New York City Public Library reported this week that during the last year the newspaper files had gained prestige as sources of history. The trained historical student now realizes that the newspaper is an "unconscious and authoritative record of the mind of the people" and is tapping the "mine of valuable material contained in the daily press," according to the report.

World Has New Financial Copy Man

W. F. Manning has been appointed copy editor in charge of financial pages of the New York World, succeeding H. P. Thurlow, now on the World's news staff. Manning has been with the World about a year. Prior to that he was night editor of the Washington Star, and has also served with the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

San Fernando Papers Merged

The San Fernando (Cal.) Sun and the Leader, have been consolidated and are now published under the name of the San Fernando Sun, which will be issued on Tuesdays and Fridays. R. H. and L. A. Glenn own the two papers which were consolidated.

Changes to Semi-Weekly Field

The East Moline (Ill.) Herald has changed from a weekly publication to a semi-weekly, appearing each Tuesday and Friday. Arnold Torsell is editor.

ILLINOIS FACTS—

More Concrete Roadways
More Railroad Trackage
More Agricultural Commerce

THAN ANY OTHER STATE

Illinois has more concrete roadways to the square mile—more railroad trackage per square mile, than any other state in the Union.

In agricultural commerce it ranks first and in value of total farm buildings it stands second.

Illinois is third in population and its industrial activity is surpassed but by a few states.

Can you ignore these facts? They influence the buying power of the people and to you it means a tremendous market.

You can reach the people of Illinois through these daily papers.

	Circulation	Rates for 2,500 Lines	Rates for 10,000 Lines
Aurora Beacon-News .....(E)	18,694	.06	.06
†Chicago Herald & Examiner.....(M)	385,276	.55	.55
†Chicago Herald & Examiner.....(S)	1,153,360	1.10	1.10
†Chicago Daily Journal.....(E)	123,771	.26	.24
Evanston News Index.....(E)	6,729	.04	.04
Freeport Journal-Standard .....(E)	9,613	.045	.045
Joliet Herald News.....(E)	19,591	.06	.06
††Mattoon Journal Gazette.....(E)	5,712	.03	.03
Moline Dispatch .....(E)	11,680	.045	.045
Peoria Star .....(S) 22,497..(E)	29,874	.075	.06
Rock Island Argus.....(E)	11,248	.045	.045
Waukegan Daily Sun.....(E)	5,213	.03	.03

*A. B. C. Statement, September 30, 1925
A. B. C. Statement, March 31, 1926
†Government Statement, March 31, 1926
††Government Statement, September 30, 1925

THEY FILL THE N. Y. SUN'S AD COLUMNS

The picture above shows the business staff of the New York Sun gathered for the regular Friday conference with E. S. Friendly, business manager. Reading from left to right (seated) they are: James E. Martin, production manager; Harold L. Goldman, classified manager; Herbert B. Fairchild, advertising manager; Edwin S. Friendly, business manager; Edwin A. Sutphin, manager of national advertising; James E. Hasenack, circulation manager; Einar O. Petersen, manager of local advertising. Standing: Samuel Wolfenden, manager, accounting department; George Benneyan, research and promotion; Donald Williams, books and magazines; Henry Buggelin, manager, publication office; Greenville P. Talbott, ideas and suggestions; Charles E. Luxton, office manager; Donal O'Neill, supervisor of advertising typography; Conrad F. Colborn, assistant advertising manager.

N. Y. POST MAY MOVE OFFICES ON JULY 4

Steamfitters' Strike Delayed Opening of New Plant Set for This Month—Newspaper Will Occupy Three Floors of 17-Story Building

Strike of steamfitters has temporarily delayed removal of the New York Evening Post from 20 Vesey street to its new $3,000,000 17-story home at 75 West street, New York. It had been expected the change in publication office would be made this month, but this week C. C. Lane, business manager, announced July 4 had been set as the tentative moving date.

The newspaper will occupy three floors and the basement of the building. The first floor, the height of an automobile truck from the street, will house the press and delivery rooms, the reception foyer and business and advertising departments. Paper storage and press feeding appliances will be in the basement.

At the start, the Post will operate 12 Scott press units, but sufficient space has been allowed for installation of 44 units. Special foundation work prevents communication of any vibration from the press room to other parts of the building.

Composing and city rooms will be housed on the second floor. The composing room is so built that its entire floor space is to be lighted by skylights in daytime.

On the third floor, editorial writers will have their quarters, and there will also be a private suite for the editor-in-chief, David E. Smiley, and special space for dramatic, literary, music, art and financial departments.

Little difficulty is expected to be encountered in moving, since the Post is buying virtually all new equipment.

BROUGHT E. & P. YEAR BOOK FROM GERMANY

ONE of the few books Dr. R. W. Drechsler, prominent German journalist, now a member of the Foreign Office in Berlin, brought to the United States with him recently was a copy of EDITOR & PUBLISHER'S INTERNATIONAL YEAR BOOK for 1926.

Dr. Drechsler was among the foreign writers invited to attend the peace conference held last week at Briarcliff Manor, N. Y., under the auspices of the Carnegie Foundation for Permanent Peace. Many prominent American editors also attended.

"I brought my Year Book with me from Germany, he told EDITOR & PUBLISHER. "I find it of inestimable value, and have occasion to use it constantly."

He said the German press was quoting freely from current issues of EDITOR & PUBLISHER, having used the articles on "Crime News," comments on the death of Victor Lawson, and the several articles on U. S. schools of journalism.

CREDIT MEN ASK NEWS FACTS, NOT OPINIONS

Latter Frequently "Hot Air" Say Many Replies to a Survey Broadcast to National Group—90 Per Cent See Two Newspapers a Day

A journalistic survey conducted by the Department of Public Relations of the National Association of Credit Men made public this week by J. H. Tregoe, executive manager of the association, shows that, while about 90 per cent of the financial men who make up the association's membership of about 30,000 read or scan more than one newspaper a day, less than 50 per cent of them are influenced much in their trade dealings by published opinions of business conditions.

It is pointed out that credit executives apparently are more likely to be interested in published facts and data than by opinions of business men which appear in news columns. In commenting on this condition, Mr. Tregoe said he considered this a healthy sign which indicates that there is less "herd-thinking" than many of us have believed.

The report, in part, follows:

"The survey was conducted among treasurers and credit managers in banking, wholesaling and manufacturing concerns in the hundred odd principal commercial centers of the country. It shows that more than 90 per cent of these persons read or scan more than one newspaper a day and that on the average they give some attention to about six trade periodicals each month.

"About 49 per cent stated that they are influenced to a considerable extent in their business dealings by published opinions of business conditions. The remainder, while they admitted they were influenced in this manner to some extent, found fact or data news more valuable in their operations. Some who provided the information for the study gave such comments as 'a good deal of hot air sent out' or 'too many of them' and 'I try not to be influenced by these opinions.' One man said the opinion circulators were afraid to face the truth, while others put faith only in the opinions based on data and expressed by statistical authorities. One credit executive said he was sorry to admit that he was influenced by published opinions on business conditions. In a few instances the answers showed that there were some credit executives who did not look at any newspapers.

FOURTH ESTATE REORGANIZED

New Company Headed by H. M. Newman—Sammis Appointed Editor

Transfer of the Fourth Estate Publishing Company to H. M. Newman, 25 West 43rd street, New York, was announced by the Fourth Estate last week. Besides Mr. Newman, the executives of the organization are S. J. Runde, vice-president and general manager; L. F. Zellner, business manager, and Walter Sammis, editor. Mr. Sammis has been editor of Associated Advertising, associate editor of EDITOR & PUBLISHER and reported the recent Federal Trade Commission hearing on agency commissions in New York for EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

Mergenthaler Pays Extra Dividend

Mergenthaler Linotype this week declared a quarterly dividend of $1.25 and an extra dividend of 25 cents on the new no par stock payable June 30, to stock of record June 5. The quarterly dividend of $1.25 a share is equal to the old rate of $2.50 a share, paid on the old $100 par stock, which was exchanged for two shares of new stock.

Hardened Steel Newspaper Headings That Last Forever

A. J. SOSSNER

363 West Broadway New York

SHAPE IDEALS THROUGH YOUR CHURCH PAGE

Learn how at the Philadelphia Convention

To sell churches on the use of advertising, you, as a representative of their business interests, should be able to tell them what to advertise and how to do it most effectively.

Advertising employed solely to fill pews and collection plates will not do either permanently.

"Church Advertising," says the Classified Manager of the Oakland Tribune, "should suggest thought, form ideals, and guide conduct for hundreds who may never enter the church of its origin, but who become associate members of that church through the bond of the press."

You are invited to participate in the church advertising sessions at Philadelphia. They will be held on June 22nd and 23rd, as a part of the international convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs.

Church Advertising Department
ASSOCIATED ADVERTISING CLUBS,
383 Madison Avenue
New York, N. Y.

LOCK SUES TALMADGE FOR ACCOUNTING

ewark Star-Eagle Owner and Special Representative Alleges Former Director Deprived Him of Share of Profits

Paul Block, who bought control of the ewark (N. J.) Star-Eagle last January ls filed two accounting suits against arry S. Talmadge in New York su- me court. Mr. Talmadge has an in- rest in the Toledo Blade, and was for- rly managing director of the Newark wspaper.

The first complaint charges that Mr. lmadge, without authorization of the wark corporation, wrongfully disbursed ney to himself and others.

The second action grew out of an al- ed interest of Mr. Block in one-third the profits arising from Mr. Talmadge's ntract with the Toledo Blade. The nplaint alleges that in 1908, Mr. Tal- dge and Nathaniel C. Wright, wno d in 1923, made an agreement with the de Company, whereby they took over property and in addition to a stated ary were to have a percentage of the nings and other emoluments. Their ntract was known as a "leasehold reement of the newspaper."

Mr. Block alleges that the contract s carried out by them until Mr. Wright d and then Frederick S. Buggie was stituted for the latter.

The plaintiff asserts that in 1909 he d the defendant $25,000 at the lat- s request for a third interest in Tal- dge's share of profits and compensa- n except his salary, and it was agreed t the fact that Mr. Block had this rest was to be concealed from the poration. The complaint says that er this agreement the defendant was gated to use the utmost care to protect interest of the plaintiff.

Mr. Block alleges that from 1909 to 9 the defendant paid him what he resented to be a third of the lat- es earnings, but now charges that he not receive his full share, but that defendant withheld "a large sum." e complaint demands a full account- of the earnings during this period.

second cause of action alleges that 919 the defendant by false representa- s induced the plaintiff to sign a pa- which the defendant alleges rescinded ck's third interest in his earnings paid him nothing thereafter. Dur- that time the plaintiff alleges that fair share was $160,000, which he ands.

the complaint in the first suit filed, Block alleges that during the 10 's Mr. Talmadge was director of the t--Eagle, he made improper payments nearly $100,000 in cash, and caused s of autos, player pianos, and radio to be made.

Mr. Block owns several newspapers addition to the Star-Eagle, operates ecial newspaper representative agency, is a director of Pictorial Review. Talmadge and Mr. Block were for- ly part owners of the Detroit Jour- and sold their interest in 1922 to Detroit News.

Max Steuer, counsel for Mr. Talmadge ined to comment on the suit to a esentative of EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

MAN BUYS SPOKANE WEEKLY

Pauline Bloom, Former New York Writer, Is New Publisher

he Spokane Woman, local tabloid kly newspaper, has been purchased Pauline Suing Bloom, formerly as- nt editor of the South Brooklyn New k Home Talk, and member of the azine staff of the Brooklyn Daily le under F. W. Applegate. Mrs. om will be assisted by her son, Ed- l J. Bloom, for two years a member he editorial staff of the New York ald Tribune.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER CALENDAR

May 24-26—New York Newspapermen's Assn., 20th annual outing to the Catskills.
May 24-25—Kansas Editorial Golf Assn., spring tournament, Topeka, Kan.
May 25—Brooklyn Newspaper Club, first anniversary party, Hotel Shelbourne, Coney Island.
May 27-29—Arkansas Press Assn., annual convention, Little Rock, Ark.
June 2-4—Alabama Press Assn., annual convention, Auburn, Ala.
June 5—Southwest Kansas Republican Editorial Assn., annual convention, St. John, Kan.
June 8-10—International Circulation Managers Assn., annual convention, Philadelphia, Pa.
June 11-13—Texas Press Assn., annual convention, San Antonio, Tex.
June 16-17—New York State Publishers Assn., summer convention, Ithaca, N. Y.
June 18-19—Oregon State Editorial Assn., annual session, Prineville, Ore.

Mary Pentland Sutton, formerly owner of her own agency in Denver, has been appointed advertising manager. Francis Terry, formerly with the Western Newspaper Association, is handling circulation. Elizabeth Jane Haring, formerly of the Spokane Press, is associate editor.

Circulators On Outing

Sixteen branch managers, district managers and carriers of the Dayton (O.) Evening Herald and Dayton Journal, who were leaders in a contest for new business during the month of April were given an automobile trip to Cincinnati, and a banquet this week.

If a general strike meant only a strike of generals it would not do any particular damage just at this time.—New York Herald Tribune.

NEW MANKATO DAILY TO START MAY 24

Col. Oliver J. Quane Former Owner of St. Peter Herald Launching Daily Herald—L. L. Perrin Named Managing Editor

(By Telegraph to EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

MANKATO, Minn., May 20.—The new Mankato (Minn.) Evening Herald, Col. Oliver J. Quane, publisher, will start publication on May 24.

The Herald will have a pony United Press service, Central Press Association news and feature service and features from the Bell Syndicate, Inc.

Col. Quane, a veteran of the Spanish-American and the world wars, formerly was publisher of the St. Peter (Minn.) Herald. He sold out his interest in that publication last fall.

L. L. Perrin, for ten years a member of the editorial staff of the St. Paul Dispatch and Pioneer Press and for the past five years city editor of those papers, will be managing editor of the Herald. Before going to St. Paul Perrin worked on the St. Joseph News-Press and the Des Moines Register.

S. E. Elliott, former editor of the Farmers Dispatch, St. Paul, and prior to that on the editorial staffs of the Sioux Falls Press, Omaha Bee and the Sioux City Tribune, will be news editor. Robert Baker and Harry Conlin, both of Mankato, will be advertising manager and circulation manager, respectively. The Evening Herald will be independent in politics.

The plant, which is now being equipped, includes three new Intertypes, a Cox Duplex flat bed press, a Ludlow Typeograph and an Elrod strip casting machine.

Mr. Perrin's resignation caused several shifts in the St. Paul Dispatch-Pioneer Press staff. He has been succeeded as city editor by L. U. Spehr, who has been covering the city hall run. Spehr is succeeded by A. J. Crocker, real estate and building news editor. Philip R. Bronson has been assigned to edit the real estate pages.

Grable Co. Opens Eastern Offices

The H. L. Grable Company, Dallas, Tex., national representative for weekly newspapers, has opened eastern offices in New York, Philadelphia and Chicago. H. L. Grable took over the Texas Press Weeklies in July, 1925, when the membership consisted of 63 papers. Now the membership is more than 300 newspapers located in Texas and Oklahoma, and it is planned to extend the list throughout Arkansas, Missouri and Nebraska. Addresses of the eastern offices are: 25 East 26th street, New York; Nediner Building, Philadelphia, and 123 W. Madison Street, Chicago. An office is also maintained in Oklahoma City, Okla.

There is one Sunday paper for each family in the United States.

The World

These two newspapers offer the most powerful all-day service in New York available as a unit under a single contact. The 600,000 DAILY WORLD — EVENING WORLD readers constitute a highly concentrated force to be reckoned with in any campaign designed to effect distribution in Greater New York.

The Evening World

Pulitzer Building, New York
Tribune Tower, Chicago

Still Gaining !

The net paid average daily circulation for THE BALTIMORE NEWS for April was 124,636—the highest under its present management.

The net paid average for the American was 57,503.

You need these papers to cover Baltimore, they reach more than half the City.

Sold separately or in combination.

THE BALTIMORE NEWS
and
Baltimore American

ANNOUNCEMENT

To National Advertisers and Advertising Agencies

The National Advertising Departments of
New York Evening Journal
Baltimore Evening News
Baltimore American
Washington Evening Times
Washington Herald
Atlanta Evening Georgian
Atlanta Sunday American are combined with offices in New York—Chicago—Detroit

New York Office:
W. G. HOBSON, Eastern Manager
2 Columbus Circle
Telephone: Circle 5400

Chicago Office:
F. E. CRAWFORD
Western Manager
913 Hearst Bldg.

Detroit Office:
FRANKLIN PAYNE
Representative
1351 Book Bldg.

All under direction of:
JAMES C. DAYTON, Publisher
NEW YORK EVENING JOURNAL

Use the COMBINATION RATE
OF
The Gazette Times
(Morning and Sunday)
AND
Chronicle Telegraph
(Evening)
in order to cover Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania thoroughly at the lowest cost.

Member A. B. C.

URBAN E. DICE, Nat. Adv. Mgr.
GAZETTE SQ., PITTSBURGH, PA.
National Representatives:
E. M. BURKE, Inc.
42nd and Broadway, N. Y.
122 S. Michigan Blvd., Chicago.
Constitution Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.
R. J. BIDWELL CO.
742 Market St., San Francisco, Cal.
Times Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

THE WELFARE COMMITTEE
of the
INTERNATIONAL CIRCULATION MANAGERS ASSOCIATION

Can supply you with competent circulation men of capacity and ability capable to take entire charge of your department or to fill important posts in the department.

Address the Secretary-Treasurer please, Mr. Clarence Eyster, care Star Building, Peoria, Ill.

Regional Advertising
at Regional Rates
in
The Christian Science Monitor

An International Daily Newspaper
Publishing SELECTED ADVERTISING
ATLANTIC, CENTRAL and PACIFIC Editions

Rates and Circulation Data Supplied on Request

ADVERTISING OFFICES

Boston	New York	Kansas City
Philadelphia	London	San Francisco
Chicago	Paris	Los Angeles
Cleveland	Florence	Seattle
Detroit		Portland

"Buy What You Can Use"

first! in OHIO

7,474,514 Lines

Dispatch advertising record for the first four months of 1926, exceeding other Columbus newspapers combined by 1,092,957 lines. In 1925 the Dispatch published 21,544,376 lines exceeding second largest Ohio newspaper by 2,648,383 lines.

NET PAID CIRCULATION

CITY	55,812
SUBURBAN	26,973
COUNTRY	23,666
Total Daily Circulation	106,451

Columbus Dispatch
OHIO'S GREATEST HOME DAILY

HOW RELIGIOUS NEWS WAS "ZIPPED UP" TO A FULL-PAGE WEEKLY FEATURE

Stereotyped Church Notices Developed Into Interesting News by the "Young Person" on Greensburg (Pa.) Review —Page Is Now a Circulation Builder

IN existence for more than two years and now as integral a part of the paper as the editorials or classified ads, is the religious news page published each Saturday by the Greensburg (Pa.) Morning Review. Long before this feature reached its first year anniversary, the page of religious news was found to have as firm a hold on church people in the community as a favorite comic strip on six year olds. Each month attests to its growing value.

The page was born of a sturdy "Damm!" exploded by a Young Person in the news room.

She was grimly surveying a sheaf of notices sent in by the town's pastors when the expletive caused green eye shades to tilt inquiringly in her direction. The "notices" were the hackneyed, stereotype "Sunday school at 9:30—Morning worship at 10:30—Evening worship at 7:45—Everbody welcome."

Greensburg pastors cherished the belief that such spiritless reminders adequately presented the Sunday school and church offerings. On the Young Person's desk was commonly dumped everything with which no one else wished to bother, church notices among them. The Young Person was versatile. She was commonly given big news assignments out of the office—but felt life was cursed with a multitude of irritatingly small news matters as well.

"What's the excitement?"

With a derisive snort the Young Person turned to the Big Boss, strolling through the City Room.

"Look at 'em," she demanded, thrusting fan shape before his amused eyes, the weekly batch of Friday night ministerial reminders.

"Guess they believe they're advertising. They must think our readers will get wildly excited and come stampeding into the churches to read Sunday school at 9:30, everybody welcome, and so on."

When the Young Person began to stutter everybody knew her emotions were likely to carry her to far conversational lengths.

"Here's one that actually breaks out of the beaten track"—she flicked out a typewritten notice with the explanation—"It's that new young minister over at the Wesminster church, you know. He steps out enough to say 'A cordial invitation to strangers.'"

"What would you like the ministers to do?" The Big Boss's tone was thoughtful.

"Do? Why really advertise, of course," snapped the Young Person, her reply born of the accumulated irritation of years of retyping church notices in stilted phraseology. She had recently handled the publicity of a successful Third Class City campaign and thought she knew something of advertising appeal.

"All right," pleasantly agreed the Boss. "Make 'em do it."

"Right O," cheerfully agreed the Young Person, not to be outdone in nonchalance. "How much space can I have each Saturday?" At that moment she had only the haziest idea of what she would do with any space at all.

"Better have enough room while you are about it. Will a page hold you?"

"When do we start?" came back the Young Person, who had long chafed to try out a few ideas of her own.

Thus the Morning Review's weekly page of religious news came into being.

The newspaper's mailbags tell the story. When Review mailbags began to disgorge letters addressed to the "Religious Page Editor," we knew the effort had "taken" hold.

"Play no favorites" was the only rule laid down when the weekly page was set aside. And the second rule that speedily joined the first was to bar everything from the page that was not "news" in character. The only exception to the latter is the publication of a short sermon.

This set feature of the religious page is set in 10 point, and usually fills two columns. The sermon is displayed by a box feature head, in which the title, the name of the pastor who submitted it, and that of his church are incorporated.

It was decided that a sermon by a local priest or minister would be much more effective than a weekly sermon purchased from a syndicate. It has worked out that the greater drawing power of the home product more than offsets the labor of booking ministers and maintaining a schedule. It is no small matter to have a sermon ready to send out to the linotypes by Thursday morning of each week, when one has to deal with men of the cloth who have a thousand other demands on their time. But in the more than two years since the inception of the religious page, the paper has never gone to press without one. In several instances however, sermons published by permission from the Christian Science Monitor have literally saved the day.

Every sect, every denomination, is given an opportunity to contribute.

After Greensburg ministers had kept the ball rolling for some months, ministers of neighboring towns were asked to contribute. Sermons then began to appear by groups, each denomination in a selected town or community having the pleasure of seeing its ministers' contributions published before we passed on to the next community. Circulation invariably received a nice boost in the towns as the sermon series progressed—because of the never failing human tendency for church people to buy papers to see "what our minister is going to preach about," and for the minister and his friends to buy additional copies of the paper to mail to distant folk. The weekly page of religious news has been a real circulation booster.

"When you have churches paying for display space, you're getting good," admitted the Advertising Man, blasé from contact with too many people inclined to want something for nothing. While religious page advertising business has not made the declaration of a stock dividend necessary, there has been a steady run of business—unsolicited. The present sale of space on the page frequently means that much of the live news has to break over to another section. A religious breakover is becoming the weekly Saturday morning necessity. No charge is ever made for the publication of church news. Display space is usually sought by the ministers who have special evangelistic services or other activities they wish to advertise.

Today the Morning Review's Religious Page is substantially the same as it was in the beginning. Dominating the space is a table designed for the convenience of both home folk and strangers.

"Where to go to church Sunday" is the caption. Set forth in tabular form is a list of all the churches or religious sects of the town, their location by street, the name of the pastors and the stated hours for Sunday worship. In the case of the dozen or so denominations which avail themselves of the privilege are printed the morning and evening sermon subjects as well. Protestant churches are grouped as are the Catholic churches and the churches for Negroes. Spiritualists, the Christian Scientists and the Hebrew synagogue are named.

To serve as a mental jog, printed forms, neatly padded, and of a conspicuous color are supplied each minister. On the dotted lines he pencils his denomination, his morning subject, his evening subject, and anything else he may wish to contribute to the current news of the page. The Religious Page Editor fishes these bright slips out of the mail and uses the information to make what revision on the "Where to Go to Church" table is necessary.

To pep up the page, a streamer based on the weekly sermon, flaunts its black type across the eight columns. As a balance might be considered the text, selected to fit the season, or the thought of the day, that is printed across the bottom of the sheet.

In the main, the sermons themselves have been thoughtful, vital, and possessing considerable punch. It was surprising how quickly the pastors caught the idea and how they embodied in their contributions, practical, helpful messages for the everyday living of everyday folk. In not a single instance has creed or dogma been stressed. Sermons have been entirely non-sectarian in character.

It is recalled that one of the reporters from the paper dropped in the hospital to see a young police officer who was convalescing from pneumonia and who his physicians said, had miraculously come back after a look inside the pearly gates themselves. Spread upon his bed was the Saturday religious page—and he told his visitor he had just completed reading an exceptionally fine sermon by a young Catholic priest who had taken for his subject "Death." The reporter—a Protestant, by the way, was careful to pass on to the priest, the words of real appreciation spoken by the convalescent.

What else finds space on the religious page?

The livest kind of religious news which not only the religious page editor, but everybody else on the staff can find. And the surprising thing is how much is always waiting to be handled. One church calls a new pastor, another imports a bishop; another contracts for the building of a $100,000 new church; a minister embarks upon a lecture tour; the Y. M. C. A. opens a Young People's conference; all the churches get together for union outdoor summer services; somebody gives a rural church a magnificent new organ; a pastor wrecks his automobile; the choir of this or that church offers a musical service.

Occasionally the first page steals the religious page thunder. When one of the local denominations puts on a Bible reading marathon, with bacon and eggs served to the first sleepy-eyed members of the congregation who turned out at 3 a. m. to hear the Scriptures the story was carried naturally, with other live news breaks of the morning. Easter, Children's Day, New Year and Christmas programs are given extra attention. Stories dealing with more elaborate church festivals are usually begun on the first page with a break-over to the religious. The advertising department's cut services have yielded a wealth of ornamental matter. The Christmas number is usually dressed with an appropriately artistic layout, as is the Easter number, while, the year around there is opportunity for fancy heading

CLINE SYSTEM
CLINE ELECTRIC MFG. CO. CHICAGO
CLINE WESTINGHOUSE

Cline-Westinghouse Double Motor-Drive with full automatic push button control is used by

OMAHA BEE
Omaha, Nebr.

Ask them about it.

CLINE ELECTRIC MFG. CO.
Chicago: 111 West Washington Street
New York: 47 West 34th Street
San Francisco: First National Bank Building

A SINGLE
ADVERTISING APPROPRIATION

Will cover the two publications that reach those who control the national advertising of the United States and Great Britain.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER
New York
and
ADVERTISING WORLD
London, Eng.

have entered into an agreement in respect to editorial and advertising representation in their respective fields and thereby afford a single source of information and service for those interested in international marketing and advertising.

Combination Advertising Rates for 12 Insertion Contract

Full Page .....$280.00 per insertion
Half Page ..... 145.00 per insertion
Quarter Page ..... 82.50 per insertion

You are cordially invited to communicate with EDITOR & PUBLISHER, Suite 1700 Times Building, New York, for further details of circulation, editorial policy and mechanical requirements of ADVERTISING WORLD. This office can be of great assistance to manufacturers who desire information in regard to marketing conditions of Great Britain. Publishers of leading American newspapers will also avail themselves of this opportunity to deliver their messages to the largest advertisers of Great Britain, many of whom are keenly interested in the markets of America.

Editor & Publisher
1700 Times Building
Broadway at 42d St.
New York, N. Y.

Telephones:
Bryan 3052-3053-3054-3055-3056
Cable Address: EDPUB, NEW YORK

Advertising World
14 King Street
Covent Garden, W. C. 2
London, England

Telephone: Gerrard 7615
Cable Address:
ECOPUBLISH, RAND, LONDON

EL DEMOCRATA SUSPENDS

lexico City Morning Daily Involved in Financial Difficulties

El Demócrata, morning daily of lexico City, owned by the Compañia ditora Latino Americana, was suddenly spended May 9, owing to financial fficulties, according to a statement by uis Monroy Durán, president of the mpany.

A mounted police squad was imediately placed in front of the building prevent it is said, the action of the ade unions which threatened to take the ant and operate it on a co-operative sis.

Arrangaments are being made already wards the reopening of El Demócrata the unions agree on a 20 per cent reuction of the personnel.

El Demócrata was founded 18 years o.

Editor Host to Correspondents

Capt. Charles L. Weymouth, editor of e Hanover (Va.) Herald-Progress, ublished at Ashland, tendered the 30 rrespondents of his paper throughout anover county a banquet May 22.

FIELD MANAGERS RAISE PRESS STANDARDS

(Continued from page 11)

ducted. He referred it to us and thin 48 hours we had a check for the lance due the member, under the usual ethod of 15 per cent agency commison. The amount was small but the inciple involved is large. Without an sociation to get on the job an advertiser uld work this game on individuals to e extent of hundreds of dollars in the gregate. It has been done in the past t we doubt if any advertiser wants to up against the Southern California litorial Association on attempting it in future.

'We don't pose as a collection agency t we have straightened out some acnts to the satisfaction of our mems."

While co-operation in most cases has en successful, at least one instance of flure of co-operative effort has occrred. This was in Iowa when the aempt was made to cast type on a -operative basis. During and after the r, Mr. Caswell succeeded admirably th an organization for the purchase of nt paper in carload lots. This was en paper was selling around 13 cents pound. Substantial profits were made two years and then when paper prices back to normal, Mr. Caswell advised discontinuance of the project. Many mbers, however, wished to keep it up, the venture in recent years has not n successful.

. Some field managers act as a central ncy for the placing of all political rtising by candidates for state and ional offices.

. Now what about the field manager national advertising? It might seem first glance that the first thing the d manager ought to do would be to after national advertising and to go r it hard. At the recent convention field managers in St. Louis the following resolution was passed:

'Ten years of experience and effort the older managers have convinced us t the individual field manager should be required or expected to conduct ional advertising agency business nor obtain direct cash returns for mems from national advertisers."

'he point is this: The field manager he employee of the state press associaon. He represents all newspapers in state. All contribute to his support. Nebraska, for instance, there are 425 y and weekly newspapers. Exactly are members of the Nebraska State ss Association. Very few national rtisers, however, wish to place their in 424 newspapers in one state. haps they should, theoretically, but say that they can't afford it, they there is duplication in circulation.

The field manager, therefore, is placed in the embarrassing position of dispensing advertising to some of his constituents and not to others. This makes bad feeling and is harmful to the morale of the press association.

Furthermore, to go after national advertising and to go after it in the big way that really gets results requires money—more money than publishers want to pay for the support of a field manager. (Publishers have to pay for the service either in dues or through commissions on advertising placed.) It requires much time and if the field manager is to conduct an advertising agency he hasn't time to do anything else. The plan was given a very thorough trial in Nebraska under the direction of Ole Buck. Although he had a budget of $10,000, he couldn't make enough of a dent in national advertising to justify the time and money expended.

In the light of this experience, most of the field managers seem to be of the opinion that the duty of the field manager with reference to advertising is:

(a) To help the county publisher get more local advertising.

(b) To help him get national advertising through local dealers.

(c) To get out a rate book for his association and distribute it among agencies.

The field manager aids in local advertising by offering ideas to stimulate local advertising, in showing the publisher how to make a medium that will "pull" results for the advertiser, in offering suggestions for service to the advertiser, in pointing out that the way to get business is by creating it and not by taking it away from the other fellow, and in making talks before local advertising clubs and merchants' organizations on the value of advertising.

Field managers help country publishers get national advertising in an indirect way by pointing out the possibility of getting linage through local dealers. Thus in Iowa, for instance, Mr. Caswell advises the publisher: "When the salesman for some nationally advertised product is in town, have your merchant call you over to the store. Let the merchant, before he agrees to take an order of shoes, cement, soap, or what not, exact a written guarantee from the salesman that so and so much will be spent in advertising in your newspaper and that this advertising will be paid for by the manufacturer or jobber."

This plan has worked with remarkable success not only in Iowa but in other states, and field managers point to it as the short cut to national advertising.

In order to facilitate the work of advertising agencies in placing advertising in country papers, some field managers issue rate books giving name of paper, rate, commission allowed, city circulation, county circulation, city population, and country population. The Rate Book of the Washington Press Association is now in its third edition. The Iowa Press Association has its "Blue Ribbon List" of Iowa newspapers. The Kansas Press Association, the Nebraska Press Association, and the New York Press Association also have a Rate Book; and Len W. Feighner, field director of the Michigan Press Association, will very shortly issue a "Michigan Preferred List."

The field managers have heeded the advice of James O'Shaughnessy, executive secretary of the American Association of Advertising Agencies, who has said:

"Every State Press Association should be in that advanced position whereby it can furnish the advertiser and agency with the information as to the circulation, the advertising rates, and ratings of its members. Without this information, the country press is not practically available to the national advertiser or the agency."

On another occasion Mr. O'Shaughnessy said:

"Three states, Iowa, Missouri, and Washington have lists giving circulation and rate and arrangements have been completed whereby every paper on those lists can use mats. What three states have done, 48 can do. When all of the states or at least all the more populous states have moved into the more advanced column then the advertiser will no longer be deterred by the forbidding cost. The country paper then will be within his knowledge and within his reach. Once in that favorable position, the merit of that most intimate and powerful of all the circulations—the weekly paper—will be taken into account."

While some of the field managers are on the part time basis, most of them devote full time to the work.

The full time men are paid a salary averaging $2,000 to $3,000—not enough for the work they so. Expenses and incidentals make the average budget run around $4.000 to $5,000.

The budget of the New York Press Association of which Jay W. Shaw is secretary, is $8,500 and is probably the largest.

The budget for the work of the field manager is raised by assessments on the members of the press association. In most cases the assessment is based on dues. When this is done, the secretary is in a position to know accurately the circulation of all of his members. In Nebraska the rate is $1 for every 100 of circulation, in Kansas the rate is $1 for every 100 of circulation with a minimum of $5 and a maximum of $50, in Iowa it is $1 for every 100 above 500 with a $5 minimum, in Colorado it is 2 cents a subscriber per year with a minimum of $10 and a maximum of $100, in New York dues vary from $10 to $30 on the basis of circulation and from $40 to $100 on the basis of gross business, in Pennsylvania members pay from 50 cents a month on a circulation of 1,000 or less to $25 a month on a circulation of more than 100,000.

There are indications that other states will soon join the ranks of the 15 states that now have field secretaries. Wisconsin already has a part-time man. Minnesota just recently employed a full-time man.

Arkansas and North Carolina also appear to be interested.

The Morning Telegraph

Is the giant influence on the Turf, in Society, Music, Theatre, Motion Picture and Finance, having the largest circulation of any Daily in the United States at a ten-cent Price.

Circulated in every State in the Union and the principal capitals of Europe. An exclusive market for its advertisers.

The Morning Telegraph
50th St. & 8th Ave., N. Y. City

have you been following the remarkable growth of the Detroit Times

THE TELEGRAM
now has the largest paid circulation in CLARKSBURG, W. VA.
13,000 daily
14,000 Sunday
guaranteed.

Member Audit Bureau of Circulations

Represented Nationally by
The Devine-MacQuoid Co., Inc.
New York Philadelphia Pittsburg Chicago

creating Impression!

nearly half the 2013 national advertisers using the Cleveland Plain Dealer in 1925 used it exclusively.

The Plain Dealer
ONE Medium – ONE Cost ALONE Will sell it

J. B. Woodward 110 E. 42d St. New York
Woodward & Kelly 360 N. Mich. Ave. Chicago

For the First Three Months of 1926
THE TAMPA MORNING TRIBUNE
printed 7,355,276 lines of Advertising, and thus moved up from twelfth to SIXTH place among the newspapers of the United States.
The only newspapers printing a greater volume of advertising during that period than The Tribune were the Miami Herald, the St. Petersburg Times, the Detroit News, the Chicago Tribune and the New York Times.
The Tribune covers the rich South Florida territory of 24 counties and 190 cities and towns, with a population of 713,943.
That's Why Its Advertising Volume Grows
The S. C. Beckwith Special Agency, National Representatives.

The DES MOINES CAPITAL
Completely covers Des Moines' entire trade territory for you at a rate of 14c per line.
It is the best Advertising buy in the mid-west
O'Mara & Ormsbee
Special Representatives
The DES MOINES CAPITAL
Lafayette Young Publisher

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

"Unrewarded Circulation"

To Editor & Publisher: Whoever wrote "Unrewarded Circulation, in your editorial page knew what he was talking about. It has taken me twenty-five years to curb the natural editorial desire for circulation. We have been to unbounded expense to try to put our circulation above where it naturally hangs. Of late I have been satisfied with the certain natural outlet which is fair and just to advertisers and have come to the conclusion that the publisher's struggle against each other for larger circulation is all "applesauce." It is time for publishers to realize this and cut out their cut-throat games.

Yours truly,
S. G. Goldthwaite,
Boone (Ia.) News-Republican.

Benefits of First Congress

To Editor & Publisher:—Two outstanding facts derived from the First Pan-American Congress of Journalists are in my opinion of utmost importance, namely: FIRST. The Latin American journalists have become acquainted with the United States. SECOND. A cordial and warm friendship has been established between these same journalists who, in spite of the fact that they speak the same language and belong to the same race mutually ignore each other. The former will produce innumerable benefits: A journalist who observes and writes afterwards his impressions is a being who conveys to thousands of men a reality which he has lived. This is the reason why I believe that a hundred journalists travelling through the United States will make the truth known to thousands of men of the Latin American race who live in the same continent who have common interests with the American people and who ignore or admire this great nation in a wrong way helping to overcome all prejudices yielding to the convincing truth.

The latter is of no less importance although it is rather striking that the Latin American journalists have at last become acquainted in Washington. Nevertheless the end was accomplished in the Hall of the Americas at the Pan American Union where the flags of the 21 countries of the New World are assembled under the same roof. Hopes and dreams have always been nests where progress, culture and co-operation for the benefit of mankind have been hatched.

Joaquin Vargas Coto, Editor of "El Diario de Costa Rica."

Wants E. & P. Comics Weekly

To Editor & Publisher: Please accept my most hearty congratulations on your Pre-Convention Number. This is a splendid number, and to one who this year could not get to the Convention it proved a most interesting visitor.

Make that Convention Comic Section a regular weekly feature of the Editor & Publisher and watch your own circulation climb. In a few weeks you will be out-circulating the Daily News and may be a close second to the Saturday Evening Post.

Yours truly,
W. I. N. Cox.

We Agree

To Editor & Publisher: I want to express appreciation of the anthology of "best emotional newspaper stories" by H. F. Harrington in this week's Editor & Publisher. There is something very fine and very valuable to the news writer in Harrington's approach to his subject, his analysis of conditions and product, and his clear divination of the fundamentals. Mr. Harrington has always been a "favorite author" of mine, and I can't help showing my gratitude for another of his excellent articles. Let's have more of the sort whenever you can.

Cordially,
W. P. Elson.

A Fine Compliment

To Editor & Publisher: The Editor & Publisher extra distributed at the A. N. P. A. convention is a masterpiece. From the viewpoint of interest and timeliness I regard it as the best of many admirable special numbers. Please accept my congratulations.

Very truly yours,
Frederick S. Fox,
Editor, Norristown (Pa.) Times Herald.

Foreign Press Laws

To Editor & Publisher: I have learned since my article on Foreign Press Laws was published that a limited number of copies are obtainable at the British Library of Information, 44 Whitehall, New York City. I think it might be a good idea to publish this letter as a further aid to your subscribers who might wish to obtain the pamphlet copy of these laws. The price delivered is $3.72.

Hugh J. Harley.

AD TIPS

Advertising Industries, Inc., 487 Ellicott Square, Buffalo. Reported will place advertising in some New York State newspapers for Henry Card & Company, "Grape Ola," Fredonia, N. Y.

N. W. Ayer & Son, 308 Chestnut street, Philadelphia. Placing orders with newspapers in various sections for Otis Underwear, Ware, Mass. Also placing orders with some New York newspapers for the Consolidated Dairy Products Company, Vogue Ice Cream, Long Island City, N. Y.

Bayless-Kerr Company, Hanna Building, Cleveland. Has secured account of the American Crayon Company, "Old Faithful" crayons, Sandusky, Ohio.

Brandt Advertising Company, 431 North Michigan avenue, Chicago. Preparing schedules on Curtis Candy Company of Chicago. Schedules will break in June. This Company is also preparing a list on Hough Shade Company of Janesville, Wis.

Casey-Lewis Company, Cotton State Life Building, Nashville. Now handling account of the Sturdivant Packing Company, "Old Virginia Stew," Brownsville, Tenn.

Chappelow Advertising Company, 1709 Washington avenue, St. Louis. Reported to have launched an extensive newspaper campaign in the St. Louis territory for the Pierce Petroleum Corporation, St. Louis.

Churchill-Hall, Inc., 50 Union Square, New York City. Has secured the following accounts: Kingsbury Manufacturing Company, Keene, N. H., toys; Frank A. Hoppe, Inc., Philadelphia, Hoppe's nitro powder solvent and Hoppe's lubricating oil and gun grease.

Dorrance, Sullivan & Co., Inc., 130 West 42nd street, New York. Placing orders with rotogravure sections of newspapers in cities generally for L. T. Piver, Inc., Paris, France, campaign running through May, June, July and August for Azurea, Fetiche and other Piver face powders, talcum powders and bath powders.

John H. Dunham Advertising Company, 431 North Michigan avenue, Chicago. Sending out orders and contracts on Armour & Co. (soap).

A. W. Ellis Company, 40 Central street, Boston. Will handle account of the Darlo Company, Boston, manufacturers of the Darlo dishwasher.

Erwin, Wasey & Company, 844 Rush street, Chicago. Sending out contracts on Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of Akron, Ohio, for a campaign in Oklahoma papers. Also placing orders on the Postum Cereal Company of Battle Creek, Michigan, for newspapers in Montana.

Ferry-Hanly Advertising Company, 6 North Michigan avenue, Chicago. Sending out copy on the Wall Safes of the Murphy In-A Door Bed Company, Chicago, to newspapers in towns where they have dealers.

Grant & Wadsworth, Inc., 342 Madison avenue, New York. Hes secured the following accounts: J. B. Ferguson, Inc., radio, New York. Schleicher, Inc., "Slyker Radiator," Gary, Ind.; Pathe Golf Ball Co., Pathe Dollar Ball, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Charles C. Green Advertising Agency, 450 4th avenue, New York. Now handling account of the Hold Safe Optical Case Corp., New York.

Greenleaf Company, 80 Federal street, Boston. Now handling account of the Doten Dunton Desk Company, Boston.

Griffin, Johnson & Mann, Inc., 350 Madison avenue, New York. Has secured account of the Beaney Rubber Company, Inc., New York, manufacturers "Beaney" self adjusting tire flap.

Arthur B. Hirshon Company, Inc., 1440 Broadway, New York. Now handling account of the Paris-Hecker Company, "Princess Royal" underwear, Philadelphia.

George J. Kirkgasser & Co., 400 North Michigan avenue, Chicago. Now handling account of George Richards & Company, Chicago, manufacturers of electrical specialties.

Kling-Gibson Company, 310 South Michigan avenue, Chicago. Will place some special copy on the A. H. Lewis Medicine Company of St. Louis, Mo. Nelson-Chesman & Company of St. Louis still retain the larger part of the account, however.

McKnight, Robinson & Co., Union Trust Building, Pittsburgh. Placing orders with newspapers in various sections for the Swansdown Coffee Company, Pittsburgh.

George M. Marshall, 5 North LaSalle street, Chicago. Now handling the Modart Corset Company, Saginaw, Michigan, account. Magaine sections in a few Metropolitan papers may be used on this in the near future.

Mitchell-Faust Advertising Company, 7 South Dearborn street, Chicago. Preparing copy on the G. M. C. Yellow Truck, and reports say this will be sent out about the latter part of May.

Osten Advertising Corporation, 400 North Michigan avenue, Chicago. Sending out orders to newspapers in territory where distributor has been secured on Edelweiss (Schoenhofen Co., Chicago). There may be some schedules on Green River at a later date.

United Advertising Agency, 339 5th avenue, New York. Again placing orders with newspapers generally for the American Dry Corporation "American Dry Ginger Ale," Long Island City, N. Y.

Harry Varley, Inc., 19 East 47th street, New York. Placing account of the Hooven, Owens, Rentschler Company, Hamilton, Ohio, manufacturers of engines and machinery.

Williams & Cunningham, 6 North Michigan avenue, Chicago. Now handling account of the All-American Radio Corporation, Chicago.

Total daily circulation of 427 morning newspapers in the United States is 12,440,387.

News Men on Good-will Tour

Buffalo newspapers were well represented on the Good Will Tour of the Chamber of Commerce last week, participating in a four-day visit to cities in New York and Pennsylvania. F. E. Davis and Ralph Candler represented the Buffalo Evening News, John Smith the Times, James Meegan the Courier and Star and Robert Dailey the Buffalo Express. Jerome Rozan, one of the new owners of the Buffalo Telegram, also was a member of the party.

New York Circulators Plan Outing

The New York Newspapermen's Association, composed of circulation men and wholesale dealers, will hold its 20th annual outing to the Catskills, May 24-26. The party will assemble for a dinner May 25 at Bien's new hotel, Palenville. James McKernan is chairman and S. D. Samuels, secretary-treasurer of the association.

NEW YORK STATE
Westchester County's
Fastest Growing Cities
Mount Vernon and
New Rochelle and
The Vicinity Towns
Are Covered Completely by
THE DAILY ARGUS
of
Mount Vernon
THE STANDARD STAR
of
New Rochelle
Both Members of A. B. C.
Westchester Newspapers, Inc.
Franklin A. Merriam, Pres.
Mount Vernon—New Rochelle

There Are No Other Newspapers Covering South Jersey Completely
From the Standpoint of the National Advertiser
CAMDEN COURIER
The MORNING POST
60,000 Circulation
Combination Rate
National Representatives:
STORY, BROOKS & FINLEY

"Fundamentals first" is the only rule to follow to Classified success
THE BASIL L. SMITH SYSTEM, Inc.
International Classified Advertising Counsellors
Packard Building Philadelphia

in Detroit—
Free Press city circulation reaches 31,000 more than the total number of families owning their own homes.
THE DETROIT "FREE PRESS"
"Starts the day in Detroit"

Do you know what percentage of errors are made in your Composing Room?
We suggest you go there and take fifty original proofs. Count up the number of lines and the number of errors. Get the percentage of errors to lines.
It takes twice as long to correct an error as it does to make it, so multiply this percentage by three.
Take this resultant percentage and apply it to your total Composing Room payroll for the year. See how much money errors are costing you.
When you find out what they cost you write and tell us the amount. We will show you a source of profit you have never heard of.
Matrix Contrast Corp.
33 W. 42d St., New York City

Largest Weekday Circulation in THE CITY
The Item Tribune
NEW ORLEANS

"QUALITY NOT QUANTITY OF OUTPUT" IS OKLAHOMA JOURNALISM SCHOOL AIM

Director Claims Insistence Upon Competence Is Characteristic of Instruction—Graduates Find Work Easily—130 Former Students Now Engaged in Newspaper Work

By H. H. HERBERT

Director, School of Journalism, University of Oklahoma

AN insistence upon competence is a distinctive characteristic of the instruction in journalism in the University f Oklahoma. Every student is impressed with the importnce of possessng the knowedge and skill emanded of hose who expect o do journalistic ork.

H. H. Herbert

But the ultimate atisfaction of his requirement s not considered ufficient. The alue of cometency is held onstantly before tudents throughut the period of their training. Dominant among the working ideals of the chool, is a belief in the necessity of horough and intensive preparation for he profession. Quality, not quantity of utput, is the aim.

To attain these ends definite policies nd practices have been devised. They over a variety of points:

1. Limitation of enrollment. Since horoughness of instruction depends largey upon the time which instructors can ive to individual students, there has een a consistent effort to keep the ratio f teachers to students as high as possile. By requiring that students in the chool enroll in a second major subject, uch as English, government, economics r history, the course has been so stiffened s to keep out all but the most earnest tudents. This, together with the onstant raising of scholastic standards ithin the school, has served to keep the nrollment almost stationary although the niversity has added hundreds to its egistration. For several years the enollment in journalism has been kept at pproximately 120 students. For this umber five teachers are provided. The verage number of students to each inructor is therefore less than 25.

2. Distribution of the teaching burden. o heighten efficiency of instruction, steps ave been taken to reduce the total numer of classroom hours required of each eacher to such a point as to enable him o give attention to the special needs of ndividual students. Thirty-three hours f classroom teaching per week are ivided among five instructors, giving ach, on an average, less than seven ours. Sufficient time is thus allowed for he personal conferences without which nstruction is greatly impaired.

3. Vitalization of instruction. No ember of the school's faculty is solely teacher. Each one does editorial or upervisory work of some other kind, hus retaining close touch with the roblems of journalism. These tasks are ultiform: judging high school and ollege publications; directing a corps of niversity critics of school papers; rating nd criticizing daily and weekly papers of he state and nation; supervising the publicity of the university; editing a newspaper men's weekly service sheet; publishing a quarterly literary magazine; editing a weekly literary page in the state's largest newspaper. Under this plan each member of the faculty, although a full-time employe of the university, has ample opportunity to test out his ideas in the field of creative journalism.

4. Absence of formalism in teaching. Recognizing the vitiating character of much college teaching, the school strives to place its instruction on a different basis. The teacher is "guide, philosopher and friend." No class is conducted strictly on the lecture plan. Even at the risk of loss of time, students are encouraged to propound questions to express their views, to state personal conclusions. Small classes are conducted in round-table fashion, and every incentive is given to independence of thought and individuality of opinion.

5. Practicality of instruction. "Theories" are rarely mentioned in the classroom or laboratory. The emphasis is thrown upon the methods actually in use, or upon proposed methods which have the virtue of practicability. The experimental spirit is in vogue. Six publications—the Oklahoma Daily, a seven-column morning newspaper; the Oklahoma Weekly, a standard-size paper with a circulation of 12,000, all high school seniors; Sooner State Press, a three-column, four-page weekly service sheet for editors; the Oklahoma Whirlwind, a monthly humorous magazine; the University of Oklahoma Magazine, a quarterly of literary turn; and the Sooner, a 550-page annual—supply almost every form of needed practice. They are all under the wing of the school, although in three of the six cases the connection is advisory rather than controlling.

6. Development of individual initiative. In the Oklahoma school greater stress is laid upon self-directed effort than upon the carrying out of minute and detailed directions. No instructor sits in the editorial or business offices of the student-managed publications, issuing orders or determining policies. Faculty members are at hand, it is true, but their advice is to be sought rather than offered, except, of course, in connection with the classes they teach. Students are taught to proceed on their own initiative and to assume responsibility for their own acts. It is probable that better laboratory publications would be produced if teachers constantly exercised direction, but the Oklahoma plan, it is believed, results in greater benefit to students. Having learned in the classroom the requirements of the newspaper office, the student discovers by experience the value of such precepts.

7. Stress upon broad training. Most schools of journalism begin by carefully establishing a minimum requirement as to the professional courses to be taken for the degree. This was true at Oklahoma, but now, in addition, a maximum of 30 semester-hours or one-fourth of the college course, has been set. Under this rule a student must devote at least three fourths of his time to those cultural subjects which will give him an understanding of the modern world. Languages, literature, government, economics, history, philosophy, psychology, sociology and natural sciences thus form the backbone of the journalist's college course.

What have been the fruits of these methods of instruction? No graduate of the school has experienced difficulty in obtaining work at the completion of his course. Newspaper offices are open to the products of the school. At the latest compilation, 130 former students and graduates were found to be engaged actively in the profession, most of them within Oklahoma. These persons have risen rapidly into positions of responsibility; in many cases within a year or two they have become part owners of newspapers. Frequently they have become community leaders, and already their influence is being felt in the work of the professional associations. They have found a welcome in the newspaper fraternity, and they deserve the welcome they have received.

This is the 19th of a series of articles obtained by Editor & Publisher, interpreting the work of journalism schools to editors of the nation.

All-Year Club Using 85 Dailies

Because of the excellent results obtained from newspaper advertising in the past five years, the All-Year Club of Southern California has decided to spend the major portion of its advertising appropriation in newspapers. The club has just completed a schedule which calls for displays in 85 large newspapers in 56 cities, from the middle west to the Atlantic seaboard. Purpose of the All-Year club is to boost California as an all-year round place to live.

Six New A. B. C. Members

Six newspapers have recently been elected to membership in the Audit Bureau of Circulations it was announced this week. They are: Klamath Falls (Ore.) Klamath News; Baker (Ore.) Herald; St. Petersburg (Fla.) Daily News; Cincinnati Enquirer; Eureka (Cal.) Humboldt Standard; Jamaica (N. Y.) Long Island Daily Star.

Long Island Editor Celebrates

William Hyde, editor and owner of the Port Washington (N. Y.) News, on May 12 celebrated his 66th birthday and the 23rd anniversary of the founding of his newspaper.

Marshall on N. Y. World Copy Desk

Donald Marshall, formerly managing editor of the New York News Record, is now on the copy desk of the New York World.

A paper with the people

The public decides the progress of a newspaper.

The continuous rising circulation of the New York Evening Graphic vividly demonstrates popular acceptance of this newspaper as a medium of unusual reader interest.

Advertisers daily realize the benefit of this power through achieved results from the advertising columns of the New York Evening Graphic.

With a constantly increasing circulation, plus a constant growth in advertising lineage, the New York Evening Graphic offers the advertiser an extremely profitable opportunity.

NEW YORK EVENING GRAPHIC

Published by BERNARR MACFADDEN
H. A. AHERN, Advertising Mgr.
25 City Hall Place
New York City

If Quality

of circulation is your first consideration

The Evening Star.

With Sunday Morning Edition

Washington, D. C.

will have your preference—same as it has the preference of practically everyone in the National Capital.

The Star's circulation is home circulation—both quality and quantity—the kind that counts most with advertisers.

New York Office — 110 E. 42nd St.
Dan A. Carroll
Chicago Office — Tower Building
J. E. Lutz

Largest Evening Circulation in Largest Market

For 26 consecutive years the Evening Journal has had the largest evening circulation in America—concentrated in New York and suburbs. More than DOUBLE the circulation of any other New York evening paper.

NEW YORK JOURNAL

America's Largest Evening Circulation and at 3c a copy

DOMINANT!
in Pinellas County, Florida
Daily News
ST. PETERSBURG'S PICTURE PAPER
Owned by Frank Fortune Pulver
Edited by Major Alfred Birdsall
America's Biggest Tabloid
Florida's Fastest
Growing Newspaper
To be assured of Complete Coverage—
USE THE NEWS
The only paper in St. Petersburg, Florida, whose application has been accepted by Audit Bureau of Circulations.
Represented by
GEORGE B. DAVID COMPANY
NEW YORK: 110 East 42nd Street
CHICAGO: 1010 Hartford Building

DO YOU NEED A TRAINED MAN?

The Personnel Bureau of Sigma Delta Chi, an organization of college trained newspaper, magazine and advertising men, wants to help you find him. The Bureau puts you in touch with experienced, energetic men—it saves you time by recommending only those who meet your requirements.

If you expect a vacancy, please write Robert B. Tarr, Director, Personnel Bureau of Sigma Delta Chi, P. O. Box 115, Pontiac, Michigan.

NO CHARGE TO EMPLOYERS

Peoria
The Try-Out City
THE PEORIA JOURNAL Transcript
Puts Tryouts Over!
CHAS. H. EDDY CO.
New York - Chicago - Boston

BUILDINGS
PLANT LAYOUTS
PRODUCTION
OPERATION

An organization specializing solely in newspaper building design, manufacturing and production problems.

S. P. WESTON

Newspaper Buildings
Plant Layouts
Production, Operation

20 West 42nd Street New York

Our Own World of Letters

By JAMES MELVIN LEE

A BOOKLET that is different is "The Linebook," published by the Chicago Tribune. In it Richard Henry Little has brought together some of the best contributions and paragraphs which he has printed in "A Line O'Type or Two" of that paper. Frankly it is the best buy that we know for the price; it costs ten cents by mail.

About the only thing in the contents that advertises the Tribune is the exquisite poem, "The Tribune Tower," contributed by Le Mousquetaire. The contributor that leads all others is Snowshoe Al, who by the way, has just brought out a book of his own. Newspaper workers will be surprised to see how frequently the jest has been turned on some item of news or some saying quoted in the press from a public address.

Mr. Little in bringing out "The Linebook" for 1925 evidently adopted the same policy which regulates his column, "Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may." Every reader of this annual of the best things that have appeared in "A Line O'Type or Two" will want the next edition to fall his way.

* * *

GEORGE ADE in an article in Hearst's International-Cosmopolitan Magazine for June thus stresses the importance of weather as an item of news:

> It seems to me that writers of fiction and moving-picture directors and newspaper editors consistently overlook and neglect those themes which are of real importance to the populace. When you see five or six people together conferring earnestly, the chances are that they are not talking about love's young dream, high adventure, sex problems, tax reduction or legislative relief for farmers. They are talking about the weather or which meat market is handling the best steaks or how soon roasting ears will be ready.
>
> If I ran a newspaper I would give at least a half page daily to weather-reports, comments, and prognostications. Many citizens would be interviewed and permitted to give rambling, diffuse and valueless opinions as to what might happen to crops, building operations and business in general in case of rain, hail, wind or drouth.
>
> The weather is probably the only dependable topic for 365 days in the year, but victuals are a close second.

Chester S. Lord in a recent book paid a similar tribute to the weather as a topic for discussion in newspapers. As a matter of fact, he went a little farther down the trail than Mr. Ade.

* * *

THE School of Journalism at the University of Missouri, Columbia, Mo., will soon issue in pamphlet form "The Origin, Development and Influence of Cartoons" by Clifford K. Berryman, the cartoonist of the Washington (D. C.) Evening Star and president of the Gridiron Club of that city. The pamphlet will be extensively illustrated with reproductions that show the evolution of wordless editorials.

All who read the extracts of Mr. Berryman's speech which he delivered during Journalism Week at the University of Missouri will want a copy. Reservations may be made by dropping a line to Walter Williams, Dean of the School of Journalism, University of Missouri, Columbia, Mo.

* * *

ABOUT a year ago Willis J. Abbot, editor of the Christian Science Monitor, contributed to The Independent an article entitled "Headlining Happiness." This article which sets forth the editorial policy of the Monitor, "a journalistic success in which crime, disaster, disease, scandal, and death have no place," has been issued in pamphlet form and may be obtained from The Christian Science Publishing Society, Back Bay Station, Boston, Mass.

The pamphlet has considerable interest for me because the week following the appearance of Mr. Abbot's article in The Independent I contributed an article to that periodical on "Pitiless Publicity" in which I showed the necessity of printing the news of crime, within reasonable limits, in the columns of the public press.

* * *

FRANK B. SHUTTS is described as a corn-fed millionaire by O. O. McIntyre in Hearst's International-Cosmopolitan Magazine for June. Mr. McIntyre calls attention to the fact that the little daily newspaper which Mr. Shutts bought in Miami attained the distinction last year of "printing the largest newspaper in the world continuously for a single year."

* * *

PROMOTING a whole industry by combined efforts in advertising is the theme which Hugh E. Agnew, professor of Advertising in New York University, develops in "Cooperative Advertising by Competitors" (Harper & Brothers). Until recently Professor Agnew was director of research for the Periodical Publishers' Association of America.

The book discusses the various campaigns to increase sales by group advertising, but draws a careful distinction between advertising that competitors may do for their own benefit and that which is done by such co-operative marketing associations as the California Fruit Growers Exchange, the Sun-Maid Raisin Growers, the Oak Flooring Manufacturers Association, the National Electric Light Association, etc. One chapter traces the development of co-operative advertising and another outlines somewhat in detail the so-called habit forming campaigns of which that of the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists is typical—"Say It with Flowers." Another campaign to receive considerable attention is that conducted by the Paint and Varnish Manufacturers who promoted a habit with the slogan, "Save the Surface and You Save All." Professor Agnew points out that an association can best bear the onus of the ill-will that may arise from the blunt message, like that printed by the corset manufacturers in the New York Times about a year ago.

Another topic discussed in the text is how to protect an industry from outside attacks. The case used for illustrative purposes is that of the Coffee Roasters Association which had to meet the attack of the ill effects of coffee on the human body. Still another chapter shows how to correct bad trade practices—illustrated by the co-operative advertising of the Rubber Association of America three years ago. One of the best chapters in the volume is headed, "Communities Invest and Gamble in Advertising." The campaign of Kansas City which ran a series of statements under the standing caption, "Do You Know?" is cited by way of illustration. Other chapters treat community advertising that pays and raising the money for community advertising. A separate chapter considers co-operative advertising in the churches—a place where it is sadly needed. Special mention is made of such advertising in copy that appeared in the Brooklyn Daily Eagle, Baltimore News, and Oakland Tribune.

"Co-operative Advertising by Competitors" is copiously illustrated and the advertisements that are reproduced supplement the text. A valuable feature may be found in the various tables scattered here and there throughout the volume: one lists the number of families necessary to support various kinds of stores; another gives the approximate yearly advertising expenditure of co-operative advertising by various associations. Professor Agnew concludes the volume with a brief chapter of "The Future of Co-operative Advertising."

* * *

GEORGE FRENCH practically reviews his own book, "20th Century Advertising," (D. Van Nostrand Company) in a chat which opens the volume. In it Mr. French tells about the origin of the book, the mechanical preparation of several chapters, the historical method of presentation, qualifications for the task set, etc. Indeed, much of the charm of the volume is due to the chatty style of the author.

"20th Century Advertising" is not a book that will serve as a text in the class room: It is not a practical manual for the experienced advertising man; frankly, it is hard to say what it is. Of all the books about advertising which have appeared this comes the nearest to being a mirror in which are reflected certain tendencies and the factors which have contributed to the advance in advertising. The book also reflects various personages who have held the advertising stage at different times since the dawn of the century. Mr. French sells these "leaders" to the reader by means of interesting captions under the reproductions of photographs.

The first fifty pages are largely historical in character. The volume reall

IN some cities, the "leading" newspaper may have merely a few hundred more circulation than its competitor. The Press has 40,000 more net paid circulation in Pittsburgh than the other two evening newspapers combined—and 35,000 more net paid circulation in Pittsburgh than the other two Sunday newspapers combined.

THE PITTSBURGH PRESS

A Scripps-Howard Newspaper
Member of the A. B. C.

Business IS Good!

A Mammoth Wheat Crop Is in the Making—
New Oil Fields Are Coming In—
Savings Deposits Are Double That of a Year Ago.
Everybody's Happy

In the Territory Covered By

The Wichita Eagle
Wichita, Kansas
National Representative
The S. C. Beckwith Special Agency

Increasing Sales

The department stores of Manhattan — keen, experienced judges of the selling power of the various New York newspapers — advertise more in The Sun than in any other New York newspaper. Advertisers in all lines, who want to increase their sales in New York, can profitably follow the example of these department stores.

The Sun
280 Broadway New York

EVENING HERALD
Los Angeles, Calif.
Gained 5,015 Daily Average Circulation
Sworn Government Statement, Six Months Ending March 31, 1925, 177,298 Daily. Six Months Ending March 31, 1926, 182,313 Daily. Increase in Daily Average Circulation, 5,015.
IT COVERS THE FIELD COMPLETELY
REPRESENTATIVES:
H. W. Moloney, 604 Times Bldg., New York.
John H. Lederer, 910 Hearst Bldg., Chicago, Ill.
A. J. Norris Hill, 710 Hearst Bldg., San Francisco, Calif.

Leading All Other Daily Newspapers in the Albany Area

1st in Paid Advertising Lineage
Circulation With Complete Coverage

The Times-Union
Albany, N. Y.

Consistent Builders of Circulation

We do not use just one outstanding success to show you as proof of our ability. Year in and year out, for twenty-two years, we have continued to make each and every campaign a success.

We have proven our methods.

MYERS'
Circulation Organization
415 E. Third St., Waterloo, Iowa

GRAVURE SECTIONS PRINTED

SPECIAL AND REGULAR EDITIONS, MAGAZINE INSERTS AND COMMERCIAL WORK

Standard Gravure Corporation
LOUISVILLE KY

egins with chapter V on page 50—"Main Streams of Progress." Many of these o-called streams found their origin in the arious advertising clubs scattered all ver the United States. These streams ave since flowed together into the main tream which an advertising lesson in eography would call the Associated Adertising Clubs of the World.

Topics not usually treated in advertisng books are found in this volume. For nstance, there is a chapter on welfare dvertising which describes the campaign f the Metropolitan Life Insurance Comany for the promotion of health through dvertising. The ethical note may be ound in the chapter "Better Business." hapter XVI is devoted entirely to Women in Advertising." In preparation f this chapter it is too bad that Mr. rench could not have had the assistance f the paper which Mrs. A. W. Protez of he Gardner Advertising Company of St. ouis read during Journalism Week at he University of Missouri on "Adversing as a Field for Women." Her paper akes an admirable postscript to this hapter.

Throughout the volume Mr. French has aken the broad point of view and insisted hat advertising is advertising wherever is done and to whomever it is addressed. Consequently one is not surprised to find chapter dealing with advertising in Great Britain and Europe. In this chapr Mr. French has found space to chat bout advertising problems in Australia nd South Africa as well as Great Britain. o Canada he gives one complete chapter.

Other chapters deal with auditing circulations, technical advertising, the art actor, printing for advertising, photongraving, advertising copy, planning adertising typography, financial advertisg, outdoor advertising, and advertising or export.

In the chapter, "Newspapers as Meiums," Mr. French expresses his views bout numerous newspapers. He calls he New York Sun under Dana, "the best ewspaper in several respects this country as yet had." He thinks that many ewspapers have become more interested n the reports of auditors than in mainining editorial standards. He pays a ne tribute to Frank I. Cobb, who was for ears editor of the New York World, but elieves that "few, even of the profession, now who is the controlling editor of he New York Times, or of the Herald-Tribune, nor of either of Mr. Hearst's ewspapers, nor of any influential newsaper in any city." A difference of pinion may exist about the truth of this ssertion, but Mr. French is obviously ntitled to his own view. The New York imes is a great newspaper but it is not ig enough to overshadow completely the ersonality of Rollo Ogden.

But let Mr. French speak for himself:

> I do not assume to criticize newspapers. I o not even suggest that their present policies f operation are not greatly in advance of those a quarter of a century ago. In many reects they manifestly are. In the handling of dvertising, and as advertising mediums, they e immeasurably in advance. We are condering them in their relations to advertising, ot, of course, forgetting that it is their edirial policy and work that makes them valuable dvertising mediums as much as their large irculations.

A little farther along in the chapter Mr. rench makes this comment:

> The big city dailies have a thin but continually ickening circulation all over the country, even those regions where the mail service is inequent. They are all the time proving more nd more useful as general advertising mediums, though their chief value is within that erritory which they can serve within a few ours after their issue from their presses. Within this territory no other form of advertising medium has been able successfully to compete with the daily newspapers. It does not much matter what is the commodity, if the advertiser will co-operate with the newspaper's service department, and follow the advice given, he is pretty certain to sell his goods through newspaper advertising.

For chapter XL, "The Future of Advertising," Mr. French has himself prepared a comment that may well be quoted:

> The little essays that compose this chapter are expressive of the sentiment and judgment about the future held by cool-brained men who are in the thick of the advertising work of today. They are interesting and indicative of what may be expected to happen. They lean decidedly toward the ideal and the ethical. There is a very small element of the strictly practical. They need no elucidation. They speak for themselves, and in the clearest tones of the most progressive element in advertising practice. I am especially proud to have each one of them to substantiate those few expressions of personal aspiration I have indulged myself with recording, and to give that illuminative interpretation to the duller sections of this book that is needful. I believe that progressive advertising men will feel that they may write their O. K. under every one of these little classics of advertising.

Mr. French has performed a distinct service by preparing this semihistorical treatise and in bringing together in one volume the things that everyone interested in advertising will be glad to have preserved in printed form for the sake of reference.

* * *

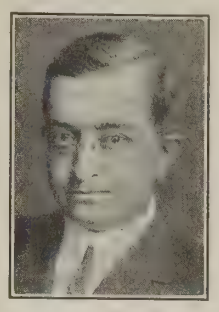
THE advertising department of the New York Times has just sent out a booklet, "Good Seed—Productive Soil—Bountiful Harvest." It is composed of excerpts from an address which Frank H. Cole, advertising manager of Peter Henderson & Co., delivered before the New York Times Advertising Club on March 27, 1926.

The booklet has a number of practical points about newspaper advertising but, in the language of the preacher, I want to invite special attention to the following remark by Mr. Cole about the repetition of good copy:

> I have never believed, as do some men in my position, that in order to show our ability and versatility, we must be continually producing new copy. I have never had any hesitancy, when I found that a piece of copy produced good results, about using it over and over again and to continue using it as long as it proved satisfactory. We have one piece of small copy that we have used each year for the last 25 years. From time to time we have tried to replace it, but so far, we have been unable to find anything that would pull as well, so we continue to use it. We have used the same piece of copy with the New York Times three or four times in succession and we found with an interval of one month between insertions, that there was a drop off of less than 10 per cent in the results.

Copies of the booklet may be obtained upon application to the advertising department of the New York Times, Times Square, New York City.

Men's Store Uses 8 Pages



Dan's Place, men's store, New Castle, Pa., used eight full pages in the New Castle News to announce the opening of their new store, May 7, claimed to be a record advertisement for a men's store.

Total daily circulation of 1,581 evening newspapers in the United States is 21,208,982.

VICTOR HANSON HONORED

Birmingham News Publisher Presented With Silver Loving Cup

Victor H. Hanson, publisher of the Birmingham (Ala.) News, was honored May 13, when 300 of his friends in the business and educational world of Birmingham and Alabama presented him with a loving cup as a token of their appreciation of his efforts in behalf of civic uplift and higher education in the state.

VICTOR H. HANSON

Presentation ceremonies were held in the chapel of Birmingham Southern College and the token was an exact replica of the cup given each year by the Birmingham News to the citizen doing the greatest public service during the year.

The speech of presentation was made by Oscar Wells, president of the First National Bank and president of the American Bankers Association. Mr. Hanson made a brief response. The names of the committee in charge were engraved on the cup under the inscription, which read: "Presented to Victor H. Hanson by a host of his friends, May 13, 1926, in grateful acknowledgment of conspicuous service rendered in all fields of civic uplift.

Inside the cup was a scroll containing the 300 names of those who joined with the committee in the presentation of the cup.

Sunday Edition for McAlister, Okla.

The McAlister (Okla.) News-Capital has started a Sunday edition, using the Associated Press Saturday night report. D. R. Calonkey is editor.

Students Edit Emporia Gazette

William Allen White, publisher of the Emporia (Kan.) Gazette instructed a group of seniors of the University of Kansas department of journalism recently when the students "got out the paper" for one day. Previous to the visit of the students, Mr. White published a challenge for them to find any "sacred cows," anywhere in or about the Gazette office. Editorially, the students declared that a most diligent search showed nowhere in Emporia or the Gazette office anything that must be protected from criticism, or "handled with gloves." Prof. Ivan Benson was in charge of the student group.

COMPLETE WIRE REPORTS FOR EVENING AND SUNDAY PAPERS

International News Service

"Get It FIRST but First Get It RIGHT"

63 Park Row
NEW YORK CITY

MICHIGAN
and the
BOOTH NEWSPAPERS

THE LEADING NEWSPAPER IN GRAND RAPIDS—THE ONLY DAILY IN SEVEN OTHER CITIES

The Grand Rapids Press
The Flint Daily Journal
The Saginaw News Courier
The Kalamazoo Gazette
The Jackson Citizen Patriot
The Bay City Times Tribune
The Muskegon Chronicle
The Ann Arbor Times News

National Advertising Representatives

I. A. KLEIN — 50 East 42nd St. New York City
J. E. LUTZ — Tower Building Chicago, Ill.

RADIO PROGRAMS
NEWS NOTES
FEATURES

Used and Praised by More than 200 Newspapers

Send for samples and prices

AUDIO SERVICE
326 West Madison St.
Chicago

Among The Newspapers Publishing
Constance Talmadge's Flapper Series

Chicago Journal — Philadelphia Sun
Detroit News — Buffalo Times
Toledo Blade — Louisville Courier J'l
Omaha Bee — Oakland Post Enquirer
Peoria Star Journal — Memphis News Scimitar
Newark Jersey Transcript

Why Not Join This List of Papers
Wire for Terms and Territory

COSMOS NEWSPAPER SYNDICATE INC
Covering the World
NINE EAST THIRTY-SEVENTH STREET NEW YORK CITY

Herbert S. Houston, President and Editor-in-Chief
Myles F. Lasker, Vice-President and General Manager

"SKIPPY"
By PERCY CROSBY

The best juvenile comic strip. Combines great humor, excellent drawing and emphatic adult appeal.

A feature you can't afford to miss

JOHNSON FEATURES, Inc.
1819 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

Buffalo, The Wonder City of America

Buffalo—A Profitable Market for Advertisers

Sales in Buffalo are splendid for advertised goods. Employment conditions excellent, retail and other business thriving. One newspaper will put your story over to 83% of the people—that paper is the

BUFFALO EVENING NEWS
Read in 4 out of 5 Buffalo Homes

Edward H. Butler, Editor and Publisher
Kelly-Smith Company, Representatives
Marbridge Bldg. New York, N. Y. — Tribune Tower Chicago, Ill.
Atlantic Bldg. Philadelphia — Waterman Bldg. Boston

CHINESE PRINT NEWS TOPSY-TURVY STYLE

Thomas Steep of New York Herald Tribune Who Covered Shanghai Riots Tells of Their Methods In His Book

Even newspapers in China do things in the topsy-turvy way which foreigners are accustomed to associate with orientals. Thomas Steep, who was a correspondent in Peking in one of China's recent civil wars, relates in his book, "Chinese Fantastics," some incidents that throw light on the Chinese attitude toward western newspaper methods. A chapter in the book devoted to Chinese newspapers says:

"In none of the innovations which western civilization has introduced into China is the naivete of the Chinese more apparent than in their newspapers. . . . It was the custom of the Times of London, in commenting editorially on the pessimistic reports of its correspondent in Peking, to describe China as a land of political chaos, financial ruin, social confusion, and economic disorder. The Reuter News Agency, supposing the view of the Times to be of interest to the Far East, usually telegraphed a synopsis of the comment to the Chinese newspapers. A Peking newspaper published a Reuter despatch one morning with its own naive comment subjoined, 'Note by the Editor: It seems to us that Reuter might have saved the expense of telegraphing from London what every one in the Far East already knows.' . . . A notice that the foreign banks would be closed on certain holidays appeared on the front page of a newspaper with the comment: 'Note by the Editor: In some countries banks pay for their advertisements.'

"It is a practice of Chinese newspapers to tell in the end what should be told in the beginning, as in an item about a prince, which said, in the first paragraph, that he was ill and, in the last, that he had died . . . An official named Mr. Sung was authorized to communicate to the public information concerning the president of China and the members of his cabinet. Mr. Sung's office was located within the Imperial City. No spot in Peking is more romantic. There are tiny palaces, clustered picturesquely on an island, a little lake covered with lotus, a marble bridge connecting the island with the mainland, storks stalking in the shallow water, willows, pavilions, terraces, curved roofs of yellow tile. Passing these memorials of bygone tragedies—a palace on the island in which Emperor Kwang Hsu died mysteriously; a well near the marble bridge into which Kwang Hsu's favorite wife was flung alive—one rides in a rickshaw along a road by the lake, crosses a courtyard fragrant with blossoming fruit trees, and enters Mr. Sung's office. Mr. Sung, dressed in a native costume, while tea is served, draws from his wide sleeves a number of memoranda. The president, he says, taking up the first memorandum and leisurely scanning its contents, has been advised by telegraph that the burial shrines of Confucius in Shantung have been damaged by a hail storm, that the hailstones were as big as watermelons, that the windows of the shrine were smashed and that the keeper needs funds for repairs; but considering that Chinese windows are glazed with paper, that the descriptions of the hailstones as of the size of watermelons was probably hyperbolical, and that all officials need funds, we dismiss the announcement as unimportant, and Mr. Sung searches the contents of the next memorandum. He says that each year on a certain day, now approaching, superstitious Chinese observe the custom of applying medicinal plasters to cure their ailments; the plasters, made of gauze and cut in small disks, are smeared on one side with an adhesive tar, which makes them stick wherever they are put; on the morning of the celebration the people of Peking appear on the streets with plasters stuck over eyes, ears elbows, shins, arms, and legs, as if the night before they had engaged in a general fight.

"It becomes evident that Mr. Sung has described the hail storm and the plasters merely to be indirect. When he reaches for his final memorandum and consults it, he announces casually what he most desired to tell, that troops have surrounded the presidential palace and that the Government is temporarily without an executive head. 'For,' says Mr. Sung, 'the president resigned early this morning and fled in a special train for Tientsin.'"

Minneapolis Wants N. E. A. Meet

Minnesota editors who will attend the national convention of the National Editorial Association in June at Los Angeles will make a strong bid to bring the next session to Minneapolis, according to present plans. The Minnesota delegates will leave June 24 for the west. Included in the Minnesota delegation will be Governor Theodore Christianson, publisher of the Dawson Sentinel, Herman Roe of Northfield, vice-president of the association, and H. C. Hotaling, executive secretary of the body.

ROTO SPEED RECORD CLAIMED

Derby Pictures Appear in Louisville Herald-Post 4 Hours After Races

Members of the Louisville (Ky.) Herald-Post outdid race horses for speed, following the 52nd running of the Kentucky Derby, May 15. Four hours after the big race, the newspaper's Sunday rotogravure section, containing pictures of the event, was being printed. A record-breaking feat was immediately claimed.

The section contained a picture of "Bubbling Over," the 1926 winner, photographed immediately after the race; an action picture of the finish; a close-up of Mayor Walker of New York presenting the trophy to the winner; and a snapshot of E. R. Bradley, owner of both "Bubbling Over" and "Bagenbaggage," winner of second place.

The Herald-Post reported its achievement as follows:

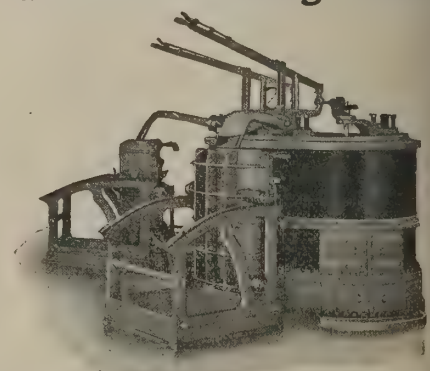
"News pictures have seldom appeared in rotogravure in less than a week's time and never before in less than three or four days' time, because of the process through which they have to be put, and the publication of the Derby pictures in the Herald-Post rotogravure is an achievement without parallel and one that is likely to stand the test of time."

Brooklyn Club Anniversary Party

Marshall Covert, president of the Brooklyn Newspapermen's Club, announced this week the club will hold its first anniversary party May 25, at the Hotel Shelbourne, Coney Island. Covert is a member of the Brooklyn Standard-Union staff. Philip Florman, of Standard News Association, is club secretary.

Supplies and Equipment

Rebuilt GOSS & HOE PRESS BARGAINS
ALL TYPES
SEND for LIST
THE GOSS PRINTING PRESS CO.
CHICAGO – NEW YORK – LONDON



Modern Composing Room Furniture
as made by us will speed up production and reduce costs—A real saving in your Pay Roll. Are you interested? If so, consult your regular dealer in printers' supplies or write us direct.
Do it now!
HAMILTON MFG. CO.
TWO RIVERS, WIS.

Fight hot-weather fatigue
Fresh, cool, invigorating air — supplied by Sturtevant Ventilating Fans — would keep your men working at top-notch efficiency during the hot summer months.
B. F. STURTEVANT CO.
Hyde Park, Boston, Mass.
Branch Offices in Principal Cities
Sturtevant REG U.S. PAT. OFF.
Ventilating Fans

USED NEWSPAPER PRESSES
Scott 16, 24 and 32-Page Presses
GOSS 24 and 28-page presses good for black or color work, also Goss Sextuple.
HOE Pony Quadruple, Quadruple, Sextuple, Sextuple color Press, Octuple and Double Sextuple Presses.
DUPLEX Metropolitan Quadruple stereotype presses—print up to 32 pages.
Available For Early Delivery
WALTER SCOTT & COMPANY
Main Office & Factory.....Plainfield, N. J.
New York Office..Brokaw Bldg., 1457 Broadway
Chicago Office.....Monadnock Block

Manufacturers of Equipment and Supplies
May secure the services of representatives and salesmen through the Classified Department of Editor & Publisher

Don't "Pig" Metal It Wastes Money
Don't melt your metal twice to use it once. Write for trial offer. The Monomelt "Single Melting System." References gladly furnished.
MONOMELT SLUG FEEDER
Eliminates the Metal Furnace
Printers Manufacturing Co.
1109-17 Transportation Bldg.
Chicago Illinois
World Bldg., New York City

The Quickest and Best Casting Unit
Hoe Stereotype Furnace with Hoe Equipoise Curved Casting Moulds and Pumps.

If it's a Hoe, It's the Best
R. HOE & CO., INC. 504-520 Grand St., New York City
7 South Dearborn Street CHICAGO, ILL. also at DUNELLEN, N. J 7 Water Street BOSTON, MASS.

Employment—Equipment—Services

EDITOR & PUBLISHER Classified Advertising Information

TRANSIENT RATES

SITUATIONS (Cash with Order)

1 Time — .40 per line
2 Times — .35 per line
3 Times — .30 per line

ALL OTHER CLASSIFICATIONS (Cash with Order)

1 Time — .60 per line
4 Times — .55 per line

ADVERTISING

General Promotion

dvertising Promotion—If you want more siness, communicate with the International ublications Service, Incorporated, Suite 1004, 41 Broadway, New York City.

assified—I will organize your Classified Dertment, train each one in the department d take percentage of increase for my pay. nder my direction, Norristown, Pa. Register creased 97½% April 1926 over April 1925. n K. Wilson, Norristown Register, Norriswn, Pa.

Special Edition Editor

ecial Edition Editor prepares copy for Special litions, subject to Publisher's approval. On ntract or salary basis. B-963, Editor & blisher.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

Brokers

ave You $15,000 Including Experience? I n offer you a real bargain, consisting of a ekly paper and job plant within 20 miles New York, occupying exclusive field, earng 25 per cent on price asked. J. B. Shale, mes Building, New York.

Circulation Lease Wanted

rculation Manager—Forty-one years old, er seventeen years' successful experience prootor and organizer, wants lease circulation medium or small Western newspaper. Best ferences. B-996, Editor & Publisher.

Newspapers Financed

ewspaper Financed—I am a newspaper pubher and owner. Have successfully financed veral newspaper properties. Tell me your wspaper financial troubles. All correspondnce held in strictest confidence. Address 500, Editor & Publisher.

Newspapers For Sale

tablished County-seat Weekly Newspaper d modern printing plant for sale; exclusive ld, 40 miles from Washington. Address 994, Editor & Publisher.

ust Be Sold in 60 Days—Weekly paper in owing county seat, town of 4,000 in northn Alabama. Only paper in county of 35,000. 00 paid-in-advance circulation; 25 to 35-cent v. rate. Netted $2,312 in 1925 under hired nagement. Field practically unlimited. ice $12,000; half cash desired. Prop. 68x. The H. F. Henrichs Agency, Litchld, Ill.

Newspapers Wanted

ant to Buy, good weekly or small daily. efer Mid-West. A-507, Editor & Publisher.

CIRCULATION

Promotion

rculation—When quick, additional circulation verage becomes necessary, remember that our enty years in this one line of endeavor is ur proof against experimenting. Write or re Pacific Coast Circulation Service, Bell ock, Cincinnati, Ohio.

rculation campaigns successfully operated. asured Results." Address A. B. Rudolph, ie Daily Times, Erie, Pa., where a campign is now in operation.

rculation Builders—Blair & Austin, 1504 Cente Ave., Reading, Penn. Originators of Salesnship Club Campaigns.

rain—Solicitors are doing 8-12 orders daily thout promotion cost to paper, on two new na offers in Ohio. Write for details. The bright China Co., Carrollton, Ohio.

EDITORIAL

Syndicate Features

litor's Copy—Twelve weekly features; samis free. State territorial protection desired reply. Hugo S. Sims, Orangeburg, S. C.

Syndicate Features

Sunday Telegram, Wilkes-Barre and Press Union, Atlantic City, are the new customers this week. Write for samples of a line, alert, up-to-date service, to the Graphic Syndicate, 25 City Hall Place, New York.

EMPLOYMENT

Help Wanted

Circulation Manager for Eastern newspaper of 100,000 daily circulation and 60,000 Sunday. Both daily and Sunday papers dominate a field of 500,000 population within 25 mile radius. Must have had experience in all kinds of circulation work and been used to live competition. A good opportunity for the right man to grow with a rapidly growing newspaper. B-965, Editor & Publisher.

Managing Editor and News Editor!. Important Canadian daily has openings for men with news sense, activity, initiative and executive ability. Canadians who have had experience on best American papers will find here exceptional opportunities. Applicants must give details of nationality, record, abilities and salary. Everything confidential. Address B-997, Editor & Publisher.

Man to Sell Syndicated Magazine to retail merchants. Established company with high grade proposition. Splendid opportunity and large earnings open to capable salesman. State age, references, experience in full. Interviews arranged in New York or Chicago. B-985, Editor & Publisher.

Salesman calling on editors to side line; high grade first run, newspaper serial fiction; a rare opportunity. A-306, Editor & Publisher.

Telegraph Editor wanted by leading afternoon paper in one of the largest cities in New England. Must have had experience on universal desk. Salary $40 a week to start. Good opportunity for permanent connection in congenial surroundings. Address giving full details. B-983, Editor & Publisher.

Situations Wanted

Advertising Manager of 12 years' experience wishes to connect with wide-awake newspaper as advertising or business manager. Have worked on Philadelphia and Washington papers. Am a real business getter. Not afraid of hard work or long hours. Married. Age 32. Could be available some time in June. If you are interested in securing the services of a man with real ability. Address B-999, Editor & Publisher.

Advertising Manager, twelve years' experience on small and metropolitan newspapers, knows national and local, excellent record and splendid references. Consolidation makes change necessary. Age 31, married. Will go anywhere. Here's an opportunity for some publisher to get a valuable man to increase advertising revenues; a man who can take over the active business management and show results greater than promises. Address B-998, Editor & Publisher.

Advertising Solicitor desires to connect with special agency or publishers' representative. Over 15 years' practical experience. Acquainted with agencies. Have covered New England, South and West territories. Now holding executive position on New York City daily. Possess initiative and ability. Best reference. Married. Available immediately. B-989, Editor & Publisher.

Advertising Manager—Good layout man and copy writer—Experienced in selling printing and soliciting ads—desires connection with good live daily in some hustling Southern city. At present employed—References. A-504, Editor & Publisher.

Business Manager or Publisher's Assistant—Young man, 30, married, now employed as Business Manager in Southwestern City of 25,000, good record, desires permanent connection where opportunities are greater than immediate salary. Looking for future, not merely change. Best references and reason for change. Address A-508, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Manager of 15 years' experience available June 1st account of consolidation. A hard worker and producer. Best of references. B-980, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Manager, 12 years' experience, 32 years of age; married. Have a record for getting good business increases in highly competitive fields; increases that are hard to beat. Both morning and evening experience. Understand boy and girl promotion. Have never used a Premium. Paper I am with will discontinue publishing in about a week. Will go any place. At present in the North. Address B-871, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Manager whose present employer is his best reference, wishes to make an immediate change. He is a capable executive, organizer and promotion man who can get and hold circulation and the money for it. Prefer Southern or Western city of 200,000 or more. B-982, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Manager. Several years' experience. Best of references. Steady, now employed. Married. Am also experienced Mailer. Would like position in city of middle West or East. Address B-991, Editor & Publisher.

Situations Wanted

Circulation Manager—Sober, energetic, hard and conscientious worker. Capable of managing and supervising help; good executive, who builds and retains circulation by giving service, age 33, married. Seventeen years of circulation work, eight as manager. References. Write A. B. C., 402 E. Hill Street, Monroe, N. C.

Circulation Manager of proven ability wishes to make change. Would like Town of 50,000 or 100,000 population. Ohio preferred, but willing to go anywhere. Good reference, clean record. B-995, Editor & Publisher.

Dramatic and Motion Picture Critic—Young man, 6 years' newspaper experience. Address B-966, Editor & Publisher.

Eastern Circulation Manager, wide experience, backed by references, desires connection with Southern Publisher, preferably Florida, but would consider good proposition in other sections of country. Reasonable salary. Write or wire H. M. Wheeler, 24 West Garden street, Pensacola, Florida.

Editorial and Desk work on Republican paper wanted by newspaper man of experience. Examples of headlines, special articles and editorials furnished on request. References. B-992, Editor & Publisher.

Editorial writer, managing editor, news editor—Man who can fill any position in editorial department, who has had 18 years' experience, mostly Metropolitan, and who is now holding managing editor position, wants change. Prefer South or Southwest. B-970, Editor & Publisher.

Executive Editor, now employed, paper 100,000 circulation seeks charge of morning daily of any size in need of editorial reorganization. Age 31, with 13 years' nawspaper training, four in present connection. Offers youth, energy and proof of accomplishment. A-501, Editor & Publisher.

Expert Plate Department Man, assist production work, purchasing, etc.; 10 years' experience large book and color printing houses; 10 years in charge office and follow-up work with large electrotype foundry. A-1 man, well known to trade in New York. Willing go out of town. B-990, Editor & Publisher.

Managing Editor—In some small Eastern city there is a publisher of an evening newspaper who is dissatisfied with his news department. I seek the opportunity to send him my successful record as a news executive on great and small dailies, together with copies of record contracts and recommendations. Salary requirements at least $75 a week. B-968, Editor & Publisher.

Managing Editor—Somewhere there is a publisher of a paper suffering from editorial anaemia who needs an experienced news executive to revitalize it by a strong editorial policy, opening of new news sources, attractive make-up, right handling of staff and close checking on expenses. He will find the right man for the job by writing to A-502, Editor & Publisher.

Motion Picture Critic and Sport Writer at liberty. Five years' experience. Prefer large cities anywhere. A-503, Editor & Publisher.

Production Manager—Having reached limit on present position, I desire connection with a metropolitan daily, where economical results are wanted; 22 years of broad experience. I have practical knowledge of photo-engraving, composition, stereotyping, press work (both black and color work), mechanical and constructional engineering. High school and business college education. Can furnish high class references. B-900, Editor & Publisher.

Publisher's Assistant, University graduate, 25; salesman, teacher, coach; reliable, hard worker. Prefer South. Available June 7. C. A. Robinette, Titusville, Fla.

Reporter—Desk position wanted by young man, 22, university education, six years experience, all phases of reporting, feature and sport writing, desk work, assistant city editor. Now employed, available June fifteenth. B-981, Editor & Publisher.

Special Edition—Publisher contemplating special edition or industrial or special pages may obtain organization on fair commission basis. Clean solicitation guaranteed. References Address B-908, Editor & Publisher.

Young Lady, charming and attractive personality, high school graduate, well read, literary ability approved by responsible literary people, would make excellent interviewer, but will accept position in any capacity in editorial room, or as private secretary to literary person. Address B-993, Editor & Publisher.

MECHANICAL

Equipment For Sale

Complete Newspaper Plant for tabloid or standard 8 col. newspaper, including Hoe Quad, six linotypes, all steel composing room and practically new front office and editorial equipment. Inspection invited. Immediate delivery. Southern Publishers Exchange, Inc., 203 Carneal Bldg., Richmond, Va.

Duplex Stereotype Press—Prints 4, 6, 8, 10, 12, 16, 20 pages, 8 columns, 12½ ems, sheet cut 22¾", column length 21", excellent condition, doing fine work. Selling to make room for 48 page Duplex same metropolitan one deck type. Delivery any time; real bargain; terms suit purchaser. Daily Home News, New Brunswick, N. J.

Equipment for Sale

Goss, Twenty-four Page, Straightline, three deck, two page wide press for sale. Capacity 25,000 four, six, eight, ten, or twelve page papers per hour, 12,500 sixteen, twenty, or twenty-four page papers per hour. Press is now operating in our plant in first class condition, and will be available October 1st. Will also sell Cutler-Hammer drive equipment including, 25-5 H. P. 220 Volt D. C. motors, and complete control panel including Kohler push button system. If desired will sell complete stereotype equipment, including 10,000 pound metal pot, curved casting box, tail outter, curved shaver, finishing block, wet mat moulding machine, two platen steam table with gas generator. All in good condition. Press now set for eight columns 12½ Ems, 22 inch columns, sheet size 23½". Address The Fargo Forum, Fargo, N. D.

Newspaper Presses and Equipment — Goss Comet Press, Duplex. Flat Bed Press, Hoe 16, 32 and 48-page presses and Goss 16, 20 and 48-page presses Wesel Saw and Trimmer. Metal Furnaces, Plate Casting and Finishing Machinery, Matrix Drying Tables and other general equipment. Griffiths Publishers Exchange, Inc., 154 Nassau street, New York.

Printers', Bookbinders' Outfitters—Modern cut-cost equipment, also rebuilt machinery. Conner Fendler Branch, A. T. F. Co., New York City.

The Following is for Sale—Two (2) complete Monotype Equipments, Keyboards and Casters, Extra Molds, Type, Border Mats, Compressor Outfit. Everything complete ready to run. Box A-505, Editor & Publisher.

Used Goss Matt Roller for wet mats only, for sale cheap. The Goss Printing Press Co., 1535 So. Paulina St., Chicago, Ill.

Web Press Bargains—Double Drive Duplex, $4,000; 20-page Goss, complete outfit and motor, $8,600; 28-page Hoe, prints multiples of 2, $9,000; 32-page Hoe, $10,200; two 16-page presses, low prices. Ten Linotypes and Intertypes; other newspaper equipment. Peckham Machinery Co., 1328 Broadway, N. Y. C.

Service

Erection and Repair Service—Work guaranteed on all makes of presses. For low rate, write or wire Press Erector, 1443 Blake street, Denver, Colorado.

Our Service is:—
EXPERT, REPUTABLE, AUTHORITATIVE

The Leaders in the Newspaper Field Have Used It for the Past Thirty Years.

SALES — APPRAISALS — MERGERS — CONSOLIDATIONS OF NEWSPAPER PROPERTIES

OUR SPECIALTY!

PALMER, DeWITT & PALMER
Newspaper Properties
350 Madison Ave., New York

Successful Performance

This firm has a record of almost 15 years of successful performance in the difficult work of

PURCHASE, CONSOLIDATION, SALE AND APPRAISAL

of newspaper and magazine properties throughout the U. S.

HARWELL & CANNON
Times Bldg. New York

WE CONNECT THE WIRES

EDITORIAL AND FEATURE Writer, with over 3 years' experience on large city daily, is seeking new connection. Ready to go anywhere for right position. "Unusually bright; well educated; great student; will make extraordinary writer." Age 26; college graduate. Mention our No. 5340-B.

FERNALD'S EXCHANGE, INC.
THIRD NAT'L B'LD'G., SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

DOLLAR $ $ $ $ PULLERS

ONE DOLLAR WILL BE PAID FOR EACH IDEA PUBLISHED

THIS is just the season to get the local lamp making shops lined up for some advertising of spring lamps and shades to match. There's a mighty attractive style in shades right now—made of tinted linen in the smart pleated design. Coloring is done by hand on shades made to order, so the inside may be light tint, while outside is a darker tone in colors to match summer draperies.—R. M. Campbell.

If you haven't a "Boat for Sale" and "Boats Wanted" classification on your want ad pages you're losing money. Try it and feature it in office ads.—G. Smedal, Jr. Minneapolis, Minn.

The heading "Gifts For the Bride" run on the classified page during May and June allows many small advertisers to get their messages before the public at low cost.—V. G. Dawson, Halifax.

To those whose eyes run over the Help Wanted columns of the Spokane (Wash.) Spokesman-Review, there is a measure of assistance in the following paragraph there:

"The Spokesman-Review will publish your 'situation wanted' ad in the daily and Sunday edition three times for 15 cents per line. This small charge is less than half the cost of inserting 'want ads' under any other classification."

Thus the paper makes the rate as low as possible to be of service to the man out of a job, scanning the help wanted columns.—C. M. L.

Broadcasting nightly by radio the "Lost and Found" column from the editions of the day, has doubled the number of lost and found classified ads for the Rochester Journal and Post Express. People were so interested in the feature, they answered the ads by telephone before broadcasting was completed and in several cases articles were restored to their owners within a remarkably short time, thus increasing the efficiency of the advertisements and the desirability of the column.—M. B. Scales, Rochester.

Boston will soon celebrate a Music Week. Why not have your paper sponsor a Music Week in your city or town? Get the various church and municipal choirs, choruses, bands and orchestras to give public concerts. It will help both advertising and circulation, and be a public service.—C. E. Pellissier, Boston.

The Des Moines Evening Tribune is now running a column of "Sport Want Ads" which affords a distinctive spread for amateur and exchange advertisers in the sports field. "League pitcher wants Sunday games," is a typical ad. Canoes, fishing tackle, golf clubs, tents, etc., are listed as wanted, or for sale. This localization saves time for the prospective purchaser, and is a service appreciated by readers.—Fred B. Blend.

As "Good Roads Week," June 7 to 12, promises to be more extensively celebrated than ever before, each Governor appointing delegates to the Convention, there is opportunity offered each newspaper to tie into this week with a page or more of ads from the local tire men, under such heading as "Makes Good Roads Better," then feature the various auto tires.—C. M. L., Seattle, Wash.

One of the suburban cities near Boston recently took a full page in one of the Boston papers. Under the heading of "Welcome to M——" the local merchants of that city inserted a number of small advertisements of their businesses. This type of advertising brings attention to their city and gets the paper a full page that it could not possibly sell to the individuals otherwise.—C. E. Pellissier, Boston.

WILL TEAR SIGNS DOWN

Denver Boys Enlisted in "Sign Taking Down Day"—Billboards Unaffected

"Sign Taking Down Day" will be held in Denver sometime in May, it was announced by the "Beautiful Denver" committee of the Denver Real Estate Exchange. On this day, boy scouts and De Molay boys will be sent out into the highways and byways to tear down all tin signs and illegal, non-standard signboards.

The drive is not aimed at standard-size, paid advertising billboards, but at the "home-made" variety of signs, it is declared, although it is the compromise action of an intensive campaign waged last year against all forms of billboards.

Canadian Weeklies Merged

The Orillia (Ont.) Packet and the Orillia Times have amalgamated as the Packet and Times. Both have been published for more than 50 years and rank high among Canadian weekly newspapers. The present publishers of both papers, C. H. and J. H. Hale of the Packet and G. A. Blackstone of the Times will be associated with the new publishing company.

HUNCHES

ONE DOLLAR WILL BE PAID FOR EACH "HUNCH" PUBLISHED

MORE libraries than movies! This is the idea back of a feature story that appeared in the Bloomington (Ind.) World. There are three movies in Bloomington and the reporter found five libraries: City, University, high school, parochial school, and Chamber of Commerce. The reporter told about the special services of each library, its circulation, and service. The story ended with an interview with the manager of one of the theaters in which he stressed the possibilities of visual education through movies.—Norman J. Radder, Bloomington, Ind.

Under a one-column box head, "What Visiting Motorists Are Saying," the Worcester (Mass.) Telegram is running a novel daily stunt. Each day a reporter interviews the driver of an automobile from out of the state and obtains a statement of a stick or two on the visitors's impressions of the city. Some interesting and amusing remarks have been gleaned by virtue of the outsider's viewpoint.—R. B. S., Worcester.

The small town society editor frequently has to take reports from rural clubs which meet regularly and each time list the same persons as attending. Some rural telephone lines are so poor that there is great difficulty in getting names correctly. One Northwest Missouri society editor arranges at the opening of the season for a list of members of the various clubs and each is given a number. The club reporter then reports by number, as: "The Rural Study Club met at the home of Mrs. 2. Those present were Mrs. 1, Mrs. 3, 4, 7, 8, etc." It obviates spelling out of names and speeds things up.—C. M. V., Maryville, Mo.

Your local ministers can give some interesting stories about odd wedding fees and unusual circumstances surrounding weddings. June is the month of brides and features about gifts, clothes and changes of customs make good copy.—Mrs. Thurston A. Blakely, Okmulgee, Okla.

With June on the threshold and its many marriages, there is ample opportunity for the society editor of your paper to place in a box on any page save the society page the obligations of the bridegroom, the ushers, the best man, the bridesmaids, and other social etiquette of the ceremony, to be run in a series day by day.—C. M. L., Seattle.

DISTINCTIVE!

UNCOMMON SENSE

By John Blake

Daily Inspirational Homilies With a KICK

Non-Factional, Avoids Controversies Tells How to Succeed

THE BELL SYNDICATE Inc.

JOHN N. WHEELER, Pres.

154 Nassau St. New York, N. Y

The World's Greatest Newspaper Feature Service

Supplying a complete and exclusive daily illustrated feature service to newspapers throughout the United States and in foreign countries.

4 page ready-print color comics.

Write for samples and rates

NEA SERVICE INC. 1200 W. 3RD STREET, CLEVELAND, OHIO

Wheeler-Nicholson, Inc.

Complete Feature Service

Wire us for samples and prices of the Largest, Most Original Most Artistic and Finest blanket feature service on the market, which includes IVANHOE, VIVIAN VANITY, and the FAMOUS SHORT STORY SERIES, in addition to SPORTS, WOMAN'S PAGE FEATURES, COMICS, FICTION, VERSE, CARTOONS and everything for the newspaper.

Wheeler-Nicholson, Inc.

Malcolm Wheeler-Nicholson, President

373 4th Ave., New York City

BETTER X-WORDS

That's why our service holds its readers and its popularity month after month. Type mats.

The International Syndicate

Baltimore, Md.

THOS. W. BRIGGS CO.

Columbian Mutual Tower

MEMPHIS, TENN.

CREATORS OF LOCAL DISPLAY FROM A NEW SOURCE

Our Business Review and many other feature pages now running in more than 80 leading American and Canadian newspapers. Write or wire for our representative.

William II Ex-Emperor of Germany has written a

One-time publication article on religion

in the Old Testament and the New for Release

May 30

The McClure Newspaper Syndicate

373 Fourth Avenue, New York

How To Play GOLF

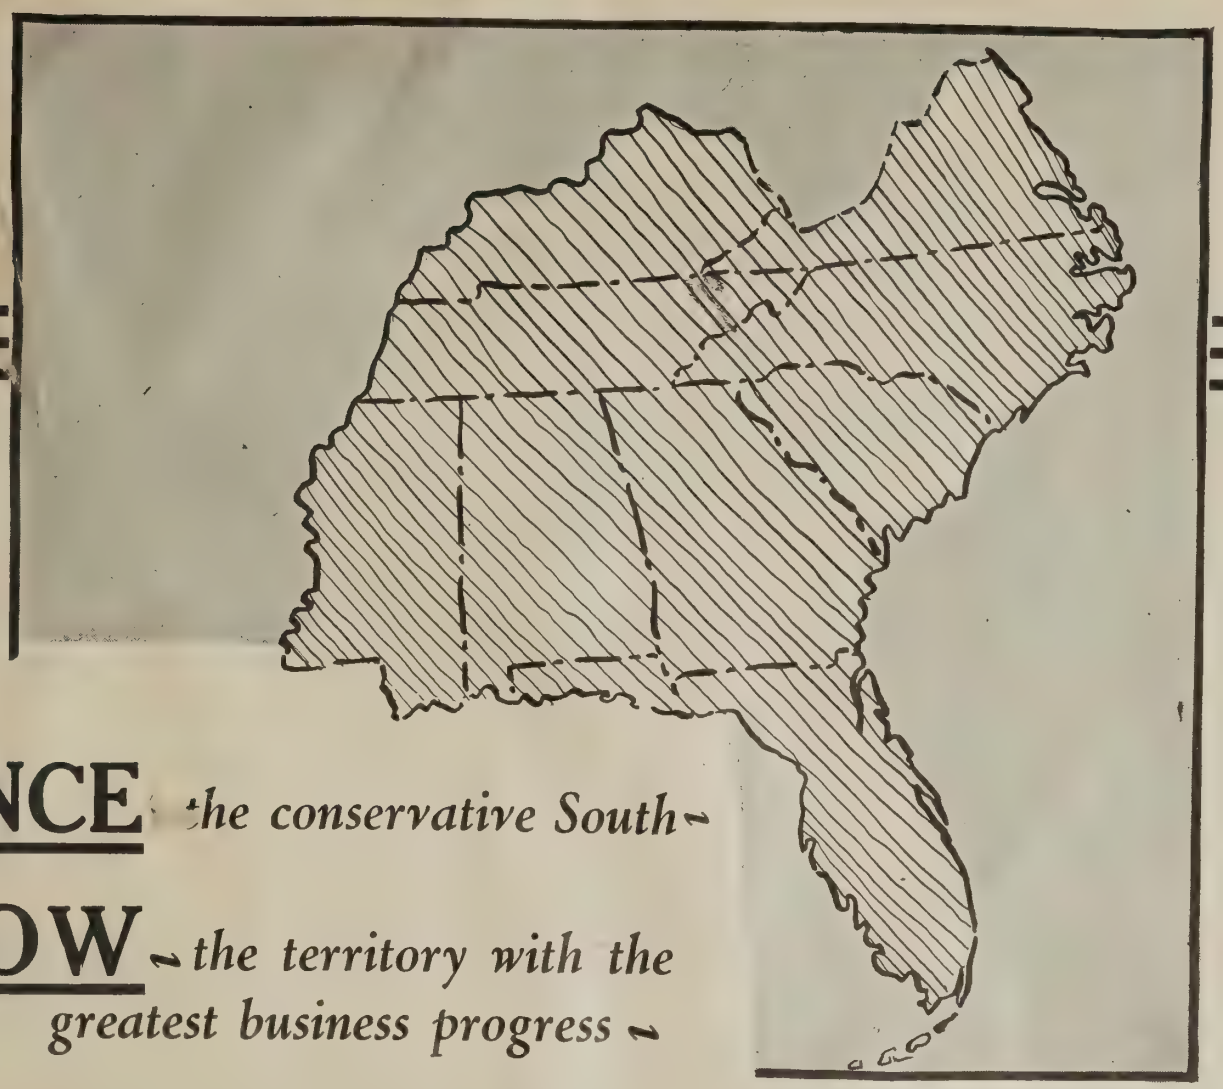
By JOHNNY FARRELL



Famous Teacher of That Game

24 LESSONS Illustrated

For release daily

KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, Inc.

New York City

ONCE the conservative South

NOW the territory with the greatest business progress

Business now realizes the tremendous possibilities of the South. Once a territory known for the conservative policies followed by its commercial and industrial enterprises, the change to the modern progressive methods has been marvelous.

Industry is alive in the South. Business is booming. The people earn more and are spending more for better clothing and the better things of life. They are buying more advertised goods—both commodities and luxuries. The sale of automobiles have gone way beyond the proportionate quota of any other territory.

Your opportunity for greater business is in the South. Advertise to the South through the most direct medium—the daily papers.

The papers listed below are ready to show you how you can distribute and sell your product in the most efficient and economical manner.

	Circulation	2,500 Lines	10,000 Lines
ALABAMA
*Mobile News-Item (E)	11,993	.05	.05
*Mobile Register (M)	20,427	.08	.08
*Mobile Register (S)	32,096	.10	.10
FLORIDA
†Daytona Beach News (ES)	5,731	.04	.04
*Florida Times-Union (M) 49,903 (S)	59,239	.12(S.15)	.12(S.15)
††Lakeland Ledger (E)	4,283	.03	.03
Miami Herald (M)	31,714	.11	.11
Miami Herald (S)	40,347	.12	.12
*Orlando Reporter-Star (E)	8,502	.06	.06
*Orlando Sentinel (M&S)	10,655	.06	.06
*Pensacola News and Journal (E&M)	9,805	.06	.06
†St. Petersburg Independent (E)	11,917	.055	.055
*Tampa Times (E)	23,325	.08	.08
†Tampa Tribune (M) 34,841 (S)	53,762	.09(.11S)	.09(.11S)
West Palm Beach Post (M)	8,638	.06	.06
GEORGIA
*Augusta Herald (E)	14,246	.05	.05
*Augusta Herald (S)	14,547	.05	.05
*Macon Telegraph (M)	24,035	.08	.08
*Macon Telegraph (S)	24,439	.08	.08
Savannah Morning News (M), 21,015. (S)	22,204	.06(.07S)	.06(.07S)
KENTUCKY
*Lexington Leader (E)	19,640	.06	.06
*Lexington Leader (S)	19,531	.06	.06
Paducah Sun (E)	9,255	.04	.04
NORTH CAROLINA
†Greensboro Daily News (M)	27,485	.08	.07
†Greensboro Daily News (S)	31,505	.09	.08
†Raleigh News and Observer (M)	33,515	.08	.08
†Raleigh News and Observer (S)	36,318	.09	.09
†Winston-Salem Journal (M)	13,702	.05	.05
†Winston-Salem Journal (S)	13,720	.05	.05
*Winston-Salem Sentinel (E)	18,259	.07	.07
SOUTH CAROLINA
Columbia State (M)	23,663	.07	.07
Columbia State (S)	24,838	.07	.07
Greenville News (M)	21,704	.075	.07
*Spartanburg Journal (E) / *Spartanburg Herald (M) 6,860 (S)	4,613 / 9,856	.05	.05
TENNESSEE
Chattanooga Times (M)	30,203	.10	.10
Chattanooga Times (S)	30,230	.10	.10
*Memphis Commercial Appeal (M)	100,934	.18	.18
*Memphis Commercial Appeal (S)	129,219	.21	.21
*Nashville Banner (E)	54,519	.11	.11
*Nashville Banner (S)	56,007	.12	.12
VIRGINIA
*Danville Register and Bee (M&E) / *Danville Register (Sunday)	14,313 / 9,065	.05	.05
Newport News Times-Herald (E) / Newport News Daily Press (S&M)	7,791 / 5,708	.05	.05
Roanoke Times & World News (M&E)	25,658	.08	.08
Roanoke Times (S)	16,672	.07	.07
Staunton News-Leader (M), Leader (E)	6,541	.035	.035

* A. B. C. Statement, March 31, 1926.
 A. B. C. Statement, September 30, 1925.
† Government Statement, March 31, 1926.
†† Government Statement, September 30, 1925.

PREPARED!

NO papers in America are as well prepared to cover the big world-story when it breaks as the members of The Consolidated Press Association.

When the General Strike put Britain in fetters, trained writers of the Chicago Daily News Foreign Service were on the scene writing the atmosphere, reporting the "news behind the news," telling the baffled American readers "what it was all about."

First to anticipate the cataclysm in their columns, Consolidated Press members were first to record the end and to outline the terms of surrender.

When the dashing Marshal Pilsudski stormed the gates of Warsaw, it was a Chicago Daily News correspondent who first told the eye-witness story, first reported the lightning chain of events from behind the censor-barred frontiers.

It was another Chicago Daily News man, wise in the ways of Central Europe, who sent the first interpretive story of the revolution to America.

Newspapers sharing the dispatches on sports, politics, fashions, business, finance and world news of human interest furnished by The Consolidated Press Association are prepared to cover the big story efficiently, completely and exclusively, wherever and whenever it may break.

The Consolidated Press Association

Executive Offices, Evening Star Building, Washington, D. C.

New York	Chicago	San Francisco	Paris
Eighth Floor	Third Floor	Third Floor	Fourth Floor
World Building	Daily News Building	Bulletin Building	19 Rue d'Antin

LIBRARY U. OF I., URBANA-CHAMPAIGN

LIBRARY U. OF I., URBANA-CHAMPAIGN

UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS-URBANA
3 0112 072556852